Sr. S. M. Vandamark writes:—"I rejoice in the goodness of God to me and my family, and my mind is often led to look forward to the glorious resurrection of the dead, when those I have loved so dearly here shall come again from the land of the enemy, never more to part. I praise the Lord that I have been brought to understand the word of God in its true light; and by his grace I mean to have my lamp trimmed and burning, with oil in my vessel, with my lamp. I want an abundant entrance into that glorious kingdom. Pray for me, that I may be faithful to the end, and have the wedding garment on, and go through the pearly gates into that beautiful city, and eat of the tree of life, never more to sin."

Sr. A. Wheelock writes:—"My dear sisters—Almost a year has passed away since we met on the camp-ground at Springfield, and I have not seen but one letter addressed to our 'Band'; but I trust you are all trying to gain a home in the kingdom. Let us gird on our armor anew, and fight for our King. In three months more, if the Lord will, we hope to meet the dear ones again on the old camp-ground; and let us get ready now to go into camp. Let us begin to pray for the success of our meeting, that it may be the best we ever had. Let us come up there to work for the Lord."

Obituaries.

Cummings. Died in Surry, N. H., May 25th, Hannah Loretta, wife of Nelson T. Cummings, aged thirty-five years, nine months.

Her sufferings were intense for the last five months. Discourse by the writer at the funeral from Eccl. 9: 10, by request of the bereaved husband. May he find great comfort and peace in the hope of life and immortality at the resurrection of the just. Jehiel Claflin.

French. Died in Hopkinton, N. H., March 23d, of consumption, Mrs. Sarah E. French, aged thirty-one years.

She appeared to be entirely resigned to the divine will, and though tenderly loving her husband and child, cheerfully left them in the hand of God. Her humility, self-abasement, and love to God and souls were striking, and her joy in the Lord surpassing. The promises of the word of God were as food to her soul, and her faithfulness to the impenitent seemed to be in proportion to her own high spiritual enjoyment. Her end was peace.

House. Died at Warehouse Point, Ct., Jan. 24th, 1869, Jennie, only daughter of Henry C. and Maria A. House, aged four years and five months.

About the last words she spoke were—"Mother, Jesus loves Jennie."

"Swet flower; she came and bloomed awhile,
And then she faded, drooped, and died;
Her spirit seemed like angel's smile
Cast sweetly on life's dreary tide."
M. House.

Married.

At the residence of the bride's father, Torrington, May 24th, by Eld. A. D. Flagg, Mr. Nathan W. Barden, of Norfolk, Ct., and Mrs. Alice A. Munger, of Wrightville, Ct.

At Northwood, April 1st, by Elder John Parsons, Mr. Charles H. Davis, of Northwood, and Miss Martha A. Ladd, of Deerfield.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

London, May 25. The Times of this morning, in an editorial on the French election, says the chief cities repudiate the idea of an empire, and a revival of activity will result from the verdict which condemns personal government. The restoration of a Parliamentary Government may conciliate the existing feeling. By such means can the Emperor expect to mitigate an opposition which has not yet become anti-dynastic.

It is definitely ascertained that the rumor of an alliance of France, England and Spain against the United States is without any foundation.

May 27. The Alabama claims still form the great theme of conversation and newspaper comment.

Cork, May 25. Parties have been discovered here secretly drilling with arms at night, and three men have been arrested.

Florence May 26. Fourteen arrests have been made at Leghorn in connection with the attempted assassination of Col. Grenville. It has been ascertained that political animosity, growing out of the conduct of Col. Grenville at the siege of Rome in 1849, was the cause of the assault.

Madrid, May 26. The Cortes is now debating the clauses in the Constitution which refer to Colonies. Senor Castellar, alluding to Cuba, said if Spain had followed the example of England in her treatment of Canada, by granting liberties which the Colonies now claim for themselves, the outbreak in Cuba would have been prevented.

Marshal Serrano replied that Captain General Dulce granted the required liberties when he entered upon the government of Cuba, but party spirit blinded some of the inhabitants to the intentions of the home government. By the demonstration of physical force, the rebellion had been suppressed; but moral disorder was disappearing very slowly. When the normal state of the Island is restored, the home government, acting in conjunction with Deputies of Cuba, will suppress slavery and punish all persons engaged in the slave trade.

Paris May 27. Hon. E. B. Washburne, U. S. Minister, was received by the Emperor to-day, and made a brief address, in which he assured the Emperor of the friendship entertained by the people and Government of the United States toward himself and the French nation.

Napoleon, in reply, expressed the utmost satisfaction at Mr. Washburne's assurances, and hoped that the present friendly relations between the two countries would long be maintained.

Mr. Washburne called on Prince Napoleon today, and met with a hearty welcome.

Paris, May 28. Official papers say that the elections extinguish the old parties, and leave the liberal empire opposed only by a few revolutionary candidates.

Madrid, May 28. Serious disturbances have occurred to-day at Malaga and Seville, directed against the Provisional Government.

Lisbon, May 29. Count D'Eu the General of the Allied forces, had arrived at Ascension, and was making preparations to attack the Paraguayans. The advance guard was within nine miles of Lopez's army.

Paris, May 29. The official journal of the Empire denies that there is any foundation for the rumors that the French troops are to evacuate Rome.

Passing Events.

☞ Before August next, there will be about two hundred thousand Americans in Europe.

☞ Prince Louis de Bourbon, the disowned descendant of a line of throneless kings, has declared his allegiance to the United States.

☞ In his speech at Memphis the other day, O'Neill, the Fenian President, urged his hearers "to watch, wait, and keep their powder dry."

☞ It is stated that there are about thirty thousand persons at Copenhagen now waiting for transportation to the United States.

☞ According to accounts from St. Petersburg, the continued indisposition of the Emperor Alexander is beginning to cause uneasiness to his medical men.

☞ A London clergyman advertises that he will "lend" his weekly sermons for half-a-crown apiece, or four for 10s., warranted "original, earnest and evangelical."

☞ The Union Pacific Railroad bridge over the Missouri at Omaha will cost $2,000,000. It will be elevated on eleven piers, two hundred and fifty feet apart, and seven feet below low-water mark.

☞ In California a machine has been invented which, it is said, has cut, threshed, cleaned, and sacked the wheat from twenty acres in ten hours, with only three men to work it.

☞ A Norfolk (Va.) paper tells of a quart of strawberries which weighed one and three-quarter pounds. Fifteen berries made the quart, and each measured over three inches and a half in circumference.

☞ Irish agricultural prospects were never brighter at this season than they are at present. The most favorable accounts are received from all parts of the provinces as to the extent of cultivation and the state of the crops.

☞ The Czar of Russia has issued a decree transferring the seat of government from St. Petersburg to Kiew, the chief city of the province of Ukraine, and a palace is now building there for the Imperial residence.

☞ A serious schism is threatened among the Spiritualists. Dr. Wm. B. Potter, a leader among them, has come out with an exposure and an appeal to decent Spiritualists to separate from "impostors, libertines, and free-lovers," and wage uncompromising war upon them. If half he tells is true, there is need of a radical expurgation. He says that no less than six editors of spiritual papers are free-lovers, and that Andrew Jackson Davis, the prophet and leader, extends fellowship to the libertines.

☞ The dream of the Pharaohs, the Ptolemies, the Bonapartes, will soon be a reality. Ships will sail freely past Egypt and Arabia into the Indian Ocean, saving many thousands of miles upon the old voyages from Europe to Asia. This is the culmination of the world's efforts for a route eastward to the Indies. The Suez Canal, begun and ended by French enterprise, at a cost of $100,000,000, is characterized as "a task which has no equal except in mythology, when Hercules joined the Mediterranean to the Atlantic."

☞ The beautiful city of Tacna, Peru, after having escaped the earthquake that completely destroyed Arica, only forty miles distant, is now experiencing a terrible visitation of yellow fever. Of a population of 10,000, 3,000 have fallen victims to the epidemic, and between 5,000 and 6,000 have fled to the interior leaving hardly 1,500 persons in the place. Of these some forty-six are dying daily, and the terror of the people is so great that no such thing as nursing or assistance can be procured. The physicians sent by the Government find it impossible to do anything effectively.

☞ There are eight thousand women in Boston and its suburbs, working from twelve to sixteen hours a day to earn less than three dollars a week, and boarding and lodging themselves from their earnings. Many earn but twenty-five cents a day, and not a few less than that. Shirts are given out to be made at fifty cents a dozen. The motion of the sewing machine wears out the spine in a year or two, and then there is no relief but death.—Advertizer, April 29th.

☞ It was a shrewd dodge of the Emperor of France to have the election there take place today (Sunday,) because the country folks, who are staunch Napoleonists, will be at leisure on a holiday, and will be sure to go to the polls and vote in a body. In the cities the people are republicans, and opposed to the imperial dynasty, but the country people can easily outvote them.—Courier.

☞ "The age of military glory has gone by," says the "Advocate of Peace." Not much. The throne of France is founded upon and maintained by military glory. All continental Europe worships the military element, and founds its faith upon it. In our own country military glory has been in the ascendant for ten years, and is still the passport to honors and emoluments. The peace advocates will never, we fear, be able to overshadow and extinguish military glory until man shall have been recreated and furnished with a new nature.

☞ Reports from Iowa say that the wheat crop never looked so well as now. The extent of the growing crop is very large, varying from twenty-five to one hundred per cent. broader than that of last season, and many farmers will harvest ten acres where the did one last year. Corn planting has also been very general.

☞ There is a real idol temple erected and formally established in the United States, at Portland, Oregon. The building is completed, and the Chinamen are actively engaged in furnishing. The 15th amendment makes these idol worshipers citizens and legalizes their idolatry.

☞ Iacua, Peru, had a population of eight thousand six months ago, and only six hundred now The yellow fever has carried off three thousand of them, and the remainder have fled to the interior.

Are we to have an Empire?—There is much food for thought in the following, from the Journal of Commerce:

"Following the agitation for universal suffrage in this country comes naturally from various sources the suggestion of an empire. The two things, though seeming wide apart, are really correlated. It would be no paradox to say that an empire is as legitimately as a republic the product of universal suffrage. Look at France! There is a country where the suffrage is universal, and there is an empire in which the power of one man is greater and and more absolute than in any other European nation, save only Russia. In this connection it is not necessary to contrast the merits and faults of the Napoleonic government. Our business is only to show that there is an empire in which the right to vote is in fact as freely exercised as in this republic; and we only desire to call the attention of thoughtful persons to the comparatively unsuspected dangers which lurk at the bottom of that much overpraised institution, universal suffrage. So far from being a guarantee of our liberties, it may prove their destruction. Instead of ensuring the perpetuity of the Presidential office and the other present republican forms, it may, if unchecked, some day put an emperor on a throne, make the Senate a mere pension house for imperial favorites, and pack Congress with the willing tools of some daring genius who has won the hearts of the people and clothed himself with the imperial purple. Universal suffrage actually makes this astounding revolution in our system possible. Universal suffrage is the only thing that does make it possible. In universal suffrage is the danger and not the protection of the republic.

The Emperor Napoleon was voted upon the throne by an overwhelming majority of the French people, and he now depends on universal suffrage for the maintenance of his empire.

For us the hour has not come nor the man. Perhaps they never may, and we earnestly hope they never will. But, if at some time the nation should be convulsed with political dissensions, and sick of mismanagement, perpetual change and uncertainty, and desirous of peace even though its price should be slavery to an emperor, and if at that crisis, a President of genius, supreme egotism and unflinching courage should be in the chair, and should appeal to the people to rally around him and make him emperor, as the only hope of peace and safety to the country, the advocates of universal suffrage would then learn how soon and how many of our pupils would forget the principles of republicanism which they have been taught, and would vote for an empire as readily as Louis Napoleon's subjects do under his adroit management."

A Singular Sect.—When Napoleon was in Russia the Molokani, a religious sect, imagined that he was "the Lion of the Valley of Jehoshaphat described in their old Psalms, who was destined to overthrow the false Emperor, and restore the throne of the white Czar." So the Tambof Molokani appointed a deputation from their body "to go clothed in white and present an address to him," in the year 1812. The deputies made their way through Little Russia and Poland, as far as the Vistula, but there they were made prisoners. One of them escaped, and got safely home; the rest were never heard of again. Liprandi, in the report he drew up (in Russian) for the Government in the year 1853, says that "the Napoleonovshchina, or sect of worshipers of Napoleon, reappeared in 1820 at Byelostok, and at Pskoff, and again in 1844, at Moscow." The worshipers of Napoleon at Moscow meet with the utmost secrecy in a private stone house in the middle of the town. There, after performing other rites, they prostrate themselves before a bust of Napoleon as before a divinity. For them Napoleon is still living, and they believe that some day he will return from Siberia, together with the Emperor Peter III. Then Peter will mount the throne of the world, and Napoleon will command the legions of the faithful under him. Liprandi goes on to tell how the police contrived in November, 1846, to get hold of certain secret pictures belonging to this sect; one of which he laid before the Minister of the Interior. These pictures were printed on very thin paper, in order that, being slipped between the leaves of books and atlases, they might get passed on unseen from hand to hand. And these pictures represented "Napoleon ascending into heaven."

Notice.

The State Campmeeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, to commence June 21st, 1869. The tent will be pitched Saturday, the 19th, for public meeting, on the same ground. There will be a grocery and boarding table kept on the ground by the committee, at reasonable rates; the proceeds to be used to defray the expenses of the meeting. Hay and straw and tent frames will be furnished free. There will be no reduction in the fare on the R. R. this year. Elder Miles Grant, Editor of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., is to be with us through the meeting.

Dear Brethren, we take this opportunity to invite you, one and all, to come to this yearly feast. Come early, and stay till the close of the meeting. Do not let the sacrifice of time and money prevent your coming. Bring your family, converted and unconverted. Prepare to make them comfortable, and work for God and the salvation of your children and others. You who live isolated, whose families are deprived of the gospel, are especially invited to come and get acquainted, and thereby may open a door into the regions beyond. Let all ministers come.

S. B. Ensign, Chairman.
W. H. Peck, Secretary of the Committee.

Wisconsin Annual Conference.

The Advent Christian Conference of the State of Wisconsin is to hold its next annual meeting at Prairie du Sac (in connection with the State campmeeting), beginning June 8th. All the ministers in the State who belong to the Conference, or who wish to unite with it, should be present in time. It is hoped that every church belonging to the Conference, or desiring to unite with it, will send delegates. Let us consolidate our strength, and work more vigorously and harmoniously in the cause of Christ. Time is flying, and the judgment is coming. Let us work while the day lasts, and all pull together, in the same direction, and our exertions will be crowned with abundant success, and God be glorified. Wm. Sheldon, Sec.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

YOUR MISSION.

If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rocking on the highest billows,
Laughing at the storms you meet;
You can stand among the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay,
You can lend a hand to help them,
As they launch their boats away.

If you are too weak to journey
Up the mountain, steep and high;
You can stand within the valley,
While the multitudes go by;
You can chant in happy measure,
As they slowly pass along,
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song.

If you have not gold and silver
Ever ready to command;
If you cannot towards the needy
Reach an ever open hand;
You can visit the afflicted,
O'er the erring you can weep,
You can be a true disciple,
Sitting at the Savior's feet.

If you cannot in the harvest
Garner up the richest sheaves,
Many a grain, both ripe and golden,
Will the careless reapers leave;
Go and glean among the briers,
Growing rank against the wall,
For it may be that their shadow
Hides the heaviest wheat of all.

If you cannot in the conflict
Prove yourself a soldier true,
If, where fire and smoke are thickest,
There's no work for you to do;
When the battle-field is silent,
You can go with careful tread,
You can bear away the wounded,
You can cover up the dead.

Do not, then, stand idly waiting
For some greater work to do;
Fortune is a lazy goddess,
She will never come to you.
Go and toil in any vineyard,
Do not fear to do or dare;
If you want a field of labor,
You can find it anywhere.

LIFE AND DEATH PLACED BEFORE THE SINNER.

BY J. W. THOMAS.

"I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live."—DEUT. 30: 19.

(Concluded.)

Having now very briefly noticed the death which awaits the ungodly and disobedient, let vs turn the picture over, and take a view of the life and blessedness which is promised to those who do the will of God, as the wicked do not receive their punishment until after the resurrection and judgment, so the righteous will not receive their reward until that event takes place. I know that many believe and preach that people go to heaven as soon as they die, but I cannot find one thus saith the Lord to sustain such a theory; consequently I reject it as a falsehood forged by the devil and calculated to lead people into other false doctrines, and unprepare them to see the necessity of the coming of Jesus Christ and resurrection of the dead. Let us then turn "to the law and to the testimony," and see what we can find concerning the life which is to be given to the saints, and the time when they are to receive it.

First, God has promised eternal life. "In hope of eternal life, which God who cannot lie promised before the world began." Titus 1: 2. "That being justified by his grace we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." Titus 3: 7. "The gift of God is eternal life." Rom. 6; 23. When Peter said, "Lo, we have left all and have followed thee, what shall we have therefore?" Jesus answered and said, "Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mother, and children, and lands, with persecution, and in the world to come eternal life." Mark 10: 28, 19, 30. This is the life, and connected with it is all the blessedness of the world to come. There is the kingdom, that world of light and glory; of beauty and happiness, which God has promised to them that love and obey him; and that kingdom will not be "above the stars" nor but it will be in this earth, which we inhabit, when it is regenerated and made new.

"Beyond the bounds of time and space,"

The angel said to Daniel, "And the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." Dan. 7: 27. Jesus told his disciples when he explained to them the parable of the tares of the field, that at the end of this world "the Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom [this earth] all things that offend, and them which do iniquity, and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." Matt. 13: 41.

This kingdom has various names in the Scripture. It is called "a better country;" the "purchased possession;" an "inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away;" "a new heavens and a new earth." John, the beloved disciple, has given us a beautiful description of that blest abode. He says, "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write; for these words are true and faithful." Rev. 21: 1–6.

This gives us a little idea of the portion which awaits the righteous, and now we wish to inquire when they will come into possession of all their glory and felicity, and in order to answer this question correctly we must consult the word of God. What does that say? "When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col. 3: 4.

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is; and every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure." 1 John 3: 2 3. "And the seventh angel sounded, and there were great voices in heaven saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever. And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great, and shouldest destroy them which destroy [or corrupt] the earth." Rev. 11: 15, 18. "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be." Rev. 22: 12.

Let us hear the dying words of the apostle Paul to his son Timothy:

"I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and dead at his appearing and his kingdom, Preach the word. . . . For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."—2 Tim. 4: 1, 7, 8.

Such are some of the declarations of Scripture which point out the time when the saints shall be received "into eternal life"; and what a joyful day that will day when the Savior comes to gather his elect from the four quarters of the earth; when the archangel's voice and the loud sounding trump of God shall penetrate the dark caverns of old earth, and the sleeping millions of the saints of God shall catch the sound and spring forth from their dusty beds, clothed with light and immortality. Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory. O grave, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?" Then shall the "shining ones" hear those welcome words, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." "Then shall many that sleep in the dust of the earth awake; some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." Then shall many come from the east and from the west, and sit down in the kingdom with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. "Then shall the ransomed of the Lord return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

Then shall the righteous go forth and range the blissful fields of paradise restored; they will then inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace. There will be nothing to hurt nor destroy in all God's holy mountain. The Prince of peace will reign, and God's will shall be done in earth as it is now done in heaven. Sin, sorrow, pain and death will be done away, and the glory of God will fill the earth as the waters cover the sea. There the loved ones will meet, never to part any more. God's own soft hand shall wipe the tear-drops from every weeping eye, and his children will be permitted to gaze upon his countenance and dwell forever in his peaceful presence. How glorious to associate with the angels; to walk up the golden streets, and through the broad aisles of the New Jerusalem; to wander beside the crystal river; to pluck fruit from life's immortal tree; to wear the crowns of glory and bear the palms of victory; to help swell the anthems of praise to God and the Lamb for ever. There will be no more curse to mar the beauty or deform the loveliness of the saints' eternal home. Temptations will be unknown; trouble and sorrow, anxiety and care, will never intrude; nor will there be anything to interrupt the never-ceasing enjoyment of those who shall sing the "new song."

How great the contrast between life and death, between the end of a good man and the end of a bad man. The one shall hear it said to him, "Well done"; the other must hear those solemn words, "Depart." The righteous man, after having lived in the enjoyment of God's favor in this world, shall then be received into the kingdom and made like an angel, to die no more; but the wicked man, after having lived a comfortless, sinful life (for there is no comfort in sin), shall then reap the reward of his own doings, and "utterly perish in his own corruption." Now, says Moses, "I have set before you life and death." I have pointed out to you the course which will secure you comfort and happiness in this world, if you pursue it, and give you an unfading inheritance in the world to come, or I have spread before you the course which, if you pursue it, will be miserable and sinful, and result in your eternal death. Now choose which course you will adopt. God would much rather you would choose to do his will and live; for he says, "As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die?"—Ezek. 33: 11.

From such passages as these it is evident that there are two agents active in deciding the destiny of man for eternity. There are certain things which God decides. His decision is already made up, and is as unchangeable as his eternal throne. But what is his decision? Some say he has decided finally to save "all men," irrespective of character; and others, that he has purposed to save only a part of the human family, and they were elected before the foundation of the world; consequently they cannot be lost, whether they serve God or the devil, because God foreknew and predestinated them to be conformed to the image of his Son. But is this the case? Nay, verily. God's decision is this: If any man will repent and obey all his requirements, and pursue a life of obedience and holiness, its results shall be life and eternal blessedness in the paradise of God. But if any man will disobey his commandments, and persist in a sinful life, it shall result in death—eternal destruction from the presence of God, and from the glory of his power.

This is God's unalterable purpose. He offers salvation freely to every son and daughter of Adam upon the condition of their repentance and obedience. "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." God "commands all men every where to repent; because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained for that purpose; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men in that he hath raised him from the dead." These are the two paths. These facts now being revealed, God has submitted this question to the choice of man, and he must decide which course he will pursue. This responsibility is now upon him. His fate is in his own hands, and God will neither take it out of his hands himself nor suffer any other being to do it. He has said, "Whosoever will may come," and, "He that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out."

And now, dear friend, will you mark the objects of choice presented in the word of God, and remember that you have but a very short time in which to make your deecision? The Judge standeth before the door, and soon he will come forth and call you to an account for the deeds done here in the body. Will you repent and prepare to meet him? Will you renounce the world, and from this time commence to live a holy life, knowing if you do it will result in eternal life and an endless home in the city of God? or will you sin on and refuse to hearken to the voice of mercy, knowing that in a little from this eternal death will be your portion? You cannot say, I will pursue neither. You must go the broad way, or in the narrow path. Life and death are set before you, and it is left at your own volition to choose which you will.

Remember, the time is drawing nigh when Jesus will come again. Signs on every side proclaim in thunder tones the end of all things. Soon the Judge will descend in mighty power to judge the quick and dead. Where will you be found in that solemn day? Will you shine amid the glorified ones who shall be caught up to meet him in the air, or will you be found among those who weep and wail because of him? That depends upon the decision which you make now. Come to Christ, and he will save you.

THE CARELESS WORD.

T'was but a word, a careless word,
As thistle down it seemed as light;
It paused a moment in the air,
Then onward winged its flight.

Another lip caught up the word,
And breathed it with a haughty sneer;
It gathered weight as on it sped,
That careless word, in its career.

Then rumor caught the flying word,
And busy gossip gave it weight,
Until that little word became
A vehicle of angry hate.

And then that word was winged with fire,
Its mission was a thing of pain;
For soon it fell like lava drops
Upon a wildly tortured brain.

And then another page of life
With burning, scalding tears was blurred;
A load of care was heavier made,
Its added weight, that careless word.

That careless word, oh! how it scorched
A fainting, bleeding, quivering heart!
'T was like a hungry fire, that searched
Through every tender, vital part.

How wildly throbbed that aching heart!
Deep agony its fountain stirred;
It calmed, but bitter ashes mark
The pathway of that careless word.

HOLINESS.

Holiness of heart was the great subject of our Savior's preaching. It forms the centre principle of Christianity, a doctrine deeply interesting to all christians; most vital in the plan of salvation; a theme inviting the attention, and well worthy a thorough investigation and actual possession by all mankind.

Holiness is the object of true life, the source of success. Apparent success all in a greater or less measure obtain; but genuine success is realized by those few who aim high, who seek after holiness and find it. No man can become what his Creator designed him, what the energies of his nature imply, perform the work that a state of good society demands, without exercising his religious faculties, dedicating himself to God, becoming good and holy and also rendering service of great usefulness to his fellows.

Holiness is the watchword of the Christian; the sentiment of his soul; the beginning of permanent peace; the cause of happiness; the way of respectability and the passport to endless bliss.

Without holiness of heart, man becomes selfish and sinful, vile and vicious. True, persons may be moral in the strictest sense, perfect in theology, generally correct in theory, learned in science, respectable in deportment, abounding in good works, conversant with the Scriptures, friends to humanity, yet in one grand particular fail to reach the greatest good or to obtain the highest excellence of a noble Christian manhood.

We define morality, but promote holiness, in order that we may ourselves be promoted when Christ shall come the second time without sin unto salvation.

Christian holiness! The Lord help us rightly to understand it. May it grow up in our hearts, so that we may abound in all good works and graces of the gospel. All must become holy by repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Holiness! that is the thought, and we must utter it; that is the spirit, and we must possess it; that is the word, and we must proclaim it; that is the life, and we must live it. May the Lord help us all to be holy. H. S. MITCHELL.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to invite a person to visit you, to dine with you, or to lodge with you, unless you really desire it. This kind of deception—uttering words from the mouth which come not from the heart—should never be practised, to the mortification and distress of any who may have deemed you sincere, and taken you at your word. If it is not convenient to receive company, or you do not actually desire it, on no consideration should you extend the invitation.

It is not polite for the conductors on railcars, whose duty it is to look after the comfort and happiness of the passengers, to permit men and boys to smoke cigars and pipes on the cars. Notwithstanding most of our railroad companies have prohibited the smoking of tobacco on our cars, it is sometimes permitted by good-natured conductors.

It is not polite for editors, for the sake of advertising patronage, to state that the circulation of the paper is larger than that of any other sheet in the city, when such is not the fact.

It is not polite for editors to recommend constant advertising as a means of receiving custom, when the fact is, merchants advertise too much for their interest; and many cases can be mentioned, where people have lost all and failed by advertising largely. A very little judicious advertising may not be unprofitable.

It is not polite for editors to give publicity to current but untrue reports for the purpose of making their papers sell, and then be obliged the next day to contradict their statements. This course has been repeatedly pursued in our daily papers, and has produced incalculable mischief, and brought distress upon many individuals and families. An editor cannot be too cautious to learn facts before he makes a statement that reaches the public.

It is not polite for editors to state things untrue for the purpose of misleading people, and then laughing at what they consider a good joke. An abominable falsehood is no joke.

It is not polite to disfigure the house, shop, door, or fence of another, or daub them with paint, or place any marks upon them either through malice or a love of mischief.

THOUGHTS ON FRETTING.

Fretting has become a very common practice, and seems to be incidental with the character of the world at large; yet so common as it may be it is very foolish, beside being inconsistent with the common good.

Firstly, its foolishness. What is the use of frettiing about what you cannot help? Anything that has been done is passed. Now, instead of giving vent to such expressions of contempt, if it is self that has committed the error, wait a moment; consider what has been done; profit by it as experience, and do better in future. If it be another, suppress the force of natural resentment; give a kind word of advice, then give time for reflection. Never scold about a wrong done when it was an action well meant. If persons see kindness displayed on the part of the reprover, willingness on the part of the offender will at once be shown to confess and improve. Do not fret about what you can help, for it shows weakness on your own part in committing the fault, and stupidity, in prospect of avoiding such in future.

Errors and faults are incidental with life, therefore in a degree no disgrace; but our duty is to improve. Do not fret because this has been done or that has not been done. Do not repeat a reprimand nor a command, but give your commands in a form of request. I say, never repeat it; for if the child obeys at once, it is unnecessary; if it does not obey, and is willful, the second will do no better than the first.

How often do we hear persons say, "Why do you not do as I told you? I am almost tired of talking." And so it goes continually; scolding and arguing, still nothing accomplished. By arguing with children, parents place themselves on an equality with them in governing, and the child at once catches at its prerogative to do as it pleases. Do not fret unless you wish to spoil your child; be decided, mild, and yet positive in command.

The great secret of governing is, first to govern self. Be mild; show by self-control that you have superior force of intellect, and the opposer will soon submit and acknowledge your supremacy.

It is inconsistent with the general good. It results in spoiling those in our charge because they grow up cross, fretful, disobedient, and odious to all around them; thus forms a character which makes them contemptible, and also destroys the happiness of life which can only be enjoyed by contentment and forbearance one to another.

One spoiled child will ruin a dozen others; so go on adding injury to injury, till the whole family is in commotion, peace is destroyed, and in later years you find them ugly, quarrelsome, seeking enjoyment at the public shops, where their ruin will be accomplished; when they might have been at home, were your own fireside made the centre of attraction, because of peace and quietude. Such indulgences ruin ourselves, like the child destroy our ability to enjoy present happiness; for we look for it from home, where it is not, and lose sight of it where it is. All this caused by fretting, wounding the feelings of those who endeavor to do well, but proved bad, and thus they are discouraged.

Praise a well meant act, no matter for its result. Give a word of encouragement and advice, and good may be done to all. Remember, always be calm, kind, and gentle; but do not fret. E. G. C.

AN ANECDOTE.

The following narration is still familiar to some who are now living in the state of N. H., and was related to the writer by an estimable christian lady, in whom he has every reason to repose implicit reliance, as a part of a personal experience.

Towards the close of a sultry day, in the early part of June, 1846, might have been seen a covered carriage which with its occudants had been winding slowly among the green-clad hills of Maine; but who were now brought suddenly to a standstill by the road on which they were traveling branching off in two different directions. The one was broad and bore the marks of recent travel, while the other was narrow and overgrown with weeds. Uncertain which to pursue, the gentleman turned to his wife who with her two children occupied the back seat in the vehicle, and like a good sensible man as he was, requested her advice, for he was evidently in a quandary.

The lady said that she felt it was the Lord's will that they should take the disused pathway, which accordingly they did, and had not proceeded very far before they espied a house to the right of the road and at a little distance therefrom a rickety fence stretching nearly across their way.

As the sky was getting overcast and the evening rapidly advancing, it was thought best to make some inquiry, and were told that the nearest stopping place was three miles ahed; but owing to a decayed bridge that had been pronounced unsafe, in proof of which he pointed to the before mentioned fence, placed there to warn travelers of the impracticability of the route, he would advise them to retrace their steps and keep the other road for eight miles further, where they would find accommodations; yet if they chose to incur the responsibility of crossing the bridge, "Why, of course they were at liberty."

The lady with unchanged confidence in the Lord's will, again advised to push onward in the narrow way, and they had gone but a little way when the rain which long had threatened began to descend. Yet they kept steadily on till they came in sight of a broad, swiftly flowing stream, spanned by a blackened, dilapidated looking bridge, which, with its railings all gone and underpinning very rotten, appeared the reverse of safe.

By this time the deep, loud thunder was rolling among the hills, and the forked lightning was playing through the clouds, which now poured forth their contents pitilessly, as our travelers drew rein upon the brink. The husband after closely examining the treacherous structure was fearful to venture upon it, but his companion unmoved bade him "trust in the Lord and have faith," for that he would certainly bring them safely over; further adding that she was impressed to tell him to lead the horse by the head while she and the children remained in the carriage.

At this the gentleman started in blank amazement, as his horse beside being very spirited was also a somewhat peculiar animal, and had always heretofore resisted all attempts to lead him by the bits. However, to his no small astonishment, he not only submitted to be led on the first trial but appeared perfectly docile and gentle amid the volleyed thunder and the ever and anon blinding flashing of the lightning. So that the gentleman, no longer doubting that the same God who had in old time spoke to the children of Israel "that they go forward," was able and willing to carry them safely over, if not through the lashed and angry waters.

He led the horse trustingly on to the shaky bridge and crossed its quivering planks in perfect safety. As for the lady, she said she felt while traveling it, safe as in her Father's arms. That even as David she could see beauty and grandeur in the watery and warring elements, and her heart being attuned went out in praise and thanksgiving to the Creator.

They quickly accomplished the remainder of the distance and were gladly received at the nearest house by a little girl, whose mother had gone to an academy in a neighboring town to bring home her son, and had left her little daughter behind to "keep house;" who in consequnece of the severity of the storm had been terribly frightened. Indeed it continued to storm so hard that her mother and brother were unable to reach home that night, so the child was greatly pleased with her company; as she said she did not know what she should have done, had she been left to pass the lonely hours by herself. Thus then the Lord takes care of his little ones, and leads in safety all those who put their undivided trust in him. BASIL SAINTE.

"I WILL SEE YOU AGAIN."

"I will see you again," says a dear friend, as he presses the hand of one in deep trial. "I will see you again, when it will be in my power to help you. Should I remain with you now it would not be so well for you, but in a little while I will see you again and will relieve you from all this deep distress."

Thus said the great Bridegroom of the Church as he was about to leave her, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice, and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy." "I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you."

These words, I will see you again, are the hope of the sorrowing spouse of Christ in this "her hour" of "sorrow." They come with thrilling joy to her heart as she yearns for rest beyond this state of travail. "I will see you again;" how she dwells upon them and longs for their fulfillment.

For the World's Crisis.

"I SHALL BE SATISFIED."

The promises of God in his sacred word are peculiarly adapted to our various wants and conditions in life. Even here we have peace in believing, and sweet communion with him who can sympathize with us and comfort us in every trial. But never can all our heart-longings and holy aspirations be satisfied while our joys are so strangely mingled with sorrow, perplexity, and care. Therefore, those promises that relate to our future happiness, are indeed exceeding great and precious. To those that overcome, our Lord promises an admission to the paradise of God, where they shall hunger no more neither thirst any more, "for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne, shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters." Neither shall they sorrow any more at all, for "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." There they may walk in the procession of saints clothed in white, following the Lamb whithersoever he goeth; having the Father's name written in their foreheads; and singing "Alleluia, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth."

This is the glory to be revealed, and we have the blessed assurance that the new heavens and earth will fully satisfy all the varied susceptibilities which God has given us. He who is distinguished for the love of justice, will be satisfied with the justice of that new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. He who has felt the keenest pain at wrong, outrage and cruelty, shall rejoice in the perfect freedom from all these in that land where violence is not heard. He who has here been pressed in spirit beyond measure with the exceeding sinfulness of sin and wickedness of the wicked, shall be satisfied with fullness of joy and pleasure forevermore. They who have by patient continuance in well doing, sought for glory, honor and immortality, shall have their names proclaimed with honor before the Father and his angels; shall be made kings and priests unto God, and reign eternally with Christ in his everlasting kingdom. All that is pure, and holy, and lovely shall be there, and all "shall be satisfied."

A POOR MAN'S WISH.

I asked a student what three things he most wished. He said, "Give me books, health and quiet, and I care for nothing more."

I asked a miser, and he cried, "Money, money, money."

I asked a pauper, and he faintly said, "Bread, bread, bread."

I asked a drunkard, and he loudly called for strong drink.

I asked the multitude around me, and they lifted up a confused cry, in which I heard the words, "wealth, fame and pleasure."

I asked a poor man, who had long borne the character of an experienced christian. He replied that all his wishes could be met in Christ. He spoke seriously, and I asked him to explain. He said: "I greatly desire these three things: First, that I may be found in Christ. Secondly, that I may be found like Christ. Thirdly, that I may be with Christ."

I have thought much of his answer, and the more I think of it the wiser it seems.

"CONSCIENTIOUSLY HONEST."

"An honest man's the noblest work of God."—Pope.

It was a sunny morning in May, 1866. The balmy air was filled with the melody of birds, and flowers lent their beauty along the roadside. All nature looked surpassingly beautiful and lovely. May in the "Old Dominion" —Virginia—corresponds very well with June in the Conn. Valley.) Happy voices fell upon my ear as I approached the merry group of scholars. They seemed as happy as the singing birds, and looked as resh as the opening flowers.

As I entered the log school-house, which appeared airy and well-ventilated, my eyes rested on a little lady, apparently six or seven years old, who was busy arranging flowers for my desk. Her responsive "Good morning," was spoken in so sweet a tone I thought her a natural elocutionist. If the countenance was a mirror of the heart, I should have thought her one of the happiest of children, and it was true in her case. Dear children, I will tell you of an incident that will illustrate something of her (Mary D——.) character and honesty. . . .

Entering the school-house one morning, I found my desk badly stained with ink. The Register and a copy of "The Teacher's Assistant," lying on the desk, were much blotted. The fragments of my ink-stand was the only explanation I could get that morning. All declared they did not do it, nor know who did. Yet I was positive that some scholar must have done the mischief. Judge of my surprise though when little Mary came to me the next morning, saying with tears in her eyes,

"It was me that done the mischief as I was trying to place a vase of flowers on your desk, and I am very sorry."

"Did any one see you do it?" I asked.

"No one but God."

"Why did you go home?"

"Because my white apron was black with ink."

"What prompted you to confess when no suspicion rested against you?"

"I could not tell a falsehood, and mother said it would be just the same as telling a lie, and that I could not be conscientiously honest without I told you, whether you asked me or not; and I want to feel right."

She was an affectionate and dutiful scholar, and tried to make all around her happy; she was honest. I think you would like Mary for a school-mate. Follow her noble example, and I doubt not it will be well with you here and hereafter; for honesty leads to christianity, or at least it is the first step that way. Can any of the "Little Folks" tell if this passage is in the Bible, and if so where? For he said, "Surely they are my people, children that will not lie; so he was their Savior."

Honesty is the foundation of a useful life. Honesty is policy even if this life was all we had to live for, and every dishonest act would not be brought into judgment.

"The sweetest cordial we receive at last,
Is conscience of our virtuous actions past."

WHY NOT BE THANKFUL?

Papa," said a little girl of four summers, as she sat down at the table on her return from a visit to her two uncles, "Papa, why don't you ask a blessing as uncles do? Had not we ought to be as thankful for what we eat as they are?"

Her father looked in her deep expressive eyes and was silent.

"Yes, dear," said her mother, "we ought to be just as thankful as they are."

"Then," said the little darling, "I would like to know why you don't thank the Lord?"

I thought, "Sure enough, why not thank the Lord for our mercies, as well as others?"

The blessed child has long been laid away to moulder in the dust. But I cannot forget her gentle face and her earnest question, "Ought not we to be as thankful for what we eat as they are?"

May God help us to be thankful for every good and perfect gift, and bring us at last to meet the little loved ones in the heavenly home.—The Christian.

STRETCH IT A LITTLE.

A little girl and her little brother were on their way to the store the other morning. The grass on the common was white with frost and the wind was very sharp. They were both poorly dressed; but the little girl had a sort of a cloak over her, which she seemed to have outworked.

As they walked briskly along she drew the little boy closer to her, and said, "Come under my coat, Johnnie."

"It isn't big enough for both, sister."

"Then I will try and stretch it a little."

And they were soon as close together and as warm as birds in the same nest.

What a lesson! How many shivering bodies, and sad hearts, and weeping eyes there are in the world, just because people do not stretch their comforts a little beyond themselves.—Well-Spring.

WHEN WILL HE COME?

It may be when the Spring's mild breath
Awakes the buds from wintry death;
When opening flowers shall lure the bee,
And birds rear nestlings in the tree.

It may be when the yellow grain
Waves widely o'er the extended plain;
When merry reapers bind the sheaves,
And summer zephyrs fan the leaves.

It may be when the boughs are mute,
When garnered is the autumn fruit;
When the sweet rose of June is dead,
And birds to southern climes are fled.

It may be when, at dewy eve,
The son of toil his work shall leave,
To seek his pillowed rest at home;—
At close of day the Lord may come.

It may be at the midnight hour,
When, locked in slumber's soothing power,
Thou mayest awake to rise and meet
The Judge upon the judgment seat.

It may be when the dawning ray
Of rising sun first gilds the day,
Thy guardian angel thee may bear
To meet the Savior in the air.

Unknown the season, hour, or day,
When Christ shall call his bride away;
Still, ere shall close this passing year,
The King of glory may appear.

O, church of God, thy falling tears
Have "watered deserts" years and years:
Dry up, thou floods, for soon at home
Thy song shall be—The Lord has come.

THE FLOOD AND THE RAINBOW.

Every day we hear men criticising the Bible, and especially that part of it which relates to historic events, and averring that it is not true because it conflicts with the laws of nature: it (the Bible) claims that certain things have transpired in the course of time which cannot be accounted for on philosophical principles; and because they cannot harmonize the Scriptures with their philosophy, they purpose to reject the word of God.

They admit, in the first place, that there have been some things done that are contrary to every law of nature. The whole plan and scheme of redemption cannot be attributed to any law of nature. And again, it is unnatural for man to worship a being he cannot see; he may admire the good qualities of the person, but to adore, and love, and worship, without seeing the object of his worship, is absolutely unnatural; and I think every one will concede this fact. Ofttimes have we been astonished to see men and women, who laid claims to eternal life by the blood of Christ, question the truth of the Scriptures, and produce the same arguments that Atheists, Infidels, and all enemies of our Lord use, in controverting the word of divine truth; they are simply the tools of the devil, perhaps unknowingly. They are making themselves the enemies of Christ.

"O," says one, "I believe in the New Testament, I believe in Christ, and what he says; but the Old Testament is so full of hard stories, that I could not believe it if I wanted to. There is that story about the flood coming up all over the earth; where did it come from, and where did it go to? And then the story about Moses passing through the Red Sea on dry ground; and about Joshua commanding the sun to stand still."

Now let us for a little while look at the philosophy of one of the subjects brought to notice,—the flood, and the signs that God gave to Noah after the water had gone from the face of the earth. What was the condition of this world in the beginning? What do we read? Why, that "the water covered the face of the deep." The substance of this (as I understand it) is—we learn from the Scriptures that the world is that part which is inhabited. See 2 Pet. 3: 6,—"Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished." What perished? The world that was covered with water, or the surface upon which all things lived and moved.

I suppose the appearance of the earth internally was the same as before the flood, and this may have been or may not have been the condition of the earth in its primeval state. With this view, we harmonize geology with the Bible, and I know of no other way of harmonizing this point; if others do, I hope they will give us light on the subject. I do not understand by the passage—"water covered the face of the deep," that the diameter of this earth was one solid body of water; if so, why is the word "cover" used? It denotes that something was under; the water rested on something. The face of the earth was covered with water, and we learn in Gen. 1, that God made a division of the water. "And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the water, and let it divide the waters from the waters. And God made the firmament; and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament; and it was so. And God called the firmament Heaven."

There are, perhaps, thousands of christians who never looked into this subject—never gave it one thought. God makes a firmament; what it is beyond this we are not informed. He places it in the midst of the waters, and then by his almighty power he causes the firmament to rise, and thus a portion of the water that once covered the face of the deep is above the firmament, and separated far from the other portion that remains on the earth. So there was a body of water on the earth, and another body of water above the earth; aye, above the broad firmament that spans the earth. Who has thought that far above any point our eyes have ever scanned, in yon bright blue skies, there is a body of water similar to our great oceans?

But this is not all the testimony we have bearing on this important subject. We come down to the flood, and there we have it demonstrated to a certainty that there is water above. According to the laws of nature, this earth supplies all the water. If this be true, there never was a flood, unless there was sufficient water in the earth to have caused it; and it must be at least five miles in depth, for we read that it went to the tops of the highest mountains, and fifteen cubits beyond. But you say, "I do not believe that there is water enough in the earth to flood one sixteenth part of the earth's surface." Neither do I, if the waters at the time of the flood were only found in the ground and rocks that formed the foundation of the globe on which we live.

Geologists claim that the earth is but a shell, and we live on the outside of that shell; that the crust or shell is now only about thirty miles thick, and that the earth, internally, is one mass of lava. I think this is all true; but has there been a fire always in the heart of the earth? I cannot give a positive Scripture proof to the contrary, but I think that I can give its equivalent. I think that the internal part of the earth, previous to the flood, was a vast body of water instead of fire; and in support of this theory I will quote a passage of Scripture. Gen. 7: 11,—"In the six-hundreth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up; and the windows of heaven opened." Here is an account of the commencing of the flood. It did not take (as many suppose) only the water from above, but the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened, in order to flood the great globe.

Every person, after a thoughtful consideration of this subject, will come to the conclusion that no conceivable amount of rain only could have flooded this earth in forty days. Let us scrutinize this text, and see what we can glean from it. In the first place, the fountains of the great deep were broken up. This cannot mean oceans, seas, lakes, and rivers. By breaking them up would there be any more water? Certainly not. Would the breaking up of oceans, seas, lakes and rivers cause their waters to rise far above the highest mountains? I think not. What was this breaking up? It was the mighty gushing water, as it came raging and foaming from earth's centre. It came with the rush of the mighty avalanche as it falls from some lofty summit. It comes tearing its way through the rock that the hand of the almighty Creator had broken. It finds the surface, and there rests.

How often has this very fact been illustrated when water has been sought for in the rock, more especially in the oil regions of Pennsylvania. There, as soon as the shaft is sunk to its proper depth, the oil comes flowing up, and spouts upwards of fifty feet into the air. Here is a breaking up on a small scale, and all will admit that this is a fact.

Again, the windows of heaven were opened, and the opening of the windows of heaven had the same effect as the breaking up. We see from Gen. 1: 7, that the firmament separates the waters on the face of the deep, so that there was water below the firmament, or on the earth; and there was water above the firmament. We claim that this water above the firmament was let loose by the opening of the windows of heaven; that rivers of water came pouring down from the ocean above; the windows of heaven were opened and down came torrents of water upon a guilty world; all the earth suffered, from the north to the south; around the whole belt of the earth the raging water went, sweeping every living creature into the whirlpool of destruction, save Noah and his family.

Another evidence in support of this fact, that it required water from above and beneath, is, that it is a type of the great and final destruction of this world by fire. We have stated before, geologists prove beyond a doubt that there is an internal fire raging at this moment, and as a proof they will show you for evidence the eruption of Mount Vesuvius; the gulf stream, with its heated water; also, that internal fires are the cause of earthquakes, which all candid men will admit as conclusive, for they are right before us, and we can examine for ourselves. We have not only geology to prove that this world is likely to be destroyed by fire, but we have the word of God.

How can the flood be a type of the destruction of the world by fire? Let Peter answer. 2 Pet. 3: 6,—"Whereby the world that then was being overflowed with water perished; but the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men. . . . But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the works that are therein shall be burnt up." Here is positive proof that the earth will be destroyed by fire.

We find according to Peter and Jude that Sodom and Gomorrha were given as ensamples of that day. How were they destroyed? By fire from heaven. One more passage, to show that this earth will be destroyed, is found in Rev. 20: 9,—"And they went up on the breadth of the earth and encompassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city; and fire came down from God out of heaven and destroyed them." By the foregoing it will be seen that there were bodies of water coming from two different directions which destroyed the earth. Also we have proven that the great and final destruction of all the wicked will be accomplished by fire, the fires coming from the same direction that the waters did.

Now we wish to call your attention to the subject of the Rainbow. According to the Scriptures the first time a rainbow appeared was immediately after the flood, and it was given as a sign to Noah and his descendants that the world should never be destroyed by a flood of water. Philosophers claim that as long as there has been rain and sun there has been a rainbow. We admit the proposition, for it can be demonstrated any day when the sun shines; by throwing water into the air the colors of the rainbow will be seen. In trying this experiment the question may be asked by some honest-hearted person, who believes the Scriptures were written by holy men of old and has accepted the same as his rule of faith and practice, Shall we give up the truth of the Bible and say that there was a rainbow before the flood? I answer, No, we should always accept the Bible as truth, and oblige all philosophy and science to harmonize with it, and never try to make the Bible harmonize with philosophy at the expense of the truth of Holy Writ.

I assert that there had been no rain previous to the flood. This may seem to some a broad assertion; but, nevertheless, we think that we shall be able to sustain it by Scripture and reason. As a rule the Bible relates passing events as they transpire, the same as a historian would relate any of the events of the late war, in which the writer would not in the first chapter give an account of the surrender of Lee and the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, and then devote the last chapter of the volume to an account of the seceding of the Southern States and the battle of Bull Run; but in proper order would first write of the breaking out of the war, and reserve the account of the surrender of Lee and the ending of the war for the last chapter.

When I find an event recorded in the Bible for the first time, I never conjecture that it might have occurred before. When Cain killed Abel, I believe that that was the first murder; but still, the Bible does not say it was the first. When Enoch was translated, I suppose that he was the first one translated; but the Bible fails to tell us so; and we might bring up hundreds of facts of like character to prove that whenever the Bible recorded an historical event for the first time, all the christian church will admit that it was the first time that that particular event had transpired. There have been too many assertions about the Bible meaning this and that, when it is silent on the subject. No believer in the word of God has any right to go beyond the Bible to support his or her doctrine or theory.

Again, neither can any infidel prove to me by any law of nature that rain has fallen ever since the creation of the world; he cannot prove by any law of nature how long man has existed, or where he came from, or what becomes of him after death. He cannot tell me what causes the sun to shine. He cannot tell me what caused darkness to shroud the land of Egypt three days. Neither can he tell me what caused the sun to be darkened when in its meridian height on the nineteenth day of May, in the year 1780; yet history records the fact. He cannot say it was eclipsed, for the moon was in its full. He cannot tell me what causes such grand displays of the northern lights, neither what makes it rain twice a year in some parts of the world, and not at all in other places. He may conjecture why, yet his arguments may all fail.

All must see that events have transpired in the natural world which are in direct violation of the prescribed laws of nature. Some say that God has made laws and he cannot break them; if he does, he becomes a changeable being. I admit that he cannot break a law that he makes, and yet I do and dare believe that he can suspend a law. A father can make a law to govern his family. He will allow them to go so far and no further; if they do, they break his law; but cannot this father suspend the law he has made, if any circumstance require it? Certainly. Does he break the law? No. If a judge suspends the penalty of a law, does he break the law? Certainly not. Does it show any weakness on the part of the father or the judge in suspending the law? Then it follows that God, the maker and framer of all natural law can suspend laws he has made, without breaking them.

With these thoughts we will proceed to digest a few passages bearing on this point. Turn to Gen. 2: 5, 6,—"The Lord God had not caused it to rain. . . . But there went up a mist from the earth and watered the whole face of the ground." Here Moses records the fact that mist, instead of rain, watered the whole face of the ground, and the garden of Eden, for we are told that was watered by the river that passed through it. How long did the mist water the earth and cause vegetation to grow? Until God caused it to rain. When did it rain? "In the six-hundredth year of Noah's life."

No one can gainsay or controvert this. We do not need another passage to confirm what has already been said. The first passage quoted proves that the mist watered the earth until it did rain; and the first account we have of rain was at the flood. We see, according to Gen. 7: 11, that it required the opening of the windows of heaven to let loose the sparkling drops; when the windows of heaven were opened it rained; when they were shut it ceased. We find according to history that from the middle of A. M. 3090 to the year 3094, or during three years and a half, no rain fell. Can there be any more conclusive evidence?

St. James, in commenting on this subject, records as a reason why it did not rain, "The heavens were shut." Job says that God made a decree concerning the rain, as we read in chap. 28: 26, 27,—"When he made a decree for the rain, and a way for the lightning and the thunder, then did he see it and declare it; he prepared it, yea, and searched it out." When was this decree made? When God told Noah that he would bring a flood on the earth. Where did all this water go after the flood? "And the water returned from off the earth continually." There is nothing in the Scriptures to show that the earth drank it up. The Psalmist says (104: 3, 6–9, 13), "Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters, who maketh the clouds his chariot. Thou coveredst it with the deep as with a garment; the waters stood above the mountains. At thy rebuke they fled; at the voice of thy thunder they hasted away. They go up by the mountains, they go down by the valleys unto the place thou hast founded for them. Thou hast set a bound that they may not pass over, that they turn not again to cover the earth. He watereth the hills from his chariot."

Here was a going up by the mountains, which indicated that water went to some other place than the earth. "That they turn not again to cover the earth," is another expression to show that they were not on the earth; that they were in a locality beyond the earth. He had set a bound that it might not pass. God explained this subject to Job (38: 8–11) when he said, "Or who shut up the sea with doors, when it brake forth? . . When I made the cloud the garment thereof, and thick darkness a swaddling-band for it; and brake up for it my decreed place, and said, Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further." You will readily discover that the water referred to is covered by a garment, and that garment is the cloud. This of course cannot mean the water that covers any portion of the earth, or why use the term cloud?

We might bring a host of other passages to prove our position, but one more will suffice. Let us understand that the heaven brought to view in the word of truth relative to rain or water is also called firmament. Ps. 148: 4–7,—"Praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that be above the heavens. Let them praise the name of the Lord; for he commanded, and they were created. He hath also established them for ever and ever; he hath made a decree which shall not pass. . . . Praise the Lord from the earth. . . . Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord."

Here is a positive declaration that beyond the heavens of heavens are waters. If any person's curiosity is excited as to where the water came from that flooded the earth, here can be found a solution of the question. If any one questions the import of this passage, they can do so at their own risk; but we purpose to believe it just as it reads. "Praise him . . ye waters that be above the heavens."

We hope that we have made this point clear, that it did not rain until the flood, and if it did not rain till then, there could not have been any rainbow in the heavens; and thus we have vindicated the word of God, that the bow was given to Noah as a sign. And let me say in conclusion to all lovers of natural law more than of the Bible, that back of all natural law there is a great God, who controls all laws; and if it is his desire he can suspend any natural law in order to accomplish his purpose. PHILOSOPHY AND VAIN DECEIT.
COL. 2: 8.—No. 3.

Such sentiments are in perfect harmony with the ejaculations of holy writ, "He that formed the ear, shall he not hear? He that formed the eye, shall he not see?" But why form an ear or an eye at all, if there be no necessity for it? There might be some plausible pretext for hands and feet, head and heart, with an arterial and venous circulation to work for, carry about, and support the body; but if the human mind be in and of itself a perfect and entire entity, can it not see and hear without material ears and eyes, and feel without a nervous system?

God does nothing in vain, nor for pastime. But a human organism without mind would be a vain work, barren of results. And so a human mind locked up within its own fastnesses, would be equally futile of results. Like the ductility and malleability of gold, how should it have been manifested unless the extension had been applied, or the beater's hammer made to fall upon it? And without the agency of a body to develop the latent properties of mind, how should perception have conceived an idea, and how should thought have been evolved? How could conceptions be matured by reflection, and memory store up knowledge?

Leave the material substances quite alone, and will not all their hidden properties rest again in passive slumber, until re-aroused by the unlike qualities being brought again into contact? And so of the human mind. Take away its ear, how shall it hear; its eye, how shall it see; its motor nerves, how shall it move; its olfactory and gustatory nerves, how shall it taste and smell; its nerves of sensation, how can it feel; and when it can neither hear, see, smell, taste, or feel, what can it do but sleep?

Cases are not wanting to elucidate the truth of these positions; they are neither few nor far between, nor are they exceptions to the rule; they are of daily occurrence in every part of the world where sickness, faintings and accidents befall suffering humanity.

One incident will suffice as a sample of all in the effects. "A naval captain, while giving a command, was struck upon the head by a falling marlin-spike, which fractured the skull, making him insensible, in which state he remained three weeks. At the end of that time, the skull being trepanned, and the spicule of bone being raised from its pressure on the brain, he finished the word of command in the same tone of voice as that with which he had commenced three weeks previously."

Now this neither proves the materiality nor the immateriality of the mind, but it does prove that the operations of the mind, both in its internal manifestations and internal cognizances, were suspended, and depended on a normal condition of the body; and if one faculty may be suspended, then may all, and if all may be temporarily suspended, as is admitted by immaterialists everywhere, why not indefinitely, and if so small a disorganization of the normal structure will produce a temporary suspension of the mind's faculties to insensible dormancy, how much more shall the entire disorganization of the human system produce a more entire, complete, and perfect sleep, that "knows no waking" until the last trump—the trump of God—shall sound, and Jesus himself shall descend to wake them out of sleep who rest in him.

Had there not been formed an earth man (material organism), there had never been known a human mind; but no sooner is the first perfected, than the second is manifested; and "what God hath joined together—made one—let no man put asunder," is as applicable and forcible in the case of mind and body as of man and woman, or husband and wife; they twain became "one flesh." And so of mind and body; they twain become one man, not two; hence we never find the spirit spoken of either in the masculine or feminine gender (save in cases of personification), but always in the neuter, and always in either the genitive or dative case, as signifying something added to or done for the man to whom the spirit belonged.

These truths are not only manifest in the human species, but are also traceable in all the connecting links of the great chain of nature, from the beginning to the end of creation. The Deity itself employed its "first creation" as its chosen agent,—the angels; they employ the sons of men; hence, although they are spiritual beings, every one of them are organized beings; and though they be not animal organisms, I should very much doubt if they are not spiritualized material substances.

The fact of all intellections manifesting themselves, externally or internally, only by an agent, points to the great necessity of a resurrection of the body; the "unclothed" state necessarily being one of inaction and slumbering repose, there exists the imperious demand of being "clothed upon," that "mortality might be swallowed up of life." But none of these points reach to the question of the soul's immortality. The very fact that the unclothed life reposes in slumbering quiet, itself points to a question to be solved, beyond the dissolution of the body. G. W. Stetson.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

MORAL PRECEPTS.

27. Killing commanded.—"Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbor."—Ex. 32: 27.

Killing forbidden.—"Thou shalt not kill." Ex. 20: 13.

The skeptic here quotes Ex. 32: 27 to prove that God has commanded murder.—This is a record of one of the severest judgments of Jehovah upon a people who had repeatedly trampled upon his laws and defied his power; they had sinned in the face of his mercy and rebelled in the midst of his fatherly care. Therefore, he pronounces upon their guilty heads the penalty of death. The tender-hearted skeptic appears to be opposed to capital punishment. The laws of America forbid murder, but capital punishment is still in force for the worst of crimes, and because it is thus inflicted, does it follow that the statutes of our country contradict themselves, and that they sanction murder by hanging a criminal? The infidel's idea of justice (if indeed he has any), appears to be strangely perverted.

28. The blood-shedder must die.—"At the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man. Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed."—Gen. 9: 5 6.

The blood-shedder must not die.—"And the Lord set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him."—Gen. 4: 15.

This is another specimen of "skipping backwards," in order to manufacture a contradiction. He quotes the law which pronounces the penalty upon murder in Gen. 9, and then goes back five chapters and quotes the fourth chapter to prove that God violated his own law, sixteen hundred and fifty-five years before it was ever made! Such brazen efforts to garble the Bible must excite the pity of every candid reader.

29. The making of images forbidden.—"Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in the heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath."—Ex. 20: 4.

The making of images commanded.—"Thou shalt make two cherubims of gold. . . . . And the cherubim shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy-seat with their wings, and their faces shall look to one another."—Ex. 25: 18, 20.

In Ex. 20: 4 men are forbidden to make "unto themselves" any graven image; that is, they are commanded to worship nothing which is made by their own hands; and in Ex. 25: where we find the instructions relative to the building of the ark of the covenant, it reads, "Thou shalt make two cherubims of gold," etc. The first command forbids the worship of images, the second sanctions the creation of a beautiful symbol over the "mercy-seat" of Jehovah. It was made "unto" God, and not "unto themselves." It was not an object of worship, but the beautiful type of a glorious future. Cannot the Deity forbid the worship of idols, and at the same time permit his people to erect the golden symbols of his love and mercy, without contradicting himself, or violating his own law?

THE CHRISTIAN NOT TO FEAR.

"Fear not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows."—Matt. 10: 31.

This language was originally spoken to the twelve disciples, but it applies with perhaps equal force to all who are truly His. Yes, fellow christians, he who declares, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth," tells us, "Fear not." How sweet to the tried and tempted child of God, is such language as this! What, then, though floods of trial may come, reproach and calumny from the wicked, or hypocrisy and betrayal from pretended friends; though pinching poverty may be our lot; though painful disease and sickness may have marked us for its own; though the cruel hand of death may have snatched away some loved one, dearer than life itself; and earth has become but a dreary abode; yet under all that same sweet voice whispers, Peace, fear not.

"Fear not, I am with thee, oh! be not dismayed,
For I am thy God, and will still give thee aid;
I'll strengthen thee, help thee, and cause thee to stand,
Upheld by my righteous, omnipotent hand."

Then, hush, troubled soul; you will perceive, ere long, that these trials though painful to flesh and blood, have been of infinite service to you; the furnace has done its work, the gold has become purified; for the Master has all the time been tending the fire. He, himself, has sat by the flames, guarding them lest they burn too fiercely; lest the blow should fall too heavily; and he cheeringly calls to his suffering followers, saying, "Fear not."

Consider, beloved, who it is that thus condescendingly and lovingly encourages us not to fear. It is the "express image," the "only begotten," and "well-beloved Son" of him who holds the universe in his hands; the Creator of all worlds, the uncreated Jehovah; to whom "the nations are as a drop in a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance; who taketh up the isles as a very little thing."—Isa. 40: 15.

How often in the word of the Lord, are we charged not to fear. Such injunctions are reiterated again and again; and then some encouragement annexed. In the 41st of Isaiah, the charge is repeated many times over, and impressed upon us in language like the following: "Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strenghten thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." "Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men, [or few men] of Israel, I will help thee, saith the Lord, and thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel." Says the dear Lamb of God, in the 26th verse of this chapter, "Fear not, therefore," etc. And again in the 28th verse. "And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." In Luke 12: 32, this same divine Being tells us, "Fear not, little flock;" and then he subjoins the encouragement, "for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." The foregoing are only a few among the many teachings of Holy Writ, instructing us not to be too anxious, or concerned, about the things of the world, but to trust wholly in God, in his power, his love, his care over his children, and over us individually; over all our affairs, even the minutest; yea, though they may be comparatively as trivial as the very hairs of our head; we are told our Father concerns himself about them, and will protect us from all real harm.

How apt are we to undervalve the estimate which our heavenly Father places upon a trusting, confiding child. We reckon the worth of an article by what it costs. And pray, what did our salvation cost? It cost nothing less than the incarnation, suffering, and death of the Son of God. O matchless condescension! Stupendous love! Brethren, it does us good to let our minds dwell on our Savior's lovely character. Thus we become "partakers of the divine nature;" we are "changed into the same image, from glory to glory." Here is an antidote for all our fears, all our temptations, all our sorrows; "yea, for all the evils to which flesh is heir." If a view of the cross does not directly remove some evils, it will at least extract their sting, and enable us to bear them with resignation; indeed, it will turn all their bitter into sweet.

Northfield, Mass. H. P. Sikes.

For the World's Crisis.

NEGLECT.

"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" The question may be asked, What are we to escape? We answer, the doom of the ungodly, which is to be burned up with all other unprofitable things at the end of time, in Peter's burning day. How shall we escape? Not if we have committed some awful deed; not if we have profaned the name of God; not if we steal, lie, cheat, murder rob; for many do none of these things, yet will never be saved. How shall we escape if we simply neglect? We have only to neglect, to omit, to let slip, to disregard, to slight, and be lost.

Few realize the wrong and sin in neglect. Many a true friend has been lost by neglect. We make fair promises, but neglect to fulfill or keep them. For instance, we borrow a book of much or little value. We promise to return it, but neglect until we have moved away, or our friend has forgotten where it is, and we still have the book. This is not right. We meant right, but neglect has made us do wrong. We have subscribed for a newspaper; have taken it for several years; paid the first two years, but neglect to pay any more. The Editor has sent his bill; we meant to have paid it long ere this, but still we neglect. What does the Editor think of us? What would we think of the Editor if he neglected to send our paper a few times? We promise ourselves to help such as need our aid. We can help them and feel it our duty to do so, but neglect until perhaps it is too late, they having suffered greatly by our neglect. We have friends whom we neglect, by not visiting, writing, or giving, as the case may be; they deeply feel our neglect.

How much wrong is caused by being careless. A man lives all his life promising every favorable opportunity that he will give his heart and whole interests to God, and become a true christian; but he neglects until the last hour of his life. He meant to have become a christian long ago, but has now only time to say "Lord! Lord!" But we read it is "not all that say Lord, Lord." But, says the neglector, Jesus is able to save me if I wait until the last moments of my life. Yes, he is able, it is true; but is this part of his plan? We never read of any coming at the twelfth hour, or at the last moment of his life, save the thief, and many doubt his being saved; but we do read of one standing idle up to the eleventh hour, when Jesus asked him why he stood idle. Did he have any excuse? Yes, a good one. No man, said he, hath hired me. Jesus then and there for ever put an end to that excuse; for all are requested from the little child up, to go to work in his vineyard. But suppose the man had refused or neglected to go to work in the vineyard until the last moment of his life, or the twelfth hour, what, think you, would have been his excuse, or what, think you, Jesus will or ought to pay him? If we neglect until the last moments of our lives, and when Jesus comes he rewards every man according to his work, what will be our reward?

One would think by our negligence that God is under obligations to save us, even at the last moment. This is a sad mistake. If the righteous man who has served God all his days is scarcely saved, how shall we escape who have never served him an hour in all our lives? "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" THE "T. C. I. O."

We have given our readers some hints concerning the "T. C. I. O," and have asked for further information. We wrote the "Imperial Publishing Co." in New York, inquiring if they were at liberty to give any intelligence relative to the "T. C. I. O?" We received the following answer: "We are not authorized to give information about the "T. C. I. O." any further than to say that it is an organization whose object is to establish an Empire."

The following is from the columns of the Imperialist, May 8th, and will give the reader some idea of the moving world:"

"The warm welcome which this journal has met with is quite sufficient evidence that its publication does but supply an already existing demand. Holding as we do that the grave evils of our present system, which men of all parties fairly and openly recognize, can only be remedied by a thorough and radical change, we propose to plainly and openly urge upon our fellow-citizens the prompt adoption of such measures as to us seem wise and efficient.

While well aware that it ever requires a reasonable time to open the eyes of men to even the most simple and self-evident truths, we fear that a too prolonged delay will surely result in anarchy, to be succeeded in its turn by irresponsible despotism.

We look forward to the establishment of an Imperial central executive, based upon such free institutions as shall restore to us, as a people, the peace, the prosperity, and the genuine personal liberty which we have lost. We desire to see a return to legislative honesty and legislative purity. We are in favor of the preservation of the national honor, as pledged for the payment of the public indebtedness.

We believe that but a small percentage of the American people can be considered fit, by character or education, for the unrestricted exercise of self-government, and that, conscious of this truth, they have already resigned the absurd theory which is advanced in their behalf. They have, moreover, wilfully and recklessly permitted the reins of government to pass into the hands of a class of politicians whose unblushing venality has made the present state of things no longer tolerable by a free and enlightened people."

Says the Editor of the Goldsboro (N. C.) Messenger, when speaking of a communication from "S." in his paper, headed 'The Empire is Peace; 'Let us have Peace;'

"Suffice it to say that the writer, if known, would quickly be recognized in this and adjoining States as one of the ablest and best of the old North State." He says:—"This great movement will be hailed with delight throughout the whole country, and welcomed by millions north, south, east, and west as the beginning of a new and happy era for America.

We anticipate at the beginning the strongest possible opposition from the two great political parties or the country, whose object is the perpetuation of Republican government. But the Monarchical party is terribly in earnest, and it will be found to embrace not the smallest number of our men of intelligence, moral worth, patriotism, and wealth. This party is prepared to meet the sound arguments of reason; it does not fear the sharp weapon of ridicule that its enemies will be compelled to employ, and it will soon break down the barrier of prejudice which they must erect in defense of their untenable position."

It is very evident there is a strong sympathy with the Imperialist movement, especially in the South. Says the Memphis Ledger:—

We hail the Imperialist as the forerunner in this great movement, which alone can restore the country to a firm and healthy basis." "It is folly to talk of going back to the Constitution, for revolutions never go backward." "The Empire must come of necessity. Let it come quickly. Meet the issue peacefully; see your only salvation and security of life, liberty and property, in the Empire. 'The Empire is peace! Let us have peace."

A correspondent of the Imperialist, writing from New Orleans, April 13th, says:—

"Gentlemen:—Your journal is a success. I congratulate you. The few copies of your first issue which found their way to this city, have met with a reception accorded to no northern publication within the past ten years, and the comments of intelligent readers showed that the idea of an intelligent Imperialism to take the place of the present burlesque government of the United States was by no means unwelcome to the people of Louisiana.

I see by your first issue that you neither entertain nor express any sympathy with the late rebellion. In this you are right. The new movement will gain all the more strength and power from being allied to the interests of no party of the past or the present, and you have something else to do besides fighting over the dead body of any 'lost cause.' But though you do not and cannot sympathize with us in our efforts to establish an independent republic, which, in a few years, at most, would have become a strong and intelligent Imperialism, we both feel and heartily express an active sympathy and co-operation with you in the movement you so ably advocate. We are ready for any change. No matter what that change might be, it could not be a change for the worse, and, whether the coming revolution be peaceable or bloody, Louisiana will be among the first to proclaim allegiance to the man, who, like Louis Napoleon, shall with equal truth proclaim, 'L'Empire c'est la paix.'

A correspondent from Wilmington, Del., says:—

"Our National and State Legislatures to-day are a disgrace to the American people. The most successful 'statesman, to-day, is the man who is the most skillful villain, and the little minority of honest and honorable men that still have a voice in the councils of the nation are powerless to check the corruption that has already eaten the heart out of our republican institutions. The once proud temple of our national liberties has become a den of thieves, and my only hope is that I may live to see the day when a strong hand shall scourge them from the sanctuary."

The following is from the Rochester (N. Y.) Republican:—

"Those who have scouted the idea that the advent of the new radical organ, The Imperialist, advocating abandonment of the republic and erection of an Empire upon its ruins, was a circumstance of any significance, will soon be obliged to confess their error. Already no less a journal of established character and influence in the Radical party than the Cincinnati Commercial has raised the standard of an 'Imperial Republic,' which shall supplant our present form of government and take in the whole continent under a great central power."

There is much truth in the following from a Milwaukee correspondent of the Imperialist. When speaking of the political condition of this country, he says:—

"Instead of securing universal liberty, we have granted universal license; instead of guaranteeing freedom and security to all, we have relinquished all political power into the hands of a few shrewd, ambitious demagogues, who, by skillfully managing the ignorant and unthinking masses, and keeping up an active party strife by liberal expenditures of time and means, have managed to control for half a century the affairs of the greatest Empire of the world."

The following is from the "Official Gazette" of the "T. C. I. O:"—

HEADQUARTERS T. C. I. O.—It is announced for the information of the C. I. O. that the new system of organization is now nearly perfected, and action under it may be begun during the coming summer. Until then, while no eligible persons should be rejected, if applying, no special effort at extension is deemed advisable.

The reports of each century should be forwarded as rapidly as possible, but in no case through the mails.

3. 5. 9. has been temporarily suspended for the reckless language of some of its members. Great caution is enjoined on all. By order.

Some paper announced to its readers that the "Imperialist" was "dead;" to which the Imperialist replies:—

"We have come to stay, and, as our enterprise is not likely to prove a failure in any sense, we have no present intention of abandoning it. The liberal support and encouragement extended to us from the first, and the warm sympathy expressed by correspondents in all parts of the country, assures us that we have many friends. And until the purpose for which THE IMPERIALIST was started shall have been fully accomplished, its publication will not be abandoned. We have lighted our torch, and until it has fired the popular heart or kindled the funeral pyre of a dead Democracy it will not be extinguished."

A correspondent from the "Department of State, Washington, D. C., says:—

"Gentlemen.—I have read, with much pleasure, in the Republican of to-day, your 'platform.' If you adhere to the doctrines therein professed, I bid you 'God speed!' . . . Although in the civil service of the present government and therefore likely to run some risk in openly avowing monarchical sympathies, I am perfectly willing to take my chances in the matter."

A southern correspondent says:—

"The people of the South . . . believe the Republic destroyed; and they dread the period of transition, not the Imperialism which they believe inevitable, and would gladly welcome. Four newspapers in this State have repeatedly said as much, and not one man has dared to rebuke them. I was a secessionist in 1861, fought under the 'stars and bars' four years, and since the war until recently, was the editor of a leading Alabama daily newspaper; and I know that in one year the white men of this State can be united almost to a man on your platform. I believe the feeling in other Southern States is substantially the same."

The "Cincinnati Enquirer," when speaking of the Imperialist, says:—

"It is put forth as an organ of the monied power, and urges as its chief reason for a change in the form of our government the rights and privileges of the national creditors. We should not attach much importance to the appearance of such a journal, did not the signs of the times give it great significance. In its plea for the bondholding aristocrats it but echoes the sentiments expressed by General Grant in his inaugural address, and contained in the speeches of the leading Republican Senators and Representatives to Congress.

It is useless to multiply words for the purpose of concealing the truth on this question. The issue is between the debt on the one hand, and the Republic on the other; and every citizen will soon have to make up his mind, and tell where he stands. Dodging-time is rapidly approaching."

The Montreal Telegraph says:—

"The wholesale corruption of the United States government may well disgust good citizens with the system, and so we earnestly commend the Imperialist to the careful perusal of all fashionable English statesmen."

Says the Canton (Miss.) Citizen, when speaking of the Imperialist and its publishers:

"Now, as all know, it takes a good deal of outside support to establish and maintain a first-class newspaper in either of these cities—and the Union League, together with many officers both civil and military, are pledged to their support, so long as they will advocate the claims of Grant to be Emperor."

HORRID.

The boldness of the enemies of the cross of Christ is alarming and shocking. Every week gives additional evidence that the times in which we live are truly "perilous." Infidelity and crime are stalking forth with a daring appearance, which indicates that but few obstacles are in the way of their progress; and that all fear and shame for wickedness, and love for sacred things, have departed. When speaking of the "harvest," which Jesus says "is the end of the world," the prophet Joel says:—"Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down; for the press is full; the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great."

The following is from the Chicago Liberal, and is a part of a series of articles on the "Life of Jesus":—

"Among the first projects of Jesus, after settling in Judea, was to introduce himself to the acquaintance of the influential men—the doctors and lawyers of the Temple. This he easily effected through the influence of Nicodemus and others who received lessons in private from him in Egyptian science and philosophy. His extraordinary intelligence, so much beyond that of the Hebrew youth, at first excited their admiration and curiosity, and subsequently their envy. The only advantage he gained by their acquaintance, beyond the privileges of the Temple, was to obtain a contract for his father Joseph, from the government, to build a throne for the King. Jesus superintended the work, and contrived it so, by springs and slides, that it could by a touch be drawn together or expended; but Joseph, in his simplicity, knew nothing of this.

In two years the work was completed, but when the throne was fitted into its place, it was found to be two feet too short. Now the moment had arrived when Jesus determined to give himself a name among a superstitious people and take the first step toward occupying the very throne which he had built. Joseph wept. Mary scolded, as she had often done when she had caught Jesus idling away his time in the Temple; but Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, 'Father, take hold of the throne of God!' He did so, and behold! as Jesus pulled and as Joseph pulled, the throne expanded and fitted exactly into its place. And the people praised God.

Till this time Jesus had performed his Egyptian magical tricks only before a limited circle of acquaintances. Among them he had transformed clay sparrows into living ones, and done other tricks such as Messrs. Heller, Hartz and Anderson exhibit in these latter days, and which he had assisted to do in the open air in Egypt.

But an occasion offered itself to further mystify his acquaintances and to render his name notorious. Jesus fell in love with a lovely girl named Martha, whose sister's name was Mary, and her brother's name Lazarus. Jesus married Martha. His father-in-law prepared for him and his disciples a feast, and they rejoiced and were exceedingly glad. Now, when they had made merry, and when bumper after bumper of wine had been drunk to the health and future prosperity of the bridegroom and his blushing bride, it was discovered that there was a deficiency of the drink which cheereth the heart of God and man. This was told to the mother of Jesus, who reported to her son the state of affairs. The intelligence was not altogether pleasing to him, and he spoke to his mother, saying,—'Woman, (hic,) what have I to do with thee? Mine hour is not yet come.' This he said that the Scripture might be fulfilled, which says, 'We won't go home till morning—till daylight doth appear.'

However, Mary had seen trickery before, and knew by what he said that he had some dodge on hand, and she warned the servants to do whatever he might ask them to do. Jesus commanded them to refill the wine vessels with water and take them to the gay bacchanalians, who, he maintained, were too drunk to tell the difference. The joke took, to the great enjoyment of the servants, and the chairman of the festival called Jesus and said unto him: "How's this, ol' fellow? Mos' folks give the best wine first (hic), but you have kep' the (hic) the best till the last, eh? Bully for you!" His trick was long talked of as the best joke of that place.

But Jesus did not end the spree that night, but for forty days and nights he quenched not the spirit, but was filled with the spirit, that it might be fulfilled which the wisest man had said—'Give strong drink to him that is ready to perish and wine to those that be of heavy hearts. Let him drink and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more.' During this fit of inebriation he talked largely of his magical power, and said he could destroy the Temple and make a better one in three days. But at the end of forty days, having eaten little and drank heavily, he was seized with delirium tremens and fancied the Devil was flying round with him from pillar to post—from mountain tops to the Temple and other places. And the angels Martha, Mary and his mother comforted him and nursed him.

On his recovery he felt ashamed of his late conduct, and went down to Capernaum, he and his mother and his brethren and his disciples: and they continued there not many days."

The edition of the Chicago Post, (May 8th), very properly remarks on the foregoing, it "is the most outrageous thing with which white paper was ever stained." But such vile things are now passing current in community, with scarcely a rebuke or frown from the mass of the people. Men may well inquire, To what are we coming? What shall be the end of these things? If the tide of infidelity and wickedness continues to increase in time to come, as in time past, especially for the last five years, it would seem that Sodom would be outdone. But with all these facts before us, there are still many who are so blind as to believe the world is really growing better, just as Satan says when speaking through his mediums. Let us expose his lies, and all be ready to welcome Jesus when he comes.

THE HYMNS OF THE JUBILEE HARP.

For the convenience of those who wish to carry the hymns in their pockets, we have had a lot bound with flexible covers, the margins of the pages being trimmed close to the printed matter, making it very convenient for the pocket,—the most complete hymn book in use among us. Price 75 cts. per copy, postage 12 cts; $7.00 per dozen by express. AG'T.

NOW READY.

The Scriptural Question Book, for families and Sunday Schools, which has been out of print for some time past, is now ready. Price, single copy, by mail, 15 cts. $1.25 per dozen by express. $1.57 by mail. AG'T.

I CAN'T AFFORD IT?

How often is this excuse made by many who profess to be the followers of the meek and lowly Jesus. When they are appealed to in behalf of some good object they will say, "I approve it. The cause ought to be aided and encouraged, and I am very sorry I cannot help in the good work. But so it is. The calls are so many, and my means so limited, I cannot afford it." Hold, my friend, you may be mistaken. Perhaps you cannot afford it. I know there are many who do all and perhaps more than they are really able to do; but let us see why so many make this excuse. Do you say you have not the ability to do any more? Is this a sufficient apology? By no means.

There is another thing to be considered—the cause of your inability. Why can you not afford it? Let us go back a step and inquire how it comes to pass that you are so destitute of means to give to this and that good object. What if you have not the ability, provided you might have had it? Perhaps you do not earn all you might. In this case your not being able is no excuse. All you have to do is to earn a little more, and then you can afford it. Only let your idle hours be fewer, or your work a little harder, and then you will have no difficulty. Why should not a man earn to give as well as to eat, drink and put on? Why should you not put forth an extra effort, if it be necessary, to promote the cause of religion? O! it is blessed to labor that we may do the more good.

But perhaps you earn enough. You may not be idle, but are you not prodigal? Do you not spend foolishly more than you ought to? Many use no economy in their manner of living. They do not save as much as they might; they are lavish and wasteful. Remember, a penny saved is equal to one earned, and it is all one to the treasury of charity, whether that which it receives comes from economy or industry. Reader, do you practice economy that you may have something to give to God?

One reason why many have so little with which to help the cause of God is, they wear their money. They are ornamented and decrated with many needless things. Reader, if you are one of this class, do not say you cannot afford it; for you wear a proof that you can afford it. Compare yourself with the word of God, and see if you dress in harmony with that. How much mony is wasted in foolish and needless things, which might be used in doing good and in spreading the truth far and near. Look at the furniture of some houses, how costly, how useless, for it is seldom if ever used. Look at some tables; how many dainties which ruin the health of those who feast upon them, instead of plain, healthy food. Oh that those who profess to be looking for Jesus would exemplify their faith in their dress, food, labor, houses, and in all that they do or possess.

Dear friend, do not say that you cannot afford to give to the cause of God, when you are spending your income in foolish and needless things. Remember, God's eye is upon you at all times. Soon you must stand before his awful throne, and give a strict account. Be wise. Live in the fear of God. Glorify him in your body and spirit. Spend not one penny foolishly, but save to give to God. He loveth a cheerful giver. It is better to give than to receive. Give, and it shall be given unto you again. Can you not believe it? Trust God and try it. If you would reap bountifully, you must sow bountifully. The reaping time is at hand. Let us be ready to reap life.

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

At the present time the universal cry seems to be, "Let us have peace." This is the motto that greets the eye continually as we go about the cities and public places throughout the land. And while nations are angry and making great preparations for war, the world is crying "Peace, peace," and evidently looks forward to a hasty restoration of universal peace among all classes of people.

But even this "peace" of which the world speaks, if it should ever be realized, will not be that lasting, perfect peace which the Savior has promised unto all those who love him and keep his commandments; for they shall obtain that "peace" which the world can neither give nor take away. And as Paul has told us that "in the last days perilous times shall come," and "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse," we have no right to expect such a state of things as the world is prophesying; "For when they shall cry peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them."—1 Thess. 5: 3.

How little the vast number of people think of these solemn declarations, who are making preparations to attend the "Grand National Peace Jubilee" to be held in this city during the middle of this month, which, it is said, is "to commemorate the restoration of peace throughout the land." Little do they think that possibly when all are gathered together into one great mass, amid the booming of cannons, the chiming of bells, the beating of drums, and the combination of all the musical instruments with the great chorus of human voices, that the heavens may reveal the Son of man coming with power and great glory, to judge the people and reward them as their work shall be.

Yet this may be the case; and, if so, are we prepared to render up our account, and await the righteous judgment of Him who is to be King over all the earth? Are our lamps trimmed and burning, and we ready to to enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb? Let us be constantly watching and waiting, "lest he coming suddenly, should find us sleeping." May we not be of that number to whom the coming of the Lord will be "as a thief in the night." "Therefore, let us not sleep as do others, but let us watch, and be sober."—1 Thess 5: 6.

PENCILINGS OF A PILGRIM.

AN HONEST INQUIRY.

The following intelligent letter will explain itself. It bears the marks of candor, and doubtless expresses the anxiety of thousands to find a more satisfactory solution to the great problem of the sinner's destiny, than is furnished by the current theology.

Cardigan, P. E. Island, Apr. 13, '69.

MR. A. A. PHELPS:—Dear Sir:—In the World's Crisis of 24th March, I read a paragraph of yours under the heading of "Settled at last," in which you profess your disbelief in the doctrine of eternal torment, and state that after careful examination of the subject, and mature deliberation, as also in answer to earnest prayer, all doubts have been dispelled, and that you now fully believe that the wicked shall be utterly destroyed,—become extinct, and that the doctrine of future endless punishment is not true,—is not the doctrine of the Bible.

As I am a reader of the Crisis, and my mind has for some time been perplexed with regard to this subject,—I mean the doctrine of eternal misery, I thought I would write to you, to see if you could explain to me the meaning of the following text, and show how it harmonizes with the doctrine of the utter and final annihilation of the wicked. I met with it the other day in a book of Sermons by an English writer. The text of one of the sermons stands thus: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal."—Matt. 25: 46.

Here is an extract from the sermon: It is Christ's word. Christ says in the text, "these shall go away into everlasting punishment." In vain do letter-learned men try to reason away the solemn truth, and lessen the duration of future punishment; Christ says it is eternal, and uses the very same word to signify an eternal heaven, as he does to express an eternal hell (for the words are the same in the original); besides, it is said, Rev. 14: 11,—"The smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever"; and our Lord also declares that "their worm dieth not, and their fire is not quenched."

Now, my dear sir, if you can explain this matter, and show clearly that everlasting punishment does not mean punishment without end—interminable torment—I shall then, with you, be compelled to disbelieve the popular dogma of future endless life in misery. I hope, dear sir, you will answer this letter, either through the Crisis or by private communication. See how important it is that theological writers declare nothing that may not be established in biblical truth. It is said, Words are the only things that never die. Your words have come to me over the water,—to me in this insular home,—and is it a strange thing that I, whose mind is so often perplexed by opposing theological teachings, should ask you for further explanation on this important matter?

Hoping to hear from you soon, I beg to remain yours for the truth's sake,

JOHN PARKER.

A CANDID ANSWER.

My Dear Brother:—Your kind letter merited an earlier response. Uncontrolable circumstances have caused a delay which your goodness will forgive. I am glad you are disposed to examine the great subject of man's destiny in the light of Scripture, and to abide the result. There is little danger of going wrong, if we will disencumber ourselves of the rubbish of old prejudices, and look the facts squarely in the face. For my part, I have a constantly increasing satisfaction in the conclusion I have recently reached, that all evil will ultimately be exterminated from God's universe, and perfect purity, harmony and love restored. This looks like a glorious triumph of truth. It looks like a beautiful and successful administration of the divine government. A plan of recovering mercy that freely offers salvation to a ruined race, and that proposes to colonize all who accept on the blissful shores of immortality, but to destroy all the rest as useless rubbish, certainly vindicates the character of God against every charge of injustice or cruelty, and maintains the dignity of his righteous law. It is simply to burn up the chaff and preserve the wheat. This surely commends itself to reason; does it also comport with revelation? This is the very point you wish to have decided; and for this reason you have adduced what seems to be a strong Scripture testimony against the doctrine of utter destruction. You ask an explanation of that solemn utterance of Christ, "These shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal."—Matt. 25: 46.

1. The passage is pertinent. It bears directly on the destiny of the wicked. And the language is literal, not figurative. It is, confessedly, the strongest passage in the Bible to prove the doctrine of eternal torment.

2. It teaches the fact of future punishment. It describes a scene that is to take place after the judgment verdict shall have been pronounced. It is therefore equally fatal to the notion that all the wicked will be saved, and to the notion that none of the wicked will be raised from the dead to receive the penalty due to their sins.

3. It teaches the duration of future punishment. It is "everlasting," or eternal. Precisely the same original word describes the length of the sinner's "punishment" and the duration of the christian's "life." There is neither any possibility or necessity of quibbling at this point. Inspiration has settled the matter beyond the shadow of a doubt.

4. The kind of punishment is not so fully brought out. But perhaps a little investigation will also settle this point.

(1). It would be reasonable to suppose that as the righteous and the wicked are opposite characters, their future destinies will also be opposite. What is the reward of the righteous? "Eternal life." The antithesis would naturally give us eternal death, as the reward of transgression.

(2). The noun translated "punishment"—(kolasin) is derived from a verb whose primary signification is to "cut off," "prune," "curtail," etc. Hence it comes to mean check, punish, etc.

(3). As the text clearly teaches the duration, but does not clearly teach the kind, of punishment that awaits the sinner, it is proper to "compare scripture with scripture," and see what is the current testimony of the divine record. The text under consideration stands in connection with the second coming of Christ as the Judge of the world, to reward the good and punish the wicked. Paul, in describing the same event, gives us a remarkable commentary on our text: "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven, with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power, when he shall come to be glorified in his saints," etc. 2 Thess. 1: 7–10. Here we see that everlasting punishment is defined to be everlasting destruction. The phrase, "from the presence of the Lord," must either mean that the instrument of the sinner's destruction is the "flaming fire" in which the Lord is revealed; or, that the sinner is driven beyond the reach of the Lord's presence—that is, reduced to nothing. In either case, it is utter and irrecoverable destruction. It may also be stated here that while there are only a very few passages that even seem to teach the doctrine of eternal misery, there are not less than two hundred which teach that the wicked will die—perish—come to an end—be blotted out—be destroyed—be devoured—be consumed—be burned up, etc., etc., etc. There are also as many more that teach the same doctrine by fair implication. Such an array of evidence is not to be ignored.

5. But is there any propriety in calling annihilation everlasting punishment? Most assuredly. Will not the sinner sustain a loss that is eternal? Is he not cut off from endless joys in that bright world where immortality blooms? Punishment is not always infliction; it is quite as apt to be privation. "But the sinner will not appreciate his loss after he is destroyed." And what beneficial end would be accomplished by keeping him in eternal anguish? There is no need of having the redeemed witness such agony in order to secure their own loyalty. Nor will the torturing pains result in the reformation of the lost. The sinner may now look forward to the glittering crown that invites him, and the ruin that threatens him, and appreciate the fearfulness of that gulf of destruction that yawns to devour him!

When we read of "eternal redemption," we do not infer that God will be forever engaged in redeeming men; but that the effects of redemption will never cease. And when we read of "eternal judgment," we have no idea that the Judge of all will never get through his work; but rather that it is the final and irreversible judgment, whose verdicts will settle the destiny of the human family forever. So eternal fire and eternal destruction indicate that the effects of the fire and the destruction will be absolutely eternal. President Edwards (the younger), though a believer in eternal torment, admits the propriety of calling extermination everlasting punishment. Thus: "Endless annihilation is an endless or infinite punishment. It is an endless loss of, not only all the good a man at present enjoys, but of all that good which he would have enjoyed throughout eternity, in the state of bliss to which he would have been admitted, if he had never sinned. This, in an endless duration, would amount to an infinite quantity of good. Annihilation, therefore, is an infinite punishment, both as it is endless, and as the quantity of good lost is infinite."

I trust, my dear brother, that when these lines shall float over the waters and reach your "insular home," they may serve to shed one ray of light on your pathway, and awake responsive chords in your heart. Let us lie low at our common Master's feet and look for divine illumination. May He who is enshrined in unclouded light diffuse his own sweet sunshine through our being, and prepare us to bask in the glories of that eternal day whose dawn shall be heralded by the personal coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Yours in Jesus, A. A. PHELPS.

IDLE WORDS.

Says the Psalmist, "And my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness, and of thy praise all the day long." "The mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom, and his tongue talketh of good judgment." And as a sure defence he prays, "Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips." "In the multitude of words there wanteth not sin: but he that refraineth his lips is wise," uttered by the preacher.

What does Christ declare? "But I say unto you that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." Also James, a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ says, "If any man among you seemeth to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain." Does the inspired apostle allow our indulgence in these things? "Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient; but rather giving of thanks." Furthermore, "Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers." "Only let your conversation be as becometh the gospel of Christ."

Are we to be an example in these matters? "But be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation," "charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." Then Paul to Timothy, "Take heed to thyself and continue in them." What is the result? "For in doing this thou shalt save thyself and them that hear thee." "But shun profane and vain babblings; for they will increase unto more ungodliness," or, as rendered in the "Emphatic Diaglot," "But profane, empty declamations, resist; for they will further promote impiety."

What did Paul say to Titus? "But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine; that the aged men be sober, grave, temperate, sound in the faith, in charity, in patience. The aged women likewise, that they may teach the young women to be sober."—"Young men exhort to be sober-minded." Also, "Sound speech that cannot be condemned." We see no room here allowed for jesting, or idle, trifling, vain conversation.

What does the apostle Peter say? "But as he that hath called you is holy, so be ye holy [in some conversation? No.]in all conversation." "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God." "While they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear." That, whereas they speak evil of you, as of evil doers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ." What further motive does Peter set before us? "But the end of all things is at hand; be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer." "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness." "Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ."

Now, dear brethren and sisters, can we lay down our watchfulness, and in the face of all these inspired admonitions indulge in jesting, or idle, vain conversation, and expect to retain the sunlight of God's power? Can we do this and not incur guilt and condemnation? Shall any of us who look for the coming of Christ be unprepared to meet our Lord when he comes? "Wherfore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent, that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless." May we thus ever be found till he comes.

TO MY BRETHREN.

I was somewhat surprised upon reading the report of the Conn. A. C. Conference, held at Collinsville, Conn., to see that Eld. I. B. Potter had been appointed to inquire whether or not I was going to perform the duties of Sec'y of said Conference any longer. I have never intimated that I intended to discontinue them, and I do hereby publicly declare that I do intend to continue to perform the duties devolving upon me. I have attended every session of the conference (also the Convention at Hartford) since its organization, except the last two. The session at New Haven last January I was unable to attend because of sickness in my family, but I sent the records in time and also my reasons for not attending. The session at Collinsville I made all preparation to attend and was fully calculating to go, but having a child about six weeks old, also one twenty months old, and no one to care for my wife but myself, (the nurse being obliged to go away), I tried to obtain help, and finally succeeded in obtaining a Sister from South Wilbraham, Thursday morning, April 22d I could have then got to the Conference by Friday A. M., and should have had to leave Friday P. M. in order to get to my next appointment, Saturday evening April 24th, and thinking all business would be finished up I did not go.

I have not as yet received the records of the last session. If I have done wrong, let the brethren forgive me, and in future I shall endeavor to do better.

Extracts from Letters.

SR. A. E. SMITH writes, May 13th:—"One evening last week, as I was dressing to go down stairs to meeting, a man came running up to my room all out of breath, saying, 'Where is Mrs. Smith?' He made such a noise I opened the door to see what the matter was, when he said, 'Oh, do come to 49 L. St.; there is a woman taken suddenly sick, and is dying, and she will go to hell.' The man was very much frightened, and stood trembling at the top of the stairs. 'Why,' said I, 'it is almost meeting time, and I must lead the meeting.' 'Oh, do come,' said he, 'she asks for you every minute; she was here and heard you preach, and she wants you to come.' 'Well, we will come, but can't stay long.'

So we went, and such a house as it was. There were fourteen in the room, all as wicked as they could be. Two doctors were standing over the woman, doing all they could to save her life. She was pleading for mercy, when she could get ease from her pain, saying, 'Lord, have mercy on me a sinner!' But the pain would catch her breath. Her sister walked the floor wringing her hands, pulling her hair, and as wicked as she was she would say, 'O God, don't let my sister die! O God, please don't let her die until she gets religion. O Lord, if my sister was only prepared to die I would not say a word; but, oh Lord, she is a sinner, and if she dies to-night she will go to hell. Oh, don't let her die, please don't let her die'; and so the poor thing walked the floor up and down; then she would go to the doctors and tell them to come out of the room (as the sick woman was in a little dark bedroom), and let the missionaries go in and pray for her sister; 'she will die, if you don't hurry, and let some one pray for her!'

I tried to talk to her and get her quiet, but she would break out crying while I was talking to her and say, 'O, do go in and talk with my sister'; and the sick one would say, 'Do come and pray for me.' Such a noise and confusion, you could not hear your own voice. After a while the doctors came out in the room in which we were, and sat down to see what effect the medicine would have on her. We then went in the room to talk with her, but could not; she prayed, and rolled, and cried, 'Lord, have mercy! Lord, save! O, don't let me die, I am so wicked. I deserve to go to hell, but, oh Lord, please don't let me die in my sins.' After we got them quiet then we sung,

'And must I be to judgment brought,
And answer in that day?'

By the time we had sung the hymn through, it was quiet enough to pray; so the doctors left and we prayed with her and faithfully warned those in the room to flee from the wrath to come. The Lord helped us. We then left them and ran away home to attend the meeting, there to sing and pray and exchange experiences with each other until eleven o'clock at night, and then hurried to bed to get a little sleep and rest for the next day.

Word came next day at two o'clock to come and see one of the members of the mission die up town. We could not go, and Sister Benson went. When she arrived at the place, she went into the room, looked at the dying one, and said to her, 'How is it with you?' 'Oh,' said she, 'all is well; not a cloud between Jesus and me. Oh, I am so glad the time has come for me to pass away, to fall asleep in Jesus. I am so glad in a little while I shall be done with sorrow, suffering and poverty, and sin (her voice failed her so fast they could hardly hear what she said); but Jesus is mine, and I am his. Jesus saves me now'; and she passed away so easily they hardly knew she was gone.

Such is the difference in death-bed scenes in garrets and cellars. Since I have been able to be at work again, sick beds and funeral sermons seem to be my work right along. O for strength to work for Jesus. Blessed work."

BRO. N. WHEELER writes:—"The Lord has greatly blessed the people at Sugar Hill, N. H., the past winter. Many have found the Lord to be precious to their souls. We had the privilege of baptizing ten happy souls into Christ last Lord's day, May 30th. Others, we trust, will soon follow. May the Lord bless the protracted effort soon to be made at that place. Pray for us."

SR. S. A. INGHAM, writes, May 24th. "Bro. Grant:—We left Salem the 17th by rail to Portland. Sisters York and Osgood met us at the Depot and took us to Bro. Dyer's, a short distance from the steamboat landing, where we were kindly cared for, and very unexpectedly to me, Sr. York presented me with the sum of $26. 00, from the Portland and Chelsea churches, for which they will accept my grateful thanks. The brethren and sisters at Lynn and Haverhill are also remembered by me.

We took the boat at five o'clock, had a pleasant passage, and arrived at St. John at six o'clock on Tuesday evening, where we stopped until Thursday morning, and at eight we left in a snow and rain storm; had a rough time in crossing the Bay of Fundy, as the wind blew hard. We landed at Annapolis at two o'clock, where we took a covered team and rode home, a distance of seven miles, the wind and rain being in our backs. Bro Ingham stood the journey quite well. He was not sea-sick, though he woke me up in the morning by saying it was raining right down, and we would never get home. He now feels the effects of his journey. Our daughter is walking out with him this morning. I thank the Lord for his protecting care over us, and that he has permitted us to meet again.

I would say to those who administered to and visited us in our affliction, they will never be forgotten by me, and I trust if we never meet on earth again in its present state, we shall be permitted to meet where the briny ocean can never separate us, and our tears and sighs be exchanged for the gladsome songs of the new earth."

Bro. P. A. Smith writes from Monson, Mass.:—"It cheers my heart when I read the letters from the dear saints in the Crisis. It is nearly five months since I commenced taking that valuable paper. It is a welcome visitor (and I trust I have profited by reading its pages), and a little more than a year since I confessed to the world that I was looking for the second coming of Christ. I had been a member of the Baptist church for several years, yet I knew nothing of these blessed truths taught in the Bible; in fact, I was not converted until I began to look for Jesus to come.

Bro. G. A. Streeter has been laboring in our neighborhood. One has come out, believed the truth, and been baptized. We think others are looking into these things, and hope they will move forward also. Pray for us, brethren, that we may be faithful till Jesus comes."

Bro. and Sr. J. S. and A. M. Hinds write from Wilmington, N. Y.:—"We look back with pleasure and remember the good meetings at Wilbraham, and the kindness received from friends. We would like to attend another such meeting, but if the Lord does not in his providence help us, we cannot. If we can have the Crisis, the Voice and the Christian, we can get along; and if they fail to come, we have a good Bible. We have no Advent preaching within fifty miles."

Bro. C. Lord writes:—"I wish to write a few lines for our much loved paper, it has done me so much good for a few months past. I rejoice and give God thanks that he ever placed these precious truths within my reach. I feel grateful to him that he ever brought me to see that my deeds were evil, before it was forever too late, and now to rejoice in him. Praise God for his goodness. May the Lord bless the readers of the Crisis. I ask your prayers for us in Shrewsbury, Vt."

"Give Attendance to Reading."

"The Controversy between True and Pretended Christianity."—The above is the title of an essay delivered before the Massachusetts Methodist Convention, held at Boston, Oct. 15th, 1868, by Rev. L. T. Townsend. Mr. T. takes issue with the Unitarians, Pantheists, Naturalists in general, and with Dr. James Freeman Clark, and some of the Theodore Parker school, in particular. In this essay Mr. T. deals heavy blows upon the trunk and limbs of this gilded and artificially ornamented tree of liberalism; but we think he has not yet discovered, or at least not laid the axe at the root. The infidel principles of the "Mediatorial School" of witnesses are contrasted with some of the plain statements of Scripture, and the mask adroitly removed from their writings, so that their specious statements are reduced to their true value. The essay is a strong effort to call skeptics back to the Bible as the foundation of religious doctrine; it shows an increased state of feeling for the rapid spread of infidelity, and is a valuable production, especially at this time when faith in the Bible is so fast ebbing out. Obituaries.

Harris. Died in Waterford, Racine Co., Wis., May 19th, 1869, after a severe illness of two months, our dear mother, Mrs. Hannah Harris, formerly of West Poultney, Vt., aged fifty-eight years, four months, and nineteen days.

Like the beloved Paul, she has "fought a good fight" and "kept the faith," "and there is laid up for her a crown of righteousness," which we believe she will wear in the kingdom.

At the age of thirteen our mother experienced religion and united with the M. E. church, of which she was a faithful member for thirty-four years. She was taught in early youth that the real man was immortal, and read the Scriptures with that view, although she said "there seemed to be many inconsistencies." She was always ready to investigate and receive the truth as far as it was made known to her; and many of the friends in Poultney well remember that when Bro. Grant was invited there, and preached that man was only invited, not compelled to be immortal, and this immortality is put on "when He who is our life shall appear," she was among the first to receive it, and was the first woman to open her mouth in public meeting to express her satisfaction of the same, and to pray for the sinner. She was a strong minded, far-seeing woman, and, said she, "This is the Lord's work; I shall lose my hope of salvation if I do not use all my influence and energy to help forward God's cause.

During twenty years I never knew her to be present at a prayer or conference meeting but what she embraced the opportunity. She had always something deeply interesting and instructive to say; but her voice will no longer be heard, till the glad rising of the eternal morn, saying with the redeemed, "Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne and the Lamb forever and ever."

A few hours before she died she bade us "trust in God"; then said, "Give me the pure bread in the kingdom of God. 'Behold he cometh with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment and justice.' Blessed, blessed advent." After that she could only articulate the faintest "yes," but was conscious till the last.

An interesting and comforting discourse was given by Bro. Painter (Methodist), from the words, "For here he have no continuing city, but we seek one to come." May our mother's mantle of piety and usefulness rest upon us, and the blessing of God sanctify our sorrow, is the wish of her two remaining children. Pray for us.

Sophronia Harris.

Stetson. Fell asleep in Jesus, at Pomfret, Vt., April 3d, 1869, after an illness of seventeen days, of typhoid influenza, my husband, Zenas K. Stetson, aged forty-six years.

For several years he was a member of the Christian church. In 1843 he heard and believed the glad tidings that Jesus was soon coming. Wherever he was, it was his delight to show his faith in the fulfillment of the prophecies, regardless of the opinions of others. He often expressed a desire (and sometimes an expectation) that he might live until the trump of God should wake the sleeping saints; but when he was taken ill, he said, "My work is done; I had hoped to live until Jesus comes, but I must sleep a little while."

Myself and one child are left to grope our way alone through this unfriendly world, yet not alone, for God is with us. We mourn, but not as those who have no hope; for we believe the sleeps in Jesus, and that soon he that raised up Christ from the dead, will also quicken his mortal body. We are lonely and sad. Pray for us, that this affliction may work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

U. F. Stetson.

Pierce. Died in Warren, Vt., June 1st, Henry, son of Hiram and Jane Pierce, aged sixteen years.

Henry was of a remarkably sweet and pleasant disposition, and his parents, brothers and sisters, and a large circle of friends, deeply mourn his loss. May God bless them all, and aid them in giving their hearts to him, so when the dead awake to life again, they may have the crown of life. Sermon by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 18.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

Madrid, June 2. The Constituent Cortes last night finally adopted the new Constitution by a vote of 216 in the affirmative and 55 in the negative. After the vote was declared, Senor Figureas, amid much enthusiasm, announced that the Republicans, although opposed to those clauses of the Constitution which provided for the establishment of a monarchy, would support and follow them.

St. Petersburg, May 31. The Emperor of Russia has signified his intention of sending an Envoy Extraordinary to Washington for the purpose of congratulating President Grant on the success of his election, and also to express the value that His Majesty sets on the maintenance of friendly relations between the two nations.

Madrid, June 2. General O'Donnell, while speaking in the Cortes against the proposed reduction of the army, was seized with apoplexy and died in the Chamber.

Madrid. The new Constitution was promulgated with great pomp.

DOMESTIC.

St. Louis, June 1. A dispatch from Topeka, Kansas, says the Sheriff of Saline county reports thirteen persons, men, women and children, killed in that county by the Indians, and as many more are supposed to have been carried off. They suffer worse than death. The settlers in Saline county are coming eastward for protection.

Havana, June 2. The agitation in the city has partially abated. Captain General Dulce has resigned, and Don Espinar is acting Captain General, and will continue to do so until the arrival of Gen. Ceballos de Radas. The city is tranquil, but disorder threatened to break out any moment, as the volunteers are greatly incensed against Gen. Pelaz, who has disappeared, and whose whereabouts are unknown. A feeling of great anxiety pervades the city.

New York, June 7. An Atlanta special says Gen. Terry assumed command on the 22d inst. Sheriff Norris has been escorted to Warrenton by troops, and will, with military aid, arrest the assassins of Senator Adkins. Union people begin to feel they are to be protected.

Drouth in Australia.—A fearful drouth prevails in the interior of Australia. The line of Wagga Wagga to Hay is said by a late traveler to be comparable to nothing but the Valley of the Shadow of Death. It is literally strewed with the skeletons or the decaying carcasses of wretched animals that have perished from starvation or thirst. Horses, cattle and sheep, and even the wild denizens of the plains—kangaroos, emus and turkeys—are lying dead in all directions, tainting the atmosphere and giving abundant occupation to the crows.

The French Atlantic Cable.—The London News says the French Atlantic Cable has been completed and will be laid from English ships by Englishmen, an English company having undertaken the contract, Sir Samuel Canning being the engineer-in-chief of the expedition, and the Great Eastern being chartered for the work. The cable is 1200 miles longer than its predecessors, and is divided into several sections.

The Inquisition.—In the course of some building improvements at Madrid, the remains of the Inquisition fires were recently discovered. Calcined bones, partially burnt hair and cordage, pieces of iron and shreds of singed garments have been picked up in the locality. The discovery created great excitement, and thousands flocked to the spot.

Severe Storms at the West.—A tremendous storm of wind, hail and rain visited the town of Shipman, Illinois, on Friday evening of last week, and though it lasted but twenty minutes, the damage caused by it is estimated at half a million of dollars. Scarcely a building in the place escaped injury. The Baptist church, a large brick edifice, was completely wrecked, the walls being razed to the ground and the woodwork scattered in every direction. Many houses and other structures were completely demolished or badly damaged by the tornado. Orchards were prostrated as though a scythe had swept through their midst. Fences were blown entirely away. Wheat fields were laid as low as though the harvester had been at work. Shade trees and shrubbery of every description were torn out by the roots. As far as the eye can reach, east or west, a scene of desolation and destruction is presented to the view. The local papers give a long list of buildings destroyed or injured. Several persons were hurt, but none killed. During the few minutes of the storm, a scene of indescribable confusion and consternation reigned supreme. Men, women and children fled for their lives, shrieking in terror, as their homes were falling about them, or swept from their foundations. The cries and groans of the horses, cattle and other animals, as the stables and barns were unroofed or swept from their foundations, leaving them at the mercy of the pitiless hail which beat upon them with terrible force, or were crushed and buried by the falling timbers, was almost deafening. The gale swept over a course twenty-six miles in length by a quarter of a mile in width.

During the last week of May the Miami Valley in Ohio was the scene of a furious storm, which inflicted a great deal of damage upon buildings and crops.

On the 24th ult. a terrific hail, rain and wind storm occurred in Lafayette county, Mo., uprooting buildings and destroying crops. The damage is estimated at $150,000.

Passing Events.

☞ It is said that a house in Chicago has sent out an agent to China to contract for fifty thousand Chinese to be sent East by the railroad from San Francisco. They are needed to work the Southern plantations. It is quite probable that, for the next three years, the increase of Chinese population will be limited only by the means of transportation.

☞ In Indiana the wheat crop never looked better than now, and if the weather continues favorable the yield will be larger than has ever been harvested in the State. Corn is promising and fruit will be abundant.

☞ Levi Snow of West Dover, Vt., has been feeding out hay this spring that has been in his barn thirty-four years. It came out bright and sound, the cattle ate it well, and it was as good in every respect as hay grown last summer.

☞ The leading points of a recent speech made by the Sultan of Turkey were that the Cretan difficulty is settled, that Turkish credit is increased, that science and art have advanced, and that material progress is his constant aim. He announces his belief in railroads, and gives a hint favorable to religious tolerance.

☞ At Prague it is proposed to celebrate this year the five hundredth birthday of the reformer, John Huss, and to erect a monument to his memory at Constance, Baden, where he was burnt alive.

☞ The civil war in Japan continued. The Mikado had sent a powerful fleet against the rebels at Hakodadi. It was reported that French officers supported and aided rebels there.

☞ Teachers are to be employed to instruct the Chinese girls in San Francisco, where they are rapidly increasing. The work is undertaken by the churches.

☞ The grasshoppers are largely increasing in numbers in Missouri, and their depredations are daily becoming more extensive.

☞ It is announced that in five years the communication by rail between Paris and Constantinople will be completed. The time occupied between the two cities will be sixty-nine hours. It is estimated that the force employed upon the road will amount to more than 100,000 men.

☞ Drs. Adler and Ernhorn, leading progressive Jewish Rabbis, have published a call to other Rabbis throughout the United States to meet in conference to discuss the principles of modern worship.

☞ The African Methodist Episcopal Zion Conference, in session at Newburg, N. Y., has adopted a resolution that no person be admitted into the Conference, either on trial or into full connection, who uses tobacco in any shape.

Protracted Meeting at Sugar Hill, N. H.

There will be a protracted meeting held at Sugar Hill, N. H. (D. V.), commencing Friday, June 11th, at ten o'clock A. M., and hold over the following Sunday. Elder John Couch and others of the Lord's servants will be present to preach the word. May this meeting be greatly blessed of God.

A. W. Sibley.

Conference in Whitefield, Me.

The Quarterly Conference will be held in North Whitefield, commencing June 25th, at 2 P. M., and hold over Sunday. Come, ministers and laymen, to work for the Lord. Those coming in the cars on the Kennebeck, north or south, will stop at Gardiner. Write to S. K. Partridge, No. Whitefield, and he will send a team for you.

Jer. Partridge, President.
S. K. Partridge, Clerk.

N. Y. State Mission Tent.

If the Lord will, the New York State Mission Tent will be pitched in Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Thursday, June 17th, 1869, and remain about three weeks. We commenced our tent meetings in the same place last year; the Lord blessed his truth to many hearts then, and we trust he will do so again. To this end we shall pray and labor.

J. Wendell.

Minnesota Campmeeting.

This meeting is appointed at Ottawa, to commence Sabbath, June 27th, continuing over Monday, July 5th. The State Conference will commence its annual session, June 24th, at the same place. As these meetings will be held thus in connection, we look for a season of special interest, and one in which all our strength shall be united to give new life and energy to the cause throughout the State. The committee are arranging for the comfort of all who attend, and we trust every part of the State, even to the extreme frontier, will be represented in this general gathering.

REDUCTION OF RAILROAD FARE.

Ottawa is situated about sixty miles south-west from St. Paul, on the St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad (formerly the Minnesota Valley,) which runs from St. Paul to Mankato.

Those coming by the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway will change cars at Mendota, where they will purchase tickets for Ottawa.

The fare on the St. Paul and Sioux City R. R. is reduced one-half, and when buying tickets for Ottawa be sure and ask for return tickets. Return tickets will be good for ten days.

A boarding table will be provided for those who do not choose to bring their own provisions, at a reasonable rate. Also feed for horses can be obtained on the ground.

Edwin T. Himes, Chairman Com.

Notice.

The State Campmeeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, to commence June 21st, 1869. The tent will be pitched Saturday, the 19th, for public meeting, on the same ground. There will be a grocery and boarding table kept on the ground by the committee, at reasonable rates; the proceeds to be used to defray the expenses of the meeting. Hay and straw and tent frames will be furnished free. There will be no reduction in the fare on the R. R. this year. Elder Miles Grant, Editor of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., is to be with us through the meeting.

Dear Brethren, we take this opportunity to invite you, one and all, to come to this yearly feast. Come early, and stay till the close of the meeting. Do not let the sacrifice of time and money prevent your coming. Bring your family, converted and unconverted. Prepare to make them comfortable, and work for God and the salvation of your children and others. You who live isolated, whose families are deprived of the gospel, are especially invited to come and get acquainted, and thereby may open a door into the regions beyond. Let all ministers come.

S. B. Ensign, Chairman.
W. H. Peck, Secretary of the Committee.

Notice.

The Advent people of this city (Providence), who desire a free gospel, have hired Wabossett Hall, No. 62 Wabossett Street, where they invite all God's servants who travel this way to give them a call, and preach the gospel of the kingdom, without regard to sect or party. Appointments may be sent to either of the committee, and brethren coming to the city from abroad, can call on either of the committee and find a home while they remain in the place. We are poor, but will do what we can to help brethren on their way. The brethren formerly worshiping at New Market Hall go with us, and we cordially invite all who desire a free meeting to come in with us and worship the Lord, and get ready for the coming kingdom.

Committee: J. French, No. 130 Carpenter St.; S. C. Lord, 46 Warren St.; John C. Moulton, 117 Smith Street.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting in Foster, R. I., near the Hopkin's Mill, to commence June 26th, and hold over the fourth of July. Preaching brethren from abroad, come. Brethren and sisters, make a little sacrifice to get out to this meeting. It probably will be the last meeting of the kind you will ever have. Good homes for all who come from abroad.

E. Bellows.

Conference.

The Lord willing, there will be a conference in Carthage, Me., commencing Thursday, five oclock, June 24th, and continue over the following Sabbath. Brethren, let us pray that God may greatly bless this meeting.

H. B. Sevey.
E. M. Haggett.

Notice.

Our Annual Grove Meeting, at East Springwater, on the Widow Morris farm, will commence at the school-house on Friday evening, June 25th, and in the grove June 26th, at two o'clock P. M. Let there be a general turn out to this meeting, and all those interested in Springwater and elsewhere, circulate the notice and prepare the grove.

For the Bru., C. F. Sweet.

P. S. Will Bro. John or Frank Morris meet me at Springwater Valley, on the 25th, at noon?

Notice.

The Lord willing, the annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held in connection with the State Campmeeting at New Hartford, Butler Co., the campmeeting to commence June 21st, 1869; the first session of conference to commence as early as the 23d. If ministers and delegates can be present, we should like to commence the 22d. All are cordially invited to attend. Ministers and delegates, please be punctual.

Alonzo Raymond, Clerk of Conf.

Notice.

There will be a meeting in the grove of A. H. Smith, Wolcot, Conn., July 4th. Bro. A. Simpson will preach the word. Come, brethren and sisters, far and near. Let us once more raise our voices in praise of Him we love in this beautiful grove.

For the brethren, G. L. White.

Conference.

Providence permitting, a conference meeting will commence at Brookfield, N. H., Friday, June 18th, at five o'clock, and hold over the following Sunday. Eld. Wm. H. Mitchell and others of the Lord's servants will be present to preach the word. Let us pray that God may greatly bless this meeting.

Mark Stevens.

Special Notice.

In our "Berean's Casket" we are giving some statistics of the state of society and the work of missions and expenditures. I would like to give the statistics of Second Advent home missions in America; either the tents or traveling evangelists I consider mission work. Will the clerks of conferences, missionaries, evangelists, tent managers, etc., send me by letter short summaries of such expenditures for 1868, with cost of tents, etc.? Please do it at once, or it will be too late for my purpose. I have the published report of the American Advent Mission Society, but there is much more to report.

I. C. Wellcome.

Yarmouth, Me.

Nova Scotia Conference.

There will be a general Advent Conference held at Bear River, Nova Scotia, commencing June 26th. A cordial invitation is extended to all the lovers of Jesus and his soon coming, especially to the preaching brethren.

John Moore.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The seventh annual Conference of the Advent Christian Church will be held (Providence not preventing) in Ottawa, commencing on Thursday, June 24th, at half past seven o'clock P. M., and will continue over the following Sunday.

Thos. K. Allen, Secretary.

Notice.

There will be a grove meeting near Mr. Woodbury's school-house, Bow, N. H., June 13th, and continue once in two weeks through the summer season. All are invited to come.

A. Martin.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

NEW MUSIC.

BY GEO. H. LEE.

"Must be a Lover of the Lord," and "Gathered in the Morning."
"The Resurrection Hymn," and "Walk through the Valley."
"'Tis the very same Jesus," and "New Year's Chime."
"The Bleeding Lamb," and "Jesus my Shelter."
"Awake! Awake!" and "The Better Day."
"Over There," and "Hallelujah."
"The General Roll," and "Jesus Comes Again.
"Resting By-and-by."
"All to Christ I owe."
"My Jesus, I love thee."
"Blessed Tidings."
"The Prospect."
"Calvary."
"Who'll stand up for Jesus?"

Price of the above sheets singly, 5 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per 100. Postage 2 cts. for twelve copies.

SONGS FOR THE CAMP-GROUND.—A sheet containing five pieces of music, and twelve choice hymns, viz.: "The Resurrection Hymn," "Over There," "Awake! Awake!" "The Better Day," "Walk through the Valley," "Battling for the Lord!" "I will sing for Jesus," "Your Mission," "The Heavenly Meeting," "Jesus our Salvation," "The Fountain of Mercy," and "Singing for Jesus."

Price of the above sheets singly, 15 cts.; 10 for $1.00.

For sale at the Crisis Office. Ag't.

For the World's Crisis.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY!"

Behold, I come quickly,
And bring my reward;
Such is the announcement
Of Jesus our Lord,
To those who are nearing
The end of earth's strife,
And love his appearing Far better than life.

"Behold, I come quickly!"
How cheering the sound;
Deep, deep in my bosom
Its echoes are found.
His presence is gracious,
His mercy is sure,
His promise is precious
To all who endure.

"Behold, I come quickly!"
The day is far spent,
Of sinful backslidings
It's time to repent;
Forsaking the errors
That darken our path,
Escaping the terrors
Of infinite wrath.

"Behold, I come quickly!"
The truth is sublime;
Soon, soon will be ended
The changes of time;
Nor shall we be roaming
In weariness then;
His kingdom is coming,
Amen, and amen.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM BRO. J. B. WADSWORTH.

As I promised in my last letter to write again as soon as my health would permit, I hasten to do so, feeling very grateful to my heavenly Father for the recovery of health, and for kind friends who have remembered me in my labor and afflictions. I shall ever keep before me, while journeying on this sin-cursed earth, my dear brethren and sisters at the North, who have not only cared for me, but whose hands are wide open as their hearts to aid the proclamation of Jesus' soon coming to a people whose hearts have been smitten with much privation and care for the last eight years. I am positive there are many at the North who deeply sympathize with the unfortunate at the South. Unfortunate did I say? Ah! the Lord knoweth how to prepare a people for his kingdom and glory. He knows exactly what is best for us to make us partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light. Every occurrence is wisely adjusted by infinite love. My own heart has been lacerated from the loss of all earthly possessions, yet I feel to rejoice that my misfortunes have been the cause of leading me to sorrow not with that sorrow that I had at first, which "worketh unto death," but with that godly sorrow which worketh repentance unto salvation.

Alas! how many murmur at the dealings of God and plunge themselves into worldly sorrow, when it should be godly sorrow. Paul was content to suffer need, but many are not content to dispense with their superfluities. Many grieve not for their sins, but because they no longer have their luxuries; when our Savior says, "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world; if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." Those who mind earthly things are classed with the enemies of Christ.

A tract by H. L. Hastings entitled, "The Contrast between the Law and the Gospel," should be more largely circulated, as there are many laboring under great mistakes respecting the teachings of Moses' law, and that of the gospel which is by grace; but according to the law salvation is by works. See how earnestly St. Paul wished for the salvation of his mistaken brethren. Says he, "My heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved; for I bear them record, that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge; for they being ignorant of God's righteousness," went "about to establish their own righteousness." They tried to set it up and make it stand for their own acceptance, but they failed; for "Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth."

The tracts on the immortality of the soul, and of going to heaven and hell before judgment, are commendable to every lover of the truth. They are highly appreciated by all who desire to investigate the word of God that they may be benefited thereby. I had a minister in New Orleans tell me, a few days after I gave him a tract on "Plain Truths," "The Inheritance of the Saints," their reward at Christ's coming in his kingdom, "I thought but very little of it at first, but before I had read it through, I felt as though I had never preached the gospel, though I have tried to preach it for thirty years." The honesty of this dear servant of Christ filled my heart with joy. What did he do? No sooner than he saw his error he put hsi foot upon it and grasped the truth. Says he, "I embrace the whole advent faith. I love it. It is something I have looked for, and saw it, but was afraid to proclaim it, because I was alone."

I had some joyful seasons with this brother in Christ. He has a church of about two hundred members, besides other [illegible] he has in charge. He has one m[illegible] about five hundred miles from N. O. I gave him a large number of tracts, and I am satisfied he will dispose of them just right. Should any of the brethren go to N. O., call and see him,—Wm. Moody, P. O. Box, 1816.

"Always give up when you know you are wrong;
This is the doctrine the Bible doth teach;
He who is right is the only one strong;
All good men and brave will this lesson teach.
Better die than do wrong, come whatever may;
Stand up for the truth till you conquer or fall;
There is strength in the right whatever men say,
And one of these days it shall reign over all."

Yes, truth is precious, but how dreadful and prevalent is the theology of tradition, and the doctrine of men. It does seem strange to me how any rational, intelligent person can receive as truth the teachings of modern theology; namely, that we have an immortal soul, and that at death we go to heaven or hell; when the word of God expressly declares that he only hath immortality. Shall mortal man be more just than God? It also clearly teaches that "the dead know not anything." Eccl. 9: 5. And Peter on the day of Pentecost declared that David had not ascended into the heavens. Acts 2: 34. "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence."—Isa. 38. How many will bring up such passages as Lazarus and the rich man, the souls under the altar, the thief on the cross, and Paul expressing a desire to depart and be with Christ,—to prove that the souls of good men, as soon as they are dislodged from the body, go directly to heaven. I heard a learned D.D., pastor of an aristocratic Orthodox church, say that a sister who had died a few days previous was now praising God in heaven; when John Wesley, and other eminent men on this subject, affirm that "this opinion has not the least foundation in the oracles of God." Christ told his disciples that they were not to come to the place he was going away to prepare for them, till he returned from heaven. So we learn that the kingdom of the saints is to be located, not in heaven alone, but under the whole heaven; that is, on the earth. We now pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is done in heaven." So when this kingdom has come, God's will will be done in it as it is done in heaven. Then, as St. Peter says, the righteous will receive their reward at the revelation of Jesus Christ. Then will Christ have come the second time, without sin unto salvation, to all them who have looked for him. Then will the penitent thief be remembered. And we stand doubtless in close proximity to the great day when all who sleep in Jesus, and we which are alive and do love his appearing, shall be caught up in the air, and enter into those "chambers" prepared for his people, to remain for a little while till His indignation be overpast, and the earth is purified, when the meek will come to their inheritance (Matt. 5: 5), and not before. Then will the tabernacle of God be with men. 1st Thess. 4: 13–18; Rev. 21: 3.

Happy thought! it is a blessed hope; it is an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast; Christ within the veil on high, our High Priest after the order of Melchisedec. Let us be faithful. The day-star will soon arise. Let us keep in mind that we ought to live as pilgrims and strangers on this earth (cursed as it is), but soon to be brought back to its Eden beauty, for the redeemed, the Lord's peculiar people, zealous of good works; and although our trials are many, skeptics and scoffers point at us, and wicked ones use us badly, soon the everlasting kingdom will be set up, "and the kingdom and dominion, and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." O for more wisdom and strength, love, humility, courage, patience, and a spirit of prayer to do good. We need light. Thank God, we have it. What a rich and surpassingly bountiful reward Jesus has promised to those giving "meat in due season" to each one of his household; wealth and weight of glory; dominion and royalty with him. It is all of grace; without him we should fail, but with him we may overcome.

In regard to our paper, I have yet to see the first person, who has read the Crisis, who wishes it discontinued. A brother in Florida, who has taken the Crisis for some time, writes that he had rather fast the day he expects it, than fail of getting it. I often meet with people who are curious to know what pay I get for distributing tracts, and soliciting subscribers for religious papers. I answer, my mission is wholly of the Lord. I was not persuaded by man to take the course I have, neither is it for money I persevere in this cause; but for Jesus and the love of my fellow man, and the hope that awaits the finally faithful at the resurrection of the just. Therefore the pay I get, and the only source from which I expect relief, is from the Lord, who has bountifully supplied me with every thing needful for my spiritual happiness.

The Lord indeed has blessed me with friends who have helped me wonderfully in my mission work, and I should be more grateful to my heavenly Father than I am for loving hearts who have cheered me by the way. Oh, that I could better improve my time in giving more meat to the hungry, and persuade and entreat with sinners to come to Jesus and be insured for eternal life. I think it is the duty of every christian to try and influence at least one to come to Jesus and be saved. By so doing, the church that has but fifty members may soon have a hundred, increase and branch off; instead of decreasing, and swaying many to follow in their pernicious course. How much good there may be done by lending papers, which probably will induce them to subscribe, and finally be the means of securing them safely beyond this world's commotion, when all things shall be shaken by the mighty hand of Him who does all things well. Oh, let us as christians exert ourselves to more diligence, till the Master bids us retire from our labors. The time is short. He who promised to come will soon come, for the signs are thickening around us, and Satan is busy through his agents sliming many over with unbelief and doubts. Soon the war-cry will be heard, and Jesus be seen coming in the clouds of heaven to punish the ungodly and reward those who love his appearing. The tangled skein of our country will be loosened then. The wheat and tares will no longer exist together, but each go to their place of reward. Let us praise the Lord while we live, and praise him forever. Yours in hope, J. B. Wadsworth.

THE PAPACY.

Bro. Grant:—It appears to me that no unfulfilled prophecy is of so interesting a nature as that connected with the Papacy, which must be met and harmonized with the Scriptures in order to have an intelligent faith in the coming kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. That the papal power is to continue to the end seems clear, from the fact that Paul thus speaks of him in 2 Thess. 2: 8; "Whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." See Dan 7: 9–11. We need not wait to see Rome destroyed before we get ready to meet the Lord. The Eastern Question, so-called by politicians, or the overthrow of the Mohammedan Antichrist, which must take place before the coming of Jesus Christ needs to be understood and worked into the machinery of our faith, before we can comprehend the magnitude of the nearness of the last great event which the world is to witness.

There seems to be a holding on by the four angels, that the servants of God may be made ready and sealed. The western powers of Europe are in conference to devise means to cure the sick man, as Turkey is called; or, in other words, to secure the integrity of the Ottoman empire. That some political element or formidable power must drive the infidels out of Jerusalem is plain from Daniel's prophecy. Dan. 11: 40. Also 12: 1–3. As to the Pope of Rome, France and Austria are pledged to sustain him, and no earthly power can entirely destroy him; and while they steady him in the Vatican, Russia may, like the whirlwind, surge over the "pleasant land", and plant her eagles on the turrets of the mosques of the city whose name shall be a praise in all the earth.

What mighty events are just before us, and yet we are half asleep. O for a power to shake off this sleeping lethargy! Soon the elements will melt; soon eternal scenes will open to our view; and shall we be ready to hail him with joy, who is called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace? May it be our lot when he shall come in the triple glory of heaven, when the forked lightnings shall play at his feet, to hear him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." A DECEMBER NIGHT.

Napoleon's Coup d'Etat—How an Empire was Stolen. Translated from Eugene Friot's "Paris in December, 1851."

The conspirators had resolved to commit the coup d'etat on the 2d of December, the anniversary of the battle of Austerlitz. On the evening before there had been the usual reception at the Elysee, Louis Napoleon's residence; but when the guests took their leave at eleven, four of them, Morny, St. Arnand, Maupas, and Mocquart, Napoleon's confidants, remained with him. The whole plot was once more discussed, and all necessary arrangements were completed. The generals of the army of Paris had all been bribed and won; the commander of the national guard of Paris, another member of the conspiracy had pledged himself to see to it that the long roll should not be beaten, and that no national guards men should appear in their uniforms in the streets. But in order that the plot might become successful, three steps had to be carried into execution without their being discovered by the people in the capital. To occupy the palace of the national assembly, to arrest the most influential generals and representatives of the hostile parties, and get printed at the national printing office the decrees and proclamations by which Paris was to be surprised at the break of day on the following morning—such were three tasks of this momentous night, of the first to the second of December, 1851, in which Louis Napoleon made his first steps toward the imperial throne.

One of the most difficult measures was the occupation of the palace of the national assembly. Colonel Espinasse, who commanded the forty-second regiment of the line, took this task upon himself. A battalion of his regiment had been ordered to mount guard at the building of the national assembly on the 1st of December. The commander of this battalion was not initiated into the plot; he received his instructions, as usual, from Lieutenant Colonel Niol. Toward midnight General Lefto, who guarded the palace together with Lieutenant Colonel Niol, withdrew to his rooms, not, however, without having previously satisfied himself, as he had been in the habit of doing, for some time past, that the posts and sentinels had been placed at the points designated in his former orders.

At two o'clock, P. M. the commander of the battalion on making his rounds, noticed that certain walking to and fro was going on. The captain, who was acting as first adjutant, had been called out of the palace by Colonel Espinasse seemingly without a plausible reason. The commander of the battalion became uneasy and tried to reach the commander-in-chief; but he was unable to find his rooms. When additional symptoms had alarmed him again toward five o'clock in the morning, he undertook again to find Lieutenant Colonel Niol; he succeeded in reaching him and informed him of the facts which had filled him with apprehensions. The Lieutenant Colonel rose in the utmost hurry. But it was too late. The captain, who was acting as first adjutant, had opened to Colonel Espinasse the door leading to the Rue de l'Universite; and Espinasse had already penetrated into the palace with the two remaining battalions of his regiment.

The arrest of General Changarnier, who was feared more than any other general on account of the attachment of the army to him, and also owing to his well-known intrepidity, was considered the most important of all. Police Commissioner Lerat, and Baudinet, captain of the republican guard, were ordered to effect his apprehension. Both of them were audacious, reckless fellows—the very men capable of carrying such an undertaking into effect. They had taken with them fifteen picked policemen and forty soldiers of the republican guard, Gen. Changarnier had been on his guard for a long time, but he now no longer entertained any suspicion. The confidential communications of Carlier, the ex-prefect of police, it is said, had convinced him that the coup d' etat had been indefinitely postponed.

Cimmissioner Lerat appeared a few minutes after six o'clock at the door of the general's residence. The porter refused to open it. While one of the policemen was parleying with him, the commissioner and his men forced their way into the house by the way of a grocery store occupying part of the ground floor. The porter had alarmed the house, but the policemen were already on the stairway. At the landing on the first floor they fell in with the general's servant, who held a key in his hand. They snatched the key from him; it was the key to Changarnier's apartments. The commissioner opens the door; the general appears barefoot and in his shirt, with a pistol in his hand; they pounce upon him and disarm him. A few moments afterward he had been dragged into a carriage, and was taken to Mazas, with an escort of mounted republican guards.

The task to arrest the illustrious General Bedeau, one of the most generous and honest men, and one of the most talented officers that ever graced the French army—this odious task had been intrusted to Police Commissioner Hubault, Jr. He rang the bell. The general's footman, who opened the door, believed to recognize M. Valette, the secretary of the president of the national assembly, and went toward Bedeau's bed-room, in order to announce M. Valette. The commissioner followed in hot haste on his heels, with five or six policemen, penetrated up to the bedside of the general, who had hardly been aroused from his sleep, and shouted to him:

"I am a police commissioner, and come to arrest you."

"I doubt that; you are probably not aware that I am a representative of the people; the constitution protects me; you cannot arrest me; by so doing you would commit a crime."

"I know who you are; but I have an order to arrest you, and I do not know but you may have been caught in the act of committing some crime."

"Yes, in the crime of sleeping; but pray give me your name."

"I am Police Commissioner Hubault."

Hubault then read the order to arrest the general; it was signed by M. de Maupas. When General Bedeau heard what it stated about concealed arms, etc., he invited Hubault to seal his papers. The commissioner refused to do so, and called upon the general to rise, and not to offer any resistance, adding the words, "I have a sufficient force with me."

"Had I intended to offer any resistance," replied General Bedeau, "I know how to risk my life, and you would have long since lost yours. Tell this man to withdraw, and I will dress myself."

The general dressed himself with a slowness which, to use the words of the notorious Granier de Cassagnac, "almost drove the policeman to despair." He wanted to gain time; he wanted to let daylight overtake them. The rumor of his arrest was to spread in his quarter; he then hoped to be rescued by the people.

When he was dressed at last, he leaned against the mantlepiece, and said to the commissioner with respect, tranquilly:

"I informed you of my character of representative of the people, which protects me from being arrested; I have tried to explain to you the nature of the crime which you are committing; you may now consummate it; call in your men; I shall not stir until I am dragged away by main force!"

Hubault, Jr., called in his men, and ordered them to seize the general.

"Now, I want to see," said General Bedeau to them, "if you will dare to drag General Bedeau, the vice president of the national assembly, like a criminal away from here."

The policeman hesitated a moment. Hubault, Jr., however, set the example to them; he seized the general by the collar; the policemen now rushed upon the vice president of the national assembly, and dragged him, despite his resistance, to the carriage which was waiting at the door. General Bedeau shouted at the top of his voice:

"Treason! treason! I am the vice president of the national assembly!"

Already the passers-by formed in groups; citizens came rushing up to render assistance to the general, when suddenly a cloud of policemen, sword in hand, burst from the Rue de Bac, and dispersed the groups. The carriage into which the general had been hustled, drove off at the full gallop. It was escorted by mounted policemen.

Police Commissioner Courtille had been instructed to arrest Colonel Charras. The door of the colonel's apartments was forced open. No sooner had Commissioner Courtille entered the bedroom, than he rushed towards a double-barreled pistol lying on a night table. Colonel Charras reassured him by saying: "It is not loaded; he no longer believed in the coup d'etat; it is fortunate for you that you did not come a few days earlier, I should have shot you through the head."

Together with the sixteen representatives, the policemen took to Mazas from sixty to seventy private citizens, who, owing to their well-known republican principles and their intrepidity, it was feared, would have headed the people at the barricades.

All these measures had been quietly executed when Paris awoke on the 2d of December. Among the proclamations on the walls was one which greatly lessened the indignation of the people at the coup d'etat. It announced the restoration of universal suffrage. When the news of the arrests that had been effected spread, only the names of Thiers, Changarmer, Lamoriciere,, and Cavaignac, all of whom the people regarded as their enemies, were mentioned among those who had been conveyed to Mazas. It was not until a much later hour that the people of the suburbs learned that the devoted republicans, too, were in prison. The resistance, which was then offered, lacked a head, and even a little elan. The coup d'etat had taken everybody by surprise; that accounts for its success. It was a conspiracy which was known to exist, but which everybody supposed had postponed action for a distant day. Any betrayal of the conspiracy would have been sufficient to thwart them and subject them to the ignominious punishment. They knew it, too; for nearly all of them trembled as the assassination of liberty was taking place. Morny alone, the bravest of them all, preserved a certain degree of composure. Napoleon, Maupas, Moquart, and Persigny, awaited with pale cheeks and trembling limbs the developments of the coup d'etat. With the scaffold staring them in the face in case the plot should have miscarried, every obstacle that rose in the path of their schemes, struck terror into their souls. Dr. Vernon has left in his Memoirs d'un Bourgeois de Paris a priceless record of the singular frame of mind in which M. de Maupas found himself during the third and fourth of December. By and by we will get reliable accounts of the bearing of the other conspirators, and, we trust, of the very words which they uttered under those critical circumstances. Those accounts should detail what occurred at the Elysee, hour by hour, in those momentous days. The truth can be concealed for a time, to be sure; but it is certain to prevail in the long run; and then we will know, item by item, word by word, how the great crime was accomplished.—Com.

SECTARIANISM.

A very apt writer on the subject of sectarianism once said,—"I learned long ago that it is not with men we are at war, but with doctrines and sentiments. I do not therefore see any reason why we should act like the sons of Ishmael toward each other." A man embraces a false sentiment—what then? Is he therefore a hypocrite, a scoundrel, or a liar? Who of us do not hold some sentiments which may be wrong? Shall we therefore all fall on each other with words and acts of cruelty? What little Pope amongst us will start up and say, "I am right—you are all wrong"? Is not every man entitled to respect, love, kindness, and consideration? Will it reform any man to look at him with a countenance fraught with wrath and thunder? But the man is in a fatal error—what then? What will save him from his error? Will it make him see his error and our truth by appearing toward him unkind, vinegar-faced, and cloudy? Will turning him out of doors by treating him with such cold contempt that he cannot remain in our company, draw him any nearer to the truth and to Christ? This was not the policy of the Gallilean. The enemies of Christ said before him, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." Hear the reply of the Son of God to this charge: "They that are whole need no physician; but they that are sick."

One of the primary laws of reformation, both in doctrine and in practice, is association. Jesus came down from heaven that he might associate with men and reform them. It does not make us sinners to talk with, walk with, eat with, worship with, sinners, of necessity. It does not make them saints to let them see us all shun them, and treat them with contempt. When will men learn that bigotry, sectarianism, coldness, contempt, stiffness, and reserve, are not attractive elements? When will men learn that they cannot scold, drive, frighten, or repulse human beings into truth? When shall we learn, if men are brought into truth at all, it will be done by association, love, plainness, frankness, kindness and argument?

Select a family of eight or ten members: one of the family embraces a fatal sentiment—fatal to the interests of the whole—what is to be done? When the hour of worship arrives, shall we, with cold contempt, show him he is unwelcome in the worshiping circle? Will that make him love our truth and our spirit more? Shall we refuse to walk with him to the place of true worship on Sunday, because he sometimes goes to a place of false worship? Will that make him love true or false worship more? Shall we treat him with haughty and scornful reserve when he wishes to take part in the worship? Will that incline him to go with us? Shall we not rather help him in all he does attempt right? Shall we not rather say "Amen!" when he does say the truth? And when we do say "Nay! Nay!" say it like christians, and not like savages.

But I know well the sentiments of the community on these points. Here is the creed of the sectarian community: "Go with us, or we go against you." "Help build my church, or I want nothing to do with you." "Be somebody, or nobody." This creed is not universal—there are many honorable exceptions to it. May we not hope the exceptions will multiply?

THE LONELY CHRISTIAN.

Air.—Little Barefoot.

In the cold world sadly sighing,
All around dark, dismal, drear,
See that humble, lonely christian,
None who love her Savior near.
Many souls who worship mammon,
Many who for pleasure seek,
Pass her humble, pilgrim dwelling,
Pausing ne'er kind words to speak.
Father, please to give her comfort,
Let thy sweet peace fill her heart,
For she's sad, heart-sick and lonely,
Oft her tears in sorrow start.

Chorus.—While the world is full of plenty,
Her frail cottage, old and poor,
Gives her scarcely any shelter,
Cold, grim want she must endure.

Once she had a dear companion,
With whom fellowship was sweet,
Oft she knelt in prayer beside him,
Mercy's benison to greet.
Now he sleeps; the cold earth's round him,
And she's desolate and lone,
Singing with a sweet, sad tone—
"Father, please to give thy Spirit;
Help my way-worn pilgrim feet,
For I want at Jesus' coming
With my loved and lost to meet."

Now her health and strength are failing,
And her eyes with tears oft fill,
Yet she cries, "Oh, heavenly Father,
I will suffer all thy will.
I may be passed by unheeded,
I may dwell here all alone,
Yet I'll be a pilgrim christian,
Little, friendless, and unknown.
Father, please do not forsake me
While I'm widowed and distressed,
Though I am so sad and lonely,
Give me soon my promised rest."

When the saints at last are gathered
Out of every clime and land,
From the weariness of earth-life
Gathered by the angel band;
When the toil-worn and dejected,
Who have borne life's burdens sore,
Sing among the crowned and bloodshed,
Ne'er to be afflicted more;
Father, then will thy lone children,
Those who're scattered far and wide,
All the widowed, orphaned, homeless,
In thy mansions blessed abide.

Chorus.—In that land all will be happy,
None be lone, or sick, or poor,
Joy, and peace, and life, and beauty,
Will from age to age endure.

— Opportunity is the flower of time, and as the stalk may remain when the flower is cut down, so time may remain with us when opportunity is gone.

— As a flame touches a flame, and combines into splendor and glory, so is the spirit of man united unto Christ by the spirit of God.

— There is no truth more important and few less thought of than this: the more we forsake simplicity in any thing the more we multiply the means of corruption and error.

— Christ is almighty, and therefore perfectly able to restore lapsed powers, root up inveterate habits, and implant heavenly tempers.

— Enjoy the blessings of this day if God sends them; and the evils bear patiently and sweetly. For this day only is ours; we are dead to yesterday, and we are not born to-morow.

— The great globe itself is not more interlaced with golden veins, and filled with precious things, than the field of revelation, the storehouse of the unsearchable riches of Christ.

— He that loves the world and the things that are in the world, has not the love of the Father abiding in him; and he who does not deny himself and take up his cross daily, cannot be Christ's disciple.

— Never do a good action from the expectation of gratitude. If gratitude follow, so much the better; you are so much into pocket; but gratitude or not, always do the good action when the opportunity presents itself.

— "Gentlemen," in the true sense, are of the Almighty's making, and his alone. The pure ore is very scarce. The run of gentlemen of all ranks are merely plated or washed; give them a rub; put them into a novel situation, into a passion, or any other trying circumstance, and the copper beneath quickly shows itself.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite for a minister to beg earnestly for what is called a charitable institution, and denounce, in terms not very gentle, those who do not choose to give, when it is evident to all, that his sole object in preaching charitable sermons is an ample support for himself and family.

It is not polite for agents to solicit charity for professedly benevolent objects, when it is known to the community at large, that three-quarters of all monies contributed to the societies they represent go to the support of the agents themselves.

It is not polite for a person to assume the cloak of religion, whereby he may be more successful in business.

It is not polite to insist that your friend shall hear your manuscript read, or that you should tire his patience out in repeating a large portion of your recent poem or essay.

It is not polite to be uncivil to the most humble or degraded. The girl who works in the kitchen, or the man who carries a hod, may possess virtues which are rarely found in many who meet in our fashionable circles.

It is not polite to vacate your pew at church because a contribution is to be taken up. If you do not like the object, you need not give.

It is not polite, when a stranger comes to reside in your neighborhood, to make inquiries that will cast suspicions on his character. If his conduct is upright, it is enough; you should treat him as a neighbor and a citizen.

It is not polite for a member of a church or a benevolent association to be offended because his views are not coincided in by his associates, and threaten to leave their society.

It is not polite to pray to God in your families and in the conference-rooms; and, during the business hours of the day, to prey upon your neighbors' characters, or deceive and wrong those with whom you have dealings.

It is not polite after you have done a favor for a neighbor, to be constantly reminding him of it.

It is not polite for an editor to speak unfavorably of a work, because the publisher does not choose to advertise in his journal.

It is not polite to listen where persons are in private conversation.

It is not polite to ask many questions of those with whom you are not on very intimate terms.

It is not polite to be indifferent or taciturn, without any apparent cause, to those with whom you have long been intimate.

It is not polite to say to another, "I am happy to see you," when in your heart you feel perfectly indifferent.

It is not polite to urge an acquaintance to stop longer with you, when you would rather have him leave.

It is not polite to mimic those who are in any way defective by nature.

It is not polite, in passing a narrow walk, for a gentleman to remain, and crowd the lady off.

It is not polite for ladies to spread out in churches, omnibuses, or cars, when there are others waiting for seats.

WORLDLINESS.

Few realize the danger of God's people at the present time. From every point, Satan is rallying his legions to make war upon the saints; and his greatest success is attained where we are least guarded. . . . . One of our dangers is that of worldliness, which creeps over us when we least suspect it. As we pursue our daily occupations, we become charmed with these affairs, and engrossed in them, and nothing is left for God.

Little by little a love for our employment or of its profits, crowds out the love of God and the cares and responsibilities of life, so necessary to be well borne, are so constantly upon the mind, that we often become cold as an iceberg before we are aware that we are drifting away from the port.

The man of business fancies that he is doing a laudable and praiseworthy work in driving his trade or his other interests; and so he is, if God has the highest place in the heart: but, alas! how many fatally deceive themselves in this. The pleasure derived from mental toil and success in life, is often mistaken for God's approbation. The sprits are light and buoyant from healthful exercise, and Satan steps in, with deceptive charms, and lulls the soul to sleep, while he drives it far away from God. The student, the teacher, the literary man, is peculiarly exposed by reason of the high intellectual enjoyments he experiences, and unless he places a double guard against the enemy, he is led astray or lost.

It was the practice of a very devoted and learned man, to often turn from his studies to the Bible, to see if his love for the word of God was waning in his intense zeal in the acquisition of knowledge. If he found that his love for human learning was at all drawing him from the love of the Bible, he would leave his studies and read the word of God nntil his love for it returned, and he was satisfied that his love for God's word was above that of mere literature and science. His was true wisdom.—Review and Herald.

RELIGION AND WAR.

Some say there is nothing in religion that militates against war, and it has always been a mystery to us how any man could say so in sincerity. If there are any two things diverse one from the other, it seems to us it must be these two. They are entirely opposed to each other; as much so as light and darkness, good and evil. This is no assertion of ours, it is a simple fact. Look and see. Let each one be tried by their fruits. Religion saves men, and war destroys them. Religion elevates and refines men, and war degrades and debases them. Religion purifies and sanctifies men, and war corrupts and defiles them.

Let us listen to the language of each.
Religion says——Thou shalt not kill.
War says—Thou shalt kill.
Religion—Blessed are the peace-makers.
War—Blessed are the war-makers.
Religion—Love your enemies.
War—Hate your enemies.
Religion—Forgive men their trespasses.
War—Forgive them not.
Religion—Resist not evil.
War—Resist to the death.
Religion—If a man smite thee on one cheek, turn the other.
War—If a man smite thee on one cheek, knock him down.
Religion—Bless those who curse you.
War—Curse those who curse you.
Religion—Pray for those who despitefully use you.
War—Destroy those who thus use you.
Religion—Overcome evil with good.
War— Overcome evil with evil.

Do they speak the same language? If there is any such matter as one thing being antagonistic to another, do we not find it here? Let us seek for the things that make peace.—Christian Era.

A Fable.—A raven, envying the white plumage of the swan, left his own companions, and dwelt near the haunts of the swan. Daily, hourly, he bathed often in the stream; he flew among the swans, and sought to be friendly with them; he ate of their food. Vain! his black coat remained the same. The nature must be changed.

HOW TO KEEP HOUSES COOL IN HOT WEATHER.

Mr. John Attfield, Professor of Practical Chemistry to the Pharmaceutical Society, contributes the following seasonable directions:—In these hot days a cool apartment is a real luxury, a luxury to be had far oftener than most people suppose possible. The secret consists, not in letting in cool air, for naturally all do that whenever they have the chance, but in keeping out hot air. If the air outside a room or house be cooler than the air inside, let it in by all means; but if it be hotter, carefully keep it out. A staircase window left open during the night will often cool the passages of a house, and the rooms too, if their doors be not shut; but it must be closed at eight or nine in the morning; or, if on the sunny side, at four or five o'clock, and the blind drawn down. The mistake people generally make is to throw open their windows at all hours of the day, no matter whether the atmosphere be cool or scorching. "Let us have some air," they say, and in comes the treacherous breeze, for even hot air is pleasant while it is gently blowing, taking away perspiration, and thereby cooling the skin; but the apartment is made warmer instead of cooler, and as soon as they move out of the draft they find their room to be more uncomfortable than before. Let in cool air, keep out hot; this is the only formula to insure the minimum of discomfort.

Sitting rooms may generally be kept cool during the whole day if the doors be only opened for ingress and egress, and the windows be kept closed and shielded from direct sunshine by a blind. If the atmosphere of a room be impure from any cause, let it be renewed; hot air is less injurious than bad air. If a room be small in comparison with the number of persons engaged in it, free ventilation becomes indispensable.

In a cooking apartment the temperature will probably be higher than outside, hence the free admission even of hot air will be desirable. If persons do not object to sit in a direct draught of air, windows and doors may be opened, a breeze being more refreshing, even though several degrees warmer than still air; but under nearly all other circumstances rooms should be kept closed as much as possible till after sundown, or till the air outside is cooler than that inside.—Courier.

Treatment of Cholera Morbus.—The first thing we should aim to accomplish in the treatment is to remove the offending cause, if possible; to do this it may be well at first to promote the discharges by copious drinking of warm water to assist vomiting till the stomach is emptied; and free injections of warm water to the bowels till they are thoroughly cleansed; after this, sips of very hot water or bits of ice may be taken to arrest vomiting, and small cold injections to the bowels to check the purging. In addition to the above, hot fomentations to the stomach and abdomen, or hot hip baths, as hot as they can be borne, with hot foot baths will generally relieve the pain, and arrest the vomiting and purging; if these measures are thoroughly and vigorously applied, relief will be obtained in from five minutes to half an hour.

No food should be allowed for four or five hours after the attack, and nothing but gruels and light food for three or four days. A similar course, with regard to food, is advisable in all severe attacks of colic of whatever character.—Dr. E. P. Miller.

Yawning.—"Will you, in your answers to correspondents, tell me the cause of, and how I can overcome it, of yawning when reading aloud. The time of day makes no difference, as I am troubled by it at any hour. After reading aloud a short time, I begin to gape incessantly, and sometimes have to stop entirely from this cause. It is not only unpleasant but mortifying, as I am fond of and practice reading a great deal, to others as well as myself. Often at church, lectures, etc., I am annoyed in the same way, and I would be very grateful to learn the cause and remedy if there is any."

Yawning is an instinctive effort of the lungs to secure more air. The cause is insufficient breathing. The remedy is to breathe more. To do this, practice such gymnastic exercises as will expand the chest and strengthen the lungs. Also take plenty of out-door exercise and breathe pure air at all times. Do not overload the stomach. Wear loose dresses.—Herald of Health.

Pure Air in Churches.—Architects, building commitees, trustees, and sextons ought to have some one to remind them perpetually that fresh air is a vital necessity in churches. Better do without almost any thing else. A living gospel ought never to be preached in a dead atmosphere. Give us plenty of pure air, and the preachers will preach better, the brethren will pray better, the people will sing better, and all our meetings will be better attended, and followed by better consequences. Give each one of us our forty cubic inches of fresh air for every inspiration, and for every minute of the service the eighteen pints to which we are each justly entitled, according to the doctors, and we shall complain less of languor, headaches, poor preaching, and dull meetings, and be in less danger of backsliding; for we devoutly believe that fresh air is a means of grace.—Methodist.

MY ETERNAL REFUGE.

Lo, under the shadow of thy far-spreading wing,
Thou God of Jeshurun, I'll hide me in peace;
To my Rock of Salvation by faith I will cling,
Till life's angry tempests forever shall cease.

As the mountains of Zion thy ramparts embrace,
And round thee, Jerusalem, stand in their might,
Even thus shall my God be my strength and my tower,
Henceforth and forever my shield and my light.

Though I wander in sorrow an alien afar,
Or mourn in the wilderness—ways of despair;
Through the night of my weeping shall Israel's bright star
Lead by the "still waters," in fields green and fair.

When above me shall gather the war-clouds of strife,
And round me are surging the billows of wrath;
There my God shall still lead me, my hope and my life,
Till closed be the journey of life's weary path.

In the realms of glory when finished at length,
The toils and the trials of life's pilgrimage,
Jehovah of Israel shall still be my strength,
My peace and rejoicing, where storms never rage.

THE COMING END.

"Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule, and all authority and power. For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. Or, as Macknight renders it, 'When he will deliver up the kingdom to God, even the Father.'—1 Cor. 15: 24-26.

Perhaps no subject is more important in its chronological application than that brought to view in these texts by the apostle; and I will be as brief as possible in giving a few thoughts relative to them.

In the first place, what end is brought to view in the text? We answer, The end of this gospel dispensation. Then the end; or, "then cometh the end." This is at the resurrection of the dead and the coming of the Lord. 1 Cor. 15: 22, 23, reads thus: "As in Adam all die, [go into the grave], even so in Christ shall all be made alive [that is, come out again]; . . . . but every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming." Then the end. When? At Christ's coming. What can be plainer and more positive? The same end is brought to view in Matt. 24: 14,—"And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness to all nations; and then shall the end come." Jesus and the apostle had their eyes on the same event, the same time, the same end. The end of this gospel dispensation. So it looks to me.

Secondly, What is to be done now, at this time, the end? "He will deliver up the kingdom to God, even the Father." I prefer this rendering, as it is more expressive of the true sentiment under consideration. Here is the delivering up of the kingdom, and the time when it is delivered up. A question: Who delivers up the kingdom? Christ. To whom? "To God, even the Father." This seems to be positively affirmed by Inspiration.

Then the Bible affirms that Jesus at his coming delivers up the kingdom to the Father. For what is it delivered up? For destruction; or, in the language of the text, for the Father to put down all rule, and all authority, and power. Thus far all is plain. Jesus at this time says, Father, I have done all I can, while you have given me all power in heaven and on earth to save the lost, rebellious race of Adam. The time has come when forbearance can hold out no longer. Mercy is extinguished. Probation must close. I now deliver up the kingdom, and my great power in heaven and on earth. The Father now takes to himself his great power and reigns. What is the consequence and result of this reign? "And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged;" and reward given. Rev. 11: 17, 18.

An objection: "He has no kingdom to deliver up; and if he delivers up a kingdom, then he has one to deliver up." This is good reasoning and logical. Then let us see. Jesus in his exposition of the parable of the thirteenth of Matthew, forty-first verse, says: "The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them that do iniquity, and cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth."

Here is what Christ calls his kingdom. And this is what he delivers up to the Father when he comes. And here is where the enemies of Jesus Christ are to be found and given over to the Father; when he takes to himself his great power, and reigns till Christ's enemies are punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power. This is to be done in the "great day of the Lord." Not a mixture of mercy in this day; but it is a day of wrath, of vengeance, of utter destruction. This awful day can not be revealed till the Son delivers up the "kingdom to God, even the Father." Then destruction is inevitable. The great day of his wrath is come, when he will put all Christ's enemies under his feet, and will trample them in his fury, fulfilling this text: "Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool."

The text at the head of this article synchronizes with Rev. 11: 15,—"The seventh angel sounded"; that is, finished his sound or sounding. There were days for the voice of the seventh angel, as we read, "In the days of the voice." So when the voice of the angel ceaseth, then great voices in heaven are heard, declaring, "The kingdoms of this world have become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ." Who is our Lord? The Father. So the kingdoms of this world are first to become the kingdom of our Lord; afterwards, of his Christ, when he will reign for ever. Thus the delivering up of the kingdom brings us into the day of the Lord, and the Father reigns during that period.

Then we come to the fulfillment of the text in Luke 1: 32, 33,—"He [Jesus] shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

The day of the Lord is a day of wrath; "for the great day of his wrath is come; and who will be able to stand?"—Rev. 6: 17. Again. "Behold, the day of the Lord cometh, cruel both with wrath and fierce anger, to lay the land desolate; and he shall destroy the sinners out of it."—Isa. 13: 9. This will show the character of the day during this time the Father reigns. The enemies of Jesus Christ cast into the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels; death abolished; and the new earth comes in sight. One like the Son of man comes to the Ancient of days, and there is given him dominion, glory, and a kingdom; that all people, nations and languages should serve him. This dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away. Here Jesus, at the end of the day of the Lord, is put by the Father upon the throne of David, and commences his reign over the house of Jacob in the new earth (Paradise restored), "the better country," "that is, an heavenly." Christ's reign is perpetual. "Of his kingdom there shall be no end."

The glory of God now fills the earth. The righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. The choral song has commenced from ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands, with loud voices, saying, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, honor, and glory, and blessing." "And every creature which is in heaven and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever."

This consummates our "blessed hope"; brings in everlasting righteousness; turns the kosmos back into Eden beauty; peoples it with the saints of the Most High, the house of Jacob, the true Israel; all at home, sweet home, eternally enjoying that rest promised to the people of God.

Those accounted worthy have obtained that world; are like the angels; shall die no more. O! hasten, hasten this longed-for time, and let the poor in this world, rich in faith, go through the gates into the city, and eat of the tree of life in the midst of the paradise of God. So let it speedily be. L. Boutell.

JOY.

"These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." John 15: 11.

These words were spoken by one who spake as never man spake. He was the Son of God. And it will be well for you to take heed to such important truths, that we may receive benefit therefrom. This joy spoken of is the Lord Jesus Christ's joy. "That my joy might remain in you." If the joy of the Lord remains in us, we shall be always joyful. "And that your joy may be full." Not only have a constant joy, but be filled with it. Our every want then will be supplied. "Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name; ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full."—John 16: 24. Here is a special command from the Son of God to us to ask for this blessing. It will be well for us to observe all things whatsoever he has commanded us to do. Matt. 28: 20. "The joy of the Lord is your strength." Neh. 8: 10. When we have this joy, we can say with Caleb and Joshua, We are well able to go up and take the goodly land. "And these things write we unto you, that your joy may be full."—1 John 1: 4. The apostle John considered it very important that his brethren should be filled with joy. "As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing."—2 Cor. 6: 10. Here the apostle Paul speaks of being sorrowful to see the children of men traveling in the broad way to destruction. But at the same time he was joyful in the Lord. "I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation."—2 Cor. 7: 4. We read he was whipped five times with forty stripes save one; thrice he was beaten with rods; and once he was stoned. But notwithstanding all of these perils, he was exceeding joyful.

"Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free Spirit. Then will I teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners shall be converted unto thee."—Ps. 51: 12, 13. It appears by the words of David, that he had backslidden from the joy, because he desired to have it restored to him again. He considered this joy a necessary qualification to fit him as an instrument in the hands of God for the conversion of sinners. "And there was great joy in that city."—Acts 8: 8. Philip was preaching at Samaria, and the people were very joyful under his ministration. After Philip baptized the eunuch, we read that the Spirit of the Lord caught him away, and the eunuch went on his way rejoicing. "And they departed from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name."—Acts 5: 41. They considered it an honor to receive such treatment from their enemies for Christ's sake. Although they were severely beaten, they could rejoice. "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven."—Matt. 5: 11-12.

E. Cotton.

COMING OF CHRIST.

Christopher Columbus, on his memorable voyage across the Atlantic, was pacing the quarter-deck one morning in deep concern. The previous night, his officers and crew, reproaching him with his illusive hopes, had been threatening to abandon the enterprise in despair. "A new new world," he was saying, as he paced the deck that morning. "A new world is yonder!" At length as he gazed upon those untried waters, his practised eye discerned a "sign." Some drift-wood floated past. Like Paley's watch on the desert heath, it was his own certain interpreter. They must be near the mouth of some majestic river by which that drift-wood had been floated down. "Brothers!" exclaimed Columbus, his eye glistening with a calm ecstasy, and his finger pointing to the "sign"—"Brothers! look at that! We shall soon see land." The infirm hearts were bold again; from that hour they were other men.

Is not the church of the living God at this hour on the wide and untried ocean, steering her course to the kingdom—the "New World" of her "faith and hope?" The voyage has been protracted, till the men of feeble faith have begun to lose heart and to faint. But stay, my brother! look at that drift-wood. The signs declare that the glory is not far off.

Some imagine that to look into the future, to examine the signs of the times, is work only for the idle and for the visionary. God's operatives in the world, the great doers, the brave endurers, are men, they say, of sterner stuff. Be it so. . . . Why has God assigned to the "sure word of prophecy" so large a place in his revealed will? Not surely to gratify a prurient curiosity; not to indulge the idle speculatist, but to meet the daily necessities of the pilgrim, the daily wants of the good soldier. . . .

How different is God's real thought concerning this matter. "The revelation," we read, "of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass." And it is added: "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things that are written therein; for the time is at hand." Rev. 1: 3.

Does this not mean that the gracious Lord would have his servants sustained in their conflict by the hope of the good time to come? Does it not mean that whilst they are called to pass through the dark "night," he would have them solaced by the assured prospect of the "day?" Does it mean, that, whilst his eye is on us from the mountain as we are still "toiling in rowing," he would have us to know that ere long he will be at our side on the stormy waters, and will bring us to our quiet haven?

"I will come again," said the Master to his sorrowing brethren before he suffered, "and will receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." He is away now; but the Comforter is with us, to speak to us about our absent King. "He will show you things to come," said Jesus, defining the leading characteristic of the Holy Spirit's office. And why "things to come?" Because the hope of glory is that which animates us now in our struggle—"we are saved"—we are carried victoriously through "by hope." John 14: 3; 16: 13; Rom. 8: 24.

When the disciples on Olivet stood gazing up into heaven, fearing that they had lost their Master, and with him the hope of the coming kingdom, a message came, announcing that they should see him again. Solaced by the hope, they went everywhere, charging the little flock to be of good cheer, for speedily they should have the kingdom; and charging the unsaved to repent, if they would not be self-excluded from this glory which was so near at hand.

No one who ponders the Acts and the Epistles and Revelation, can doubt that the attitude in which the Lord would have his church stand is that of waiting, watching, longing for his return. Take only two passages as a specimen. The first is Rev. 22: 20. The last words which Jesus uttered, or ever shall utter till he come again, are these: "Surely I come quickly." The certainty of his return, and its possible nearness, are the two elements of strong consolation. And why should the troubled church deprive herself of either element of her consolation? John, the exile, could not do without either, and so his instantaneous, happy response was—"Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

The second passage is Titus 2: 11, 14. What conceivable language could assign to the hope of our Lord's appearing a place more momentous in the dynamics of the christian life? In verse twelve we have the grand practical end which God's gospel of grace was designed to accomplish—"Teaching us, that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world." And in verses twelve and fourteen, we have the motive power which is to stimulate the heart in aiming at this end—"Looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works." Who has not felt that in the measure in which this hope occupied the heart, the life has been transformed, the whole soul has been lifted into heavenliness? The hope may occupy a place in our creed, and the life remain unaffected; but to love the appearing is the certain source of an earnest, self-denying, happy, working life.—Rutland Independent.

They shall be your bondmen forever; but over your brethren of the children of Israel, ye shall not rule with rigor."—Lev. 25: 45, 46. "I will sell your sons and daughters into the hands of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people afar off; for the Lord hath spoken it."—Joel 3: 8.

Slavery and oppression forbidden.—"Undo the heavy burdens. . . . . Let the oppressed go free . . . . break every yoke."—Isa. 58: 6. "Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, nor oppress him."—Ex. 22: 27. "He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death."—Ex. 21: 16. "Neither be ye called masters."—Matt. 23: 10.

We now come to the 30th problem of the Infidel's Arithmetic, for the work we are reviewing is the text-book of nearly every skeptic in the land. In this instance God is charged with ordaining slavery and oppression. Gen. 9: 25 is simply a prophecy of what would come to pass in the future; it is not a decree of what shall be. Lev. 25: 45. 46 is so well explained by the following note from Dr. Cheever that we insert it entire. He says:

"Let us now read along with this, the passage in Lev. 25: 46, relating to the heathen servant or servants coming from the heathen nations into Judea for employment, and engaged under the same jubilee-contract,* the forever-contract, as in the preceding instance of the Hebrew servant so engaged. It reads thus: 'Ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit a possession; ye shall serve yourselves with them forever.' As we have said, the phraseology is almost exactly the same in the last clause, defining the extent of the contract with the heathen servant, as in the clause in Ex. 21: 6, which defined the extent of the contract with the Hebrew servant; the word forever being used in both cases, and used with the same meaning, that is, of a contract extending till the jubilee. The word bondman or bondmen, is not used in either passage, though our translators have chosen to put it in the text, in the passage applying to the heathen, but without the slightest authority or reason for so doing. Instead of saying they shall be your bondmen forever, the passage simply says, just as concerning the Hebrew servant in Exodus, 'they shall serve you forver;' that is, they shall be your servants for the longest period admitted by your laws for any service or contract, even till the jubilee.—And as engaged by such contract, and paid on such terms, ye do take them and may take them as an inheritance for your children after you, for any part of the term of service unexpired, when you the head of the family are taken away from your household. Then these servants by you engaged and paid for an apprenticeship, till the jubilee, shall be for your children to inherit as a possession—the possession of their time and service, which by your contract with them as rightfully belong to your children as to you, until the stipulated period comes to an end. That is the jubilee contract, the forever-contract. The passage in Ex. 21: 6 is absolute demonstration in regard to this matter.

And thus are all the refuges of lies swept away, by which the advocates of slavery (asserting that the heathen were slaves to the Hebrews, or could be held as such), endeavor to make men believe that slavery is sanctioned by the law of God." See "God against Slavery," pages 156-7.

Joel 3: 8 is a prophecy of God's judgments upon the enemies of his people: "And they have cast lots for my people, and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink. Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Trye and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestine, will ye render me a recompense, and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompense upon your own head? Because ye have taken my silver, and my gold, and have carried into your temples my goodly and pleasant things. The children also of Judah, and the children of Jerusalem, ye have sold unto the Grecians that ye might remove them far from their border. Behold I will raise them out of the place whither ye have sold them, and will return your recompense upon your own head. And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people far off, for the Lord hath spoken it."

It was the recompense returned upon their own heads; because they had sold the children of Judah into bondage, they must undergo the same punishment they had put upon God's people. Every candid reader will acknowledge the justice of this penalty.

32. Improvidence enjoined.—"Consider the lillies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin. . . . . If God so clothe the grass of the field . . . . shall he not much more clothe you? . . . . Therefore, take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be clothed? . . . . Take no thought for the morrow"—Matt. 6: 28, 31, 34. "Give to every man that asketh of thee, and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again. . . . And lend, hoping for nothing again, and your reward shall be great"—Luke 6: 30, 35. "Sell that ye have and give alms."—Luke 12: 3.

Improvidence condemned.—"But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." 1 Tim. 5: 8. "A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children."—Prov. 13: 22.

The two texts which seem to oppose each other in the above, are Matt. 6: 31, 34, and 1 Tim. 5: 8. McKnight's translation from the original Greek, obviates the difficulty. "Therefore, say not anxiously . . . what shall we eat, etc. . . . Be not then anxious about the morrow . . . sufficient for the day is its own trouble." Matthew and Luke teach us to trust in Him who feedeth the ravens, while Timothy and Proverbs urge us not to become indolent, for we must "work while the day lasts." Surely there is no contradiction here. While we are instructed to be industrious, and economical in the expenditure of our means, we are to avoid anxiety in reference to the future supply of our wants, for if we seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, all these things shall be added unto us.

JOYS TO COME.

Blessed Jesus, loving Savior,
Thou art coming soon to reign,
Let me now secure thy favor,
And the life eternal gain.

With the ransomed all immortal
May I stand on that blest shore,
Entering with them through the portal
Of the King's wide open door;

There to view in endless measure
All that God has laid in store,
Of his richest grace and pleasure,
For his saints forevermore.

CHURCH.

There are a great many words in our language that are spoken in their secondary sense more often than in their primary, so much so that people frequently think the secondary sense is the primary and proper one.

This is the case with the word "church." Its primary and first meaning is the house of worship, and not the congregation which gathers there. (See Webster.) Its secondary sense is that of a congregation, and it is thus used, I think, in every instance in the Scriptures. But in this secondary sense of the word there is a variety of applications; as, for instance, to signify, first, the whole body of believers that are upon the earth; second, a body of believers in any one city or town; third, a congregation gathered together by themselves; fourth, a household of worshipers.

In the first use of the word we find there is no plural number. The whole company of true believers upon the earth, whether waking or sleeping, constitutes the "one body" of Christ. Of this there can be no division, consequently no churches in the plural number in any sense. This is the "church of the first-born," and includes every true believer. It is this against which "the gates of hades shall not prevail."

Now to limit the word church to this one meaning, as some do, and allow it no other, is unscriptural and works mischief among the people of God. Upon this one idea the advocates of disorganization harp continually. They claim the "church" is one body, and to organize churches is to divide the body; and this is said to be the work of the devil, and so on to the end of the chapter of anathemas we have heard so often.

The second scriptural use of the word church admits of a plural, as do all other uses of it except the one just mentioned. In this sense Paul speaks of the "churches of Judea," "churches of Galatia," etc. These signify assemblies of worshipers in any place gathered to worship God. The whole body of believers in a city or town constituted the church of that place, although there might be many places in the town for their assemblage. Circumstances and convenience would of course affect their action in forming various assemblages, yet the whole number of them was the church in that place.

The third use of the word signifies an assembly by itself alone. In this sense the original Greek word for church, which is ekkleesia is found translated "assembly" in Acts 19: 32, 39, 41. No one will knowingly dispute that this is a proper use of the word ekkleesia; yet here it does not refer to the body of Christ at all, but to an assembly of persons for business. So we see then a church may be an assembly of unbelievers. Now, where are your unionists who wish to unite all the churches? I have seen some professedly christian churches that exhibited the same spirit of the "church" or "assembly" that persecuted Paul and cried out, "Great is Diana." The use of the word church to signify an assembly of worshipers may be found in 1 Cor. 11: 18; also throughout the fourteenth chapter of the same epistle, and in other similar connections where a gathering together is inferred.

The fourth use of the word church as applied to a household of believers may be found in Rom. 16: 5, Col. 4; 15, and elsewhere. Here a household church is mentioned, such as should be in every family; that is, a daily worshiping assembly for prayer and praise around the family altar.

With all these facts in view, what do men mean when they cry for the unity of the church? Do they mean there is but one great body of the elect? If so, no one ever disputed it, and their breath is spent in vain. Paul says there is but "one body," and all sects are willing to endorse it. They may differ in their views of what constitutes the body, but "the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his. And let every one that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity."—2 Tim. 2: 19. Those constituting the "one body" have the "one Spirit." Christ is not divided, and consequently there are not two bodies; much less are there more than two.

But do unionists cry out against different organized assemblages? Where, then, shall we go? Back to Babylon? But God has said, "Come out of her, my people." Perhaps the unionists do not ask us to go back as far as Rome. Well, then, where shall we stop? At Germany with the Lutherans, or England with the Episcopalians, or where? No, we are told, nor with any other denomination. Then we must not join with others nor make a people by ourselves. The inevitable result of this kind of "unionism" is, that we must do nothing ourselves, and find fault with everything everybody else does. Well, you may go by yourselves, if you must, but do not be called by any other name than "Christian." And what virtue would there be in that? There are two or three denominations now in existance who call themselves "Christian Churches," but it does not destroy sectarianism among them. Besides, a "Christian Church" is no more a scriptural appellation than "Advent Christian Church," or any other name unionists are so contentious about.

Driven out from societies already established, not because there are not christians in them but because the few who rule have not the spirit of Jesus, if a new church or assembly of worshipers is convened and organized, it is not because the body of Christ is divided, but under the necessity that exists, to give portions of it a chance to work, and so to live. The Adventists as a people are such a body, and must form new congregations, or neglect the great truths God has given to their trust.

"But do not call them Advent meetings. Call them Christian meetings." But where is the authority for the latter name any more than the former? The term Christian is scripturally applied three times to individuals, but never once to congregations in all the Bible. So there is no scriptural ground for the change of the name, and if any one is so fearful of prejudice as to discard the name of Adventist, let him discard the doctrine too, or men will call him thus, as the best way to designate him.

Again, we are told the "Church of God" is a scriptural name, and we should have no other. But I with several others was turned out of a conference of the "Church of God" once. What shall we do? Form another "Church of God."?

I love spiritual union. The church with whom I associate has this motto, "Christian character the only test of fellowship." This is the true principle of union. And the more churches or congregations based on this foundation the better. This will cover all children of God. Call the congregation by what name you please, only so that you put on "charity, which is the bond of perfectness." This idea that the term church cannot be applied to any such congregation is false. The idea that there "can be no such thing in a community as a church which does not include all believers," is also false.

Well, let us love God, love one another, and follow the things which make peace.

I BELIEVE.

Believe what? That Jesus Christ is the Savior of all men. What from? From the Adamic death. How will he save them? By a literal resurrection, "both of the just and of the unjust." "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Forever free from all the effects of the first Adam's sin. This is the common salvation. Jude 1: 3.

But as Paul speaks of an "order" in the resurrection, so he makes mention of a special salvation. The righteous, who have sought and found forgiveness of the sins which themselves have committed, "shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." All will say, Amen. But what is that life which the unjust receive at their resurrection? I answer: the same that was lost in Adam. Just such as he possessed after the Lord drove him from the garden. He lived to the age of nine hundred and thirty years, and then he died. Query: If he had no life in any sense, how could he die, or lose his life?

I believe that the wicked will be raised from death, conscious, capable of receiving judgment, capable of weeping and gnashing their teeth, capable of experiencing the "second death."

May the Lord enable us all to escape the fearful doom of the wicked. N. Wheeler.

CORN LOGIC.

"If rats or mice eat the chit from corn, and you plant the chitless corn, how can you ever get it up after that, unless you dig it up, or the hens scratch it up?" So says one, How can you get the resurrection of a man who dies without the Spirit of God? This I call corn logic. When has God ever said that the possession of his Spirit is to a future life what the chit of corn is to its coming up? Some one will say, In Rom. 8: 11; but I purpose to show in another article that to so apply Rom. 8: 11 is to pervert that scripture entirely.

But if this corn logic is reliable argument for the non-revival of the wicked dead, let us see how much else may as easily be proved. Suppose you plant corn with the chit in, how can you get the same corn up again unless you dig it up? You get a sprout from it that may produce other corn, but not the same kernel. Well, then, why not deny in toto the resurrection of the same body that dies, whether it be good or bad, since you never get up the same kernel of corn that you plant?

Again. If you plant a kernel of corn with a perfect chit, will it not bring forth a blade producing many other kernels upon ripe ears? Why not believe that if a man dies in possession of the Spirit of God, he will multiply in the resurrection and produce many immortal beings? Would not this be corn logic?

Again. In order that a kernel of corn sprout, it must have a living germ in it after it is planted. Why then not believe that the righteous at least have a living germ in the grave, or that while dead and all corrupted they still retain the Spirit of God in their graves; for if the righteous have not the Spirit of God in their graves, they are without any chit; and if without a chit while dead, how can they live again, since corn without a chit cannot come?

Again. When the chit is once eaten or cut from corn, can you put it in again so as to make it grow? Certainly not. Well, then, did not all men lose the life-chit by Adamic sin? Certainly. Since man is like corn, and a corn-chit once lost can never effectually be put back, why not abandon all hope of a future life for any body?

But, says one, what is impossible in nature may be possible by interposition of divine power. Very true, but this destroys all our corn logic; for though impossible in the nature of things to get life in chitless corn, yet by divine power the thing may be, and by divine promise the chitless dead shall live again; for "the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." So that "all they that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth," in spite of corn logic, chit or no chit. H. F. C.

"BETTER GET A LITTLE MORE RELIGION."

I was planting a garden with a brother in Christ a few days since, which we had taken on shares, when something was said about dividing the prospective crop. Said he,

"If we cannot divide it without quarreling, I think we had better get a little more religion."

I felt I needed more in any case, and the thought came to me, If all who profess to be christians would "get more religion," how much better a state of things would prevail; how many heavy burdens and grievous to be borne it would unbind; how many causes of difference be removed; how many sources of darkness illuminated; how many churches rebuilt; how many families reunited; how many pastors and people reconciled; how much more contented would people be with their surroundings temporally; how much less so with their attainments spiritually. No grace is required in finding fault, and next to being mistaken it is the easiest thing in the world. "More religion" would cure that tendency of mind in a little while.

It is fallacious to suppose people cannot be christians who differ from us in doctrinal belief; and it does not evidence deep piety to disfellowship all such, and battle them and their belief wherever there is opportunity. Christian character should be the test: "more religion" would set that matter right.

It is absurd to think a belief in any doctrine, however correct, without a life in harmony with the teachings and requirements of God's word, a character framed after the divine model, a moral resemblance to Christ, will pass the fiery ordeal, no matter how ably one can defend his position in an argument. Something beside argumentation will be required; "more religion" will explain what.

It is a mistaken notion that the worst elements in the world are to be found in your church, or among your brethren, or attend your meeting; or that the poorest preachers always come there. "More religion" would show up the case in its true light.

It does not of necessity follow, because some prominent person has threatened to withdraw his support from your meeting, the cause of God will go down in your place; it does not usually rest upon one man's shoulders; and "more religion" would show you God can raise up men to care for his cause and support the same, when it is for his glory to do so.

It is a device of Satan which causes you to feel you are not appreciated; that the church have no confidence in you, and care nothing for you. Worth is always appreciated, sooner or later: "more religion" would set that matter right.

It is not true, as a general case, that the spirit of a meeting is affected for good by loud prayer or lengthy exhortation. When one's life is such his family and acquaintances have no confidence in his religion, it will usually manifest itself at home plainest; and his wife can generally tell as soon as any one if it exists. Perhaps "more" is needed.

It sounds badly to hear a christian say he always has good meetings away from home, but no liberty at home. "More religion" might make him feel differently.

More religion might be of service to christians who get so tired through the week they cannot get out to Sundays when there is no preaching; and when there is, only afternoons and evenings. They never get so tired any other morning in the week.

More religion would tend to make people feel more interest in Sunday Schools and less in Sunday dinners; give more relish for communion with God in secret, and less for public places of amusement and resort; make preachers more careful for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication to let their requests be made known to God, and careful to secure the upbuilding of the church of Christ.

Oh for more religion! Who will with me make an earnest effort to secure it, and be ready for Christ when he comes?

E. Owen.

Men plant prayers and endeavors, and go the next day looking to see if they have borne graces. Now God does not send graces as he sends light and rain, but they are wrought in us through long days of discipline and growth. Acrons and graces sprout quickly, but grow long before ripening.

— There is enough in the world to complain about and find fault with, if men have the disposition. We often travel on hard and uneven roads; but with a cheerful spirit, we may walk thereon with comfort, and come to the end of our journey in peace.

DISCUSSION.

We are to commence a discussion in Buchanan, Mich., with Mr. Chaplin, a Universalist minister, Tuesday evening, June 15th, to continue some four days.

DISCUSSION IN EDENBORO.

Edenboro is a pleasant village in western Pennsylvania, eighteen miles south of Erie. This is the home of Bro. Jonas Wendell, a faithful and able minister of the New Testament, whose labors have been greatly blessed in many places. We had a happy visit in his pleasant family, during our stay in E.

On Tuesday evening, June 1st, we commenced a discussion with Bro. J. T. Townsend, the Methodist minister in the place. We esteem him as a christian gentleman and scholar. We have never had a more pleasant discussion than the one in Edenboro. Bro. T. used no unkind expressions, no ridicule or sarcasm, but conducted himself throughout the debate in a manner becoming a christian minister. He kindly invited us to preach on the Sabbath in his meeting-house, the largest in the place; but circumstances prevented us from being able to comply with his invitation.

We had five sessions, of two hours each, on the following:—

"RESOLVED, That the spirit, or soul of man, remains conscious between death and the resurrection."

Bro. J. Wendell acted as chairman, and the house was crowded every evening with an intelligent audience. The State Normal School is located in Edenboro, and many of the students were present. One of them reported the speeches, which may be published.

Bro. Townsend presented the usual texts and arguments that are offered to prove that man is conscious between death and the resurrection. We failed to see any proof of such a position; but the more we examine the Bible, the clearer it declares to us that man is wholly mortal, and will never be conscious again after death, without a literal resurrection of the dead. We could not ask to be any better satisfied than we are upon this subject.

The following are some of the assertions of Bro. T.; but we thought the proof was wanting:

"Man has a principle that never dies." "God did not make the whole man of dust, but only his body." "'Living soul' means more when applied to man than when applied to beasts." "Angels assumed forms." "The spirit is called man." "The spirit was Stephen." "Man is a spirit." "The spirit is the accountable man." "The Scriptures teach the immortality of the soul." "The soul eats." "The soul may be immortal, and yet destructible." "The penalty for sin is moral death."

The following are some of his admissions:—"The term 'living soul' is applied to all living beings." "The soul sometimes means animal life." "God is a person, and has a location." "The term 'immortal soul' is not found in the Scriptures." "Man is mortal." "The word soul does mean man sometimes."

Friday afternoon and evening we discussed the following:

"RESOLVED, That the future punishment of the wicked will consist in the eternal extinction of their conscious being."

Bro. Townsend assumed that the punishment of the wicked is "moral death," and begins when a man sins. We showed that this could not be true, as the punishment does not begin till after the judgment, which does not take place till after the dead are raised from the sea and hades. Again, if it is "moral death," then Jesus never suffered the penalty that was upon man, for our Savior was "without sin." The penalty on Adam could not have been eternal torment; for if it was, then Jesus would never get through suffering the penalty; and there would be no time for a "second death." If the penalty for sin is "moral death," and begins when a man sins; then, of course, it ends when he repents, and cannot be eternal punishment. If this theory be true, every time a sinner repents his punishment ends, and he might experience eternal punishment several times in this life.

Bro. Townsend claimed that Mal. 4: 1 was accomplished at the destruction of Jerusalem. We inquired if "all the proud, yea, all that do wickedly" were burnt up at that time? The discussion has done much good.

Saturday evening, and Sabbath, June 5th and 6th, we had very good meetings in the "Advent Chapel." Brn. and Srs. came in from five to eighteen miles around. We rejoiced together in the "blessed hope." Two requested prayers. We parted with bright anticipation of soon meeting in the everlasting kingdom.

NORWALK, OHIO.

On our return from Edenboro en route for Coldwater, Mich., we spent Monday evening, June 7th, at Norwalk, and had a most excellent meeting. Four requested prayers. We learn that good fruits have already appeared as the result of the late discussion held in that place. The prospect is encouraging for a good work.

UNQUENCHABLE FIRE.

BRO. GRANT:—Opposers to the doctrine of the destruction of the wicked bring up as objections the last two verses of the last chapter of Isaiah. Will you please give an exposition of the same in the Crisis?

E. SEYMOUR.

The two verses read as follows:—"And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith the Lord. And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me; for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh."

It is quite evident that this scripture refers to what has taken place in the history of the Jewish nation. The Chronology of Isaiah's prophecy is placed about seven hundred years before Christ. In the 21st verse we read: "I will also take of them for priests, and for Levites, saith the Lord." It is not reasonable to suppose that there will be Jewish priests officiating after Christ comes. When speaking of Christ, Paul says: "But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God."—Heb. 10: 12. The "priests" among the "Levites" were appointed to offer sacrifices; but Jesus has offered himself once for all; therefore no other priests are needed to offer them.

The 22nd verse reads, "For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name remain." We do not see any proof from this verse, or its context, that the 23d and 24th verses are not to be fulfilled till after the saints inherit the new earth; neither do we see any proof in these last two verses in favor of the doctrine of eternal torment, as some suppose. In verse 23 we learn that while the twenty-fourth is being accomplished the people are observing the new moons and sabbaths, which we do not believe will be the case after the coming of Christ, and the establishment of "the new earth." Is it reasonable to believe that there will be "carcasses" of dead men lying about in the new earth, which will be eaten with worms? The scene is laid where there were worms and an unquenchable fire to devour "the carcasses of the men," who were transgressors against the Lord. The fire and the worms would completely devour those carcasses. The fact that the fire was not to be quenched affords positive proof that the carcasses were utterly destroyed; so that this scripture, so far as it proves any thing, affords very strong evidence in favor "of the destruction of the wicked." The wicked are to be finally burnt up root and branch with an unquenchable fire; consequently when that takes place, they will "be no more," as saith the word of the Lord.

IMPERIALISM.

It is very evident that the feeling in favor of changing the American Republic to an Empire is gaining ground rapidly. The spirit of revolution is active in the whole civilized world. The people are uneasy in the present condition of things. The governments of earth are like a man seeking rest on a cold, hard bed, and finding none. He keeps tossing and turning, till he can endure it no longer; then rises for a change of some kind. He is sure he can be no worse off if he is obliged to sit up the rest of the night; so the people are so tired of the political corruptions now existing, they are anxious for a change of some kind. They are unwilling to endure the present state of things much longer. The conductors of the Imperialist know how to present the advantages to be obtained from an imperial government in the most plausible light. The paper is ably conducted, and is sustained by a strong arm. Its managers and contributors are in earnest, and their power is already felt throughout the nation. It would be folly to deny this fact.

The following are some extracts from the columns of the Imperialist:—

"The people of the United States are to-day living under a government as weak and inefficient as that of France during the last days of the Republic. The hour is nearly at hand when the words, 'The Empire is Peace,' proclaimed by a leader in whose patriotism, ability and fearlessness all can confide, will meet with an enthusiastic approval."

"Does not America need peace to-day, precisely in the sense in which France needed it seventeen years ago? Shall we endure the anarchy of mob-rule until the nation is ruined past all hope of redemption? Shall we practically await the time when the Presidency shall become a prize to be fought for by miserable military adventurers, and submit in silence to the ignorant despotism of the successful contestant? Or shall we not escape from anarchy on the one hand and an unchanging succession of small military despots on the other, by adopting, voluntarily and cheerfully, a strong, permanent, intelligent Imperial government?

Never was there a nation that needed more sorely a firm and enduring government. Never was there a people that longed more earnestly for domestic peace.

The grim soldier who recently succeeded to the chief place in our national government rode into power on the wave of popular enthusiasm aroused by his famous sentence, 'Let us have Peace.' Can he give us peace while the power of the government is committed to the ignorant and vicious mob?

If so, he is a greater than Cromwell, or the First or Third Napoleon. If so, the age of miracles has returned, and a greater than Elijah is here."

"The Empire will bring us peace. Shall we refuse it because we like not the name of the giver? To-day the Imperialist raises the banner of the Empire against the red flag of Republican anarchy. Those who are governed by names and prejudice will cling to the Republic; those who prize law and order and government, will gladly await the Empire. The hour of its advent is not far distant. And when the hour has struck, the leader will be found ready."

A correspondent of the Imperialist says:—

"In our social system, every form of vice is rampant; secretly, in our home-circles, and by the domestic fire-side: publicly and openly, flaunting in the streets, and paraded in the columns of the press, in the form of prostitution; hasty marriages, followed by brutality, license, and divorce; abortion notoriously prosecuted as a profession, and advertised in the daily newspapers; robbery, murder, suicide, and every other conceivable and unmentionable form of wickedness and demoralization, to an extent never before known in the history of civilization. . . .

Bribery and corruption in high places are the only road to success, and to him who will not stoop to these, success is impossible. By this false system of universal suffrage, we have elected to rule over us men who squander the public monies, deprave the nation's honor, and make the name of American a hissing and a bye-word among men. Abroad we are known as a nation of boasters and robbers. At home we are daily and hourly proving that we are entitled to the appellations."

Says the New York Citizen:—

"Absurdest of all things is it to say, in the very face of facts, that a change in the present form, or even a sudden and violent overthrow of our present form of government, is impossible. It has been done already. The government which Radicalism, within a very brief period, has fastened upon the nation, is no more the government founded by our fathers and written in the Constitution, than military despotism is mild republicanism."

It is idle to attempt to disguise the danger that now lies at the very door, or to ignore the impending shock which may shatter the very last of our liberties. Nor will it do to turn up our noses in disdain at the presumed weakness and incompetency of "The Man on Horseback." Up to the very hour of the coup d' etat half the world and all of France thought Louis Napoleon a fool. In the past eight years the people of this country have been unwittingly, but steadily, preparing themselves for imperial rule. Prop after prop has been knocked from under the broad Republican platform on which our whole rights rest, and, when the final fall comes, the staging has been so weakened, and the people have so gradually sunk, that the shock will be slight."

A correspondent from Moscow, Ky., says:—"The people, as a unit, will sustain you, throughout this whole section of country."

Another from Brookline, Mass., says:—"Editors of Imperialist.—I received your specimen copy on Monday, and am very much obliged. I shall endeavor to circulate it among my friends. It justs suits my sentiments, and those also of a large number of educated people."

A correspondent from Washington, D. C., says:—

"Gentlemen.—I thank you for the copy of the Imperialist you sent me. It is an able paper, and is pointing with the finger of destiny the course into which this government is rapidly drifting. We shall have either

1. A monied monopoly that absorbs all industries.
2. A dishonest abandonment of all principle, and a repudiation of all honest obligations.
3. A miltary despotism.
4. An Imperial Government, or
5. An utter disintegration and segregation of States, which will leave the United States, of America—once so great, so happy, and so free—in the same pitiable condition that Mexico presents to the world,"

A writer from Boston says:—

"I am a native of Massachusetts, and am of Puritan ancestry, but have never identified myself with any political party, from an innate conviction that Republicanism—or rather Democracy—was a mistake, and a life-long belief that a Monarchial Government is the only kind which can inspire true patriotism and sincere loyalty, and I hail the issue of the Imperialist as designed to disseminate these truths. I am convinced that ideas of this nature have long lain dormant in many breasts, and can be developed into a practical working power by such high-toned, logical and vigorous essays as I infer from what I have seen will characterize your paper."

The Editor of the Imperialist says:—

"The following private letter has been put into our hands with permission to publish it:

'Springfield, Ill., May 1st, 1869.

DEAR TOM:—The three copies of the Imperialist which you informed me you had mailed to me, have duly come to hand. What do I think of it? Why, I must confess to a big scare. Has the man of the 2d of December dared to put his hooked nose into our affairs, trying to do here with the pen what he attempted to do in Mexico with the sword? Oh, for St. Dunstan with his red-hot tongs to tweak the infernal proboscis, and send back its sooty owner howling! Seriously, what does it mean? I have read carefully all the numbers, and this I must say: If this is the Devil's doing, he has sent on the Satanic mission the smartest imp in his dominions. The Imperialist is written with wonderful power; I do not know another journal in the country that is its superior, or, I may say, equal to it in talent. Send it me regularly. I shall watch this operation with much interest.'"

Says the La Grange (Ga.) Reporter:—

"The popular mind of this country is in great foment, and we are, perhaps, on the verge of a great political revolution, which may end in war and bloodshed, which we pray God to avert from this country."

The Tarboro (N. C.) Southerner says:—

"It is a great mistake for journals professing to represent public sentiment to make light of this important movement and say 'it it all bosh,' for it is a stern and undeniable fact that the idea has taken root, and whether it is to produce fruit in this generation or not, remains yet to be seen.

Any change from the present disorganized and oppressive form of government cannot but be hailed by the whole country as a lasting benefit."

Says the Grand Rapids Journal:—

"A prominent Republican, who is an officer of the United States, remarked in the presence of a gentleman in this city, only a few days since, 'that there was no use of battling against such a movement, and that he, though an officer under the party in power, believes that, in Gen. Grant, we behold the last President and perhaps the first Emperor for the people.'"

SCATTER THE LIGHT.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Bro. Blain has scattered the light during the past year, to my personal knowledge, in the free distribution of his noble work "Death not Life;" and some months ago published a statement of the amount "given" away and the amount "received;" and the latter to have been over one hundred dollars less than the cost of the book. This is a burden that you and I should help to bear. Will you do it? I will, and lest I should forget it, I herewith enclose five dollars for that purpose.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

The inquiry is often made, "When do you leave Lowell Street?" or, "Where are you going to hold meetings when the Chapel is taken down?" In reply to all such inquiries, and that our friends may know, we would in behalf of the church say, that with our present information, we do not expect the Chapel will be removed for some months to come—very likely not before another spring. For the present, therefore, until otherwise noticed, meetings will be continued at the Chapel as in the past. "The present truth" due this generation will be presented in its various parts, that the impenitent may turn from idols to serve the living and true God, and to "wait for his Son from heaven," that the people may know that there is no immortality for them only through our Lord Jesus Christ; and that all the wicked will God destroy, yea, that they shall be as though they had not been; and that "the great day of the Lord is near, it is near, and hasteth greatly"; when the Lord himself shall descend from heaven; that, "Behold he cometh quickly"; and that it is our duty to sound out this truth, notwithstanding the time has come when the great mass "will not endure sound doctrine." And if the holding forth of these truths constitutes us a "sect," then we do not deny that we belong to the sect that is "spoken against" almost everywhere.

SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

At a meeting of the Committee, held June 9th, it was decided to commence our Annual Campmeeting Saturday, Aug. 28th, to hold until Sept. 6th. In consequence of the fact that there is to be a Fair held in Springfield, commencing August 24th, our meeting was not appointed for the 21st, as it was thought best not to hold the campmeeting the week of the Fair. For several years past we have held a meeting on the Sunday before the Monday appointed for our meeting to commence. So this year we thought it best to name a day covering the entire meeting; hence Aug. 28th rather than the 30th. Particulars hereafter.

CLARK'S MILLS, R. I.

The Lord has much blessed the little church worshiping at Clark's Hall, and at Bro. N. Lewis' during the past spring, and some precious souls have enlisted under the banner of truth, "lively stones," such as will be remembered when the dear Redeemer comes to make up his jewels.

But I wish to speak of the Sabbath School connected with this field of labor, commenced a few years ago by Bro. S. P. Clark, with a very limited number of interested co-workers at that time, but continued from year to year, amid many discouragements and some bitter opposition (not from the world, but) from those who profess much love for Him who called little children to him and blessed them. Bless God, the Sabbath School has become a success and a real nursery of the church.

The writer was with this school, assisting at its organization, and has had the privilege of being there many times since. I was much cheered a few Sabbaths since in witnessing the interest and zeal manifested. They already number one hundred and twenty-five scholars and teachers, in that sparse population. Eld. Northup, pastor of the church, is for this year their beloved and efficient superintendent, assisted by Eld. P. Baker; Bro. S. P. Clark, Clerk; and an active, interested number of faithful christian teachers in the Bible and Testament classes. Bro. Clark's regular readings and expositions of portions of the Word are peculiarly interesting and profitable to the school at large, tending to purify from these last-day fables. The teachers meet to teach the children to sing, rendering that part of the exercises very attractive and delightful.

Clark's Hall is in the attic of the Messrs. Clark's cotton mill, a neat, commodious place. Teachers and children are encouraged and stimulated from time to time by Bro. Clark, with rewards of good books, who, though in feeble health, seems never to "weary in well doing" in this department; keeping the school well supplied with the best juvenile literature to be found. Many copies of the Young Pilgrim and Christian are taken. God bless that school.

I felt prompted to write this as an incentive for more of our people (who are very negligent in S. Schools) to "go and do likewise."

THE TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held at the National Campmeeting, Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28th, 1868, the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That we raise TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year.

Resolved, That our preaching brethren be, and hereby are, requested to act as Agents in this good work, to solicit contributions to the Tract Fund, as often at least as once in every quarter, and forward the same to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, BOSTON, MASS.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE.

At the Western Ministerial Conference; holden at Buchanan, Mich., Nov., 1868, a resolution was adopted making a proposition to the Advent Christians of North America to hold a National conference composed of delegates chosen by the conferences and churches of the United States, and the Provinces of Canada. As the time is drawing nigh when the proposed Conference should meet, it is important that each conference should take action upon the subject immediately. If a sufficient number of the State Conferences should deem it wise and expedient to hold such a convention, as to justify (in the opinion of the committee) its call, then notice will be given of the time and place of holding its session; but if a larger number should deem it inexpedient to hold such a convention, then no call will be given.

We therefore kindly invite all the conferences to take the subject into prayerful consideration, and notify us of their decision upon the question, as soon as possible.

If any of the State Conferences should not meet so as to decide the question and notify the committee before the close of the Springfield Campmeeting, then we invite the President and Secretary of such conferences to give us their opinion as to the probable position that their conference will take upon the question of sending delegates to the proposed convention. The following are the resolutions adopted by the Buchanan convention, with remarks upon the same by brethren present.

A PROPOSITION TO THE ADVENT-CHRISTIANS OF NORTH AMERICA.

"Whereas, The Advent-Christian body of this Continent, which has been called out of the world and the various sects, should be one in faith, hope, and work; and Whereas, Unity of action is essential to the proper accomplishment of their great work for the present generation; therefore

Resolved, That a General Conference of Advent-Christians be called, to be composed of representatives from all the States and Territories of the United States, and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Resolved, That this Conference shall consist of delegates from the several Advent-Christian Conferences of the United States and Canada, each Conference being entitled to three delegates. Provided, that in States, Territories, or Provinces, where there are no Conferences, and isolated Advent-Christian churches exist, such churches may unite and send one delegate.

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed; three from the East, three from the West, and one from the dominion of Canada, who shall make arrangements for the time and place of meeting of said General Conference; Provided, that the place of meeting be as central as possible. We suggest Rochester, N. Y., or Buchanan, Mich.

The above action in reference to this proposed General Conference is subject to the approval of the several Advent-Christian Conferences."

F. BURR. My heart is full as I look to the future. This resolution opens to us new work, the like of which never has been seen among us. But some will find fault. They will ask, Why are you arranging for great works? A brother said to one building a barn, "You are making garden in the fall." The reply was, "I need the barn now; and the Lord may as well burn the barn as the lumber." I look for Jesus to come soon, and we enter the kingdom, or to see a great work in preparing a people for that event. Meantime, we ought to do all that we can up to the very time of his coming; using every proper means to build up the cause of truth, and add to the numbers of those who shall be ready for the advent.

D. R. MANSFIELD. This resolution carried out will result in a great work. For a few years we have been getting into working order. Shall we stop right here? We are one, East or West, North or South, and we need to come together. It was said at one of our campmeetings, "These men are mightily in earnest." Let us show this to be true.

A. E. BABCOCK. Are there any qualifications? There are differing views; and are any to be shut out?

W. L. HIMES. The resolution is a call for a bond of union between all the Advent-Christian Conferences of the land. It is not to be a general convention of a promiscuous people; but a Conference of representatives of already organized bodies.

W. SMITH. I find no difficulty in being fellowshiped among my Advent brethren, though differing with them on what some call a side issue. So long as I maintain a Christian spirit and walk, I expect to find fellowship.

J. COUCH. I have had convictions on this subject for two years past. When I started West, I thought to propound this; and on talking with others about it, I found they had similar convictions. In acting we have of course an object in view; and this is not to multiply offices and places, but to glorify God. The Bible is explicit upon the importance of union. One, it is said, shall chase a thousand; and two—would they chase two thousand? No, but put ten thousand to flight. Jesus sanctions this principle of union in his great prayer, when he petitions that his people may "all be one." This was because of their greater power and effectiveness when united. Each State has its local interests; but all have general interests, in which we should act harmoniously. I trust we shall carry out this resolution in a gospel way.

P. MITSON. If two would put the ten thousand to flight they must be together; not one on one side the opposing army, and the other the other side. We have been hurt by too much preaching of personal opinions on points having no general interest. We should stand for the great points, where we all agree.

M. CHANDLER. I am glad the time for action has arrived. It is a good move, and I am for it with all my heart.

E. T. HIMES. We must not be deterred by what people say. They will find fault if we do; and will find just as much fault if we don't.

M. A. POTTER. I came here somewhat skeptical on church order; but I have heard the discussions, and have come to the conclusion that this work is right, and I can support the resolution.

H. A. KING. If we build churches and organize, we shall accomplish something. But without unity of purpose we shall do nothing worthy of ourselves, or our cause.

L. C COLLINS. We would like the true spirit of toleration. It seems to me all Adventists might unite. I have wondered how any could believe the non-resurrection of the wicked; but this would be no bar to my fellowship of a Christian. We should think, and let think, and thus show our charity. Then what a people we might be!

N. A HITCHCOCK. I heartily agree with Bro. Collins. I am not expecting uniformity of faith among Adventists. A cry for such uniformity has caused all the persecutions of past ages. But I am with you in this matter for a true union on Bible principles.

W. SHELDON. We as a people insist that the Lord Jesus is the only legislative head of the church. We can only carry out his legislation. We have not heretofore done this as we might, but we propose to try to improve in this direction.

W. L. HIMES. I fear we are not speaking to the point. Our resolution does not meddle with the faith of any one; but proposes to unite in our work bodies already organized, which have great general interests.

W. SHELDON. The resolution does not propose any proscription, but work in a great cause unitedly

The resolution was adopted unanimously. On motion, it was also unanimously

Voted, That the following committee of seven ministering brethren act as a committee to carry out the objects of the resolution: Eld. John Couch, Eld. S. G. Mathewson, and Eld. Miles Grant, of the East; Eld. Joshua V. Himes, Eld. O. R. Fassett, and Eld. Wm. Sheldon of the West; and Eld. John Porter of Canada.

"LITTLE CHILDREN, LOVE ONE ANOTHER."

How sweet and precious was the lesson Jesus taught his disciples when he said, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven." It took the disciples some time to learn this lesson, but when it was once learned it was not easily forgotten.

We must become as little children in several respects. Little children are confiding. They believe their parents. When father or mother makes a promise, they rely with unsuspecting confidence upon their word. So it must be with Christians. When their heavenly Father speaks, they must rely upon his word with childlike confidence and simplicity. Can we believe God means what he says? He is faithful that promised. God is true. Let us not doubt him.

Little children are humble. They have no high aims or towering projects. They are satisfied with plain, common things. So Christians are exhorted to be clothed with humility; to humble themselves under the mighty hand of God. Jesus was meek and lowly, and we are to learn of him. He made himself of no reputation, but was patient and submissive, even to the shameful death of the cross. God has special regard to the lowly, but the proud he knoweth afar off. Though he is high and holy, and dwells in heaven, yet he condescends to dwell with the broken and contrite in heart. The proud shall be devoured like stubble, but the humble shall shine forth like the sun in the kingdom of God.

Little children are docile. Such was Mary, who came to Christ and sat down at his feet to listen and learn. Are we like her? Do we quietly and meekly listen to the words of Jesus? How simple are children; how open and artless they are; how free from guile. Such was Nathaniel, an Israelite indeed.

Little children are characterized by love. Their charity thinketh no evil. O that we might learn this precious lesson of love. Jesus said, "Little children, love one another." John, the beloved disciple, learned this lesson, and it remained with him to the last. How often he has referred to it in his epistles. It was uppermost in his mind. How sweet his words must have sounded when he repeated it in his old age—"Little children, love one another." "Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God, and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God, for God is love."

How precious it is to associate with those whose hearts are full of the love of God. How good the Spirit of God makes those who receive it into their hearts. How peaceable, gentle, and child-like are the disciples of Christ. No strife or quarreling should ever enter their circle.

Dear reader, have you been converted? Has your conversion produced this effect? Are you like a child? If so, happy are you, but if you are not possessing this temper, you are far from being what you should be. Remember, you cannot inherit the kingdom unless you are converted, and become as a little child. Examine yourselves. Pray to God for his Spirit. Walk in love, and show forth the spirit of meekness everywhere, and then when Jesus comes you will be found among the number concerning whom it is said, "Of such is the kingdom of God."

NEWS FROM ENGLAND.

BRO. GRANT:—Having just received a letter from. Bro. H. H. Dobney, the old and able advocate of eternal life only by Christ, I conclude our brethren would like to hear what he says about the changes in England as to the doctrine of future punishment. I had requested him to give such information, and also to tell what he knew of H. Dunn, who has lately written a work of seven hundred pages, entitled, "The Destiny of the Human Race," which I had obtained and read with interest. He holds the annihilation of all who "sin wilfully after receiving the knowledge of the truth," as told in Heb. 10: 26–7. All others in christian lands, dying in impenitence, and all the heathen, idiots and infants, will have a probation, or offer of accepting the Savior after a general resurrection, and the coming of Christ; and so the majority, or mass, of our race be finally saved; but with different degrees of glory in the "new heavens and new earth." His views are entirely new, and important if sustained by the Bible; and on that alone he relies; taking much of his proof from the old Testament prophecies, much of with he thinks are not contained or repeated in the new Testament. His plan is being investigated in England, and a few of his works and some of his tracts have been sent to Boston.

Bro. Dobney (after some personal remarks) says, "With all my heart do I wish you all joy and peace in your earnest endeavors to clear the character of God in the eyes of men, from the assertions which a popular theology has cast on it. The address you sent me, to the Minnesota conference of the Methodist church, by Eld. L. C. Collins, is able and telling, while the spirit of it is excellent. As to us in England now, men on every hand deny, and indignantly repudiate, the dogma of everlasting misery, and deny it with impunity. The 'Churchman' of the Congregational Union for the present year, preaches life only in Christ—no immortality only in Him. The editor told me in a letter last autumn that such was the state of opinion now in the churches of the C. Union, that if only two or three known and trusted men were to state openly their real convictions, the dogma of unending torments would be swept away forever from the churches.

"Many ministers of otherwise orthodox churches more than intimate their belief that ultimately all will be saved, and no harm accrues to them for the expression of this opinion.

"The more benignant views of God and his designs obtain in our lighter religious literature,—works of fiction by earnest, God-fearing, and God and man-loving writers. I think the more hopeful belief about the ultimate of the human race is likely to prevail by and by.

"H. Dunn, Esq., the author of "Human Destiny," about whom you inquire, is, so far as correspondence goes, a friend of mine—a most worthy lay gentleman, now advancing in years, but most indefatigable in endeavors to promote the kingdom of heaven. He is the author of many works, for the most part very admirable. While I was editor of the Spectator, he was one of my frequent contributors. Pantom Ham joined the Unitarians long ago—I never see his name now."

These are the main items of information, and they show that England is getting ahead of us, as to the great truth that evil is to have an end in God's good time. May we not hope that their progress will soon help us in our efforts? Surely our reform is no longer in a corner.

J. BLAIN.

Buffalo, June 1, 1869.

P. S. Since writing the above, I have seen Bro. Storrs' paper, and find that he and Eld. Parry have read a tract by Bro. Dunn, and both mistake his views on two points—immortality of the soul, and endless misery of the lost. The tract they read is not as plain on these points as it should be for an introduction or synopsis to his large work; yet destruction is intimated. His large work makes it plain. In another tract of his on "hades" he says,—"The natural immortality of the soul is a doctrine unknown to the Bible, and is evidently of heathen origin." In the same tract he says—"The final lot of such (enlightened and wilful sinners) will be utter destruction. This is plainly enough revealed. Evil is not to be eternal; and because it was never intended to be so, God graciously after the fall cut off our first parents from the tree of life, lest eating thereof, they should live forever. Immortal monsters have no place in the universe of God."

This makes all plain. He, with Bro. Dobney, and most of our late writers on destruction in Europe, are yet in the dark as to the intermediate state. Mr. Dunn owns the Bible is so silent about it, that he knows that sinners are on probation there. I found four of his tracts in Prof. Hudson's library. His piety and great knowledge of, and reverence for the Scriptures, will induce many to examine his system. Some will condemn it by one passage—"the broad and narrow way." On this he says; Christ was teaching Jews, who had a broad way by Abraham and external ceremonies, while his was by holiness of heart; and further—in the present dispensation, but "few" accept, or even hear of the Savior. His views being new, I have not had time to search the Bible so as to receive or reject them, but see they deserve examination. I only now hint his plan to give news from England, and call attention to it.

THAT TRACT.

"THE BIBLE THEORY OF THE GOOD TIME COMING." BY S. HALL.—But little has been said in our papers of this tract, while it has been silently speaking to many thousands, and to good effect. It is a valuable tract and deserves to be circulated everywhere. Bro. S. Hall, Hartford, Conn., published last year 2200 and gave the most of them to those who circulate. Send for a lot, either to him or to the Crisis office, and keep them on their mission.

I. C. WELLCOME.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. P. A. SMITH writes:—"Bro. Grant:—The Lord has been very gracious to me in blessing my feeble efforts in publishing the last call of mercy to the destitute people scattered through the pine woods of Florida. It has been a very great trial on account of the open manner in which the houses are built, together with the very cold winter, which the people say they have not seen for many years. As I am subject to the asthma, I could not endure the exposure to the cold nights without suffering. It needs a healthy man to travel in country places. But I have filled all my appointments, and preached every Sabbath but three, and week days and evenings, as opportunity has offered, or as my health would allow. I have witnessed the spread of the blessed hope among the people to an extent beyond any thing I expected, and the interest continues to increase. I have just returned from the Suwannee, where I baptized six more, and had a blessed time; others are under conviction. Those who opposed the truth at first are now coming in to the faith. What a glorious work, to get people ready for the coming of the Lord.

I expect to return here after visiting my family, if the Lord will. The people have a great deal to overcome in the country to be christians, their habits have been such. Chewing tobacco, drinking, dancing, going to places of amusement, is a rage. The young converts, therefore, have great trials. But there is less backsliding in the country, according to their number, than I have witnessed in the north. But in the cities the church members set such examples it is almost impossible for the young convert to be keept straight; hence our churches in Lake City and Jacksonville are not so prosperous as in the country. Pray for them, will you?"

SR. L. A. HARRIS writes from Bremer Village;—"I have but lately embraced the blessed truth of Christ's coming. I was a Calvinist Baptist, connected with the church when seventeen years of age; having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof. Blessed be God, he has showed me that there is spirit and power in the gospel. Bro. F. Baker came to our village last winter, proclaiming the truth of the gospel, and the Lord gave him souls for his labors. The first of May seven were baptized by immersion, the first baptism that had ever been in that place. The Lord was present on the occasion, and it was a solemn scene.

The Lord is still at work in the place. I believe we shall yet see great good done. There are many inquiring souls. We have had a few drops before a plentiful shower. I want these truths to be spread far and wide. The Bible is not a sealed book, as many would have it; its secrets can be easily understood if we will only read and desire to understand. I love the blessed truths, and this good religion that is felt in the heart and expressed in the life. I have a hope of seeing Jesus soon. I can pray, 'Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.' Bless his holy name."

SR. M. L. DURAND writes from Cheshire, Conn., June 7th.:—"We have been called to pass through deep trials during the past two months. First, a singular accident, resulting in the death of a beloved brother-in-law; then our own little Howard, ten years old, was thrown from a horse, and the plow attached struck him just back of the hip, cutting an ugly wound of full three inches in length, and an inch or more in depth, making him an invalid many days. We had supposed him entirely recovered from its effects, and perhaps he was; but on Thursday, May 20th, he was taken suddenly and severely with typhoid fever, and now lies a helpless, emaciated little sufferer. On Thursday morning our eldest son was brought home from his work, hard sick with fever, of nearly the same type as his little brother; so here we are with both our children very sick, and had supposed ourselves worn out a week ago; but the grace of God is magnified in us, for we find every day a renewal of the promise, 'As thy day is, so shall thy strength be,' and we are confident that many prayers are offered for us from hearts accustomed to believe when they pray.

Brethren and sisters, remember us when you pray, and please accept this as an answer to so many unanswered letters, and also as a sufficient reason for failing to fulfill appointments, if we are compelled to do so any more. Those near home, where I can go and return on Sunday, I may (probably shall) be able to meet; others I cannot now say."

[Too late for last week.—ED.

BRO. J. CLIFFORD writes from Society Hill, S. C.,:—"The work of God is progressing in this place. Nineteen have been baptized. Some of them have been very wicked. Others are seeking the Lord. Faithful laborers are needed all through the South. The people, both white and colored, are perishing for the lack of knowledge. Many are very destitute, needing food and raiment. Much has been done through the Missions by the aid of kind friends, in feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, as also the establishment of schools, where they are taught to read about Jesus; and much more needs to be done. May the Lord send us faithful laborers."

SR. E. WHITFORD, writes from Otranto, Iowa—:"I want to tell dear Sr. E. A. Bennett, who wrote that article published in the Crisis of May 19th, that I can testify to the truth of what she wrote as I have been down into the depths; but I know that my Father held the rope and that he loves me. Bless God for his boundless love.

We lend our paper to all who will read, and send it around parcels in our neighborhood dealings. I pray that we may be ever willing to help the cause of truth as the Lord prospers us."

Obituaries.

HESS. Sweetly fell asleep, in Dansville, N. Y., April 10th, 1869, George Elmer Oscar, son of George and Emily Hess, aged seven years and five months.

About a week before Elmer's death, Bro. Hess went home at night and his little boy met him as usual and got upon his lap and asked him to sing. He said, "Sing 'Over there.' So he sang,—

> "Over there is no more weeping,
> Over there all pain is o'er,
> I shall rest in Jesus' keeping,
> And droop and die no more."

In the night they were aroused, and awoke to find their house in flames, and everything but their night-clothes burned up. Little Elmer took a severe cold that night, and in one week they laid him away to rest from their sight. Their hearts are sad and every thing reminds them of their loss, but they "sorrow not as those that have no hope." Elmer is safe. He "will come again from the enemy's land," where pain and death will never come.
A. P. MOORE.

NEWELL. Died May 15th, after an illness of five months, Mrs. Newell.

She was one of the sweet singers of Israel. I think those who attended the campmeeting at Wilbraham about the year 1860, will recollect hearing her voice in some of our favorite hymns. Her voice is now silent in death. But we sorrow not as those who have no hope. She died in full assurance of eternal life. A few minutes before she fell asleep she repeated the stanzas of the hymn—

"Jesus, lover of my soul."

Her last words were—"Glorious! glorious, yes, glorious!" She was a member of the Union Temple Church in this city. We hope to join with her again in singing at the great coronation day.
D. N. SMITH.

ELLIS. Died in Hardwick, Mass., May 22d' John H. Ellis, aged seven years; also, on the 27th' Emma E. Ellis, aged one year, six months, of malignant scarlatina complicated with diphtheria, son and daughter of Bro. Abiatha P. Ellis.

Christians, pray for this afflicted family. May God sustain them in this hour of tribulation. At the funeral words of comfort were spoken by Bro. Geo. A. Streeter. E. C. RICHARDSON, M. D.

NORMAN. Died in Owasco, Cayuga Co., N. Y., April 16th, 1869, Herman Franklin, son of Nelson (deceased) and Marian Norman, aged nearly nineteen years.

An invalid through life, he now sleeps peacefully, awaiting the resurrection morn.
M. NORMAN.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

PERSIA, BOMBAY, June 8., via London, 9. Advices from Cabool report that Azrim and Rahman have given up all hope of overthrowing Sheere Aali, and have gone to Teheran. Sheere Aali had introduced many reforms in his Government. He had remodeled his army, established a police force and forbidden citizens from carrying arms.

MADRID, June 8. The new constitution has been promulgated in all the Provinces of Spain. Perfect order prevails throughout the country.

VIENNA, June 9. Cardinal Rauscter, Archbishop of Vienna, has intervened to protect Bishop Linz from secular power, but the ministry assert that they are unable to interfere with the course of justice. In consequence of the affair, a coldness is manifesting itself in the relations between the Cardinal and Imperial governments.

LEMBERG, June 9. A Ministerial order has been promulgated here authorizing the use of the Polish language in the administration of the internal service of Gallicia.

BELFAST, June 10. Thirteen members of an Orange lodge in this city have been arrested for a disturbance of the peace. A collision occurred today between the police and the people, in which several persons were injured, but none fatally.

LONDON, June 10, Telegrams from Paris this morning report that the crowds in the Montmartre District yesterday dispersed on the appearance of the military without offering resistance. No damage has been done beyond the breaking of some windows. Many of the men most prominent in creating disturbance were arrested.

PARIS, June 10. The Prefect of Police has placarded throughout the city a proclamation urging all good citizens to aid the authorities in the execution of the laws and in the preservation of public order and peace. Much agitation still exists and large crowds linger in the streets.

CORDOVA, Spain, June 11. A great meeting of Republicans was held to-day, for the purpose of protesting against a return to a Monarchy. Deputies were present from every Southern Province. Speeches of a revolutionary character were made during the proceedings. A Spanish flag was entwined in that of the United States, and the assemblage shouted for America and for General Grant. About 50,000 persons were present. While the meeting was in session the military and civil guard interfered, creating a panic, during which many women and children were trampled down and several lives were lost. The crowd then barricaded the streets, and there is danger of a serious affray.

THE TROUBLES IN FRANCE.—The troubles at Paris continue, and are getting to be quite serious. The excitement Thursday night was very great, and when the Parisians are ready to face both the French police and cavalry it is evident that there is some serious and substantial ground for their discontent. The police alone seem to have been unequal to the emergency, and it required several cavalry charges upon the multitude and the arrest of some six hundred persons to put an end to the disturbances for the time. The Government will unquestionably take prompt and decisive measures in regard to these troubles; but whether severity will quell the people into submission remains to be seen. It is manifestly an interesting and critical period in France, and, taken in connection with the result of the recent elections, these popular disturbances are very significant, and have a meaning which the Imperial Government can hardly afford to ignore.

RUSSIAN CONQUESTS IN ASIA.—General Von Kaufmann, Governor General of Turkistan, was recently entertained at a banquet in St. Petersburg, and made a speech, in which he declared that for Russia the period of conquest in Central Asia was at an end, and that a time of peace had now commenced. He added that the war with Bokhara was not in contradiction with this view, as it did not originate with Russia, but was rendered necessary as a defence against the hostility of the Emir of that country.

DOMESTIC.

San Francisco, June 10. Pullman's Palace train arrived at Sacramento to-day, having run over the Central Pacific road from Promontory Point at a speed of thirty-five to fifty miles an hour an ascending grade.

The passengers report the road generally in a good condition. A thousand workmen are daily improving it. There is no reasonable ground for the Eastern stories of danger from any source of the entire route across the continent. The only fifty miles of really rough road are on the Union Pacific east of Wasatch, which are rapidly being perfected. In the meantime trains are moving cautiously.

THE COMING HARVESTS.—Western papers say that Northern Wisconsin winter wheat promises an abundant harvest. Spring wheat is beginning to show itself. A large proportion of the corn is planted, and other crops are well under way. Vegetation has thrived luxuriantly the past two weeks. In Minnesota the latter part of May was cold and wet, but just the weather for wheat, oats, potatoes grass, rye, and everything except corn and some kinds of garden products. On the whole there was probably never a more favorable spring, and with a good summer there will be a bountiful harvest. The appearance of the crops in Iowa was never more gladdening, and if no unforeseen evil occurs, the heaviest crop will be harvested this summer that has ever been grown in Iowa since its settlement. Corn has never at this stage of the season presented such a healthy appearance.

A SHOWER OF SNAKES.—One of the singular incidents connected with the recent great storm in Illinois was a very heavy shower of nondescript reptiles, bearing some resemblance to snakes, at Taylorville. Millions of them fell, and the whole country about there is alive with them. They are described as from one and a half to two feet in diameter. Their heads resemble eels' heads, and they are of a dark color and perfectly harmless.

Passing Events.

☞ The Washington Gazette says it is probable, if information is true, that a ticket representing the interest of imperialism will be put in the field in our coming June election. Gentlemen in this city are said to be in correspondence with certain parties in the city of New York in regard to this movement. It may also be stated as a fact that a number of Washingtonians sent forward their subscriptions to New York yesterday for the Imperialist newspaper, and among them some who unhesitatingly avow sympathy with this new movement.

☞ There is a sect of believers in Russia who actually bow down and worship the soul or image of the great Napoleon. There is a still larger sect of the idolators of power in France who do the same thing in a different way. Napoleon's imperial descendant, not long ago, told his people that they best recognized God when they rendered homage to great men, such as his uncle. Perhaps acting on that suggestion, the good people of Paris, who expect to go to Napoleon when they die, lately covered his monument with flowers and other votive offerings.

☞ Maedler, the German astronomer, reports the discovery of twenty-two mountains on the moon, each higher than Mount Blanc. The highest is 22,994 feet high, only 3,256 feet below the highest peak on the earth. Yet the earth is equal in size to forty-nine moons like ours.

☞ The Russian church at Sitka, Alaska Territory, was recently robbed of a copy of the Bible richly studded with valuable stones, crosses, and other ornaments, altogether said to be worth $20,000.

☞ M. de Lesseps is said to have made proposals to the Greek Government to cut a canal through the isthmus of Corinth, the immediate effect of which would be to bring Athens within three to four days' journey from Paris.

☞ An officer direct from the Plains says that the immediate cause of the late Indian troubles in Kansas was the firing upon a squaw by some white settlers. Eleven white persons are known to have been killed in retaliation for this outrage.

☞ The Czar's health continues to fail, and he is going to the Crimea. He has been ill ever since the attempt of Berezowski to assassinate him.

☞ The Queen of Madagasca and several of her ministers were recently publicly baptized in the English missionary church.

☞ Bismarck recently sent his two sons to Oxford to be educated.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Tremont Campmeeting will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue over the following Sunday. Ample arrangements will be made for board and lodging for those who cannot bring tents with them, but all who can are requested to bring tents. Bro. E. G. Kingsbury, of Chelsea, will be on the ground with his large tent, which will seat nearly one thousand. Now, brethren and sisters, you who can arrange to devote one week in such a meeting as this in the service of God, for the salvation of souls, and the renewing of your own spiritual strength, come up to this feast of tabernacles. The location is excellent, free from dust, and many other annoyances which often attend such gatherings.

All who expect to attend, are requested to be on the ground at the commencement of the meeting, to secure a full share of its benefits; and pray that the blessing of God may attend this effort, which has been so fully realized in years past. Bro. Geo. T. Adams will probably secure a reduction of fare on the Old Colony Rail Road for those who come through Boston.

By order of the Committee of Arrangements,
HENRY V. DAVIS.

Tent and Grove Meeting in Hopkinton, N. H.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting in E. G. Kimball's grove, in Hopkinton, N. H., July 4th and 5th, commencing at ten o'clock A. M. each day. Bro. Edmund Moulton, of Whitefield, N. H., and others, will be present to preach the word. An opportunity for baptism will be offered on the 5th. We hope to meet with friends from all the surrounding towns, who desire to hear the word of life, and especially with those who feel called upon to labor for the salvation of souls.

The New Hampshire Tent will be pitched outside of the grove, and should the weather be rainy, the meeting will be held in the tent. Brethren from a distance, by bringing some bedding, can lodge in the tent, or at houses near by. Horse-keeping can be had at reasonable rates.
JOSEPH H. TEWKSBURY.
E. G. KIMBALL.

Grove Meeting.

A grove meeting will be held in Albany, N. H., in Bro. Joshua Piper's grove, commencing Friday, July 2nd, and holding over Monday, July 5th, When the arrangements are completed, due notice will be given. Albany is pleasantly situated among the mountains between Tamworth and Conway. The stages will doubtless bring those who wish to come to the ground. Those who come by cars, will leave them at Meredith Village, on the B. C. and M. R. R., and thence by stage direct. Brethren will please come prepared to remain through the meeting. Come by cars, stages, with private teams, on foot, or in any way, to meet with us. This is a new field, and an interesting time is expected. In behalf of the brethren,
L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Grove Meeting Fourth of July.

There will be a grove meeting held in Faysville, Mass., commencing Saturday, July 3d, at half past one o'clock P. M., and hold over Sunday, the 4th. The brethren and sisters scattered abroad are invited to come to this meeting and labor for the salvation of the unsaved. The grove is only a few rods from the depot on the B. C. and F. R. R. Call on Bro. and Sr. H. S. Woods, who will do what they can for the comfort of all. There will be those present who labor in word and doctrine to preach the word. For the brethren,
C. GOODRICH.

Tent Meeting.

The Massachusetts Mission Tent will be pitched on Nutter Hill, on High Street, near East Weymouth Village, Wednesday, June 16th, to remain probably over the Sabbath, as duty may demand. Brethren and friends in towns and villages near are requested to come and help us. Eld. A. A. Phelps, L. Boutell, J. C. Smith, with the writer, are expected to be present to preach the word.
ENOCH MORRILL.

Conference in Whitefield, Me.

The Quarterly Conference will be held in North Whitefield, commencing June 25th, at 2 P. M., and hold over Sunday. Come, ministers and laymen, to work for the Lord. Those coming in the cars on the Kennebeck, north or south, will stop at Gardiner. Write to S. K. Partridge, No. Whitefield, and he will send a team for you.
JER. PARTRIDGE, President.
S. K. PARTRIDGE, Clerk.

N. Y. State Mission Tent.

If the Lord will, the New York State Mission Tent will be pitched in Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Thursday, June 17th, 1869, and remain about three weeks. We commenced our tent meetings in the same place last year; the Lord blessed his truth to many hearts then, and we trust he will do so again. To this end we shall pray and labor.
J. WENDELL.

Tent Meeting.

The Maine Mission Tent will be pitched in Brewer Village, one mile and a half from Bangor, on land of Henry K. Robinson, to commence meetings Thursday evening, June 24th, and continue as may seem the will of the Lord. Friends coming up the river, or by cars, can take the stage from Bangor to the tent mornings and evenings. Will the friends of Jesus pray that the Lord may give great success in winning souls to Christ, and in building up the people of God in the faith and hope of the gospel?
I. C. WELLCOME.
F. A. BAKER.

Minnesota Campmeeting.

This meeting is appointed at Ottawa, to commence Sabbath, June 27th, continuing over Monday, July 5th. The State Conference will commence its annual session, June 24th, at the same place. As these meetings will be held thus in connection, we look for a season of special interest, and one in which all our strength shall be united to give new life and energy to the cause throughout the State. The committee are arranging for the comfort of all who attend, and we trust every part of the State, even to the extreme frontier, will be represented in this general gathering.

REDUCTION OF RAILROAD FARE.

Ottawa is situated about sixty miles south-west from St. Paul, on the St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad (formerly the Minnesota Valley,) which runs from St. Paul to Mankato.

Those coming by the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway will change cars at Mendota, where they will purchase tickets for Ottawa.

The fare on the St. Paul and Sioux City R. R. is reduced one-half, and when buying tickets for Ottawa be sure and ask for return tickets. Return tickets will be good for ten days.

A boarding table will be provided for those who do not choose to bring their own provisions, at a reasonable rate. Also feed for horses can be obtained on the ground.
EDWIN T. HIMES, Chairman Com.

Notice.

The State Campmeeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, to commence June 21st, 1869. The tent will be pitched Saturday, the 19th, for public meeting, on the same ground. There will be a grocery and boarding table kept on the ground by the committee, at reasonable rates; the proceeds to be used to defray the expenses of the meeting. Hay and straw and tent frames will be furnished free. There will be no reduction in the fare on the R. R. this year. Elder Miles Grant, Editor of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., is to be with us through the meeting.

Dear Brethren, we take this opportunity to invite you, one and all, to come to this yearly feast. Come early, and stay till the close of the meeting. Do not let the sacrifice of time and money prevent your coming. Bring your family, converted and unconverted. Prepare to make them comfortable, and work for God and the salvation of your children and others. You who live isolated, whose families are deprived of the gospel, are especially invited to come and get acquainted, and thereby may open a door into the regions beyond. Let all ministers come.
S. B. ENSIGN, Chairman.
W. H. PECK, Secretary of the Committee.

Notice.

Our Annual Grove Meeting, at East Springwater, on the Widow Morris farm, will commence at the school-house on Friday evening, June 25th, and in the grove June 26th, at two o'clock P. M. Let there be a general turn out to this meeting, and all those interested in Springwater and elsewhere, circulate the notice and prepare the grove.
For the Bru., C. F. SWEET.

P. S. Will Bro. John or Frank Morris meet me at Springwater Valley, on the 25th, at noon?

Notice.

The Lord willing, the annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held in connection with the State Campmeeting at New Hartford, Butler Co., the campmeeting to commence June 21st, 1869; the first session of conference to commence as early as the 23d. If ministers and delegates can be present, we should like to commence the 22d. All are cordially invited to attend. Ministers and delegates, please be punctual.
ALONZO RAYMOND, Clerk of Conf.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting in Foster, R. I., near the Hopkin's Mill, to commence June 26th, and hold over the fourth of July. Preaching brethren from abroad, come. Brethren and sisters, make a little sacrifice to get out to this meeting. It probably will be the last meeting of the kind you will ever have. Good homes for all who come from abroad.
E. BELLOWS.

Notice.

There will be a meeting in the grove of A. H. Smith, Wolcot, Conn., July 4th. Bro. A. Simpson will preach the word. Come, brethren and sisters, far and near. Let us once more raise our voices in praise of Him we love in this beautiful grove.
For the brethren, G. L. WHITE.

Conference.

Providence permitting, a conference meeting will commence at Brookfield, N. H., Friday, June 18th, at five o'clock, and hold over the following Sunday. Eld. Wm. H. Mitchell and others of the Lord's servants will be present to preach the word. Let us pray that God may greatly bless this meeting.
MARK STEVENS.

Conference.

The Lord willing, there will be a conference in Carthage, Me., commencing Thursday, five oclock, June 24th, and continue over the following Sabbath. Brethren, let us pray that God may greatly bless this meeting.
H. B. SEVEY.
E. M. HAGGETT.

Nova Scotia Conference.

There will be a general Advent Conference held at Bear River, Nova Scotia, commencing June 26th. A cordial invitation is extended to all the lovers of Jesus and his soon coming, especially to the preaching brethren.
JOHN MOORE.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The seventh annual Conference of the Advent Christian Church will be held (Providence not preventing) in Ottawa, commencing on Thursday, June 24th, at half past seven o'clock P. M., and will continue over the following Sunday.
THOS. K. ALLEN, Secretary.

Notice.

I have six hundred of "Death not Life" on hand, which I want scattered at tent and campmeetings this summer, and any brethren wishing some can have them at half price; $12.50 for one hundred; or, if postage has to be paid on any by the dozen, 15 cents per copy. I cannot send them out free, as for two years past, till I can obtain help to pay up $150, which I owe for printing those I have already given to spread truth. I purpose being east till the latter part of August, but orders sent to me at Buffalo will be filled. Ministers who want these and cannot send the money, can have them, and pay in the fall.
J. BLAIN.

To all whom it may Concern.

Please notice that the undersigned Missionaries have left the "Star of Hope Mission," though still engaged in Mission work. Friends writing us will please direct their letters—Care of G. W. Smith, No. 273, West 22d Street, New York City.
M. E. DOW.
R. S. MELLEN.
A. E. BENNETT,
(Danielsonville, Ct., for the present.)

Notice.

If any of our brethren desire to purchase a new fifty feet circular tent, I can direct them to a bargain.
WM. L. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich.

Notice.

The Advent people of this city (Providence), who desire a free gospel, have hired Wabossett Hall, No. 62 Wabossett Street, where they invite all God's servants who travel this way to give them a call, and preach the gospel of the kingdom, without regard to sect or party. Appointments may be sent to either of the committee, and brethren coming to the city from abroad, can call on either of the committee and find a home while they remain in the place. We are poor, but will do what we can to help brethren on their way. The brethren formerly worshiping at New Market Hall go with us, and we cordially invite all who desire a free meeting to come in with us and worship the Lord, and get ready for the coming kingdom.

Committee: J. FRENCH, No. 130 Carpenter St.; S. C. LORD, 46 Warren St.; JOHN C. MOULTON, 117 Smith Street.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

NEW MUSIC.

MY SHEPHERD.

The Lord my Shepherd is,
  No want I'll ever know;
He leadeth me in pastures green,
  Where the still waters flow.

He will my soul restore,
  And for his great Name's sake,
Safely in paths of righteousness
  A way for me he'll make.

Yea, though through death's dark vale
  My falt'ring feet may wend,
Though every earthly hope may fail,
  And every earthly friend;

No evil will I fear,
  For thou wilt be with me;
While on thy rod and staff I lean,
  They will my comfort be.

A table thou hast spread
  For me before my foes,
And while I feast on heavenly bread,
  Forgotten are my woes.

My cup by thee well filled,
  With blessings runneth o'er;
The oil of joy upon my head
  Thy bounteous hand doth pour.

Goodness and mercy shall
  Follow me all my days;
And in thy house I'll ever dwell,
  Thy glorious name to praise.

THOUGHTFUL SKETCHES.—No. 1.

THE WORLD BEFORE THE FLOOD.

The signs of the times, that were eminently calculated to arouse the antediluvians to the expectation of severe judgments to be poured out upon them, was in the first place their own wickedness, corruption and violence. For these things they were reproved and threatened by Enoch, the first prophet, who was the seventh from Adam, and was translated from earth to heaven by the miraculous power of God. We have in St. Jude an account of his manner of reproof, which strongly indicates that those times were highly fraught with fearful forebodings,—that great wrath that was in waiting for those abominable nations who had so thoroughly corrupted their ways in the earth. The manner in which he communicated his reproofs of their doings was no doubt at their public assemblies of riot, confusion, and idolatrous worship, where he in some commanding situation harangued and forewarned them of impending judgments, and said, "The Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all, for their ungodly speeches which they have spoken against him," namely, against the Lord God of Adam; for there is scarcely a doubt but they constantly reproached and reviled his name for what they might erroneously esteem severe in his conduct towards Adam and Eve, because he drove them out of Eden for their sins.

The local situation of Eden was most certainly well known to the antediluvians, for they must have frequently conversed with Adam concerning it, who had informed them of its delights, which must have inflamed them with a spirit of covetousness to possess it; but this being impossible, they raved against the Lord and spake injurious words against him on that account. Of their works therefore the holy Enoch reproved them, and perhaps told them if God had so severely judged Adam, they might not expect to escape some signal punishment; at which rebuke they were unquestionably enraged, and no doubt proceeded to lay violent hands upon him, to take away his life; but in the midst of their fury God caught him up from their sight.

He was a man in the prime of life, being three hundred and sixty-five years old when he was translated; but he had walked with God three hundred years, consequently was born again at the age of sixty-five. This holy man, who had been among them a preacher of righteousness as Noah was in after years, was translated in open sight, as was Elijah at the fords of Jordan. This circumstance should have been received by them as an evident sign that God sanctioned Enoch and condemned them. But what avail the signs of heaven with the ungodly? The translation of Enoch should have been to them as a voice from the Eternal, informing them that they were in imminent danger, since God had so suddenly and miraculously removed that good man from among them.

Not many years after the translation of Enoch there was given to the antediluvians another sign from heaven, which was the preaching of Noah; who declared to them that God had determined to destroy the earth by water. God had said to Noah, "The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence; and behold, I will destroy them with the earth." This was surely a novel doctrine, which was by no means worthy of the attention of the wise ones of that day, who probably began to philosophize upon the subject, and to say, How can this thing be, since the waters everywhere cleave to the lower parts of the earth, and cannot therefore climb the mountains, and from thence overflow the whole great globe? Neither is there water sufficient in the clouds of heaven, if every drop were drained, to flood this earth. They were not willing to suppose that God, who out of nothing made the globe, could as easily create an addition of water sufficient to drown this world.

Infidelity was a marked feature of the antediluvian world. False philosophy was about to be tested by God whom they openly blasphemed. And again, Why should he destroy us? they might say; surely we have done nothing to offend him; he is far from us and cares not what we do. It is beneath the notice of a God. But if he does, how can he find fault? Are we not as he would have us? Did he not create us? Just as mankind reason at the present day. If they continue in that fatal error, they will fall, not into a flood of water, but of fire, according to the Scriptures.

Hence Noah and his preaching were alike rejected, who took every opportunity to reform them and bring them to repentance, as Enoch had done before him; but, alas! without success. The people of that age are they to whom Christ preached by Noah in spirit, while they were in prison; which prison is to be understood as relating to the fact that they were under condemnation; for God had said, "The end of all flesh is come before me"; and the one hundred and twenty years in which Noah was building the ark is to be considered only as a respite of their lives from immediate death. Therefore during this time they are spoken of as prisoners, and under divine arrest. This idea is beautifully corroborated in Genesis, where it is written, "My Spirit shall not always strive with man, forasmuch as he is flesh; yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years"; in which Christ by his Spirit in Noah preached repentance to those nations, precisely as Christ by his Spirit preaches to the people by his ministers at the present day.

The strange news concerning a man whose name was Noah, had probably spread far and near; that he was in fact building a large vessel upon dry ground to save himself and family from drowning, excited, no doubt, a general curiosity to visit so strange a person, and to see his vessel and converse with him about it, and to ridicule his work of heedless precaution. Upon this principle it is reasonable to suppose that immense assemblies from time to time came to see him during the one hundred and twenty years, which opportunities this great preacher of righteousness improved to convince them of their sins, and assure them that he was not building this vast vessel, but at the express command of God for the saving of his house, and every species of beasts, that the earth should not be devastated when the flood should be dried up. In this way they were all warned of their danger; for God is just, and gives to every person time and opportunity, according to his day and ability, to secure a place at God's right hand.

But, says the objector, what if the antediluvians had all repented, or half of them only, at the preaching of Noah; would God have destroyed them? Most certainly not, but would have saved them as he did the great city of Nineveh, when they repented at the preaching of Jonah, though he had said positively, "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown." The threatenings and providences of God relating to man are always to be understood as conditional while man is a probationer.

But the building of the ark continued to progress, and the time drew nigh when the prophecies were to be fulfilled to his honor and everlasting renown, or to fall to the ground to his great shame and confusion. Doubtless he had suffered an abundance of ridicule for his strange preaching and his strange work, and perhaps added to that persecution; for they of his generation were a violent race of rebels against God, and had not his spiritual providence protected the ark, it is highly probable they would have burned it, as often as Noah with all his power could have built it. The ark at length was finished, and six days were allowed to Noah and his family to remove into it, and to bring the several kinds of animals, and put them in their places, and to store away food for man and beast; for on the seventh God would pour out his rains from heaven; for God had said, "Yet seven days and I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have made will I destroy from off the face of the earth." Gen. 7: 3.

How wonderful a sign was this. The huge vehicle stood finished in their sight, when from the hills and fields came all beasts, with fowls, by sevens, and by pairs, male and female, voluntarily, to the ark, and went in. Last of all Noah and his family went in, and God by his invisible hand shut and fastened the door. Perhaps at this time were gathered together an immense throng to see the strange spectacle of a man's shutting himself up on dry land to keep from drowning. How many jokes were perpetrated, and what yells of impious laughter went up to heaven, soon to be changed to tears and cries for mercy.

But the rising wind began to wail and sob, far to the south black clouds began to rise and scud along the heavens in frightful haste. From the north and from every point of the compass it was evident a dreadful storm was gathering; unusual thunders began to rive the heavens, and terrifying lightnings to flash around and light up the gathering gloom. Anon, the rains began to pour, the earth to tremble, the sea to spout its waters in tall cataracts to the stormy skies through the opening fissures of regions sinking to the depths beneath. But it is probable the millions of those countries thought this storm of short continuance, and would soon be passed, as other storms had done; and did not their learned philosophers say it was utterly impossible to get water enough to fill all the deep valleys of earth? False hope! But after several days of continual storm and anxious expectations that it would cease, their hopes began to fail them, and horror instead of hope possessed their souls, lest the prophecy of the pious Noah was coming true.

But there stood the steadfast ark in its place, the water already risen and involved its keel; everywhere the flood increased. The valleys it was evident were fast filling up. From the hills whole rivers began to pour, bearing the earth in many places with roaring fury to the plains. Terrors began to seize them, and fearful forebodings to shake their self-begotten confidence, while they fled from their houses or tents in all the country where they dwelt, to the nearest hills or mountains; but still the flood pursued, and in awful haste climbed up their sides, enveloped the tallest trees beneath in a deep of dreary waters, as far as the eye could reach. Nothing but one extended inundation could be seen; houses with all the works of men lay floating on its rippling tide, with beasts of every kind struggling in the waves with mighty death.

Far from the former haunts of men, on the mountain's rough and rugged side, were seen crowds of men, with feeble women and children, toiling up, disputing as they went, through the tangled woods; whole droves of fleeing beasts that bit and tore them as they went, each aiming at the highest point of land to save their precious lives. Oh, what a sight was this for pitying angels! While they climbed the weaker fell behind; worn down by the descending storm they fall, and roll downward to the black waves beneath, or sit in stark despair till the unpitying flood engulphs them in its foam. But the highest hills were sunk beneath the flood, and the race of men was extinct except the eight who now outrode the prevailing waters, safe in the wondrous ark, the labor of more than a hundred years, and perhaps of more than a hundred men. What songs of praise must have gone up from that ark, as Noah reviewed the scenes of his past life; how he trusted implicitly in the commands of God, and through long years of toil at last completed the gigantic vessel that now rode calmly on the shoreless ocean, steered by the same hand that directed all his movements.

Oh, who after reading God's dealings with the antediluvians, can doubt that there is an almighty hand at the helm, that deals in justice to all his creatures. J. L. HERSEY.

— Moral principles do not admit of compromise, having their foundation in the immutability of the divine nature. He, therefore, who affects to compromise them, affects to change the unchangeable God. Thus do men exhibit the greatness of their folly, and the extreme of wickedness.

THE IMPORTANCE OF CORRECT KNOWLEDGE.

The importance of correct knowledge cannot be over-estimated, and a deep appreciation of revelation is a christian characteristic to be eminently desired. If Protestant christendom attached half the importance to this as they do to building up the various sectarian bodies into which it is divided, our world would present a far different aspect. A correct knowledge of the mighty truths of revelation are of such importance that it should be sought for earnestly by every christian.

1. The apostle Paul clearly implies that such knowledge qualifies men for salvation. In writing to Timothy, his son in the gospel, he says: "From a youth up thou hast known the Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation." They can only make one "wise" by giving him knowledge of the way of salvation, and of the conditions upon which it can be obtained. Again, in writing to the church at Galatia, he refers to some professed gospel teachers who had imbibed and promulgated an erroneous doctrine concerning the resurrection of the dead, and, as a result, they overthrew the faith of those who had accepted it. As a future warning he tells them that "though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed."

The gospel presents the plan of God for the redemption of man; and he warns us against superseding it by any other system of doctrines; and though an angel from heaven should do this he would meet the certain and fearful wrath of Jehovah. He further informs us that he received not the gospel from men, nor was it taught him, but was delivered by the revelation of Jesus Christ.

2. Again, the importance of correct knowledge may be argued upon the ground that sincerity in the absence of truth is of no weight. God seeketh such to worship him as worship him in spirit and in truth. He acknowledges and accepts no worship which is contrary to his revealed truth. The Mohammedan, the Papist, and even the worse deluded heathen, attend to their devotions with a degree of sincerity that would be commendable in many Protestant denominations; but in the absence of gospel truth their sincerity is in vain. In order that we have not a "vain faith," it is highly important that we have correct knowledge of the gospel which unfolds the grand system of redeeming love for man's salvation, and God's wise purpose for the extermination of the blighting effects of human rebellion.

3. The value of correct knowledge also appears from the fact that doctrinal knowledge is the foundation of true religion. All true love to God, to Christ, and to man, has for its object something which the Bible teaches, and which is believed. Every exercise of humility and repentance arises from faith in the words of inspiration. Every degree of christian zeal and devotion is kindled up in view of the sublime truths of revelation. All christian duties arise from some doctrine taught in the Bible. The duty of loving God is based upon the doctrine that he is good; and because he is the best of all beings it becomes our duty to love him supremely. It is a christian duty to love our neighbor as ourselves, and to love our enemies and do good unto them; but these duties are founded upon our Savior's teachings. And thus we might pass through the whole catalogue of christian duties, and find their direct connection with the doctrines of the Bible. What is revelation but the doctrinal truths which are given to man? Through this medium God makes known his purpose in the creation of man, and acquaints him with his love, which was manifested in opening a way for his escape from certain and eternal death.

The doctrines of the Bible present the motives by which all its precepts are enforced. Salvation may be obtained by faith and obedience. A mere precept or command shows what ought to be done; but in order to influence intelligent, reasoning beings to perform the duties enjoined, other considerations must be presented. The doctrines of the Scriptures furnish the motives to influence such creatures to obey. They present the reasonableness of his requirements, and the goodness of his character; show them their obligation to obey, and present the reward of obedience and the certain punishment for rebellion and sin.

In consideration of these facts we see the importance of heeding the words of Jesus, to "search the Scriptures." Albert Barnes very appropriately remarks on this passage: "The word translated search here means to search diligently, or anxiously. It is applied to miners who search for precious metals; who look anxiously for the bed of the ore, with an intensity or anxiety proportionate to their sense of the value of the metal. . . . It means a diligent, faithful, anxious investigation." This degree of earnestness and zeal in the investigation of the Scriptures is to be eminently desired in these days, when so much is promulgated for truth that was born in the schools of heathen philosophy, and carefully reared in the habiliments of tradition.

Nothing, we believe, can be more important than to understand the great system of redeeming love put into operation for the salvation of perishing mortals; and for this purpose we should "search the Scriptures." This will exhibit the importance of the gospel itself, and present the necessity of its extensive and earnest promulgation, for the purpose of bringing man into that harmony with God which will eventually introduce him into the world of glory, where he will wear a crown of life. Oh that man would hasten to place himself under the saving influence of grace; for "by grace are ye saved." WM. H. SPENCER.

DO NOT TORMENT BY PRAYING!

Young and inconsiderate preachers often are a torment to the women by long praying. It is bad enough in meeting, and still worse at some other times. Not long since a good sister wished her husband to get another place for the preacher to stay, where they had no children. The reason was this: The last time the preacher was there they waited until late for him to get ready for breakfast, and then he read two chapters and explained as he went along, and then prayed very long, and urged the man to pray, which he did, short. Then he said, "Sister, pray." The sister had lost all spirit of devotion half an hour before that; for his table of unwashed dishes stood in the middle of the floor. Four children must be made ready for meeting as well as herself; the dinner for six to be put up, and then a ride of three miles to the meeting. If they were late with the preacher, the blame fell on the poor woman, who had been tormented all the morning by the slack, inconsiderate course of the preacher.

Do you wonder this sister wanted some one else to take this preacher home? Many other similar cases make a preacher a drug. Do just look at your watch, and see what the woman has to do, and not be a torment. If you have no judgment, borrow some, and do more good hereafter. H. MUNGER.

HYMN TO THE FLOWERS.

BY HORACE SMITH.

Day-stars! that ope your eyes with morn to twinkle,
  From rainbow galaxies of earth's creation,
And dewdrops on her lonely altars sprinkle
  As a libation!

Ye matin worshipers! who, bending lowly
  Before the uprisen sun—God's lidless eye—
Throw from your chalices a sweet and holy Incense on high!

Ye bright mosaics! that with storied beauty
  The floor of Nature's temple tessellate,
What numerous emblems of instructive duty
  Your forms create.

Neath cloistered boughs, each floral bell that swingeth
  And tolls its perfume on the passing air,
Makes Sabbath in the fields, and ever ringeth
  A call to prayer.

Not to the domes where crumbling arch and column
  Attest the feebleness of mortal hand,
But to that fane, most catholic and solemn,
  Which God hath planned.

To that cathedral, boundless as our wonder,
  Whose quenchless lamps the sun and moon supply—
Its choir the winds and waves, its organ thunder,
  Its dome the sky.

There—as in solitude and shade I wander
  Through the green aisles, or, stretched upon the sod,
Awed by the silence, reverently ponder
  The ways of God—

Your voiceless lips, O flowers, are living preachers,
  Each cup a pulpit, and each leaf a book,
Supplying to my fancy numerous teachers
  From loneliest nook.

Floral apostles! that in dewy splendor
  "Weep without woe, and blush without a crime,"
O may I deeply learn, and ne'er surrender
  Your lore sublime!

"Thou wert not, Solomon, in all thy glory
  Arrayed," the lilies cry, "in robes like ours;
How vain your grandeur! Ah, how transitory
  Are human flowers!"

In the sweet-scented pictures, Heavenly Artist!
  With which thou paintest Nature's widespread hall,
What a delightful lesson thou impartest
  Of love to all.

Not useless are ye, flowers! though made for pleasure;
  Blooming o'er field and wave, by day and night,
From every source your sanction bids me treasure
  Harmless delight.

Ephemeral sages! what instructors hoary
  For such a world of thought could furnish scope?
Each fading calyx a memento mori,
  Yet fount of hope.

Posthumous glories! Angel-like collection!
  Upraised from seed or bulb interred in earth,
Ye are to me a type of resurrection,
  And second birth.

Were I, O God, in churchless lands remaining,
  Far from all voice of teachers or divines,
My soul would find, in flowers of thy ordaining,
  Priests, sermons, shrines!

REMARKABLE WORKS.

Nineveh was fifteen miles long, eight wide, and forty round, with a wall one hundred feet high, and thick enough for three chariots abreast.

Babylon was fifty miles within the walls, which were seventy-five feet thick, and three hundred feet high, with one hundred brazen gates.

The Temple of Diana, at Ephesus, was four hundred and twenty feet to the support of the roof. It was one hundred years in building.

The largest of the pyramids is four hundred and eighty-one feet high and six hundred and fifty-three on the sides; its base covers eleven acres. The stones are about thirty feet long, and the layers are three hundred and eight. It employed three hundred and thirty thousand men in building.

The Labyrinth in Egypt contains three hundred and thirty chambers, and twelve halls.

Thebes, in Egypt, shows ruins twenty-seven miles round, and one hundred gates.

Carthage was twenty-three miles round.

Athens was twenty-five miles round, and contained three hundred and fifty thousand citizens, and four hundred thousand slaves.

The Temple of Delphos was so rich in donations that it was plundered of five hundred thousand dollars, and Nero carried away from it two hundred statues.

The walls of Rome were thirteen miles around.—Selected by J. N. B.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to apply the epithet, "old man," or "old woman," to a parent or an employer.

It is not polite to sweep the sidewalk when persons are passing immediately in front of you.

It is not polite, when you borrow an article of a neighbor, to request him to send it to you.

It is not polite to take a book or a newspaper from the hands of another, who has merely stopped reading it for a moment or two.

It is not polite to speak pompously or extravagantly for the purpose of calling attention to yourself.

It is not polite to read aloud in the presence of those who wish to read or converse themselves.

It is not polite to thrust your opinion before those who have no respect for you or them.

It is not polite to make a boast of entertaining sentiments averse to religion, or to be indifferent to the conscientious scruples of your friends.

It is not polite to write a letter of inquiry respecting your own business, and not enclose a stamp to pay the postage of the return letter.

It is not polite when called upon to address a public assembly, to advance peculiar opinions in such a manner as to displease your hearers.

It is not polite for several persons to stand conversing in the door-way of a public store.

It is not polite to go with hands or nails uncleaned; or to sit down to breakfast with face and hands unwashed, and hair uncombed.

It is not polite to clean your nails in company.

It is not polite for ladies to wear dresses so long that people are continually stepping upon them.

It is not polite to send a card, or circular, or an advertisement, to another, and subject him to the postage of even one penny.

It is not polite to wash your windows in such a manner as to spatter water on passers by.

It is not polite to throw parings on the sidewalk. Persons have frequently fallen, and been injured for life, by stepping on orange peel.

It is not polite to slander a neighbor, or listen to a slander.

It is not polite to make use of low or vulgar expressions. A person of refined manners is never guilty of using expressions like these,—hain't, his'n, tain't, hadn't ought, and similar words.

— There is no note in the harp of Gabriel more welcome to Jehovah than the cry of a penitent for mercy, or the supplications of a child of grace.

— Carry yourselves submissively toward your superiors; friendly towards your equals; condescending to your inferiors; generous toward your enemies, and loving to all.

— Do the Lord's work in the Lord's time. Pray while God hears; hear while God speaks; believe while God promises; obey while God commands.

— Sickness should teach us what a vain thing the world is, what a vile thing sin is, what a poor thing man is, and what a precious thing an interest in Christ is.

THE SEPARATE PEOPLE.

1. God's people cannot be associated with the people of this world, except in so far as God in his peculiar providence places them together for wise reasons, viz: for the disciplining of his children, and for the recovery and salvation of the impenitent.

2. To suppose that a christian and a worldling can associate together from choice because of a congeniality or naturally affinity between them, is to to suppose an impossibility. "What communion hath righteousness with unrighteousness?" The christian loves holiness; the worldling loves sin. The christian loves prayer; the worldling has no interest in prayer. The christian follows Christ; the worldling follows the instincts of his own depraved nature. The christian lives to God and for heaven; the worldling lives to himself and the world. The christian loves holy associations; the worldling vain amusements. The christian is in the narrow way of life; the worldling is in the broad way of death. How can there be any union or communion between them? How true the common saying, "Birds of a feather flock together." The christian, because he is a child of God, necessarily chooses the children of God, and only them, for his associates. He associates with others only in the following cases: first, when the fixed relations of life necessarily place him more or less in their society; second, when such associations are important to a certain extent for the carrying on of necessary business; and, third, when he has a reasonable hope of doing them good. Otherwise than in these three cases he leaves them alone in their evil ways, and seeks out for his acquaintance and friendship the blessed children of God. We only tread upon sure ground, when we can say with the Psalmist, "All my delight is in the saints that are upon earth, and in such as excel in virtue." All voluntary intimacies and friendships, in order to be pleasing to God and profitable to the heart, must be formed within the warm and radiant circle of holiness; otherwise they are poisonous and destructive.

3. Hear St. James, "Ye adulterers and adulteressses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity to God? Whosoéver thereforewill be a friend of the world is the enemy of God."

Let us consider what it is which the apostle here means by the world. He evidently does not refer to this outward frame of things, termed in Scripture, heaven and earth; but to the inhabitants of the earth; the children of men; or, at least, the greater part of them. But what part? This is fully determined both by our Lord himself, and by his beloved disciple.

First, by our Lord himself. His words are, "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you. If ye were of the world, the world would love its own; but because ye are not of the world, therefore the world hateth you. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you. And all these things will they do unto you, because they know not him that sent me."—John 15: 18, etc. You see here "the world" is placed on one side, and those who "are not of the world" on the other. They whom God has "chosen out of the world;" viz., by sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth;" are set in direct opposition to those whom he has not chosen. Yet again: "Those who know not him that sent me," saith our Lord; who know not God; they are "the world."

Equally express are the words of the beloved disciple: "Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you; we know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren."—1 John 3: 13. As if he had said, You must not expect that any should love you, but those that have "passed from death unto life." It follows, those that are not "passed from death unto life," that are not alive to God, are "the world." The same we may learn from those words in the fifth chapter, verse 19. "We know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in the wicked one." Here "the world" plainly means those that are not of God; and who, consequently, "lie in the wicked one. Those, on the contrary, are of God," who love God, or, at least, "fear him, and keep his commandments."

Fix in your heart, then, this plain meaning of the term "the world;" those who do not thus fear God, and work righteousness before him. Let no man deceive you with vain words; it means neither more nor less than this.

Those, therefore, who affiliate with the world, with persons who "know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ," who sympathize with them in their worldly feelings and principles are, ipso facto, enemies of God. How corrupt before heaven are those who, even to a limited extent, affiliate with the vain and wicked spirit of this world. According to the oracles of God, friendship with the world is no less than spiritual adultery. All who are guilty of it are addressed by the Holy Ghost in these terms: "Ye adulterers and adulteresses." It is plainly violating our marriage contract with God; by loving the creature more than the Creator; in flat contradiction to that kind command, "My son, give me thy heart."—The Methodist."

A LITTLE INCIDENT.

A few evenings ago I went down to town to sit an hour with a very intimate friend. I rang the door-bell, and was without ceremony invited into the family-room. Soon after being seated, the little ones began to prepare for bed; after being clothed in their night-dresses, each one went and kneeled by their mother, and said their little prayer. The two youngest, a little girl and boy—one perhaps about five years old, and the other three—kissed their mother good-night, and got into their little bed where they usually slept. Presently I heard the little girl cry out, "Mother, Johnny, struck me! Johnny replied, "Katy struck me first!" The mother said to them, "Lie down and go to sleep; I will settle with you."

In the government of my own children, I try to reason with them, and make an appeal to their feelings. I have generally been successful in making them yield. I thought I would try it with those two. I turned to the little boy and said to him, "Johnny, I am very sorry you struck your little sister. I did not think you ever did such a naughty thing. God is sorry too. God does not love little boys that fight their sisters. God never made those little hands to fight little sisters. Now, Johnny, you have just said your prayers, and asked God to take care of you through the night. Now, if you want God to love you, you must be sorry for striking your little sister, and ask him to forgive you."

The little fellow had never taken his eyes off of me; he looked as though he was trying to fathom my very soul. Suddenly his eye fell. He jumped out of bed, ran to his mother, kneeled by her side, and with his little head hidden in her lap, burst into tears, and cried out, "Muddy, I want to ask Dod to fordive me for trikin my tister Katy." The mother, with tears streaming down her face told him what to say. He arose from his knees, and went sobbing to his bed.

All this time I had said nothing to Katy; but she had been an attentive listener, and by the time Johnny got back to his bed, Katy was up, with her arms around her mother's neck, sobbing and crying as if her heart would break. She said: "Mother, I struck Johnny first. I want God to love me, and I want to ask him to forgive me, too." She then knelt down by her mother and asked God to forgive her, arose and kissed us all, and went to bed happy.

"GET THE HENCE, SATAN."

A little girl sat upon the large stone doorstep of her father's house, and beside her was a boy about the same age. He had been eating a fresh, rosy apple, and had thrown the core into the gutter beyond the walk, and watched it as the muddy water carried it from his sight; then turning back to his playmate, who seemed absorbed in the pictures of a new book, he said:

"Give me a bite of your apple, Katie: mine's all gone."

"Not now; wait till I eat it," was the abstracted reply.

But the voracious little fellow, not quite content to wait, took the apple up, turned it round and round, smelled at it a little, and then began to toss it lightly in his hands, each time catching it again. I expected to see his teeth go into it; but he was too honest for that. At last it dropped from his chubby hands, and rolled across the walk into the gutter, and it was borne away.

His exclamation brought the large eyes of the little girl upon him. The rich blood mounted her brow; and with a spring she was upon her feet, with one hand raised, apparently to strike the shrinking form beside her. But it did not fall; and as she stood, her hair thrown back, the hand poised in the air, the whole face and form showing a struggle within, I prayed that she might not be too strongly tempted. A moment more, and the clear, triumphant tones of her voice fell on my ear:

"Get thee hence, Satan! get thee hence!"

The mother within the door heard the sound, too, and coming to them, asked the meaning.

Again a blush mantled the noble brow of the child, but it was humility and shame that caused it, while with slightly drooping head, she answered:

"Satan wanted me to strike Freddie—but I didn't."

The mother drew her within her arms, and kissed her, saying:

"That is right, my child; resist him, and he will flee from you."

Would that all might learn in childhood to resist the power of temptation with the Holy Spirit's help! Truly the world would be better for it.—Christian Banner.

GOD'S BLESSING ON THE DANCE.

Elizabeth, who had been taught better things, was arrayed in the garb of fashion, and ready for the amusement of the ball-room. As she stood at the glass, placing the last rose amid her clustered locks, she hastily turned around and said to me, "Why, what makes you look so sad? What is the matter? Come, do not be sad any more. Put this rose in my hair and see how pretty it will look."

I kissed her cheek; and as I bade her good night, whispered, "Can you ask God's blessing on the dance, Elizabeth?" She gave a quick, earnest look, and hurried down the steps.

At an earlier hour than usual, I heard Elizabeth's voice at the door. I was up stairs, and when I went down I found she had retired to her room. I followed her thither, wishing to see her a few moments before I slept. She supposed all the family had retired, and her door was unlocked. I entered, and found her on her knees before God, her hands uplifted and her streaming eyes raised to heaven. "Hear my prayer, O Lord, I beseech thee, and let my cry come before thee," was her language.

I returned to her room in about half an hour, and welcomed her home.

"Yes," said she, "I have got home. In that bewildered ball-room I danced with the merriest, and laughed with the loudest; but there was an arrow here," and she laid her hand on her heart.

"God's blessing on the dance!' Those words rang in my ear at every turn. Oh, if God will forgive the past—if he will yet receive me, I will turn my back upon all this gilded folly, and lay upon his altar what I once promised to lay there—my whole heart."

We kneeled together and asked God to strengthen the resolution now made in his name. Our prayers have been heard; for among the group of lovely disciples who keep near the Lord, walking in his footsteps and bearing his cross, few are more humble, meek, modest, consistent, and devoted, than the once gay and thoughtless Elizabeth G.

THE OLD WOMAN'S BLESSING.

Kind acts often have an unexpected reward, as the following story shows.

A gentleman was once passing through a village, and happened to see a poor, feeble old woman let her stick fall, and stand a moment in perplexity, not knowing whether she dared to stoop to pick it up, or attempt to reach her home without it.

Just by the spot where the accident happened a group of boys were playing at marbles. Some of them took no notice; others rudely marked the poor old woman's distress, but one kind-hearted lad threw down his marbles, ran to her assistance, and helped her into her house. She thanked him and said,

"God Almighty's blessing be upon you for your kindness to a poor old woman!"

The gentleman saw and heard the whole, and made inquiry after the lad, in whom he felt deeply interested. He found that he was already in the Sunday School, and in all probability, had there learned the Scriptures, that inculcate reverence to the aged.

From that time he had him instructed in writing and accounts at an evening school.

When old enough, he assisted in apprenticing him, and in course of time had the satisfaction of seeing him a respectable and flourishing tradesman.

So much for the old woman's blessing, or rather the Lord's blessing in answer to the old woman's prayer. In this case the connection was direct, and the kind act brought an abundant reward.

How many poor old mothers spend their wakeful hours in the night in earnest prayer to God. Let us show kindness to the aged and the helpless, and the blessing of those who are ready to perish will surely fall upon our heads.—The Christian.

LITTLE CHILDREN PRAYING.

A little boy in Jamaica called on the missionary, and stated that he had lately been very ill, and often wished his minister had been present to pray with him.

"But, Thomas," said the missionary, "I hope you prayed yourself."

"O, yes, sir."

"Well, but how did you pray?"

"Why, sir, I begged."

A child six years old, in a Sunday school, said, "When we kneel down in the schoolroom to pray, it seems as if my heart talked to God."

A little girl about four years of age, being asked, "Why do you pray to God?" replied, "Because I know he hears me, and I love to pray to him."

"But how do you know he hears you?"

Putting her little hand to her heart, she said, "I know he does, because there is something here that tells me so."—Child's World.

NEVER BE HAUGHTY.

A humming bird met a butterfly, and being pleased with the beauty of its person and glory of its wings, made an offer of perpetual friendship.

"I cannot think of it," was the reply, "as you once spurned me, calling me a drawling dolt."

"Impossible!" exclaimed the humming bird. "I always entertain the highest respect for such beautiful creatures as you."

"Perhaps you do now," said the other; "but when you insulted me I was a caterpillar. So let me give you a piece of advice; never insult the humble, as they may some day become your superiors.

A GOOD RULE.—A certain man, who is very rich now, was very poor when he was a boy. When asked how he got his riches, he said, "My father taught me never to play till my work was finished, and never spend my money until I had earned it. If I had but an hour's work in a day, I must do that the first thing, and in an hour. And after this I was allowed to play: and then I could play with much more pleasure than if I had the thought of an unfinished task before my mind. I early formed the habit of doing everything in time, and it soon became easy to do so. It is to this I owe my prosperity."

A CLERGYMAN asked some children, "Why do we say in the Lord's Prayer, 'Who art in heaven,' since God is everywhere?" He saw a little drummer who looked as if he could give an answer, and turned to him for it. "Well, little soldier, what say you?" "Because it's headquarters."

"GATHER THEM THERE."

Tune.—"Beautiful Zion."

Gather them there, the good and the blest,
Gather the weary ones to their rest,
Gather the faithful, gather the pure,
Gather us all on Canaan's fair shore.
Come, blessed Jesus, oh come very soon,
Come, and gather the weary ones home.

Gather the saints in every land,
Gather those buried in the ocean's sand,
Gather those martyred for the love they bore,
Gather us all, free from sin evermore.
Come, blessed Jesus, oh come very soon,
Come, and gather the faithful home.

Gather our sleeping ones from the grave,
Gather to Him who is mighty to save,
Gather the righteous in Eden's fair land,
There to sing with the angelic band.
Come, blessed Jesus, oh come very soon,
Come, and gather the loved ones home.

Gather us all from the power of death,
Gather the meek upon the new earth,
Gather them in that golden street,
Gather them at the Savior's feet.
Come, blessed Jesus, oh come very soon,
Come, and gather thy jewels home.

THE NEW BIRTH.

John 3 : 3 : 8,—"Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto you, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit."

A great amount of darkness has pervaded the popular theology on the subject of the new birth, which might, and indeed ought to be dispelled by the divine illumination of the gospel of Christ. It may not be an easy task to make the subject distinctly understood, from the fact that minds have so long cherished the common tradition, that the popular view has become a kind of second nature; it is therefore difficult to induce a thought outside of the old beaten path; not the old path the apostles trod, but the pathway taken en route from Papal superstition's gloom. We may not expect to accomplish all of such a work at a single blow; but there is light in the gospel on this subject,—light which, if its rays can be brought to bear directly on the question, must dispel the mist which has for ages shrouded this subject, and has effectually covered the truth from the gaze of men, and driven many thinking minds to skepticism. The people have long been taught that the new birth must be experienced here, in order to enter the kingdom of God. This conversion and new birth have been regarded as one and the same thing; hence, when individuals have been hopefully converted, it has been common to say that such have "been born into the kingdom of God." If, indeed, conversion and the new birth are the same thing, or change, we would have no objection to the position; but we judge they are not; hence must regard such conclusions and remarks as unscriptural and fabulous, and eminently calculated to mislead the honest inquirer after truth, and obscure the glorious doctrine of life and immortality through Jesus Christ. It also tends to pervert a correct view of the kingdom of God with its subjects, and to engender some of the most erroneous theories in regard to the final home and rest of the church of God. We shall not at this time attempt to define and trace those errors, but, chiefly from our text, show that the new birth is not realized in time; that it is not conversion, but regeneration.

The true character of the new birth is brought out in the Savior's conversation with Nicodemus, and is made so plain that, with proper care, we need not mistake its import, and the time when it is to be realized.

Nicodemus, it would seem, was a devout man (not a skeptic, as some have supposed), who had made religion his study, in so far that he was a master in Israel. It was very evident, also, that he confided in his religious views, and by consequence was presumptuously supposing that he had a right to the kingdom of God, for he understood that the kingdom was to be here. It was the gross and carnal views held by the Jews concerning the kingdom of God, which led to the rejection of the Messiah. Nicodemus doubtless held the common view; but as the question of the kingdom was being agitated by one who, in the estimation of many, taught as never man taught, he came to Jesus by night to inquire upon the subject more perfectly, saying, "We know that thou art a man sent from God," etc. The inquiry was upon the subject of the kingdom, as fully appears from the first remark of the Savior, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." This remark most effectually nonplussed Nicodemus, for he had expected to see and realize the kingdom of God here, when the Messiah should be revealed. Nicodemus is also put in doubt of the saying, for being in common conversation with the Master, face to face, he evidently understood the Savior literally, and hence refers directly to his natural birth,—"How can a man be born when he is old?" etc., still confining the thought to this state. Jesus explains: "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God."

The Savior does not say a man cannot hope for the kingdom without this birth, but he cannot enter it. Still, the character of this required birth is undefined; so that Nicodemus could not understand without still further explanation. While the Savior does not rebuke the reference of Nicodemus to the first birth, or even require him to become more ethereal in his mode of thought, he advances with the thought of natural birth on the mind of his pupil. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh," etc.; that is, the first Adam was of the earth, earthy; and all who descend from him by ordinary generation are of the flesh (earth), and are earthy; "and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," or spiritual. Here are two births contrasted; and as Nicodemus could justly conceive of the first birth, or birth of the flesh; so now, with the explanation here given, he could form a clear conception of the second or new birth,—the birth of the Spirit. It was not necessary to inform this master in Israel that he owed his existence to the first birth, or that he held his life under Adam, being born of the flesh; all this he distinctly understood; so now, when told that he as a man must be born again or never enter the kingdom of God,—must be born, not of the flesh, but of water and the Spirit,—he could not fail to perceive that the life to come (second life) was made dependent on the second birth, and was as indispensable to the life to come as the first birth is to the present life.

Again, at a glance, he could discover that the kingdom of God was to be enjoyed in the second life and after the new birth; for it is only entered by being born again. Whether the true idea of being born of water and of the Spirit was clear to his mind or not, the fact that to be born again introduced him to a new existence, was to him a common sense thought. No doubt the declaration astonished him, and he was at a loss to know what the character of that existence would be, when the Savior advances by saying, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again"; as if he had said, I will explain: "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit." This is the nature of that existence which is to be reached by being born again; such will be a life in the kingdom of God; for until such a nature as is here described as the consequence of being born again is obtained, none can enter therein. This description of the new birth is uniformly applied to the operation of the Spirit; i. e., the Spirit's action in the conversion of sinners is compared to the wind, it is said, so that you cannot tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth.

But observe, it is not the Spirit which is compared with the wind. 1st. It is affirmed that men must be born again, or never enter the kingdom of God. 2nd. The being born again is defined not to be of the flesh, but of the water and of the Spirit. 3d. It is stated that as "the wind bloweth where it listeth," etc., "so is every one that is born of the Spirit," or born again. As really as the Savior teaches that men must be born again, so really, when born, their action in that existence is compared to the wind. But it is argued that this means conversion, and refers to the joys, etc., of the christian, produced by the operation of the Spirit.

To prove that this birth means conversion, it would be important to produce one individual, at least, whose action (motion) is like the wind; i. e., so far as compared by the Savior. Until such is demonstrated to be the effect of conversion, it is not safe to call it the new birth; nay, more, it is essentially unscriptural. Conversion is the being begotten to a lively hope of the kingdom. Such are begotten by the word of life. To be born of the water can be nothing else but the being baptized into Christ's death,—the being buried with him by baptism in a figure, and in a figure being resurrected or born to a new life, not in fact, but in faith. In this life, therefore, the christian is only in a begotten state, and all the church are groaning for deliverance. For, with all that religion can do for us here, we must die, except prevented by the coming of Christ, in which event we must be changed to another existence, or never see the kingdom of God. The resurrection, therefore, or a change at the coming of Christ, is the new birth the gospel proposes, and nothing short of this should ever be taught as the being born again. None can enter the kingdom of God except they are born again. The new birth is the resurrection or change at Christ's second coming; therefore the kingdom of God is in the immortal, resurrection state; so that there will not only be no heathen nations and sinners in the kingdom of God, but there will be none but immortals there, for "except a man be born again, he cannot" "enter into the kingdom of God."

We will proceed to sustain this position by other scriptures, and show the bearing which this glorious truth has upon the more important doctrines of the restitution. By the first birth, or being born of the flesh, we have mortal or Adamic life, which life is forfeited by our first parents. In this existence the blood is the life (Gen. 9 : 4); hence the conclusion of the apostle Paul—"Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption."—1 Cor. 15 : 50. Without a new life, a new existence, therefore, none can inherit the kingdom of God, as we have before shown. The new birth will introduce all who experience it to that new life and existence, as really as the first birth introduces the human race to the present existence. The present existence is mortal, because the life is the blood; but the new existence will be immortal, because the life will be the Spirit; hence, to be born of the Spirit is to be made immortal; therefore the new birth is IMMORTALITY.

All that the Savior taught relative to the work to be wrought for man at his second coming, he took care to illustrate in a manner calculated to beget the fullest confidence of the church in his truthfulness and ability to perform what he promised. Does he teach that the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live? He demonstrates his preaching. See him at the grave of Lazarus; he calls: "Lazarus"! Does he hear? does he live? Lazarus came forth bound hand and foot in his grave-clothes. Mark, Lazarus came not from glory, but from the corruption of the grave. Again: does the prophet teach that the blind shall see, the deaf hear, the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing, in the coming existence? A pledge of all this is given by the Savior, in that something of all these mighty works were accomplished at the first advent; enough, at least, to show every man who believes the gospel that he is coming the second time to do (not a spiritual, but) a real work. Does he teach, as in the case of Nicodemus, that to enter the kingdom of God mankind must be born again? That birth is illustrated by his own birth to the same proposed existence.

The Savior, in order to become a sacrifice for sin, took not on him the nature of angels, but the seed of Abraham; i. e., in order to die he must take a mortal existence; immortality never dies. His life was his blood; hence, to shed his blood was to give his life, and hence the virtue of the blood of Christ,—it is his life given for all. If, therefore, it is a Bible truth that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, as Jesus was flesh and blood,—was the Son of man, as well as the Son of God,—in order for him, as the Son of man, to inherit the kingdom, the humanity must be born again, must have a new, or immortal life. Therefore, when the Savior gave his life (his blood) for the sins of the world, he gave it to resume it no more forever. He poured out his soul (life) unto death, and the life of the first birth was forever relinquished. Thus he was put to death in the flesh (for that born of the flesh is flesh), but quickened (born) by the Spirit. In this birth to a new or immortal life, Christ is the first-born among many brethren. Rom. 8 : 29,—"For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren." He also became the first in the new birth of every creature. Col. 1 : 15,—"Who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature." That these texts refer to his resurrection, as the being born again, is determined positively by verse 18: "And he is the head of the body, the church; who is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." Thus, the resurrection of Christ to a new existence, by the Spirit of God, is an illustration of the new birth of all his brethren, or all the saints. Christ was the begotten Son of God from his conception to his crucifixion; and if Paul was correct (Rom. 1 : 4), "And declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead." In the new birth he is before Abraham, and when all his children are thus born, he will be the everlasting Father.

Again. Does the Savior teach that "the wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit"? The same truth is demonstrated after his resurrection. Being born again from the dead, while the eleven disciples were in a private room, the doors being shut, of a sudden Jesus stood in the midst; but none could tell how he came there, for the doors were all shut. Poor, desponding, unbelieving Thomas was there, who had just affirmed that he would not believe in the resurrection of Christ unless he could put his fingers into the print of the nails, and thrust his hand into his side. All was right, for we shall now see if this was the very Christ. Said Jesus, "Thomas, reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side; and be not faithless, but believing." Notwithstanding he came into the room like the wind, and none could tell whither he went. This is the character of that existence connected with the new birth. But it is said this was a spiritual body, meaning a sort of gas-body in form, without substance. But the unbelief of Thomas has settled this matter. Said Jesus, "Handle me, . . . for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have." No blood mentioned, for his blood was shed once for all; but here is his flesh and bones quickened, born of the Spirit; the Spirit supplying, in that life, the place of blood in this; and this same Jesus now comes and goes like the wind, unperceived. Show us one who can thus do, and we will believe such an one is born again. The new birth of the saints is to be like that of their living Head. Christ, being the first-born among many brethren, becomes the first fruits of the general harvest, or resurrection. The birth of Christ from the dead is—

1st. A pledge of the birth of all who are his.

2nd. His birth is a sample of the new birth of all his saints.

3d. As Christ appeared after his resurrection, so will all the church appear when they shall have been born again.

Proof—1st position. 1 Cor. 6 : 14,—"And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power." 2 Cor. 4 : 14,—"Knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you." Rom. 8 : 11,—"But, if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead be in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." 1 Thess. 4 : 14,—"For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." 2nd and 3d positions. 1 John 3 : 2,—"Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." Phil. 3 : 20, 21,—"For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself."

Many more scriptures might be quoted directly in point, but these must suffice, as the positions above named are recognized in the gospel in such a variety of expressions, already before the mind of the gospel student. This new birth is the regeneration, and we have been taught that the regeneration must be experienced here, on the same principle that the new birth must be realized here. The proof uniformly offered, is the answer of Christ to Peter as follows:

"Then answered Peter, and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore? And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Matt. 19 : 27, 28.

The comma here read after "have followed me," is read in the common translation after the word regeneration, thus conveying the idea that the disciples followed Christ in the regeneration; but no such thought is intended by the Savior; for if regeneration means conversion, as the same position teaches, such a theory proves the Savior to have been a sinner, and to have passed through conversion before his disciples. The disciples had left all the comforts of life and home to follow Christ in the execution of their commission, and Peter now inquires, what is to be their reward? Jesus answers, "Ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Thus Peter is shown that the church is not to be rewarded until the regeneration, and that the regeneration is not until the Son of man shall sit upon the throne of his glory. This is at his second Advent. See Matt. xxv. 31.

By the generation of the first Adam we have the present life and existence, so also by the REGENERATION of the second Adam, we shall reach the future life and existence. As in the generation of the flesh, the begotten state precedes the birth, so the saints are first begotten by the word of truth, and in the resurrection born by the Spirit's power, they are then, and not till then, regenerated.

Again, the regeneration is a state, and the new birth will bring us into that state. That state is the world, age, dispensation to come. When Christ, being born from the dead, had ascended to the Father's right hand, he said, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold I am alive forevermore, amen; and have the keys of death and of hell." Christ dieth no more. Of the resurrection, Christ said, "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.—Luke 20 : 35, 36. But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, age, or dispensation, etc. Here age, or dispensation, presents a state, as is clearly shown by the declaration of the Savior, that in that age, or state, "they neither marry nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more." Please mark this fact, for the world thus obtained is the world, (age) to come. All therefore who obtain that state, age, or dispensation, must be born again, for the new birth is the introduction to that state. That state is the age to come; therefore in the age to come there will be no marriage; hence, none born of the flesh; hence, no more dying, for such as are worthy to obtain the age to come, can die no more.

Finally, all that are accounted worthy to obtain the age to come, are the children of God, BEING THE CHILDREN OF THE RESURRECTION. There can be no change in that state, for the new birth introduces to immortal life, and immortality is an undying, unchanging quality. This age to come is the kingdom of God. To enter it, all must be born again. In it, all are the children of God. In it, none marry, none die; all are like Christ, because on all, on every thing, is the broad, abiding seal of immortality. Let the new birth be understood and taught as it is, and the gospel will be as much lighter than the prophecies, as the sun is lighter than the moon.

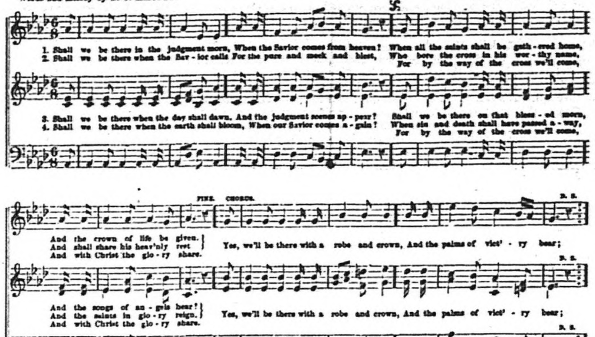
SHALL WE BE THERE?

Words and melody by B. C. SIMONDS. Arranged by GEO. E. LEE.



For the World's Crisis.

IS IT "THUS SAITH THE LORD"?

Is what "thus saith the Lord"? That the world will be converted before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord, as many theologians and other eminent men tell us? When Jesus was on earth, did he preach the world's conversion prior to his second coming? He said: "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword; for I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."—Matt. 10 : 34, 35. Not that it was the Savior's will that such a division as presented in the above should arise in families; but that he knew, when one or more of a family embraced the christian religion, that those of the same family, who were not thus converted, would be opposed to those who were. Thus the reader will discover that Jesus did not come for the express purpose of making discord; but while his coming would be to one the savor of death unto death, to the other it would be the savor of life unto life. 2 Cor. 2 : 16.

Perhaps the reader will imagine that the Savior meant that such a state of things would exist only during the apostolic age; and that, as the gospel progressed, the world would get better and better, until all would know the Lord from the least unto the greatest; that every house would become a house of prayer; that the glory of the Lord would fill the earth as the waters the great deep. Did Paul believe that the world would be thus converted prior to the Savior's second appearing? Read his charge to Timothy: "I charge thee, therefore, before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine."—2 Tim. 4 : 1–2. Why was Paul so earnest in charging Timothy to preach, reprove, rebuke, and exhort? "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine."—Ver. 3. The reader will discover that Paul thus charged Timothy for the reason that he knew the time would come when they would reject the truth. And what else would they do? "And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."—Ver. 4.

In Paul's second letter to Timothy, 3d chap., did he predict that the world in the last days would be in a state of peace? Hear him: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come." Will love, and honesty, and submission to parents increase? Read on: "For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy." Will there be sympathy? and shall we be able to rely on the promises of men generally? Will they become more chaste? Let us hear him further: "Without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good."

Will people become more loyal? will they become humble? will they love righteousness, and love God? Paul goes on to say they will be "traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." Will the church in some future time be free from hypocrites? Paul continues: "Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." Did Paul say that men would get better and better? Read 2nd Tim. 3 : 13;—"But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."

Will the Lord's flock upon earth be a large one? Read Luke 12 : 42;—"Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." How will it be when Jesus comes? Read Matt. 24 : 37;—"But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." How was it in the days of Noe? Read Matt. 24 : 38–39. "For as in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away." Then, if the day of judgment is to be like that of the antediluvians, we must conclude that many will perish, when the earth is enveloped in the flames of the last day.

Will the Lord, in the last days, draw men to him by his Spirit, though they now resist the truth? Let Paul answer, in 2nd Thess. 2 : 11–12;—"And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie, that they all might be damned who believe not the truth."

Will the nations be preparing for peace just prior to the judgment? What does Joel say? "Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up."—Joel 3 : 9. How do we know that this state of things will exist, as presented in the above verse, just prior to the judgment? "Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about."—Joel 3 : 12. Read also Rev. 11 : 18;—"And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy the earth."

Will wickedness abound up to the judgment? or will it be otherwise? Read Joel 3 : 13;—"Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down, for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great."

Dear reader, you discover that God's word declares that, instead of the world's growing better and better, it is growing worse and worse. And can we not see in our times that the world is retrograding? Evil men and seducers are waxing worse and worse. Wickedness is abounding on every hand. Fellow traveler to the bar of God, can you not discover that we are approximating that solemn hour, when earth's inhabitants will be summoned to stand before the great tribunal? Are you prepared for that solemn event? Do you know your sins are forgiven? If not, let me invite you to come to Jesus. Seek him now, before it shall be too late.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

God help a sleeping church! a church that even her trumpet blasts awake not! a church that sleeps at Advent as she sleeps at Easter and at Trinity, and in the darkness of her Lents! She only mutters in her uneasy sleep. She turns and tosses, and composes herself again to deeper dreams. Shall the coming Christ find her so when his chariot blazes down the heavens? The small quarrels, the miserable self-seeking, the petty ambitions, the poor rivalries, these absorb the energies of her children. God's host is demoralized before the enemy. There is confusion and mutiny in the ranks.

The extravagance and folly of city life seems to be on the increase. If the church of Christ were free from the evil, and christians did not emulate the world in their extravagant style of living and in the pursuit of pleasure, there would not be so much to deplore, but the temptations of the day are sweeping too many into the vortex of dissipation.

"Let us have peace," is the cry. But peace has never yet prevailed over all nations. "Rumors of wars!" Look at France and Prussia, and Austria and Italy! The bulletins are alive with these rumors. Now it is France and Prussia, both armed to the teeth. Now it is Russia glaring with covetous eyes upon Turkey. Spain comes in for actual civil war, and rumors besides. Are not these unmistakable signs.

"Earthquakes in divers places." Never before have these terrible visitations been so dreadful in certain regions, so destructive of life, so sudden and overwhelming. "In diverse places." How remarkable that all around the globe have these fearful prodigies shaken the crust of the earth, and filled the human soul with terror. The tramp of Jehovah's footsteps is in these earthquakes. And "these are the beginning of sorrows."

"Persecutions and false prophets." In some sections of the earth, a profession of christianity would be the signal for martyrdom. Christ in the person of his true disciples is always hated and persecuted.

"Iniquity shall abound, and the love of many shall wax cold." The prevalence of iniquity is everywhere seen. A God-defying spirit is abroad. Sensuality and the pride of life were never more rife. The current sets so strong as to sweep into it many who once thought themselves christians; and the prospect to a contemplative mind is appalling. The end of all flesh must soon come, or the tide of death must be arrested by some moral miracle.

"As a witness, the gospel must be preached to all nations." This is being done. It is not said to every individual, but to all nations. What nation is now without a preached gospel? "Then shall the end come," says our Lord. Are we not, by the above signs, drawing near to it? Is not the coming Savior mounting his white throne, and giving indications of his advent?—Ex.

PHILOSOPHY AND VAIN DECEIT.
COL. 2 : 8.—No. 4.

This will appear in the following propositions:—

1. Like fundamental properties are only referable to like fundamental substances.

2. The fundamental properties of matter are extension, divisibility, and impenetrability. The fundamental characteristics of mind are perceptions, thoughts, volitions, and emotions.

3. The fundamental properties of mind and matter are fundamentally unlike.

4. Corollary. Therefore, the fundamental substances of mind and matter must be as fundamentally unlike as are the fundamental properties of those substances.

5. The fundamental properties of extension, divisibility, and impenetrability are material, consequently perceptions, thoughts, volitions, and emotions are not material; and if the properties are not material, neither can the fundamental substance be, and mind is therefore immaterial.

To some this would seem to prove the conscious separate existence and independent action of the mind from a material organism, but this does not follow; for we have as yet only adduced one side of the philosophical and logical testimony. It is equally true that (1) fundamental properties that are alike do not enter into combination with themselves; perceptions are not combined with perceptions, thoughts with thoughts, volitions with volitions, nor emotions with emotions. (2) Impenetrability cannot combine with impenetrability, nor divisibility with divisibility.—(3) So of the fundamental substances; matter cannot of itself combine with matter, nor mind of itself mix with mind; they each and all may exist separately in themselves, but to form combinations in and of themselves, never.

(4) But fundamental substances that are unlike readily combine with, and have an affinity for each other, as an alkaline base with an acid; and when this combination takes place, then action ensues and their properties become apparent; these substances and properties may exist priorly to their manifestation, but necessarily in a quiescent, passive, or dormant state.

(5) Hence we find the fundamentally unlike substances of mind and matter existing in connection, and in this combination mutually operating on each other by a reflex action, thus: A book lies before me; I wish to take it up; but I cannot perform the external action with the fundamental property of the mind—volition. I must bring the internal will to bear upon the unlike property the inertia of the unlike external substance; The material organism and the [illegible] passing like electricity from the battery of the brain along the motor nerves to the arm and hand, cause these to be raised and approach the object, until the nerves of sensation carry back to the mind, through perception, the fact that the hand is now ready to perform the necessary prerequisite action of grasping the book, when the unlike property of mind again acts upon the unlike property of matter, and the muscles contract, grasp the unlike substance from that which willed the action, and the book is taken up.

In this, as in every voluntary motion performed, the action of the mind and the material organism is reflex of necessity.

That cause must be weak indeed that is fearful to allow both sides of the testimony in any given case; and that system of reasoning and philosophizing that will not do this, is necessarily imperfect and partial, and will inevitably bring its advocates sooner or later to grief; for a false predicate always involves a false conclusion. To say that if nothing existed, that nothing would be the real state of nothing, would be true; but if we try to predicate upon that truth, that if the universe of mind and matter which now exist in truth and harmony were annihilated, the result would still be a reality, we indulge at once in a sophism and a solecism; for if the predicates—"universe of matter and of mind"—were annihilated, where would be the realities of existences, truths, and harmonies? In nothing.

The great error of the materialists is found in the fact that they make mind the effect of matter; and the great error of the immaterialists is found in the opposite,—that matter is the product of mind, or mind was the cause of matter; whereas there are no blank words nor dismal chasms between mind and matter; they probably have co-existed eternally, and will eternally co-exist; and the immaterialists themselves teach this when they say that matter "can not be annihilated," only "reduced to its primary elements." That is the foundation-stone of the "eternity of matter"; for though matter be elemental, those elements are material, and may be re-organized; so that, like the Pharisees and Sadducees, in extremes, the materialists and immaterialists, traveling in different roads, come together at last in the extremities.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, June 23, 1869.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

Money Orders.

Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

THE WORLD MOVES.

There is much talk about the progress the world is making. This is a favorite theme among the Spiritualists, who are the special friends of Satan, because they adopt his doctrines, and help spread his lies. Any thing that will help destroy confidence in the Bible, in Jesus as our Savior, and neutralize the power of the christian religion and those who profess it, the Spiritualists call "progress." We are free to admit that this is emphatically a progressive age in the direction above named. No doubt many do not see it, because they are floating with the current; but let them get out of the worldly stream, and stand secure upon the Rock of Ages, and we think they will be convinced that the mass of the people are rapidly approaching the world's Niagara. The progress is truly alarming that is being made in crime, infidelity and Sabbath breaking. The Sabbath is fast becoming a holiday in this country, as it is now in France. Every year the progress is apparent. Picnics, sailing parties, and other excursions are becoming quite common upon the Sabbath.

What would the good people of Boston have said, who lived in the days of Cotton Mather, had they been told that on the Sabbath, June 13th, 1869, "two hundred carpenters" would be at work "all day" in Boston, fitting up a place for a concert, during which they would "a grand ball;" and that on the Sabbath day, there was "a rehearsal of the stringed instruments." Yet we learn that such is the fact. To say that Satan is not pleased with such things, would be to say his character as met with a most radical change. And yet, the great Deceiver has managed the affair so skillfully, that he will succeed in drawing into his net a large number of professed ministers of the gospel of Christ, who see no danger from all these progressive things, because they are floating down the stream with the rest of the votaries of pleasure. It would seem that the number is small who are not "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God."

Let those who wish to be ready to meet Jesus keep out of the worldly current. The final scene is rapidly approaching. Thank the Lord, those who seek their enjoyment only in doing his will have the sweetest, deepest, richest peace it is possible for mortals to possess.

ANTI-SECRETISM.

A National Christian Convention was held in Chicago June 8th, 9th, 10th, for the purpose of devising means to counteract the influence of secret societies. We are glad to see a move in this direction. We are fully satisfied that christians should have no part or place in them. We believe their influence is opposed to vital godliness, and calculated to neutralize the effects of a pure christianity. We have not come to this conclusion hastily, nor rashly. We see no chance to arrive at any other decision with the facts we have before us. The secret societies add to the perils of these last days. They are Satan's counterfeits for a poor christianity. Satan has now become a professed reformer. He is taking great advantage of the worldly, fashionable religion of these times. He is trying all ways to persuade the people to take up with some substitute for the true religion of Jesus. Let us beware of his devices.

The following was passed unanimously by the Convention:—

"Whereas, Secret societies are in their organization and operations most manifestly unscriptural, in their very nature of secrecy in direct opposition to the religion of Christ, and hostile to the peace and welfare of the church of Christ; and

Whereas, True christians are bound to keep their garments clean from defilement of every kind; to attempt no fellowship between light and darkness, Christ and Belial, righteousness and unrighteousness; therefore,

Resolved, That in the judgment of this convention, it is the duty of all branches of the Christian church to free themselves from all fellowship with these unfruitful works of darkness."

Secret societies are exerting a powerful influence in the world at the present time. We say again, we think all who truly love Jesus, or wish to become his disciples, will do well to keep out of all the secret "bundles."

The following practical books on health are published by Miller & Haynes, 389 Broadway, N. Y.:—VITAL FORCE: How wasted and how preserved.—HOW TO BATHE: A family guide. Both by Dr. E. P. Miller.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNION.

We are pleased with the remarks of Mr. Spurgeon on christian communion. They were made in connection with a sermon on the text: "These are they who separate themselves, sensual, not having the Spirit."

Mr. Spurgeon said:—

"There is not a christian beneath the scope of God's heaven from whom I am separated. At the Lord's table, I always invite all christians to commune with us. If any man were to tell me that I am separate from the Episcopalian, the Presbyterian, or the Methodist, I would tell him he did not know me, for I love them with a pure heart fervently, and I am not separate from them. This bears rather hard on our strict communion Baptists. I should not like to say anything hard against them, for they are about the best people in the world; but they really do separate themselves from the great body of Christ's people. They separate themselves from the universal church. They say they will not commune with it; and if any one comes to their table who has not been baptized, they turn him away. The pulse of Christ is communion; and woe to the church that seeks to cure the ills of Christ's church by stopping its pulse!"

HADES AND SHEOL.

Hades is the Greek word corresponding with the Hebrew word sheol; both of which signify the place and condition of man in death. It is defined as a place where "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom." Can a man praise the Lord when in such a condition? But such is the state of all between death and the resurrection, who are in sheol or hades. The following is to the point:—

"Dr. Eddie, in his 'Biblical Cyclopœdia,' says, the term 'hades in the New Testament came into the Greek canon from the Septuagint, where it in general stands as the representative of sheol.'

Allow me to give an extract from Dr. Eddie's work on these texts. He says:—

'A very little attention to the laws of Hebrew grammar and principles of Hebrew poetry and parallelism, will at once render the meaning of this prophecy plain to the meanest capacity. The sixteenth psalm refers to Messiah. Messiah expresses perfect confidence in his Father. Being assured of his own ability to fulfill his commission, he was no less assured that the Father, whom he served, would raise him from the dead—the law being satisfied, and his work concluded. 'My flesh also shall rest in hope'; for

'Thou wilt not abandon me to sheol,
Nor permit thy Holy One to see corruption.'

"The two lines form what is usually termed a parallelism—the last hemistich echoing the sentiment of the former. The words 'my soul' mean merely myself. Nouns of this nature are used, because the Hebrew has no intensive or reflexive pronouns. It is thus obvious that the argument, based upon the idea that Christ's soul went to sheol [or hades], and his body to the grave, has no foundation. The Hebrew does not warrant this distinction. Christ's soul, in such an idiom, is his entire person."

DISCUSSION AT COLDWATER.

We have just closed a discussion at Coldwater, Mich., with D. W. Hull, a Spiritualist, and a brother of Moses Hull. The discussion was held in the Court House, commencing Tuesday evening, June 8th, and continuing four evenings. An intelligent audience attended, and the truth was well received.

Mr. Hull took occasion to say that "Jehovah was an imperfect Deity," and that the "God of Moses was a spirit of a man, and not as good as Moses." He also affirmed that "Jesus' body was never raised." The wicked, seducing tendency of Spiritualism becomes more and more apparent.

While at Coldwater, we had a pleasant interview with Bro. A. N. Seymour of Reading; also with Bro. Sapp, the Presiding Elder, who attended the discussion, and is satisfied that Spiritualism is the work of demons.

We had a very interesting visit with Bro. John McQueen, who for five years was a Spiritualist, and for three of those years was one of the most noted mediums, especially for remarkable performances in the dark circles. The following is from the "Banner of Light," and contributed by W. F. Jamieson, of Paw Paw, who is also a noted Spiritualist. He says:—

"Mr. Mc Queen's manifestations are of the most powerful character. Skeptics are forced to acknowledge that the demonstrations are outside the pale of trickery, deception, or collusion."

The Spiritualists claimed that Mr. McQueen was "one of the best" mediums in the U. S. About a year since he was converted to christianity, and now confesses that the ringing of the bells, playing on musical instruments, tying and untying of hands, lights, spirit-hands, concussions, being carried around the room above the heads, etc., etc., are all done by trickery, aided by demons. The mediums are not carried at all, the bells are rung, and the musical instruments are all operated by the mediums' own hands. He affirms that he knows from actual facts that this is the case with the Davenport Bro's., Fay Bro's., Dr. Henry Slade; Mr. and Mrs. Ferris, Eddy Bro's., B. Fifield, Miss Foss, Mr. Church, and Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Bro. Mc Queen has no confidence in the moral character of the leading mediums, as he knows them to be liars and deceivers. They are emphatically "speaking lies in hypocrisy."

We found, on comparing notes, that we were agreed in our views of Spiritualism. He is doing a noble work in exposing this great enemy of God and man. We wish he could speak to the whole world and tell his experience. He is an interesting speaker.

The following recommendation is from those of his own city:—

Hillsdale, May 19th, 1860. "We, the undersigned citizens of Hillsdale city, believe modern Spiritualism to be the worst form of infidelity; and a terrible evil in any community; and should meet the just indignation of all christian people everywhere. We have heard Mr. Mc Queen, of this place, who was five years among the Spiritualists, as a medium, and lecturer, give his grand expose of this monstrous delusion, and consider it a noble success. We therefore cheerfully recommend Mr. Mc Queen as the right man to meet successfully, and expose the so-called spirit mediums. He has been behind the curtain, and is a terror to all the Spiritualists." Signed,

The following is a copy of a handbill, announcing the lectures of Bro. McQueen, which will pay for a reading:—

"Signs and lying wonders. 5,000,000 of Spiritists in the United States, and 33,000 'Mediums,' at war against Christianity. 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' Try the spirits! The 'Mediums become willing subjects, and are instigated and prompted by the demons, who kept not their first estate.' Modern Spiritism arraigned for trial. Everybody interested—learned and unlearned, rich and poor, white and black, of every nation. Do the spirits of our departed loved ones return to us, and communicate in so-called Spiritual circles? Spiritists take the affirmative. What say you? Yes, or no? Shall one who has been behind the curtain five years answer 'pro bono publico?'

Prof. John McQueen, of Hillsdale, Mich., was once the great apostle of the Spiritists, and not a whit behind the chiefest of them, having done more miracles and labored more abundantly than they all. His is a parallel case with Simon Magus, the great sorcerer. What power has the gospel in bringing such men to christianity? He was convicted by one of his own brethren while comparing him to Jesus Christ, and making him the greatest man. Over one year ago he was converted, commenced exposing the Spiritists, and now preaches the faith he once destroyed. The reformed Spiritist was eight years among the Spiritists, and was claimed by them [the Spiritists] to have been one of the very best mediums in the world, which the Professor has the documents with him to show. Everybody should hear the great detective.

The dark circles exposed. The 'harmonious' system, and its effects for twenty years in the United States; trance-speaking; poems by John Kent, influenced by Big Indian and Squaw, and Antediluvian, by whom his leg is shortened six inches (the feat explained;) spirit circle formed; communications from relatives received by rappings; how I was deceived for a year; letters to departed friends handed in, sealed, answered, and both read before the audience; ballads handed in and read by Planchette, or in trance state; names of the departed given the same way, and poems, etc., concluded by a poem—'Advent of Jesus Christ.' How communications by writing and rappings are produced, and what it is; why the confusion by the wicked spirits in communications explained; how letters are read that the mediums never saw; how medical letters are answered by departed spirits; explain the Planchette writing; speaking in an unknown tongue; the art of healing by the laying on of hands; the secret of table-tipping and loud concussions; spirit hands—how produced; how the mysterious bells are chimed; how mediums are carried above the heads of circles in dark rooms; showing that departed spirits have nothing to do with so-called 'mediums.'"

THE HYMNS OF THE JUBILEE HARP.

For the convenience of those who wish to carry the hymns in their pockets, we have had a lot bound with flexible covers, the margins of the pages being trimmed close to the printed matter, making it very convenient for the pocket,—the most complete hymn book in use among us. HOAG'S VISION.

We published the vision of Joseph Hoag some time since; but a number of our readers, who did not then take the "Crisis," are anxious to read the vision. We would say to our readers, that we have the best of evidence that the vision was seen at the time specified; and that Joseph Hoag was known as a devoted christian. It will be observed that every feature of the vision has been accomplished that was to precede the "monarchical power."

We learn that the closing part of the vision was omitted by those who published it. In connection with the monarchy, Mr. Hoag saw the personal coming of the Lord, which the Friends did not believe, and consequently omitted the publication of that part of the vision. The coming of Christ closed the scene.

The following is the vision as published:—

VISION OF JOSEPH HOAG.*

In the year 1803, in the eighth or ninth month, I was one day alone in the field, and observed that the sun shone clear, but a mist eclipsed its brightness. As I reflected upon the singularity of the event, my mind was struck into a silence the most solemn I ever remember to have witnessed; for all my faculties were low, and unusually brought into deep silence. I said to myself: "What can all this mean? I do not recollect ever before to have been sensible of such feelings."

And I heard a voice from heaven saying: "This which thou seest is a sign of the present coming times. I took the forefathers of this country from a land of oppression; I placed them here among the people of the forest; I sustained them, and while they were humble I blessed them and fed them, and they became a numerous people. But they have now become proud, and have forgotten me, who nourished them and protected them in the wilderness, and are running into every abomination and evil practice of which the old countries are guilty, and have taken quietude from the land and suffered a dividing spirit to come among them—lift up thine eyes and behold." And I saw them dividing in great heat. The division began in the churches on points of doctrine; it commenced in the Presbyterian society and went through the various religious denominations, and in its progress and close its effects were the same. Those who dissented went off with high heads and taunting language, and those who kept to their original sentiments appeared exercised and sorrowful. And when the dividing spirit entered the Society of Friends, it raged in as high degree as in any I had noticed or before discovered; and, as before, those who separated went off with lofty looks and taunting, censuring language. Those who kept their ancient principles retired by themselves. It next appeared in the Lodges of the Free Masons; it broke out in appearance like a volcano, inasmuch as it set the country in an uproar for a time.

Then it entered politics throughout the United States, and did not stop until it produced a civil war. An abundance of blood was shed in the course of the combat; the Southern States lost their power, and slavery was annihilated from their borders. Then a monarchical power sprang up, took the government of the States, established a National religion, and made all societies tributary to support its expenses; I saw them take property from Friends. I was amazed at beholding all this; and I heard a voice proclaiming: 'This power shall not always stand; but with it I will chastise my church, until they return to the faithfulness of their forefathers. Thou seest what is coming upon thy native country, for their iniquities and the blood of Africa; the remembrance of which has come up before me."

This vision is yet for many days. I had no idea of writing it for many years—until it became such a burden that, for my own relief, I have written it.

* Joseph Hoag was born in the year 1762, and resided in early life in the State of New York, but removed to Vermont, where he died in 1846. His parents being members of the religious Society of Friends, he had a birth-right membership. He and his wife (Huldah) were both ministers and highly esteemed. They had a large family, and all of their children became ministers. The vision, though not printed and made public until within a few years, was well known to his family and a number of his friends many years before any part of it was fulfilled.

"NEVER SEE DEATH."

"Verily, verily I say unto you, if a man keep my saying, he shall never see death.—John 8: 51.

This language was spoken by our Savior to people who called themselves Jews, who did not believe that he was the resurrection and the life. Shall we say that our Savior meant by this language that it is not appointed unto man once to die? No, for the Father had made this appointment before he made the Son of a woman. This death must mean the "second death." Some do not see that there is a "second death" revealed; to such it is impossible to see that it is the "second death" to which our Savior referred. Those are the very ones that refer it to the first death, and so deny by the whole doctrine they teach, both the first and also the second death. They use the Scriptures when trying to prove that all men have got souls that never die. If this is the truth, then there is nothing gained by keeping his saying. But he says, "If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death." Now, can it be that the wicked do die the first death, and the righteous do not? If not, then this refers to the "second death." The serpent said thou shalt "not surely die."

We read in Rev. 12: 11, "And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death." Did they not see the first death? We read again: Rev. 2; 10. "Fear none of these things which thou shalt suffer; behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days; be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; he that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death." By these two verses we learn that the righteous die the first death but not the second. We read in Rev. 20: 4, 5, "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again untill the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he who hath part in the first resurrection, on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Are we to understand by this that the righteous have not died the first death, because John says "on such the second death hath no power"? No, we are to understand that they will be redeemed from the first death by a part in the first resurrection. This could not be if they never died. They will die no more.

We read in Luke 21: 16, 18, "And ye shall be betrayed by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolks, and friends; and some of you shall they cause to be put to death; ... but there shall not an hair of your head perish." What shall we say to these things? that their hair was not to go down? no, but that it should not perish. "And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."—1 Cor. 15: 17, 18. "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection."—Luke 20: 35, 36. Shall we say that this Scripture means that the righteous do not die the first death? No, but that they do not die any more. J. BUTTON.

For the World's Crisis.

"IT GRINDS."

The above phrase I heard used by a brother to express his disapprobation of certain spirits which are abroad in the land,—such as a spirit of sarcasm, of uncharitableness, etc. The brother alluded to is one among many others who are trying to investigate the truth, and when they see such spirits manifested by those who profess better things, and have set themselves up as teachers in Israel; to use their own expression, "it grinds." Such things do not weaken my faith in the least; but there are those who are weak in the faith, and some who are inclined to be skeptical.

We are commanded to have compassion of some, "making a difference, and others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire." Now I would like to say to such as harbor such spirits, remember what Jesus said: "Whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

Exchange of views may be given with profit to us all; but let it be done with a right spirit. Paul says, "Let nothing be done through strife or vain-glory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better themselves." We ought all to be willing to receive instruction or to give. The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God; hence it is folly to pin our faith upon any man because he is called great. Great men differ upon points of Scripture as well as small ones. S. BASSFORD.

THE LORD'S POOR.

DEAR SISTERS IN THE LORD:—I must say a few words to you. Many are calling themselves the Lord's poor, but let us remember that they cannot deceive God. It has been painful to me to see those calling themselves the Lord's poor, dressed after the foolish, wicked, and expensive fashions of this world, which must be displeasing to God, according to his own word. Dear sisters, let us pattern after our Great Teacher, who bade us to be humble and meek, else we cannot inherit the earth. Can we look up, and claim God's promises as ours? May the Lord help us to lay aside every weight that hinders us in the divine life. If we are not growing in grace and the knowledge of God, there is a hindrance somewhere. Too many are satisfied, having been received and fellowshiped in the faith, as they remark, and know nothing at all what they believe, or what a great thing it is to be saved, or to see the great danger of being lost. We have got to be in earnest to work out our own salvation.

I heard a satisfactory remark from a preaching brother, not long since, that it was one thing to get into the doctrine, and another to get the doctrine into us. May the Lord deal with us until it gets into us, then it makes us new inside and out. We cannot conform to the world. We have found something better. Our Lord is coming to raise those loved ones we laid away in tears and many bitter pangs. Is not that better than this world? I am one that is striving with you for an abundant entrance into the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. C. WORK.

HOW LONG THE VISION?

"How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed."—DAN. 8: 13-14.

The brethren who have written of late upon this all-important subject, have taken the ground that the twenty-three hundred days or years spoken of in this text, measuring the treading down of the sanctuary and the host, do not end until 1875. And still they contend that the Lord may be expected before that time expires; some say seven years. But in harmony with the inquiry, "How long?" and the answer given, I ask, Can any one expect the coming of the Lord before the ending of the days?

The subject is the treading under foot of the sanctuary and the host; and they are to be trodden down such a length of time. How long the time? Unto two thousand three hundred days. Then what? The sanctuary is to be cleansed. Now can the host be trodden down after the coming of the Lord? The host, all admit, is the army of the Lord,—the saints. And will he permit them to be trampled upon after his coming? Never! He comes to deliver them; and they will be the first objects of his care.

Then if I were made to believe the two thousand three hundred days reach to 1875, I should not look for the coming One till the days end. The two thousand three hundred days cover the treading down. Then, and not till then, will the sanctuary be cleansed. Thus it looks to me. If it is not so, some one will right it.

And now, dearly beloved, I am looking with deep interest to the deliverance of God's peculiar people. Hoping soon, L. BOUTELL.

THE TEST OF DISCIPLESHIP.

What evidence do we afford the world that we are the disciples of Jesus Christ? This is a question of deep and thrilling importance, inasmuch as we are to be as lights in the world; as "a city set on a hill" that "cannot be hid." By our conduct, sinners are led to the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world, or are hardened in their unbelief. By us they are led in the narrow way to eternal life, or encouraged in the "broad road" to destruction. By us they are admonished to become "strangers and pilgrims on the earth," or led to pursue with eagerness the mammon of unrighteousness, the service of which is degradation, and the wages death. For the influence we exert over them, we are accountable to our Master. They require evidence that we are the disciples of Christ, and unless we furnish them that evidence, our professions are but stumbling blocks in their way. Let us, then, candidly consider this matter.

It will be admitted that the mere profession of Christ before the world does not, of itself, afford positive evidence that we are truly his disciples. Many have done this that never bore the first fruit of a christian, and "Ye shall know them by their fruits." Neither can any claim that because they have been baptized in the name of Christ, they have furnished the required evidence. Of many such, it might be said as of ancient Israel, who were baptized with Moses in the cloud and in the sea, "with many of them God was not well pleased." Thousands have been baptized who manifest any other but the spirit of Christ, and "If any have not the spirit of Christ he is none of his."

Neither does the fact that our names stand fair on the church-book, and we fellowship as good members, furnish the desired proof. It is a lamentable fact that, in these days, a man may be a good Methodist, Baptist, or Adventist, and still be destitute of the spirit or character of a Christian, and whose conduct may be a burning disgrace to the name. Nor does the possession of great gifts or talents prove that we are the disciples of the meek and lowly Jesus. Paul says: "Though I speak with the tongue of men and angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophesy, and understand all mysteries, and knowledge, and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."—1 Cor. 13: 1-3. Many at the present day possess great gifts and talents, and yet afford not the slightest evidence that they are the disciples of Jesus Christ. What, then, will you give the world as conclusive evidence of your discipleship? The Savior says: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."—John 13 35. This is plain and simple, and will furnish the most indubitable evidence that we are the disciples of Christ. This is Paul's "more excellent way." Prophecies will fail, tongues cease, knowledge vanish away; faith be swallowed up in sight, and hope in full fruition; still love will continue. It is an eternal principle. "God is love," and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God and God in him.

For the World's Crisis.

PORTER, MAINE.

As I am always greatly encouraged and comforted in reading accounts of the manifestations of our blessed Savior in saving our fellow creatures from their sins, I thought perhaps some of the many readers of the Crisis, if not all, might be comforted to know that the Lord has visited the people in Porter, Me., the past winter, in tender mercy, and a number of souls have been hopefully converted and reclaimed, and are rejoicing in the God of their salvation.

Sunday, June 13th, was a happy day for the little church in Porter and vicinity, and one not soon to be forgotten by those present; as on the bank of Ossipee river we stood, and saw nine happy souls buried in the liquid waters in the likeness of Christ's death and resurrection, and raised again to walk in newness of life, by Bro. T. W. Piper. It is thought that there were a thousand people witnessed the scene. CHAS. H. HURD.

OUR DANGERS.

"When I said, My foot slippeth, thy mercy, O Lord, held me up."—Ps. 94: 18.

Vain thoughts and carnal reasonings, like unwelcome visitors, will often intrude upon the christian's mind, though we are renewed by grace. Our old friends—the world, the flesh, and the devil, too frequently annoy us by their visits. The best of saints have been troubled by the worst of thoughts; and sometimes those thoughts have grown into words. God's dear children, in times of sore trial, often say things they are afterwards sorry for. When visited with great and sore trials, severe conflicts, and dark clouds, I said, "My foot slippeth." I said it, for I verily thought it. I thought surely it was a gone case with me, and I cried out like one on a crumbling precipice, "'My foot slippeth'; I must fall; my strength is gone; my troubles are too great; I can bear them no longer; my friends are become my foes, and their envenomed darts are flying thickly around me. Yet, after all, there is no avoiding it. I must fall by the hand of my enemies. O save me! 'My foot slippeth.'" When I thus reasoned with unbelief, and thought I had no foundation to rest my head upon, and actually said as much; even then, "thy mercy, O Lord,"—the gifts of thy mercy, and the hope I had in Jesus—"held me up"; kept me from falling, and frustrated the designs of all my enemies.

It frequently happens that the wicked oppressors have great power, and then it is no marvel if the oppressed have to stand alone, like Paul before Nero. Perhaps there is some dear one that may have to travel a rugged path, and be ready to come to the conclusion that his enemies are so numerous, his difficulties so great, and his strength so small, that he cannot possibly hold out to the end. "My foot slippeth," say you. The word of God tells you to hope in him, for thou shalt yet praise him. He who gave you grace to fear, will also give you grace to persevere. Improve the grace you have, and that will improve you. This grace is no part of our common nature which grows up as we grow; neither is it produced by education; it is the effect of divine influence.

O how I long for Jesus to come. He is my best and only friend. I can rely upon him. When all others prove false, he is still the same. When I remember his invitations to his children, my heart abounds with joy. Yours truly, looking for Jesus soon to come,

SALLIE BOYD, Missionary.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. B. Sevey.

BRO. GRANT:—As many have requested me to report my labors, and as it may be of interest to the readers of the Crisis, I will briefly report some of my travels since the first of January, beginning at our Conference at West Gardiner, Me., which was the first of January. The conference was well attended, and good interest was manifested. The brethren and sisters in Gardiner are in gospel order, bearing one another's burdens, thus fulfilling the command. Our brethren and sisters came in from abroad, filled with the spirit of labor; all was harmony and union through the meeting, and others were constrained to say, See how these brethren love one another. Our preaching Brn. present were Brn. Goud, Hall, Carr, Rhoades, Read, Walker, ready to preach the word.

From there I went to Richmond, to the Ministerial Conference, of which we have had the report in the Crisis already. From there I went to No. Woodstock, by request of Bro. Chamberlain, who has stood for many years alone in the place, praying that the word of God might be presented to the people in love. I found that the Baptists were holding meetings in the place. I called on the minister to see if we could unite together in our labor. I found him free to talk. He had once believed in the coming of Jesus at hand, and made quite a stir in his church. He is now opposed. I only had opportunity to speak twice to the people. The interest increased. Brethren and sisters came from Bryant's Pond and Norway, filled with the Spirit and power, ready to labor for the salvation of sinners. Sr. Saunders, who formerly belonged to the Methodists, has seen the truth, and labored with us to good acceptance. One man saw the harmony in our preaching the Bible doctrine of life through Christ, confessed his need of a Savior, and found peace. Others also turned to the Lord, and rejoiced in his pardoning love. One man, who was very active in their meetings, saw new light. Had it not been for him, we should not have had the meeting-house.

Our meetings in North Woodstock were attended with the divine Spirit and power. One man called in to hear what we had to say, found the Spirit in our midst, confessed his coldness, and resolved to be more faithful. He had once been a class-leader. All praise to Jesus for his abundant love. We think seed was received into good ground. May it bring forth fruit unto eternal life; and in the day of Jesus' coming be gathered into his everlasting kingdom.

Went to Peru, a field where Bro. True Jordan had been laboring. Found some striving for the kingdom. Labored with them a few days. Some wanderers confessed, and were blest. Several resolved to seek the Lord. The interest was good to hear, but they were not willing to submit to Jesus. They wanted religion in their own way. Brn. Abbott and Hopkins live near, who labor with them in word and doctrine.

Went to Belgrade Depot, accompanied by Bro. Wellcome. Commenced meeting Friday evening, and continued over Sunday. Very good meetings. It was refreshing to meet with our dear brethren and sisters, who embraced the dear Savior some years ago in our meetings, and find them still on their way. None but those who have labored for the salvation of sinners, can tell what joy it gives to find the children faithful to God. Bro. Wellcome did the most of the preaching, and it was to good acceptance. We trust it will tell in the day of the Lord Jesus. It will prove a savor of life to them that obey, or of death to them that refuse to hear and reject it.

Went to Jay, Kennedy's Corner, by request of Bro. Blackwell. It is a new place. The truth found its way to the hearts of some. One man, who had followed the sea for nineteen years, when he heard the sound of "land ahead!" to use a sailor's phrase, tacked ship, and cast anchor to that within the veil, and is rejoicing in hope of soon gaining the port of eternal glory. The meetings continued with increased interest. New ones were added, and wanderers were reclaimed. Truly the Lord is good.

It has been my calling to labor in new places. I can not see how our Brn. can labor in old places continually, while others are in the dark, and no one to enlighten them. Dear Brn. in the ministry, let us do to others as we would have others do to us. Amen.

Yours in the highways, H. B. SEVEY.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. C. E. LIVERMORE, Milo, Me., writes: "I feel the Lord is ever with the right, and will lead those who are willing to make any sacrifice that he demands for Christ and his gospel; and am conscious that I am not placed here to live entirely for myself. My lamp has been trimmed, and, thank the Lord, I feel this morning that my light is burning; and shall I put it under a bushel? Oh, no, for love of Jesus I feel that I will let what light he gives shine through me, and reflect such light only as the word of the Lord and his blessed Spirit will impart. I wish to hold myself in readiness always to give a reason of the hope that is in me with love and meekness. I have been strengthened and comforted in reading the Crisis, and many other valuable works which come from your office; and may the Lord bless and guide all the brethren and sisters who contribute to its pages, that they may be led by the influence of the divine Spirit in writing and selecting such matter as shall honor God, and prove a blessing to the world, in convincing sinners of the great necessity of salvation through the blessed Redeemer. May each feel that 'woe is me' if we seek to pervert the Scriptures in any way, but seek to understand the word regardless of all the selfish ambitions of men, and give the Scriptures their plain and literal interpretation, wherever it belongs. Thank the Lord, he has a few children out of the many who are not ashamed of their hope.

There are many devoted people who think we are a poor, deluded set of christians. May the Lord help those who are thus prejudiced against us to throw away prejudice, preconceived opinions, all unwarranted notions, and cling to the word of the Lord, if it spoils all of their former and present creeds. I firmly believe that all feeling thus will see the truths of the Lord's word in a very different light from the way they now hold it. I am not generally known as being in sympathy with you, and the doctrine you promulgate; for I am known by another name; but am in heartfelt sympathy with all who love the Lord better than everything else. I am willing the world and all christians should know where I stand. Thank the Lord, I know it is not popular, and I feel that my reputation is sacrificed in a great degree by receiving such truth; but I am comforted, knowing that our dear Savior was made 'of no reputation,' and was called hard names, mocked and spit upon by those who did not receive him, and was put to death, even by wicked men. May the Lord help me and all of his weak ones to endure hardness as good soldiers of the cross of Christ, feeling the blessed assurance that we shall reap in due time, if we faint not, expecting reward at the resurrection of the just."

BRO. J. R. COOPER writes from Elmira, N. Y., May 18th:—"Bro. Grant,—I received the bundle of tracts sent me, and have distributed them pretty thoroughly among professors and unbelievers, and hope good will result from it. The Crisis was indeed welcomed after being without it several weeks. I scarcely know how I could get along without it now, for, since I left Rochester, it is the only preacher I have heard of like precious faith.

Bro. T. K. Beecher, of the Congregationalist church here, conceived the idea, something more than a year ago, of endeavoring to unite the brethren and sisters of the various churches in this city more closely in the bonds of fellowship and love, and for that purpose secured the Opera House (which is a fine edifice, capable of holding about eighteen thousand people), for Sabbath evening meetings, inviting the clergy of the several denominations to preach to the multitude from Sabbath to Sabbath. These meetings have been largely attended, the house being literally filled every Sabbath evening; but the preaching brethren have not co-operated with Bro. Beecher, and have finally turned a cold shoulder on him altogether, and the result has been, he has had to do all the preaching himself.

As warm weather is approaching, and the crowd is so large at the Opera House, these meetings will be held after a few weeks in the Park adjoining Bro. Beecher's church. Similar meetings were held last summer, and several thousand people congregated from Sabbath to Sabbath. I wish some of our preaching brethren could have an opportunity to speak to this people. I think arrangements could be effected to that end, as Bro. B. is no sectarian.

Bro. B. commenced a series of sermons last Sabbath evening, in which he proposes to show up the good qualities and excellences of all the churches represented in this city, leaving the bad for others to speak about. The Catholic church's good points were presented last Sabbath. Next Sabbath the Presbyterian church will receive her share of praise; then the Methodist, Baptist, etc.

Oh, that the walls of sectarianism might be broken down, and the various churches be of one heart and one mind in offering up praises to God. Brethren, let us have charity one toward another, remembering that Jesus said, 'Whosoever doeth the will of my Father, the same is my brother and sister.' 'Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his.' 'Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another.'"

— All we possess is from God, not fortune.

BRO. A. B. KNEPPER, Wellersburg, Penn., writes:—"I am still the only minister in western Pennsylvania, that I know of, that does not believe in the immortality of the soul and endless life in torment; but I have a goodly number, and the number is still increasing of my members, and others, especially of the Lutheran church, that begin to see and believe the true doctrine of the Bible in its purity. Amongst them is our principal doctor, a very intelligent man. Mr. K., our L. minister, preached six sermons the week after Easter, on the final state of all men, trying (but failed) to prove endless life in misery. I preached one sermon on "The wages of sin is death"; and since that he and his friends are very quiet about endless life in misery,—words which I assured them were found only outside of the Bible.

I proved "the second death," and then challenged him to prove a resurrection from this death, before he talked more about endless life in misery. I proved by Isa. 26: 14, that there is a death from which they shall not rise, and that this would apply to no other but 'the second death.'"

Obituaries.

PRESCOTT. Suddenly fell asleep in Jesus, in Kensington, N. H., May 15th, 1869, my wife's father, Daniel Prescott, aged seventy-five years.

For a few weeks previous to his death father had not been as well as usual, but was thought to be gaining, and labored the day before, retiring to rest as usual. About one o'clock mother awoke and found him breathing strangely, and before the family could be collected he had breathed his last. He has closed his labors in the church and for the world, and his voice, which was so often heard to cheer the saint and warn the sinner of coming judgment, is now silent. He gave his heart to the Lord at the age of sixteen, and has proved the consolation of the christian's hope in life; and when he heard that it would soon be consummated, he received the news with joy, and was ready to help sustain the cause in deed as well as in word. When he embraced Christ he united with the Christian connection, which had received the advanced light that evil would not be eternal, consequently the agents of sin would be destroyed, and beyond that every creature would praise the Lord.

In this death she on whom the blow has so suddenly and heavily fallen, is sustained with the hope that they who had shared the trials of life together for over half a century, will soon be re-united in the paradise of God. As this is the first breach in the family circle, may we all be prepared to meet the Life-giver when he comes. A truly comforting discourse was delivered at the funeral by Bro. A. Ross, from John 11: 25. J. G. SMITH.

Died in Alton, N. H., June 3d, 1869, Sister Louisa, widow of the late John McDuffee, aged fifty-six years.

After five months of severe suffering our sister sweetly fell asleep in Jesus. In this death four children are deprived of a good, kind, and affectionate mother, one daughter having been sick six years. The good will soon meet in a land where the inhabitants will never say "I am sick." Sermon by the writer, from John 11: 35.

J. G. SMITH.

PLUMMER. Died, in Dover, Me., June 8th, 1869, with consumption, Lucy, eldest daughter of Loring and Sally Plummer, aged thirty-six years, two months, eight days.

For the last two months of her life, she gave good evidence of her hope in Christ, believing that she would not sleep long before the Son of man would come and wake the sleeping ones in Christ, and give them eternal life. She selected the funeral text from Ps. 23: 3, 4. LORING PLUMMER.

MARSTON. Died, in Lake Village, N. H., May 28th, at the residence of her son, Col. D. G. Drake, Mrs. Lydia Marston, aged eighty-five years.

Married.

In Hinsdale, April 7th, by the Rev. T. M. Fowler, Mr. LEVI W. CROWNINSHIELD, of Chesterfield, N. H., and Mrs. MARY S. CROWNINSHIELD, of Mass.

In Meredith, N. H., May 29th, 1869, by Eld. N. Glidden, Mr. FRANK P. RICKER, of Alton, N. H., and Miss SARAH E. WELLS, of Epsom, N. H.

In Wilbraham, June 13th, by Elder P. S. Butler, ROYAL D. BUTLER and ELLA M. TRUMBLE.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

PESTH, 15th. Count Ardrossy denies that there is any foundation for the rumors recently circulated that waalike preparations were on foot in the Austrian Empire. He says Austria and Hungary desire peace, and will strictly maintain the principle of non-intervention in the affairs of neighboring powers.

PARIS, 15. The city has been perfectly quiet all day, and all signs of uneasiness and excitement have disappeared.

BREST, 15. All the preparations for laying the French Atlantic cable are complete. The weather is gloomy to-day, and the work will commence as soon as the sea becomes calm.

DOMESTIC.

Hudson, N. Y., June 18. The first charter conferred by the Regents of the University of this State to grant degrees to women was to-day conferred upon the Hudson River Institute at Claverack, giving the Trustees full college powers.

BALLOON TRIP OVER THE ATLANTIC.—It is said that there is now in New York a French æronaut, named M. Chevalier, who will in about two months attempt to cross the Atlantic by ærial navigation. An exchange gives the following sketch of this adventurous gentleman:

"Mons. Chevalier has made 165 baloon excursions, in one of which he traveled 1500 miles in fifteen hours. He has traversed the English Channel from Dublin landing in Westmoreland, and in one ascent from Hull he reached an altitude of 30,000 feet, the highest ever attained. At that height the rarity of the atmosphere was such, that the blood started from every pore in his body as well as from nose, eyes and ears, and his clothes were saturated with the bloody sweat. He does not believe a voyage across the Atlantic involves any peculiar difficulties, excepting from its length, and he has prepared to meet these difficulties.

VICIOUS LEGISLATION.—For many years the old Washington Globe carried for its motto, "THE WORLD IS GOVERNED TOO MUCH."—And we are constantly reminded that this is a truism by the action of the Legislative bodies of the country. Statute is piled upon statute with indecent haste, and upon every conceivable subject, so that it has come to pass that nearly every man, and a great many women, are members of one or more incorporations. The Legislature of Illinois at its late session enacted about eighteen hundred bills into laws. It cannot be otherwise than that in the hurry of legislation which short sessions compelled, there must necessarily have been much vicious law-making in this action, even with the best of intentions. But this is not all. The Legislature has, from all accounts, been guilty of venality and corruption surpassing all precedent. Gov. Palmer, who is an honest, upright and conscientious man, felt constrained to interpose a large number of vetoes; but these were of no avail; the money power brought to bear down constitutional objections as well as principles of right, and the most objectionable bills were passed over the vetoes with unnecessary dispatch.

If this sort of thing were confined to Illinois, we might hope that it arose from some local cause. But as it is general—prevailing all over the country, we are inevitably led to the conclusion that there is something radically wrong in the organization and control of our political parties, which give us such unprincipled and corrupt law-makers. There is one favorable feature of the case, however. The party press denounces these evil practices unsparingly. They have no apologies to offer for men who will accept, and even labor eagerly to obtain, important official positions, for the purpose of selling themselves to corporations or private schemes.

A reform is needed in our politics. The control of them should be taken out of the hands of the vile and corrupt, into which it has too much fallen, especially in our cities, and given to men of conscience and of moral principle. So long as the "baser sort" of men are permitted to manage and control our nominating conventions, just so long will corruption and venality be found in our Legislatures. There is nothing to choose between the two great parties in this respect. Neither of them is entitled to the confidence and support of good citizens and christian men.

The thanks of the people are due to Governor Palmer for the noble stand he has taken against vicious legislation. Although borne down by the money of the great corporations of the State, the people will look to him with confidence as the protector of their rights.—Standard.

Passing Events.

☞ By one gate Rome looks towards the road by which was brought that epistle to the Romans, which Paul himself followed after in two or three years as a prisoner handcuffed to a soldier; the same road by which, ten years later, Titus brought in thousands of captive Jews along with the spoils of Jerusalem and the Temple; the road by which arrived triumphant armies and kings of the East in chains, Numidian lions for the ampitheatre, Strabo from his travels, Dionysius on his tour, and Pausanius, with notes for his book on Greece, and Josephus after the loss of his country; Belisarius, too, that mighty general; proconsuls on their return from one province and another, age after age, an unceasing stream; slaves for the market, monks from deserts further to the East than where St. Anthony wrestled, bishops, archbishops, Syrian, Abyssinian, and from the ends of the world.

☞ A New York letter says: "For some months past, rumors that A. T. Stewart had joined the Catholic Church have been in circulation, but as rumors about rich men are always flying about, this particular one did not attract much attention. I have just been informed, however, that it is perfectly true. The great millionaire, my informant says, was recieved into the Catholic Church by Archbishop McClosky, with whom he had been in consultation several times before the event took place. The same person informs me that Mr. Stewart lately gave a donation of $20,000 to the House of the Good Shepherd, a Catholic institution for reclaiming fallen women.

☞ Computed by average, one province of China contains 19,000 temples; and the empire, reckoning only fifteen out of the eighteen provinces, would contain, in round numbers, 300,000. The whole number of idols in these temples for hero worship, reckoning ten to each, would be about 3,000,000. The temples cost from $500 to $100,000 each. Regarding the average as only $1,000, we have $1,000,000,000, as the approximate value of idol temples in China, which is, perhaps, altogether too low an estimate.

☞ Monseigneur Bauer, the famous preacher of the Chapel of the Tuileries at Paris, whose sermons before the Emperor and Empress of France have attracted so much attention, is an Austrian Jew, who, fifteen years ago turned Roman Catholic. He is still a young looking man, with heavy and rather voluptuous features; but the expression of his eyes is that of a fanatic and visionary. In 1848 he was a member of the Revolutionary Academic Legion in Vienna, and he has now become an ultra-reactionist.

☞ Dr. Dixon, of the Scalpel, speaking of the velocipede, says: "There is no doubt whatever that both rupture, varicocele, hydrocele, and swelled testicles, as well as effusion in the sheaths of the great flexor muscles of the limbs, are all directly consequent upon the use of this absurd and mischievous toy. While we write, an eminent apothecary suffers from varicose veins in both legs, developed in a few weeks by riding on this absurdity."

☞ The meeting of the Evangelical Alliance, which was appointed to be held in the city of New York during the present year, has been postponed to 1870. The change is made at the request of the leading members of the alliance in England, Germany, and Holland, on account of their inability to complete their arrangements for the meeting within the present year.

☞ The principle shops in Paris—including those of nearly all the linen-drapers, hosiers, silk mercers and venders of ready-made apparel,—will henceforth be closed on Sundays. The merchants have taken this step of their own accord, and their employees "appeal to the good will of the public to aid them in making the measure general."

☞ A gentleman joined the First Presbyterian Church at Cincinnati, last Sunday, who for years had been an inmate of one of the monasteries in the Tyrol, and who for four years had been an officiating priest in a cathedral in Salzburg, Germany.

☞ A. D. Mitchell passed through Norwich, Conn., a few days ago, who had traveled eleven thousand miles in thirty-seven days. He was only six days and twenty-one hours from San Francisco, twenty-six days from Japan, and thirty-seven from Hong Kong.

☞ In 1686, the Rev. John Williams was settled in Deerfield, Mass., as pastor, with a salary of £60 a year, "payable in wheat, at three shillings and three pence a bushel, peas at two shillings and six pence, Indian corn at two shillings a bushel, and salted pork at two pence halfpenny a pound."

☞ Walter Raleigh's name has long been associated with the history of the introduction of the potato into Europe. It appears, however that the plant was known to Clusius, a distinguished French botanist, at least thirty-three years before its introduction by Sir Walter.

☞ Originally a single pin had to undergo the manipulation of not less than fourteen pairs of hands before it was ready for the fashion in a lady's boudoir.

☞ Napoleon has increased his guard at the Tuileries by five hundred men, and the whole force sleep fully accoutred and with loaded rifles.

☞ London has a population of 3,150,000, and covers an area of 122 square miles.

☞ Uniform postage stamps are to follow a uniform coinage in European countries.

☞ The capital required for building a network of railways over the Turkish Empire is secured.

The Mass. Mission Tent.

The tent is still on Zion's hill near East Weymouth, and, the Lord willing, will remain over next Sunday, June 27th, and as much longer as the interest demands. The interest is good. The Weymouth praying band have really felt the life and power with them, and make the meetings interesting. Bro. Phelps has been with us to help press the battle. Brethren and sisters come over and help us. Pray for this meeting, that men may be saved from sin, and be prepared for the coming kingdom. ENOCH MORRILL.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting on land owned by Bro. Washburn, in Bethel, Vt., on Camp Brook, commencing Saturday, July 3, at one o'clock, to continue over the Sabbath. Come, brethren, to the meeting. All are invited. We want Bro. Varney to come, if he is in this section of the country, to assist in preaching the word. Brn. D. Braley and J. A. Cleaveland will be present, with others. For the church,

J. WASHBURN, G. W. LEWIS, } Com.

Notice.

There will be a meeting held in the grove on the farm of Samuel Gilmore, Holden, Maine, to commence at ten A. M., July 4th, and continue over the 5th. The meeting will be free for all who believe in Jesus Christ, and do not marvel at the fact that he will raise from the dead both the righteous and the wicked. We heartily invite you to come, filled with the Spirit of Jesus, and labor for the salvation of souls, and a preparation to meet the Judge of all the earth. In behalf of the brethren,

I. DAMMAN.

Kingston Grove Meeting.

The Annual Grove Meeting held at Kingston, N. H., (near Bro. F. Gale's), will be held this year two days, Sundays and Mondays, July 4th and 5th. It is expected that Elders J. Pearson, Jr., G. W. Burnham, W. Burnham, J. Cunningham, and Bro. Haskell will be present. Let there be a general rally of the brethren and sisters in the region to this feast. F. GALE.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

To the friends of the Alton Bay Campmeeting I would say, the probability is that our meeting will commence Sunday, Sept. 5th. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee, J. G. SMITH.

Discussion.

If the Lord will, the discussion of the following question will commence at Warren, Vt., (Union Church), July 1st, at ten o'clock A. M.

Resolved, That the seventh-day Sabbath is not binding on the Christian church.

J. F. VARNEY, Affirms.
D. T. EVANS, Denies.

Ordination.

At the protracted meeting recently held at Sugar Hill, N. H., Bro. A. Hoyt, of Cabot, Vt., was set apart to the work of the gospel ministry by the imposition of our hands and prayer, and is commended to the faithful in Christ wherever his lot may be cast.

JOHN COUCH.
NATHAN WHEELER.
ABIAL W. SIBLEY.

Tent and Grove Meeting in Hopkinton, N. H.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting in E. G. Kimball's grove, in Hopkinton, N. H., July 4th and 5th, commencing at ten o'clock A. M. each day. Bro. Edmund Moulton, of Whitefield, N. H., and others, will be present to preach the word. An opportunity for baptism will be offered on the 5th. We hope to meet with friends from all the surrounding towns, who desire to hear the word of life, and especially with those who feel called upon to labor for the salvation of souls.

The New Hampshire Tent will be pitched outside of the grove, and should the weather be rainy, the meeting will be held in the tent. Brethren from a distance, by bringing some bedding, can lodge in the tent, or at houses near by. Horse-keeping can be had at reasonable rates.

JOSEPH H. TEWKSBURY.
E. G. KIMBALL.

Eld. D. D. Leavitt, of Holderness, is expected at this meeting. If desirable, arrangements will be made for similar meetings in other localities. As the Tent will probably be pitched Saturday afternoon, the scattered ones are invited to come with their provision, prepared to stay through the meeting.

The Grove is in District No. 5, near road leading from Hopkinton Lower Village to Weare, about two miles south of the village. Let all make an effort to attend. For the Brethren,

C. W. SARGENT.

Grove Meeting.

A grove meeting will be held in Albany, N. H., in Bro. Joshua Piper's grove, commencing Friday, July 2nd, and holding over Monday, July 5th. When the arrangements are completed, due notice will be given. Albany is pleasantly situated among the mountains between Tamworth and Conway. The stages will doubtless bring those who wish to come to the ground. Those who come by cars, will leave them at Meredith Village, on the B. C. and M. R. R., and thence by stage direct. Brethren will please come prepared to remain through the meeting. Come by cars, stages, with private teams, on foot, or in any way, to meet with us. This is a new field, and an interesting time is expected. In behalf of the brethren,

L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Grove Meeting Fourth of July.

There will be a grove meeting held in Faysville, Mass., commencing Saturday, July 3d, at half past one o'clock P. M., and hold over Sunday, the 4th. The brethren and sisters scattered abroad are invited to come to this meeting and labor for the salvation of the unsaved. The grove is only a few rods from the depot on the B. C. and F. R. R. Call on Bro. and Sr. H. S. Woods, who will do what they can for the comfort of all. There will be those present who labor in word and doctrine to preach the word. For the brethren,

C. GOODRICH.

Tent Meeting.

The Maine Mission Tent will be pitched in Brewer Village, one mile and a half from Bangor, on land of Henry K. Robinson, to commence meetings Thursday evening, June 24th, and continue as may seem the will of the Lord. Friends coming up the river, or by cars, can take the stage from Bangor to the tent mornings and evenings. Will the friends of Jesus pray that the Lord may give great success in winning souls to Christ, and in building up the people of God in the faith and hope of the gospel?

I. C. WELLCOME.
F. A. BAKER.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting in Foster, R. I., near the Hopkin's Mill, to commence June 26th, and hold over the fourth of July. Preaching brethren from abroad, come. Brethren and sisters, make a little sacrifice to get out to this meeting. It probably will be the last meeting of the kind you will ever have. Good homes for all who come from abroad. E. BELLOWS.

Tent Meeting.

If the Lord will, there will be a meeting at West Lebanon, Me., under the New Hampshire Mission Tent, commencing Tuesday evening, June 22d, at half past seven o'clock, and hold over the following Sabbath. This is a new field. The Lord direct the work is our desire. Brethren D. M. Leavitt and Wm. H. Mitchell, with others, will be present to preach the word. J. C. SHOREY.

Barn Meeting.

Providence permitting, there will be a meeting at North Sutton, N. H., in Charles L. Andrew's barn, commencing Saturday P. M., July 3d, and hold over Sunday, July 4th. Bro. John Parsons, of Northwood, and other preaching brethren are expected to be present. All are invited.

A. D. FOLLANSBEE, for the Brethren.

Conference.

The conference at Alton Corner, N. H., will commence evening, July 1st, and hold over the following Sabbath. The meeting on the Sabbath will be held on the Alton Bay camp-ground at ten o'clock A. M., and one P. M. For the Brethren,

J. COUCH.

R. I. and E. Ct.

Our next conference will be held at North Scituate, R. I., commencing Wednesday, two P. M., July 7th, 1869. Brethren, let us awake. We have been slumbering. Come, preacher and delegate, from every church. Let us have one more general rally on the old battle-field of North Scituate.

H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Notice.

The Conn. Advent Christian Conference is hereby invited to hold its next session with the church at Cheshire Street, Ct., to commence Wednesday evening, July 21st, at half past seven o'clock, and continue over the following Sabbath. There is a rising interest in this place, and it is a subject of earnest prayer that God will bless this effort to the salvation of sinners. Brethren, although it is a busy season of the year, please make the sacrifice necessary to come, and God grant it may be like the old fashioned Cheshire Street meetings. Business of importance is to be transacted, which should prompt every church to see to it that delegates or letters are on hand. The chapel is about three miles west of West Meriden Depot, on the Hartford S. and New Haven R. R. If those coming on the cars will write to me in season, I will make arrangements for conveyances, and give notice accordingly. For the church, WM. A. DURAND.

Conference in Whitefield, Me.

The Quarterly Conference will be held in North Whitefield, commencing June 25th, at 2 P. M., and hold over Sunday. Come, ministers and laymen, to work for the Lord. Those coming in the cars on the Kennebeck, north or south, will stop at Gardiner. Write to S. K. Partridge, No. Whitefield, and he will send a team for you.

JER. PARTRIDGE, President.
S. K. PARTRIDGE, Clerk.

Notice.

Our Annual Grove Meeting, at East Springwater, on the Widow Morris farm, will commence at the school-house on Friday evening, June 25th, and in the grove June 26th, at two o'clock P. M. Let there be a general turn out to this meeting, and all those interested in Springwater and elsewhere, circulate the notice and prepare the grove.

For the Brn., C. F. SWEET

P. S. Will Bro. John or Frank Morris meet me at Springwater Valley, on the 25th, at noon?

Notice.

There will be a meeting in the grove of A. H. Smith, Wolcot, Conn., July 4th. Bro. A. Simpson will preach the word. Come, brethren and sisters, far and near. Let us once more raise our voices in praise of Him we love in this beautiful grove.

For the brethren, G. L. WHITE.

Conference.

The Lord willing, there will be a conference in Carthage, Me., commencing Thursday, five oclock, June 24th, and continue over the following Sabbath. Brethren, let us pray that God may greatly bless this meeting.

H. B. SEVEY.
E. M. HAGGETT.

Nova Scotia Conference.

There will be a general Advent Conference held at Bear River, Nova Scotia, commencing June 26th. A cordial invitation is extended to all the lovers of Jesus and his soon coming, especially to the preaching brethren. JOHN MOORE.

To all whom it may Concern.

Please notice that the undersigned Missionaries have left the "Star of Hope Mission," though still engaged in Mission work. Friends writing us will please direct their letters—Care of G. W. Smith, No. 273, West 22d Street, New York City.

M. E. DOW.
E. S. MELLEN.
A. E. BENNETT,
(Danielsonville, Ct., for the present.)

Notice.

If any of our brethren desire to purchase a new fifty feet circular tent, I can direct them to a bargain. WM. L. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich.

Minnesota Campmeeting.

This meeting is appointed at Ottawa, to commence Sabbath, June 27th, continuing over Monday, July 5th. The State Conference will commence its annual session, June 24th, at the same place. As these meetings will be held thus in connection, we look for a season of special interest, and one in which all our strength shall be united to give new life and energy to the cause throughout the State. The committee are arranging for the comfort of all who attend, and we trust every part of the State, even to the extreme frontier, will be represented in this general gathering.

REDUCTION OF RAILROAD FARE.

Ottawa is situated about sixty miles south-west from St. Paul, on the St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad (formerly the Minnesota Valley,) which runs from St. Paul to Mankato.

Those coming by the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway will change cars at Mendota, where they will purchase tickets for Ottawa.

The fare on the St. Paul and Sioux City R. R. is reduced one-half, and when buying tickets for Ottawa be sure and ask for return tickets. Return tickets will be good for ten days.

A boarding table will be provided for those who do not choose to bring their own provisions, at a reasonable rate. Also feed for horses can be obtained on the ground.

EDWIN T. HIMES, Chairman Com.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent-meeting at Cooper's Point, Camden, New Jersey, commencing June 20th, and continue as long as the interest will warrant. Brn. Flagg, Hook and Wendell will be present to preach the word of life. All friendly to the cause are invited to attend. In behalf of the church,

B. WILLARD.
JOHN M. STETLER, } Committee.
ISAAC N. WILFONG,

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

THE DAY OF PEACE.

Arouse! ye saints and sing,
  Proclaim the gospel sound;
For soon shall come our glorious King,
  With fadeless beauty crowned.

His waiting people then
  Shall in his kingdom live,
Where none shall ever weep again,
  Where nought the heart shall grieve.

O! soon will come the day,
  When care and toil shall cease;
When sin and death shall flee away,
  And saints shall dwell in peace.

The signs fulfilling fast,
  Proclaim the end is near;
Probation's hour will soon be past,
  The King of kings appear.

O! hasten, sinner, haste!
  The gospel call obey;
If thou would'st enter into rest,
  Come, seek thy Lord to-day.

Then on that glorious morn,
  When Jesus doth appear,
He will to us proclaim, "Well done,"
  If we are faithful here.

The pure in heart are blessed,
  For they their God shall see;
And all who have his name confessed,
  Shall eat of life's fair tree.

Shout praises to our God,
  All glory to his name!
O! hail the day when Christ our Lord,
  Shall come on earth to reign.

Then a new song we'll sing,
  Then shall our hearts rejoice;
We then shall see our conquering King,
  And hear his welcome voice.

For the World's Crisis.

WHY DON'T YOU ABANDON YOUR FAITH?

Now that several specified periods of time have passed, in which so many have looked with special interest and with yearning hearts for Zion's absent Nobleman to return, the uninterested and unenlightened have most unwisely concluded that we know nothing, and nothing can be known relative to Christ's personal return from heaven; and hence they wonder with a good deal of surprise, and inquiringly ask, Why don't you give up your faith, and cease publishing it to the world? Your past mistakes demonstrate to all that you have no reliable basis for your faith to rest upon. We certainly do not envy this class of people their unbelief or position, but sincerely pity and pray for them, while groping along carelessly through the world in their blindness. Where, echo answers where is there one who has ever canvassed the prophecies faithfully, and has been intelligently convinced of the world's near proximity to the eternal judgment, that wishes to change positions with these interrogators? Not one. Our tongues are altogether inadequate to express the gratitude of our hearts to the giver of all good, for the knowledge that has shone more and more brilliantly all along our mysterious pathway. Notwithstanding all past errors, we adhere tenaciously to the sure word of prophecy, and express with full confidence the glorious thought that Christ is speedily coming to usher in the dawn of an eternal jubilee. We know this by facts drawn from sacred and profane history, together interwoven—facts that no human philosophy can efface, or undermine; facts which stand out so prominently that the intelligent beholder, while gazing at the sublimity of fulfilled prophecy, exclaims, Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou king of saints. This is our faith, the faith that works by love and purifies the heart.

Relinquish this—no, no, never. Ashamed of this heart-searching and purifying truth! When literal and moral light are not ashamed of literal and moral darkness, then, and not till then, can we be ashamed at so bright a prospect! Why it is the soul's anchor, sure and steadfast, till faith is lost in sight, and prayer in praise.

The reasoning of our opposers is certainly a good deal defective. Philosophically, they may reason well, and logically; but theologically they are dangerously unsound, and not to be relied upon by any who hope for salvation through the merits of Christ; for if the blind lead the blind, they shall both fall into the ditch. Should a Prof., skilled in the science of mathematics, be presented with a problem to solve outside of his accustomed routine of instruction, and should he mistake some of its features, and fail to secure the true answer, even a half dozen times, would it be deemed wise to say that the Prof. knew nothing, and his mistakes only demonstrated that nothing was known or could be known touching the science of mathematics? Certainly not. The judgment of every sensible man would be, the Prof. is a ripe scholar in the science, and thoroughly understands his business; but some features of this new problem are not as yet perfectly understood, and doubtless he will in due time solve its difficulties, and give the correct answer.

Precisely so as regards the prophecies relative to the advent of Christ. While a multitude of writers have stored away a vast amount of prophetical and historical literature, since the agitation of this question first arose, and while they are practical students, and able teachers of the same, it is frankly conceded that there are some features of the various lines of prophetical lore that, at present, are not perfectly understood; but perseverance and studiousness, by the aid of the Holy Spirit, will, in due time, unfold the sacred mystery, and the church of Christ, with its devoted teachers, will stand justified before God in the coming day of the Lord Jesus, for having heralded forth through the midst of heaven, in due season, the last and solemn warning, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh; go ye forth to meet him." "A man's heart discerneth both time and judgment."

FAITH AND WORKS.

Faith and works must go together to be acceptable. "Without faith it is impossible to please" God, and "faith without works is dead." "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Sinner, do you believe that Jesus is the Son of God? Well, thousands believe the same, and still are living in sin. Doubtless you admit that you must be a christian in order to be saved, and you would like to be one if you could be without letting any one know it. Many have come to the same conclusion, and have died in sin; but I beseech you stay in that condition no longer.

The next thing God requires of you is, to confess him before men; and you will never find "peace in believing" until you do. Christ says, "Whosoever, therefore, shall confess me before men, him also will I confess before my Father which is in heaven; but whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 10: 32, 33. "For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the angels." Luke 9: 26.

Be obedient, therefore, and confess Jesus. Take up the first cross, and the rest will be lighter. Delay no longer. The reward is just ahead. JOHN RIDLEY.

OLD AND NEW THINGS.

"Thus saith the Lord, stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein."—JER. 6: 16.

We are, as was the prophet Jeremiah, in the midst of an age when every one's way is right in his own eyes. The Jews had as a people gone away; other gods had led them, they not being satisfied with what God had given them, but must have something else. But the blessings of God did not rest upon them. They were left desolate of God because they would not heed his word.

So we as a people are too much in the same place. One has a psalm, another a dream, and a third has new light; and so each one must publish it to the world at large; and if one should spend time to examine every new thing that is sent, there would be no time for any thing else.

Some churches must hear something new every Sabbath, or they are not satisfied, and will go home grumbling about the preacher, though he may be a man of God, like Stephen, full of the Holy Ghost. The preacher must have doctrine, something they can discuss after meeting. Such ones (if the preacher does so) will have their ears and eyes opened; but if he talks old things, exhorts to walk in the old paths, even the way the prophets went, the King's highway, which leads from banishment, they are sleepy.

I ask you, dear brethren and sisters, is not this too much the case? Do not think me finding fault—not so; but I must speak out against all sin. Give me the old paths to walk in—the path where the meek and the lowly walk. I ask not for honors of men, nor to be applauded as a smart preacher; but I ask of my heavenly Father that I may be enabled to lie low in the valley, where the dew of God falls. I ask to be clad with honor when the race is over. I ask that I may be so directed of God, that my labors may not be in vain. I ask to be imbued with the Holy Spirit, that I may so present the word of God, that sinners will become convinced that they are such, flee to Jesus, and find rest to their souls.

Dear ones in Christ, do not think so much of new things. This is the way of the world. Be not like them. Ask for the "old paths," and where is the good way, and then walk therein. The Bible is the book to follow. There all the way-marks are clearly laid out; none need be lost. Glory to God, this path leads to the final resting place.

"Then who will follow Jesus,
  Amid reproach and shame?
While others shrink and falter,
  Who'll glory in his name?"

THE CUP OF SORROW.

BY REV. THEO. L. CUYLER.

On classic cups and vases we have sometimes seen devices carved by the cunning hand of the sculptor. So around the cup of trial, which God commends to the lips of suffering christians, are wreathed many comforting assurances. Here is one of them: "All things work together for good to them who love God." Here is another like to it: "As thy day is, so shall thy strength be." Afflicted friend! Turn thy cup of sorrow around, and you will see engraved on it these precious words: "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." Turn it again, and read: "My grace is sufficient for thee." The whole cup is encircled with the declarations of divine love. But it requires faith to read them. They are invisible to selfishness and blind unbelief. And God sometimes washes the eyes of his children with tears, in order that they may read aright his providence and his commandments. "Lovest thou me more than these?" Christ says to us parents, as plainly as he said it to Peter beside Genesareth.

The test is applied. Sudden sickness withers our darling child away in a few brief hours. And, when we gaze in agony into the empty crib, and finding no child there, we turn to the blessed Jesus, and cry out through our sobs: "Yea! Master, thou knowest that we love thee." It is a bitter, bitter cup that we are drinking; but around it is carved this inscription, which faith makes legible: "Whom I love I chasten; love worketh no evil."

When the man of sorrows was passing through the awful agonies of Gethsemane, he exclaimed: "The cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?" So it is an inexpressible comfort to us to know that our heavenly Father prepares the tear-draught which many of us are called to drink. Can we not trust him?

He never administers poison to his own; but only the most needed medicine. Nor does our divine physician ever take down the bottle. He administers not a single drop too much. Pray don't say, "Oh! if God had only taken my property, and left me my child, or my wife, it would have been better." God makes no mistakes! He understands your spiritual ailments, and prepares just exactly the draught you need. He knoweth what things ye have need of. It is the province of true faith to understand that, when God brings out of the laboratory of his all-wise love any cup of trial, he knows just what he is doing, and just what your soul's health requireth.

Shall we make a wry face, and push away the bitter draught? Just as soon might our child, who is crimsoned over with fever, push aside the glass of medicine, and cry out spitefully, "Take away that horrid stuff. Give me something that I like." Your wiser tenderness replies: "My boy! this medicine has to be bad in taste to do you good. I love you, if you don't love it. If you want to get well, you must take it all. Suppose that the cup is one of intense bitterness; all tonic medicines are bitter. Many a bitter cup of trial has proved to be a glorious tonic to the believer. Some of the best prayers I ever hear uttered are from lips that have been moistened by the cup of excruciating sorrow. Six weeks of sore affliction have fitted a minister of Christ to preach more richly than a whole year in a theological seminary could have done. Paul describes a very costly part of his education for his great work in the closing portion of the eleventh chapter of his second epistle to the Corinthians. Turn to the chapter and read it. Learn from it how to suffer and be strong.

There was a fine christian philosophy in the cheerful remark of a bright young christian on his dying bed. "When I have most pain in my body," said he, "I have the most peace in my soul. I do not doubt but that there is love in the bottom of the cup, though it is terribly bitter in the mouth." It was at the bottom of the cup that the precious blessing was deposited; and he must needs drink the whole bitter draught to reach it.

Many of the richest christian graces lie at the bottom of the cup of trial. How patience sparkles down there amid the tears! How lustrous shines the jewel of faith! Joy too is there—such joy as the apostle tasted in his "tribulation." Courage always shows, too, the most grandly when the fight is the fiercest, and when Death on his pale horse is careering down on us over a field strown with defeat and disaster. There is a patience of hope, a peace passing all understanding, a sweet sense of the immediate presence of Jesus, that never can be reached by us in a state of ease and prosperity. They lie only at the bottom of trial's bitter cup. And God esteems them of such precious value that he mingles for us that very draught in order to bring them out in their beauty and power. This cup which our Father's love compounds for us, shall we not drink it?

I have found great comfort lately, when in sore trouble, in reading a short sketch of the racy talk of old "Uncle Johnson"—a poverty-stricken negro, who reached over one hundred years, and was then bereaved of his wife. "Uncle, don't you feel lonely since Ellen left you?" his minister inquired.

"Yes! Massa, I feels berry lonesome. But den de blessed Jesus comes round every day, and gives me a few drops ob heaven, just as a nus would wid a spoon; den oh! how I wants to get hold ob de whole dish! When I wos so sick de oder day, I could see de dust of God's chariot comin' ober de mountains for me! Den he say to me, 'Wait, old Johnson! wait—hold on a leetle longer, and I'll come round d'rectly.' Yes, Lord, I will hold on, if de Lord please, for anoder hundred years! Oh! blessed Jesus, only keep de table standin' for me; I'se bound to be dere."

Sister in sorrow! only look at that solitary old saint, holding in his trembling hands a cup that has "a few drops of heaven" in it; and never let you or I complain of any draught which infinite love may press to our lips. "Father, not as we will, but as Thou wilt!"—Selected by M. Foss.

CONFORMING TO THE WORLD.

A professor of religion, whether male or female, following the fashions of the world, is a most pitiable object. Can we be transformed by the renewing of our minds, and at the same time be conformed to the world? Can we seek the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, while we seek the outward adorning of ruffles and rings, curling the hair, and costly apparel? Have we learned the art of being the disciples of Christ, without the pain of self-denial—without bearing the cross? Do not many congregations appear more like a flower garden than like a christian assembly? Do we not, in conforming to the world, seek the friendship of the world? And do we suppose that we can be the friends of the world and not the enemies of God?

But, in the finery and extravagance of dress, there is not only a sinful and deadly conformity to the world, but there is, of necessity, a shameful neglect of the most important christian duties; for, while time and money are lavished in adorning the body, the hungry are not fed, the naked are not clothed, and the sick and prisoners are not visited. In the vain hope of pleasing the world, we gratify our pride, wound the cause of Christ, and excite the enemies of the cross to neglect and ridicule that religion, which, while it professes humility and meekness, presents little more than the garb of pride and ostentation.

Many are led astray by inquiring, "what harm is there in this or that?" You dress like the vain world, you must act like the world, walk, talk, and visit like the world. Is there no harm in all this? Rather inquire what good is there in this or that? Is this the way to be holy? In this do I act like a disciple of Jesus Christ? Is this the way to be more crucified unto the world? In so doing, do I walk in the path of self-denial, in the way of the cross? The professors of religion should ever consider themselves under discipline for the kingdom of heaven, and should, therefore, do everything to the glory of God.

Simplicity should mark the followers of Christ, and distinguish them from the world. The road of fashion is the way to death. Let us not be deceived; the world smiles, but it is only to betray. If we would be holy, if we would be christians, we must be singular—we must be separate from sinners in our spirit, temper, words, actions, and dress; we must not be conformed to the world; a marked distinction must be kept between them that love God and them that love him not.—Free Methodist.

THE VILLAGE GRAVE-YARD.

On a bright summer's day, while waiting the arrival of the railway train, I thought I would visit the resting place of the dead. As I wended my way through the beautiful village of C., I was struck with the delightful scenery presented to my view. Every door yard was adorned with sweet-scented flowers, sending forth a fragrance that was truly reviving; but while pondering upon the beauties of nature, I had approached the village grave-yard. I lifted the latch, and entered the enclosure. There seemed to be a hallowed influence come over me as I stood looking at the white marble slabs, that marked the spot where some dear one lay; and methought thus it is ever so, a fond parent, a loving wife, an affectionate child, whom we have loved long and fondly; but ah! how soon they are snatched from us by death's relentless hand; and we bear them away to the last resting place earth can afford, there to sleep till "the last lovely morning" in glory shall dawn. Then, if we are faithful to him who hath loved us, we will clasp them to our hearts, and ever after will wander hand in hand up and down the then purified earth, singing songs of adoration to him who hath loved us, and saved us through his blood, and hath given us an inheritance with the pure and holy. Then we will walk with him the golden streets of the New Jerusalem, and so ever be with the Lord. J. B. WELLS.

For the World's Crisis.

TRUST IN THE LORD.

It is good to trust in the Lord, and to feel the blessed assurance that we are his children, and to know that we can go to him and tell him all our cares and troubles, trusting wholly in him for help, knowing that he will "withhold no good thing from them that walk uprightly," but is even ready and willing to receive all that come to him. Why should we refuse to trust one so good, and who has done so much for us?

I never felt more like trusting in the Lord than now. Let us strive to do his will in all things; and if trials and temptations come, go to him about it all, trusting wholly in him; for his grace is sufficient for us. Let us believe the precious promises recorded in his holy word, and strive to do his will, that when he comes to gather his chosen ones home, we may with all the faithful be gathered home, where trials, temptations and disappointments will be unknown, and where the weary will find rest. "In due season we shall reap, if we faint not." MARY J. PRATT.

East Randolph, Mass.

"PHARISEES—HYPOCRITES!"

"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these, ye did it unto me."

You sit in God's temples each Sabbath day—
Beautiful spire-crowned temples they—
Whose doors are open to those who pay,
Where there's plenty of room for wealth to pray,
  But not a place for the poor.
You send your money with lavish hands,
To clothe the heathen in distant lands,
But you heed not the starving wretch who stands,
Ragged and weary, begging for alms,
  Right at your very door.

You hear not the cry of misery,
The wail sent up in agony
From the heart of frail humanity,
  Here on your native shores.
You see not them, so near your homes,
You listen not to their dying groans,
Calling on you in piteous tones
  For the crumbs that fall from your boards.

You heed not the millions plodding along,
And sinking daily, weary and worn,
'Neath grievous burdens hard to be borne;
You pass them by with lofty scorn,
  Ne'er lending a helping hand.
What care you for the sons of toil,
Who hew your wood and till your soil?
Though the blast may chill or the sun may broil,
Theirs is the work, but yours is the spoil,
  In this your Christian land.

There's many a hovel may meet your eye,
Where some starving creature has lain down to die;
But like the priest and the levite you pass it by,
Without a look, without a sigh,
  For the child of want and sorrow.
You go to your homes where plenty reigns,
Where music sounds her sweetest strains,
And your heart beats light though black with stains,
And you eat and drink, and count your gains,
  Nor think that you die to-morrow!

You look not with pity on the woman of shame,
But you pass her by with proud disdain,
Though once she was pure, with never a stain,
Till man—your brother—the tempter came,
  And lured her into sin.
Is it right that you should push her down,
Now that you've driven her out on the town?
If on her you can only frown,
  How can you smile on Him?

You work the poor man day after day,
And you grudge him the beggarly pittance you pay;
And if he murmurs you drive him away,
And then thank God, when you kneel to pray,
  That you are not like other men.
Oh, hypocrites! hypocrites! what will you say,
As you stand before God on that awful day,
When the earth like a vapor shall pass away—
When God's children shall call upon you to repay
  All the wrongs you have heaped upon them?

You may call in vain for the mountains then,
To hide you from God and your fellow men;
For men will accuse and he will condemn,
For has he not said, "As ye do unto them,
  You do even so to him"?
Go, dig your talent out of the ground,
And scatter your wealth to your brothers around,
And God will cause your hearts to bound,
And happy hearts your name shall sound,
  And your souls will be free from sin.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

MORAL PRECEPTS.

32. Anger approved.—"Be ye angry and sin not."—Eph. 4: 26.

Anger disapproved.—"Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry; for anger resteth in the bosom of fools."—Eccl. 7: 9. "Make no friendship with an angry man."—Prov. 22: 24. "The wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God."—James 1: 20.

Ephesians 4: 26 is thus rendered by Belsham. "If ye be angry, yet sin not," and in this version he is sustained by Wakefield, Newcome, Bowyer, Bezer, and Grotius.

The words, says Dr. Whitby, are not a command to be angry, but a caution to avoid sinful anger, hence all apparent discrepancy is obviated.

33. Good works to be seen of men.—"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works."—Matt. 5: 16.

Good works not to be seen of men.—"Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them."—Matt. 6: 1.

To the casual reader these passages might appear inharmonious, especially as the skeptic has left out an important part of the first text. The beauty of the passage will be seen by quoting it entire. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

In Matt. 5: 16, we are taught to let the light of truth so shine, that men may be constrained to glorify God. Whereas, Matt. 6: 1 forbids the giving of alms for the purpose of being seen of men, that we may receive the praises of the multitude. Truly,

"God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain."

The harmony of the text teaches us to work with reference to the glory of God instead of our own glory.

34. Judging of others forbidden.—"Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged."—Matt. 7: 1, 2.

Judging of others approved.—"Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? And if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters? Know ye not that we shall judge angels? How much more things that pertain to this life? If, then, ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church."—1 Cor. 6: 2–4. "Do not ye judge them that are within?"—1 Cor. 5: 12.

The points of discrepancy which are made to appear in the above passages, are derived purely from wresting them from their context. The text in Matt. 7: 1, 2, has specific reference to a rash, condemnatory spirit, which Jesus here highly reprehends, and warns his disciples against indulging in any course so wrong and unjust.

1 Cor. 6: 2–4 refers to the period of the millennial reign of Christ when the saints will be joint rulers with him, executing the judgments of Jehovah upon the ungodly and the sinners against God's law, and at which time they will be seated on thrones of judgment, and reigning on the earth as "kings and priests" with Christ. In proof of this, read in connection with 1 Cor. 6: 2–4; Psa. 149: 5–9; Rev. 5: 9, 10; Matt. 19: 28; Rev. 20: 4–6; Dan. 7: 18–27. The last text quoted by the infidel is 1 Cor. 5: 12. A simple reading of the passage with its connections, will satisfy the reader that it has reference to excluding from christian fellowship those who are unworthy the name of Christ. In the light of these facts we would ask the candid reader where the skeptic has any ground for offering these passages as opposed to each other. But we have had, and probably shall continue to have, occasion to expose many cases equally palpable and unjust.

"The Bible Triumphant," by Mrs. H. V. Reed.

FASHIONABLE RELIGION REBUKED.

At the sale of pews at Grace Church, Chicago, the prices obtained for sitting in that house of worship were greater, we believe, than any ever realized in Chicago. The pew admitted to be the best went off to J. Mason Loomis, at the modest figure of $2,150, he having gallantly bid $950 for the first choice. From that sum down to more moderate rates, the descent was easy, the sale of the evening closing by knocking off No. 136 to Dr. E. M. Hale, the abortionist, at the extraordinary low sum of $400.

It is clearly the right of any number of men and women of Chicago, associated under any name, to build such a temple as they please, to express the force and fervency of their religious ideas, and we may not complain of what they do. If any men are moved by any spirit to pay $2,150 for a pew, or, if any are so lowly that $400 limits their capabilities, theirs is the right to do as they please with their own. But while indulging in the conceits of ecclesiastical architecture, the sweet strains of operatic music, the luxury of a house complete in all its appointments, all in the name and for the glory of God, the Protestant poor of Chicago are lapsing into unbelief and darkness, because, with the exception of the few Mission churches, there is no place in the house of God for them. . . .

No man who labors with his hands will find a place in Grace church. We do not say such would be turned away from its door. A poor woman, the child of toil, who has given six days of the week to her task, might, if the sexton is not a boor or a bully, find a corner in which her humble raiment would not be brought into too bold relief by contrast with the infinite gewgawry of her richer sisters; but she would not be welcome twice. She has not $2,150 for a seat; she has never practiced child-murder as a trade, hence even $400 are wanting; and as the gospel in these days is expensive, she must be turned off to make room for the glittering one who can pay.

What we say of Grace church is true of all like establishments in Chicago and throughout the whole country. In them a certain number of lawyers, doctors, politicians, editors, speculators, merchants, and sometimes abortionists, meet to loll away an hour and a half of each Sunday, on luxuriously cushioned seats, to listen to words which may be comforting to hear, but which have but infinitesimal effect in the control of every day life. In all of them, the men who labor on, no matter at what, nor how faithfully and intelligently, are practically forbidden—just as effectually forbidden as if an angel with a flaming sword stood at the entrance. And this in all our cities is the curse of Protestantism which once regenerated the world; and what is worse, this practical denial of the essence of the gospel taught by Him who had not where to lay his head, is making its way into the villages and rural districts so rapidly and to such an extent, that thousands of good men are looking upon the final triumph of the Protestant cause as a thing that must wait the lapse of another era, in which popery and slavery are again the rulers of the world. O, men who call yourselves christians, what a spectacle is this!

In the older days, when a church was built for the honor of our Maker, it was for his honor indeed. It acknowledged no ownership in man. Those who gave to it sent in their gifts because they were conscientiously impelled. No matter what the value of these, nor the social state of the givers, in the walls of that sacred edifice all men were alike. There were neither privileges for the rich, nor slights and disabilites for the poor. Before God and that altar, the rich and poor were one. In his presence, the gaudy raiment, the glittering jewels, the haughty mien, and the arrogance of wealth, were less than the humble garb and the consciousness of poverty. Prince and peasant knelt together to acknowledge their brotherhood, and together recvive the proof that God is the loving Father of all mankind. Grace church is very well. It is an ornament to the neighborhood in which it stands, and no doubt a source of pride and gratification to those who built it. But sweep pew rents and sales out of it as the iron troopers swept out the idols; open wide the doors; inscribe on the front: "This is the house of God—Let those who will, come in!" and then see how wide and how beneficent its influence may become.—Chicago Times.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to do any thing that is offensive to others. If you are requested not to smoke a cigar in the presence of those to whom it is offensive, you should at once put the cigar aside, and not make an insulting or an unkind remark. There is probably nothing so offensive to a person unaccustomed to the use of tobacco, as the smoke of a cigar or a pipe. This it is your bounden duty to remember, and act the part of a christian gentleman.

It is not polite, when you have indorsed a note that the promiser cannot pay, to attempt to avoid the payment by putting your property out of your hands, or by resorting to any other unlawful means to avoid the payment. A person should never indorse a note unless he is abundantly able, and feels perfectly willing to pay the same, providing the debt should fall upon him.

It is not polite, if you have risen from poverty and obscurity to a respectable position in society, to forget your former circumstances, and look down upon those less favored than yourself, who were once your companions and friends,—some of whom may have contributed largely to your success and elevation.

It is not polite to insist on opening a door or window in a car or ferry-boat, to the inconvenience or suffering of others.

It is not polite, in the payment of a debt, to give less, or send less in a letter,—even to the amount of a single penny.

It is not polite to request another to indorse a note for you without offering to give him ample security.

It is not polite to loan to another an article intrusted to your care.

It is not polite to judge of a man's character by the clothes he wears.

It is not polite to waste or destroy any thing that can possibly be of use to another.

THE LAST DOLLAR.

He gave it to his wife with a sigh, yet with a look of resignation.

"It is our last dollar," he said; "but the Lord will provide."

Rev. James Spring was minister in the little mountain village of Thornville. He was poor, and his congregation were poor. Often before he had been very near his last dollar, but he had never actually got to it until to day.

"So you've been always saying," sobbed his wife; "but what is to become of us when this is gone? They won't trust us any more at the store; and your salary won't be due these three weeks, even if you get it then. Why do you stay here, James, where the people are so poor?"

"I have no other place to go; nor money to travel to it, if the Lord opened a way. My work for the present is here. He feedeth the young ravens; he will surely feed us."

"I wish I had your faith, but I haven't, and it won't come to me. Oh, what shall we do?" And she wrung her hands despairingly. "My poor children!"

"Once I was young, and now I am old," solemnly said her husband, speaking in the words of the Psalmist, "yet never have I seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

As if in answer to his pious ejaculation, there came a sudden knock at the door. All the while the minister and his wife had been talking, a storm had been raging outside. On opening the door a traveler, quite wet through, entered.

"I was coming through the forest from Maryville," he said, and ventured to stop at the first house I saw. My horse is in the shed. Do I take too great a liberty?"

"Not at all," answered the master of the house. "We have a poor shelter, as you see; but such as it is you are welcome to it; there is a good fire, at any rate."

It was in the kitchen where this conversation took place. Indeed, this humble home boasted no parlor, and the kitchen was dining-room, drawing-room, and all.

The stranger proved to be a man of education and intelligence, and in conversation the minister forgot his trouble, and was reminded of earlier and brighter days, when intellectual companionship had not been the rare thing it was now, up among these hills.

At last the storm abated, and the stranger arose to go. His host accompanied him to the gate, and watched him till he disappeared behind a turn of the road.

"See here, James," said his wife, eagerly, when they returned to the house. "I found this on the table near where the gentleman sat."

It was a fifty-dollar greenback, wrapped in a bit of paper that looked as if it had been torn from a pocket-book, and on the inside of the paper was written the verse of the Psalmist, which it was apparent the traveler had overheard.

"I thought he was writing the directions asked for," said the minister. "He means it for us. Thanks be to the Lord! Did I not say, my dear, he would provide?"

His wife burst into tears.

"God forgive me!" she said. "I will never doubt again. The Lord surely sent this stranger to our aid."

"And he will still provide," replied her husband. "Whatever my lot may be, here or elsewhere, in him I trust."

A month after a letter, a rare event, came to Rev. James Spring. It was as follows:

"Rev. and Dear Sir: The church of Maryville has unanimously called you to its pastorate. The salary is fifteen hundred dollars, and a good parsonage house."

The letter concluded by saying: "The writer of this first came to know you by your hospitality to him during a storm, a few weeks ago. He overheard you, in a moment of great distress, speak with such full faith, that he feels you are just the person for this charge, and on his recommendation this call has been made."

Maryville was the county town, a rich and thriving place, in a broad and fertile valley at the foot of the hills. It was a far fitter sphere of labor for a man of the minister's abilities than the wild village in the mountains. So a young man, as yet without family, took the missionary church among the hills, and Rev. James Spring accepted the call.

But he does not forget the past, and often, when people show want of faith, tells the story of his last dollar.—Ex.

COLDS.—BATHING.

Perhaps no disorder is more common than colds, and yet it receives less attention than almost any other. If some preventive is not resorted to, the system becomes less powerful to resist or throw off their bad effects, and consumption is often the fatal remedy.

Bathe or wash every other morning, soon after rising, in moderately cold water, using a very little soap, then wipe dry with a coarse towel. The whole operation need not last more than ten minutes.

The above, I believe, will generally prevent taking cold, and give more tone and vigor to the whole person than all the "bronchial troches" and "bitters" extant. A. L. ADAMS.

AIR-TIGHT BOOTS AND SHOES.

A shoemaker physiologist writes thus on the care of the feet, and the objection to air tight boots and shoes:

"One of the well-established facts of physiology is that any thing worn upon the feet which, like rubber or patent leather, prevents the passing off of the insensible perspiration, is detrimental to the health. Those who regard the organic laws as having any sacredness, will not use patent-leather boots covering the whole foot, for constant wear, but limit them to particular occasions. Rubbers ought to be removed, and something else substituted in their place, as soon as the feet come out of the wet which occasions their being put on. The same is true of all boots that are water-proof. They should be worn only when times of exposure makes them necessary. This is sufficiently well known with regard to rubbers; but few think that leather boots are objectionable, for the same reason, in proportion as they are water-tight. There are comparatively few of them which are perfectly so; yet, there are many, which, worn as they are, day after day, in dry weather as well as wet, must, by retaining a large part of the foot's perspiration, have an unhealthy effect.

It is a good practice to bathe the feet after removing a pair of water-proof boots which have been worn during the day. With many men this is a necessity, and it would be such with many more if they knew all the requirements of the laws of hygiene, to say nothing of any other reason. To give the boots themselves a washing out occasionally would be advantageous, as the feet must be allowed to perspire naturally, or the skin in some other part is liable to be overtasked, and it is stated by medical authority that many skin diseases have been produced by neglect of the feet in this particular."—Herald of Health.

CLEANLINESS.—A neat, clean, fresh-aired sweet, cheerful, well-arranged house, exerts a moral as well as physical influence over its inmates, and makes the members of a family peaceable, and considerate of each other's feelings and happiness. The connection is obvious between the state of mind thus produced, and habits of respect for others, and for those higher duties and obligations which no laws can enforce. On the contrary, a filthy, squalid, noxious dwelling, in which none of the decencies of life can be observed, contributes to make its inhabitants selfish, sensual, and regardless of the feelings of others; and the constant indulgence of such passions renders them reckless and brutal.

☞ Physic has the least part in the cure of serious diseases; medicine, when a man is down, may set him on his legs again, but diet, air, and exercise alone, will enable him to get forward and thrive. To give physic to those who will not attend to the rules of nature after, is like setting a drunken blockhead on horseback after he has tumbled off! Before he has got half a mile he will be sure to be off again.

"NO MORE DEATH."

No more death—oh, blessed promise,
When the Savior comes again;
When gloriously, before his ancients,
He shall on Mount Zion reign.

No more death, no blight or mildew,
No sad autumn's dread decay;
No scorching heat, or blasts of winter,
But skies serene and cloudless day.

No more death—no raging fever,
Or consumptive's languid eye,
But immortal, youthful vigor,
Fills each frame with ecstasy.

No more death, no weak or helpless,
No hoary head or tottering forms;
No deafened ears or darkened vision,
No hearts o'erwhelmed by life's rude storms.

No more death, no sad bereavements,
No bed of death or darkened room;
No sable dress or solemn requiem,
Or silent darkness of the tomb.

No more death, no dark estrangements,
No severed tie or broken vow;
But perfect trust and love unchanging
Sits on each fair, unfurrowed brow.

No more death—what joy and gladness
Cheers the heart 'mid toil and pain;
Lift your heads, ye sons of sadness,
Soon will cease the tyrant's reign.

THE TIME DRAWETH NIGH.

In the ground of our souls is a conviction that the time when the doors of the pavilion in the secret of Jesus' presence will open to receive and close in, those who, like Paul, are striving for the "prize," is imminent. Therefore, be not moved from the hope of the gospel. O, greatly beloved, be strong; yea, be strong! Soon, in the chambers prepared, ye shall be hidden from the present strife of tongues. Psalm 31: 20. Let all who will, say: "My Lord delayeth his coming;" let not our souls come into their secret; unto their assembly, mine honor, be not thou united.

We see no reason to doubt the substantial truth of what we have hitherto been permitted to testify on this subject. The last signs and the prophetic periods, in their minor foreshadowing fulfillment, seem to be appearing and running out before our eyes. What remains but the grand and literal fulfillment? If there is a comparative lull in the late wonderful and general commotions, is it not indicated in the words: "When they shall say peace and safety, etc.?" Is not the stillness of the twilight preceding the "first watch" of the night? If the keenness of expectation of decisive events has somewhat subsided, both among pre and post-millennial christians, does not this point, in the case of believers too, to the words: "In such an hour as ye think not" (Matt. 24: 44,) and to these: "As a snare (Luke 21: 35) shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth." And observe that this is just after the declaration; "See and know of your own selves, that summer is now at hand;" and "then lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh:" verses 30 and 28.

In close succession we have had wars and rumors of wars; nation rises against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; famines and pestilences; and lastly, as indicated by our Lord, earthquakes in divers places (Matt. 24: 6-7;) and latterly, more or less of them simultaneously. There is beginning to be on earth perplexity, and distress of nations, and men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth. Luke 21: 26.

We see the beginning of what is predicted in 1 Tim. 4: 1-3, and Rev. 16: 13-14. These seducing spirits are developing their designs more and more. We see ungodliness increasing, and in a fair way to attain, before long, antediluvian proportions. We see a degenerate and lukewarm church fraternizing and commingling with the world. We see it no longer enduring sound doctrine, particularly on prophetic subjects; and practically and largely too, on the fundamental truths of the fall and redemption. We see knowledge increasing, and men running to and fro. Nor is this less remarkable with regard to those prophetic truths to which the prediction of knowledge and activity properly relates.—Prophetic Times.

NECESSITY OF PRAYER.—The root of the church does not lie in the pulpit; it lies in the prayer meeting. There is the place to water the root, and very soon the branches will bend down with the "fruits of the Spirit." Whenever I see our own prayer room filled, and the prayers full too, I feel like saying to my flock what Elijah said to the king, "Get thee up, for there is a sound of abundance of rain." It is folly to suppose that any minister, however gifted with graces of tongue or heart, can build into permanent power and usefulness a congregation of prayer-neglecting people. He may draw a crowd to listen to him on the Sabbath, but unless the mercy-seat is crowded too, there will be but few converts gathered to the communion table. If such a church enlarges, it will be by certificates from other churches, and not by conversions from the world.—Cuyler.

OVER THE LINE.

No snare is so subtle, constant, and perilous to the follower of Christ as conformity to the world. Nothing sooner saps his spirituality; nothing hinders a revival in the church more effectually. Conformity implies resemblance. And when a professed christian begins to look like a worldling, how dwelleth the love of Christ in him? For there is a complete and irreconcilable antagonism between what the Bible calls the "world" and the service of Christ.

The chief end of a christian's life is to glorify God. Is this the chief end of life with the people of the world? Ask any one of them; and he will answer, No! I live to enjoy myself, in promoting my interests, in gratifying my tastes, and in taking my comfort. The worldling commonly delights most in what a consistent christian finds to be forbidden ground. That forbidden fruit is poison to the christian.

Bear in mind that every pure pleasure which an unconverted heart can enjoy, such as the joys of home and of friendship, the love of letters or art, the sight of beauty, or the delight of relieving sorrow, all these the christian can have and enjoy likewise. They are not sinful, and the child of God can partake of them with a clear conscience. But just where a Bible-conscience tells him to stop, the license of the world begins. The word of God draws a dividing line. Over that line, lies the path of self-indulgence. Over that line lies self-pampering, frivolity, slavery to fashion. Over that line, God is ignored, and often defied! Christ is wounded there and crucified afresh. Over that line the follower of Jesus has no business to go.

Over that line which separates pure piety from the world, the christian, if he goes at all, must go as a participant in the pleasure of the world, or as a protestant against them. If he goes to partake, he offends Christ; if he goes to protest, he offends his ill-chosen associates. Christian, if you ever attend a convivial party, a ball-room assembly, a theatre, ar a gaming company, do you go as a partaker in the sport, or to make your protest against such amusements? If you go for the first object, you offend your Lord; if for the second, you offend your company. They do not want you there. We are quite sure that no bevy of merry-makers would be the happier over their cups, or their cards, or their cotillions, if all the elders and deacons of our church were to come in suddenly among them. Brethren! the "world" don't want you in their giddy and godless pleasures, unless you are willing to go all lengths with them. And if you walk one mile with them over the line, they will "compel you to go with them twain."

Where does the dividing line run between true religion and the world? We answer that it runs just where God's word puts it; and a conscience which is enlightened by the word and by prayer does not commonly fail to discover it. Where Christ would be likely to go if he were on earth, is the right side; but where a christian would be ashamed to have his Master find him, there he ought never to find himself. Wherever a christian can go, and conscientiously ask God's blessing on what he is doing, there let that christian go. He is not likely to wander over the line. And when a church member can enter a play-house, or into a dancing frolic, and honestly ask God's blessing on the amusements and come away a better christian for it, then let him go; but not before.

But should not every good man be a friend to the world? Was not the divine Jesus a friend of the world when he so loved it that he gave himself for its redemption? Did not Paul love the world when he endured hardship, humiliation and martyrdom to lead sinners to the cross? Ah! yes—very true; but what the Redeemer and his apostle were after was not sinners' sins, but sinners' souls. And they sought to save the world not by conformity to it, but by transforming it to a higher and holier ideal of life.

Nor is it by going over to the world that we can save the worldling. If we are to impress the world, if we would save sinners, we must, in the same sense that Jesus was, be "separate from" sinners. The moment we go over the line to "curry favor" with the votaries of sin, we never reach them; and only run the risk of ruining ourselves. Would to God that in trying to draw the world into conformity to Christ, we did not allow the world to drag us down into conformity with itself!—Rev. T. Cuyler, in Evangelist.

For the World's Crisis.

HAVE YOU THE SPIRIT?

It is of the utmost importance that this question should be considered candidly and seriously. There are thousands in the world who have not the Spirit, and who do not see the importance and necessity of possessing it. There are thousands in the church who pretend to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and who know that unless they have the Spirit they cannot work successfully here nor be saved hereafter; yet who live destitute of the Holy Spirit in their hearts.

Reader, do you believe in the Holy Spirit? Do you realize the import and understand the meaning of the apostle Paul when he says, "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his"? Here you see if you have not the Spirit you have no part in Christ, and if no part in Christ, no title to the kingdom, and if no title to the kingdom, what then? O, my friend, can you bear the thought of being excluded from the paradise of God? Do you not want to meet the Savior in peace when he comes and hear it said to you, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world"? Have you not loved ones sleeping in the tomb you desire to meet in that glorious day? Can you bear the idea of being cut off while they are saved? You hope to meet them; you want to be there in that circle that shall sit down to the marriage supper of the Lamb. Remember, then, that you must belong to Christ now. You must be a christian, indeed, now. You must have the Spirit of Christ now. If you are led by the Spirit of God, then you are a son of God.

But how can I know that I have the Spirit? If you have the Spirit your life will demonstrate that you do have it. If you have the Spirit you will walk after the Spirit, you will lead a holy life; you will not seek after evil things; your affections will be placed on things above; you will be spiritually minded, you will delight to pray and engage in the service of God. If you have the Spirit you will bring forth the fruits of the Spirit; you will love God with all your heart and your neighbor as yourself; you will love every body; you will labor to save sinners; you will be joyful and peaceable, long-suffering, and patient; you will not be fretful, and peevish, and hard to get along with, but gentle and kind, and good to all. You will not be proud and haughty, but meek and lowly. You will not seek the praise or the honor of men, but you will imitate Jesus in all you do.

Reader, have you the Spirit? Are you sure you have it? Do not grieve it, but cherish its blessed influences in your heart. Walk in the Spirit. Be filled with the Spirit. But if you have it not, cry mightily to God in the name of Jesus, and he will give it to you. Do not rest untill you know you are sealed with the Holy Spirit.

The day of mercy is almost past. Soon the Spirit will cease its striving. My friend, fly to Jesus. Be washed in his blood and filled with his Spirit, and then you will be caught up to meet him when he comes.

J. W. THOMAS.

For the World's Crisis.

"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES." John 5: 39.

Search the Scriptures, and you will find no immortal-soul doctrine taught in the Bible.

By searching the Scriptures, we find the all-important question, "What is man?" This question we will now, by the help of God, try to answer by searching the Scriptures.

If we commence at the starting point to answer this question, in the above proposed way, we find it declared in God's word, "Dust thou art, and unto dust thou shalt return."—Gen. 3: 19. But dust is an inanimate substance, with no other properties in it but dead matter, and consequently it follows that, after man had been formed out of dust, he was nothing but organized matter; and when his existence on earth is closed, he will return to the same kind of matter as he was taken from. But here the objection might be made: man is a compound being, consisting of a mortal body that must return to dust, and an immortal soul which cannot die. I know this is a doctrine which has been taught, and is also believed, at least by the greater part of the christian world, as the true doctrine of the Bible. But my aim is to keep close to the text, hence search the Scriptures, and notice

I. The negative part of the question.
II. The positive.

There is one expression, often used as a Scripture term, which we do not find in the entire Bible; viz., the words "immortal soul," so often used in preaching and prayer. Now I ask, Is it unscriptural not to preach the immortality of the soul, when by searching the Scriptures I find it not only silent about an immortal soul, but find that a soul may be spared from death, and "the soul that sinneth it shall die"? Paul says, "Preach the word." The only passage in which the word "immortal" occurs is in 1 Tim. 1: 17, applied to God himself; hence as I find no immortality of the soul taught in the Bible, I must again search the Scriptures in order

1. To learn what I do find there about the above question. This we find. After God had formed man out of the dust of the ground, "he breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul."—Gen. 2: 7. Now if ever man were endowed with an immortal soul, would not here be the place to read, And man became an immortal soul? But the Bible says, "man became a living soul," which is a soul that lives, and is a living soul only as long as life remains in it. Here I would ask, What was man before he had a knowledge of his existence? Scripture answers, "dust," in a certain form. What was man after he had a knowledge or was conscious of his existence? Why, according to God's own declaration, he was "a living soul." Now we have man, the "living soul," placed in the garden of Eden (Gen. 2: 8), under the penalty of death, in case of disobedience. But disobedience was the result, and hence death the consequence. About this there is no dispute. Now the question arises, What was it that died? Was it only the body formed out of the dust of the ground, in order that the soul could escape to some locality unknown to mortal man, to receive either reward or punishment? No, I think not; for according to this theory, the body formed out of the dust of the ground would only have died, which would have been an impossibility, because it was nothing but dead matter in itself. It was to the living soul that God said, "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Search the Scriptures. In Ps. 78: 50, we read, "He [the Lord] spared not their soul from death." "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."—Ezek. 18: 4, 20.

Thus we have man formed out of dust, and after death he returns again to dust. But here one might be ready to ask, What now? This cuts off life entirely, and where shall everlasting life, the hope of the christian, come from? I admit, human wisdom is here at its wit's end, for it is positively declared, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die," and that death has "passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."—Rom. 5: 12. So it is declared in God's word, and by it we must abide. To hope for eternal life on the ground of having an immortal soul, that lives when the body is dead, is a hope not founded in the Bible; because immortality is nowhere found but in God alone (1 Tim. 6: 16), until those justified by faith in Christ are raised from the dead, and thus put on immortality. 1 Cor. 15: 53; 2 Cor. 5: 4. Well, then, admitting that in death the whole man dies, and is no longer a "living soul, what then becomes of the living principle, or breath of life, which was breathed into his nostrils? This breath of life is also correctly termed spirit of life, a principle, but not an immortal soul, or a being kept for reward or punishment. Having then a living principle, or life spirit, above the grasp of human wisdom, we must again search the Scriptures, for this is the only way in which we can be set right. According to Scripture, this spirit, or breath of life, came from God. He "breathed it into his nostrils." Thus we have the precise source from whence it comes, and, according to Eccl. 12: 7, it returns to God, the very place from whence it originated, when the body, formed out of the dust, dies and returns to dust. Thus the living principle, the spirit in man, proceeds from God, and in death returns to God from whence it came, in the same manner as all the springs gushing forth from the earth have their origin from the sea, and return to it again.

But this leaves us still without ground of an everlasting life after death; and the declaration of Christ concerning the fathers, saying, "they are dead," shows plainly that we do not enter into everlasting life at death, as our modern theology would have us believe. "Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead."—John 6: 49. Men in their fallen state, under the sentence of death, can come so far, and no further. Their life principle, the spirit, returns to God, and the body to dust. But the question comes again, How about everlasting life? Well, we must still "search the Scriptures," for all the knowledge we get elsewhere will lead us astray. You say, everlasting life is promised to the believer. It is true, but here we are ahead of the question. We had got to a point where life in man had come to an end, and immortality existed in God only. Now how can we attain to immortality? Why, according to Scripture, we must seek for it, "by patient continuance in well doing."—Rom. 2: 7. Men say we have immortality, because we have an immortal soul; but the Bible says we must seek it. According to the New Testament doctrine, this immortality is secured unto us in the death and resurrection of Christ. Here, then, is a new starting point for the believer in Christ to hope for life, as without a resurrection from the dead there would be no life; for Christ became our life in that he first became the resurrection, to secure a resurrection unto life from death, the penalty of sin.

Here I imagine again the reply, At the resurrection the body will only be re-occupied by the soul, or spirit, which left the body at death. This would still be getting on the old track, and would imply that the soul could be happy or miserable, even without the body being raised from the dead; yea, more than this; it would also imply that there could be misery in God, if something of man could be miserable whilst the body is dead; because every particle of man, besides what is formed out of dust, comes from God and returns unto him again. Thus it appears that Scripture shows plainly that the idea that the principal part of man is living, whilst the body is dead, to occupy the same body when it is raised from the dead, is human opinion; and that only by searching the Scriptures still further can we get right. As life, then, was forfeited by our first parents, in the transgression of God's law, God in his infinite love opened "a new and living way," or a way to a new life in Christ, who has "abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." Now I ask, how could Christ bring life and immortality to light, if the principal part of man was immortal already? It is only the new and living way in Christ (Heb. 10: 20) that leads to immortality, and in this new life we must be born by the Spirit, because the new life, to which Christ is the way through the resurrection, is to be enjoyed in his kingdom, which he declared is not of this world, and hence taught Nicodemus that he could not enter into it until he, by the resurrection from the dead, should be born to a new life. As it regards this life, we must be changed from a bad person to a good one; from a sinner to a christian; from profanity to prayer and thanksgiving; from nature to grace. But will all this bring us into Christ's kingdom, which he says is not of this world? No. It prepares us for it; but it is the resurrection from the dead that brings us into the enjoyment of his kingdom.

Here it might be said: Well, if by the resurrection we are born to a new life, then the soul, or spirit, must come from some locality, and must have been in existence whilst the body was dead. As I have tried for a number of years to follow the text by searching the Scriptures, I will tell you what the Scriptures say about this point. In Ezek. 37: 12, 14, the prophet was instructed to prophesy and say: "Thus saith the Lord, 'Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves,'" and I will "put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live." Here we have it as plain as language can make it, that the Spirit which constitutes man a living being after the resurrection, comes from God, the same source from whence it came at the creation, when he "breathed in his nostrils" the breath, or spirit of life; and that is God's Spirit coming from where Solomon says it goes at death. But why are we to be raised from the dead? Because the Lord desires that men formed in his image should enjoy happiness, and as "the dead know not any thing thing" (Eccl. 9: 5,) they must be raised from the dead. Here we have the plain language of the Bible declaring that "the dead know not anything" whilst they are dead. Now, we must either flatly deny this Bible doctrine, or lay aside the idea that men are happy or miserable between death and the resurrection. Should not this settle the question as regards the time of reward of both righteous and wicked? Still some one may be ready to say, Do we not believe that our friends, who lived for Christ, and died in him, are now in heaven with all the glorified saints, with Abraham, Isaac, David, and Paul? We will let the Scriptures decide it. Christ says, Matt. 16: 27, "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels: and then he shall reward every man." Those who live for Christ, shall live with him when, as Paul says, Christ our life appears. I ask, is it possible to live with Christ before he comes to bring life by the resurrection? Christ says, "I am the resurrection and the life," and I suppose no one would venture to say that the righteous will live before Christ, who is their life, comes to raise them from the dead. Consistent with this, Christ says: "Behold I come, . . . and my reward with me."

But those who die in the Lord are said to be blessed "from henceforth." So it is, and the point "from henceforth," will be "when the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of . . . Christ," and the first resurrection will be past.

David had been dead and buried about 1014 before Christ (1 Kings 2: 10), but had not ascended to heaven at the day of Pentecost, rs Peter declares. Paul did not expect to go to heaven immediately after death, but was sure of a crown of righteousness laid up for him, to be recieved when Christ would appear. Christ decides the whole matter at once in a few words. He assures his disciples of a reward for every unselfish act of love done by them. He says; "For thou shalt be recompensed." When? Immediately after death? No. He says: "At the resurrection of the just." Luke 14: 14. What shall be the reward? Everlasting life according to the promise. But why and how reward with everlasting life at the resurrection, if Moses, David, and Paul, etc., are now living in heaven, and would continue to live, though the body would never be raised? A hard question to answer.

It is an unquestionable truth that the righteous shall be rewarded with everlasting life at Christ's coming; and now the question arises; What will be the reward of the wicked? This question would seem to be easily answered, if we had only the passage, Rom. 6: 23, where Paul declares that "the wages of sin is death." Christ says of the wicked; "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment." Now what does this passage teach? 1. That the wicked shall be punished. 2. That they will never be redeemed from their punishment. But here the question may be brought up thus: Is it not generally believed by divines, and also taught in the Bible, that the doom of the sinner is everlasting life in torment, in the Bible called death? It is true such a doctrine is taught by many, and hence we will search the Scriptures and see if these things be so. The above passage is not enough to prove it. It only proves the certainty and duration of the punishment, and we would be forever in the dark about the nature and manner of the punishment of the wicked, if we had nothing but the words: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment." How could we know whether the punishment would consist of imprisonment, with reasonable or cruel treatment; or in being banished to some lonely island, like Napoleon the first; or whether it would be inflicted by death, as in a case of murder? The everlasting punishment of the wicked is taught in Scripture, in plain terms but everlasting life in torment is not taught in the sacred volume. Christ declares that he will say at the day of judgment: "Depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire." Fire must have something that is combustible, and cannot possibly exist without having something to consume, for it is absolutely a consuming agent; hence, for a living body to exist eternally, or without end, under the influence of fire, either really or figuratively, would be an impossibility; but destruction would be certain, and consequently the punishment everlasting, because forever hopeless of redemption from it.

OUR CHART.

If you would know whether the Bible be true in its teachings, you must do by it as you do by a chart. A chart is nothing but a piece of paper, and what good would it do for half a dozen captains to sit down on shore and discuss its merits? How can they know whether its descriptions are correct or not? Let them take it on board and prove it by sailing by it. That is a true chart on trial. If there is a rock where it says "rock;" if there is a shoal where it says "shoal;" if there is a current where it says "current;" if it is safe where it says "safe," then it is a true chart, no matter who made it, or how, or when, or where it was made.

It is the sea that is the best test of a chart; so is the human life the test of the Bible. Take God's word, in which human life is charted down, and measure character and conduct by it; measure your whole self by it; measure God's grace by it, and see if it is not true. Would you know the truth of the Bible? Become a christian. "If any man will do his will," says Christ, "he shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God."—Selected.

NEW CLOTH ON AN OLD GARMENT.

The "Rev. Wesley Smith," so-called, the author of a new book, delivers therein the following learned thoughts on the subject of baptism. I quote from Bro. Green's article which appeared in the Review: "That the Greek word baptizo has now, and, according to the best critics, always has had a variety of significations—such as to dip, pour, sprinkle, stain, color, smear, wash, wet, tinge, dye, etc. Now, Mr. Wesley Smith, the Greek word baptizo does not and never did have such a variety of meanings. It means to dip, to immerse, or something equivalent thereto, and always did, and never anything else. This was its meaning when the Savior used it to express his wish and our duty. The Greek word for sprinkle was then at hand, so of the Greek word for pour; but the word for immerse was employed, and not one of the others. The human mind is bankrupt, unavoidably so, when called upon to believe that the Savior would not have used the three words if he had meant the three things. But we are still more amazed when we are asked to believe that Jesus intended, by the use of one of these words, that we were at liberty to do any one of three non-essential things. But we reach the climax when we are asked to believe that the Savior meant us to do something which the word that he used never did mean, and that he did not intend us to do what the word used always did signify. Now, can any one tell whether the snake that makes this track is going south or coming back? If so, let him speak. But the "Reverend" gentleman would probably say that the word has these significations, these various meanings. Let us suppose that it has. It is now settled that the word has all the meanings in the above catalogue, and more too, for the list ends with etc., signifying that there are others. How does the author know but that the Savior used this word of a "variety of significations," for the very reason that he intended us to do the variety of things which it is supposed to signify? If this be true, and Mr. Smith does not know it to be false, has he certainly been baptized? Is it possible, unless he has been "dipped, poured, sprinkled, stained, colored, smeared, washed, wet, tinged, dyed, etc?" Of course not. Does he believe that Jesus, the blessed one, did, in giving us his commands, and giving us his great and precious promises, use great plainness of speech?" Could he then be rightfully charged with trifling with us as above?

The devil wants no better trick than this. Sinners will laugh at such foolish talk as this from "Reverend heads." They will not believe it divine. Under such teaching faith will wane in the world, and man will gradually sink into the chilliness and blackness of his state, who says, "There is no God."

But will it be said that we comply with the command, if we meet any one of the meanings of the word? It seems to me this ought to be true, if we are not required to compliment all the meanings of the word. Let us then suppose that this foolish position is the true one; that whoever compliments any one of the meanings of the word has been baptized. It seems to follow that Mr. Smith is at liberty to select, at will, his meaning. I believe his church generally divides the honor or the privilege of selecting the meaning or the "mode" to be adopted between the church and the one to be baptized. The church restricts to three modes, and the candidate for baptism selects one among them. This is arbitrary and tyrannical. Intelligent people may, from factitious or other surroundings, be made to submit to it for a while, but sooner or later, reason will assert itself. Then this error must give way; it may yield only to give place to another, and possibly a greater one; but yield it must.

Mr. Smith selects out of the "variety of meanings," sprinkling. He gives no reason for this, except that it is one of the meanings of the word.

Suppose I go and assist Bro. Smith in a protracted meeting. God powerfully converts a dozen "mourners." I say to Bro. Smith: I always like to baptize those converted under my labors myself, and I will do so in this case if you have no objection. He makes none. We take the converts to some place where there is much water. Bro. Smith leads in prayer. I then go down into the water and immerse one. Some one on the bank of the stream quotes: "And they both went down into the water." "We are buried by baptism." Bro. Smith does not like it. He has been preaching against it all his life. But I reply: That is one of the meanings of this word of a variety of significations. I am for progress, and this flexible word is just suited to my taste. You know we have the right to select our own mode. Besides, it is non-essential any way. Bro. Smith is silent, and I proceed. The second I sprinkle. Of course, I do not go down into the water this time, as Philip did. I could give no reason for so doing. Bro. Smith is pleased. That, he says, is one of the meanings of the word, and then it is so convenient and decent. "So shall he sprinkle many nations." The third I pour. Amen! Amen! says Bro. Smith. The fourth I stain. Why not? That is one of the meanings of the word. So it is written in "Rev. Wesley Smith's" little book. The fifth I color. Horrors! Color? yes, of course I do. I am only using the privilege granted me. Color is one of the meanings of the word which the Lord employed in giving us the command to be baptized. I have, therefore, colored the candidate in the name of the Lord. I will listen to no objections. True, it may not look as decent as might be, but there is no accounting for tastes; and besides, by the rule I am allowed to consult my own taste, within the limit of the various meanings of the word. The sixth I smear in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. The seventh, I wash. The eighth, I wet. The ninth, I tinge. I dye the tenth. I pop the eleventh, and souse the twelfth. I love variety.—Apostolic Times.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

MORAL PRECEPTS.

35. Christ taught non-resistance.—"Resist not evil, but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn unto him the other also."—Matt. 5: 39. "All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword."—Matt. 26: 52.

Christ taught and practiced physical resistance.—"He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one."—Luke 22: 36. "And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple."—John 2: 15.

Agreeable to Matt. 5: 39, we are taught not to avenge ourselves or resist evil. The promotion of the christian religion does not depend upon carnal weapons nor the sword. The skeptic, however, would have it appear that because Christ instructed his disciples just before he was taken and crucified, to sell their garments and buy swords, etc., that he taught physical resistance. Whereas, the truth is, that when informed that there were two swords, he said that they were enough. But they were not enough if they were to have a combat and resist those sent to take him, but they were enough for the purpose for which Jesus wished them, and that was to practically illustrate his mercy and kindness; for when Peter cut off the servant's ear, Jesus rebuked him for his rash act, and healed the bleeding wound. Hence from this circumstance we learn that Christ was a practical example of his own teaching. We conceive the foregoing to be all that it is necessary to notice.

36. Christ warned his followers not to fear being killed.—"Be not afraid of them that kill the body."—Luke 11: 4.

Christ himself avoided the Jews for fear of being killed.—"After these things Jesus walked in Galilee; for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him."—John 7: 1.

Luke 2: 4 (not 11: 4, as above quoted) is simply an exhortation to fear God rather than man. It teaches that we are not to shape our conduct to please the world, but to obey the commands of God, fearless of man's opposition, for "I, even I, am he that comforteth you; who art thou that thou shouldst be afraid of a man that shall die, and of the son of man which shall be made as grass, and forgettest the Lord thy maker that hath stretched forth the heavens and laid the foundations of the earth?"

John 7: 1, is an evidence simply that Christ sought to preserve his own life until the time came for him to be offered up. Did he not give up his life cheerfully, when the hour was come? He was a willing sacrifice for our sins. His blood was spilled even for those who are spending time in villifying his pure character and charging the Son of God with falsehood. We may search in vain amid the records of the dark ages for ingratitude so base and black as this, which thus blots the pages of modern civilzaation.

37. Public prayer sanctioned. "And Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hand toward heaven. [Then follows the prayer.] . . . And it was so, that when Solomon had made an end of praying all this prayer and supplication unto the Lord, he arose from before the altar of the Lord, from kneeling on his knees, with his hands spread up to heaven. . . . And the Lord said unto him, I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication that thou hast made before me."—1 Kings 8: 22; 9: 3.

Public prayer disapproved.—"When thou prayest thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues, and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. . . . But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret."—Matt. 6: 5, 6.

The only text that seems to require any explanation in the above, is Matt. 6: 5, 6, and this is simply a record of the conduct of that class which is still represented in the 19th century, by those who make long and flowery speeches upon their knees, that they may be admired of men; and in opposition to this course the disciples are admonished to secret prayer.

God's children are not forbidden to pray before men. Jesus, our great exemplar, prayed before the multitude at the grave of Lazarus, and his followers may also thus acknowledge God before men; but we are forbidden to pray for the purpose of being seen of men, as well as to make long prayers for a pretence. Our instructions, then, by both precept and example, are, not to be ashamed of God or afraid to acknowledge before men our dependence upon him. As our great High Priest prayed before the multitude, we who try to follow his footsteps may do likewise. But we are also to remember that he most frequently sought solitude wherein to converse with the Most High, so also the great burden of the christian's prayer is in secret—in the closet, or in the chamber, where God alone can hear and approve, and we have the promise of an open reward. Prayer is our only means of communication with the Most High. He has communicated with us by his word, but we only commune with him through the means which he himself has ordained for our benefit. And surely we cannot neglect this, our greatest earthly privilege.

UNDER THE ROCK.—A lady was riding in her carriage, when, spying a beautiful flower by the side of a large rock, she alighted to take it up, that she might remove it to her conservatory, but found that, delicate as it appeared, it resisted all her efforts, because the root ran under the rock. Ah! thought she, this is an illustration of the safety of the christian, whose life of beauty is under the shelter of the Rock, and whose root of strength runs far beneath it.

We are therefore unable to send the extra copies of this number which have been ordered.

BUCHANAN DISCUSSION.

We spent Sabbath, June 13th, in Algansee, fourteen miles from Coldwater, where we had three good meetings during the day. Bro. and Sr. Seymour, and Bro. Babcock, were with us. We found some living christians there who love the blessed hope of soon seeing our coming King. It is heart-cheering to meet those who were among the first who became interested in the prophecies that show we are near the end of the present dispensation. They have had an experience which the younger pilgrims cannot appreciate. There is an extra cord of sympathy between them.

At four o'clock Monday morning, June 14th, Bro. O. Draper took us back to Coldwater, where we took the stage at seven A. M. for Marshall, a distance of twenty-five miles, arriving at noon, just in season to take the cars for Buchanan, a distance of eighty-nine miles. Bro. Himes met me at the depot, and conducted me to Bro. F.'s, where I found a good home. He is quite feeble yet, but is slowly improving. He went very near the grave during his sickness. It is quite a cross for him to stop work when there is so much to be done.

Sr. Mansfield returned, the night we arrived, from a visit of several weeks to Mo. She has been overworking, and was obliged to give up and be confined to the sick room. She feels anxious to be out again laboring with Bro. Mansfield in the great work of trying to save sinners. Let prayers be offered for the sick ones. Every faithful laborer is needed now in the vineyard of the Lord.

Buchanan is a pleasant village, eighty-seven miles east of Chicago, on the Michigan Central R. R., and bids fair to become a place of considerable business. We enjoyed our visit there. Things connected with the church and the "Voice of the West" appeared to be in a prosperous condition. The office of the Voice has been somewhat improved since we were there last winter. A new engine and boiler have been put in the press-room, which now do the work with much ease. The Voice is an excellent paper, and worthy of the patronage it receives.

We had a good meeting on Monday evening, after our arrival. They have a very neat and commodious chapel, good singing, and some active christians to keep up a lively religious interest. On Tuesday evening, we commenced a discussion with Mr. W. J. Chaplin, a noted Universalist preacher, who resides in Dowagiac, Mich. He is a large, gentlemanly person, an easy speaker, and well posted in the theology of the Universalists. We discussed the following propositions:—

1st. "The Scriptures teach the ultimate salvation of all mankind."

2nd. "The Scriptures teach that the wicked part of mankind shall be punished with an extinction of their being."

The discussion continued six sessions, of two hours each. Mr. Chaplin presented the usual Scriptures which are supposed to teach the doctrine of universal salvation; but we thought we found one continued nay to the doctrine throughout the entire Bible. He admitted that man is not now immortal, that pardon is conditional and necessary for salvation; that some die in their sins. We asked him to produce one passage which shows that any man, who dies in his sins, will ever be saved: but this he failed to do, because there is no such passage in the Bible. It seemed strange to us that any one, who had confidence in the word of the Lord, could believe in the doctrine of universal salvation. This doctrine has been adopted as a relief from the doctrine of eternal torment; both of which are equally untrue; and both are calculated to advance the cause of Satan. The first leads men to be careless, and the second to make men hate our heavenly Father and turn infidels. We have yet to learn that belief in universal salvation ever led one to commence praying, causing him to confess and forsake his sins and become a true christian. There are many who prayed before they became Universalists, and continued to to do so afterwards; but we have never known a genuine case of conversion as the result of believing in the doctrine of universal salvation. A system which does not lead men to break off from their sins by repentance, causing them to lead a holy life, cannot be the christianity taught by Jesus; and he who adopts such a system will find at last that he is leaning upon a broken reed.

Men are seeking all ways to be saved, except by the way of the cross; but Jesus says: "Whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple." Luke 14:27. Our friends were much pleased with the results of the discussion.

CHICAGO.

Saturday morning, June 19th, we left Buchanan for Chicago, and received a hearty greeting at the depot by Brn. Ramsey, Sherwin and Billings. The latter took us to his pleasant home, where we enjoyed a welcome that was truly refreshing. Bro. B. is one of the principal business men of Chicago, is a lover of pure christianity, and ready to do much for its support. He made the church a present of a meeting-house, which has been a great help to the lovers of the blessed hope. There are other strong business men, who are ready to give substantial aid whenever it is needed. The prospect in Chicago now looks very encouraging. We learn that some trials came up a few weeks since, when dark clouds threatened a storm, but they are gone, and the sun of righteousness is shining brightly. Bro. Ramsey has just been chosen pastor, and is actively engaged in the good work of the Lord. He is a true man, and earnest laborer in the vineyard of the Lord. Some months since, he began to make arrangements to leave Chicago, but his way was hedged up, and a wide door opened for him to remain, and continue his labors with the church in that city.

We think they have done well in electing him their pastor. He is starting meetings in various parts of the city, and good fruits already appear. They have ten prayer-meetings a week. There are some real workers in the church who love to deny themselves for the purpose of doing good to others. The truth is spreading in Chicago, and a wide and effectual door is opening. Men of means are becoming deeply interested, and stand ready to do nobly for the cause of our blessed Master.

We had a blessed season Sabbath, June 20th. The sweet Spirit of Jesus pervaded all our meetings, and we had a rare feast of good things. A new comer arose and said he had traveled extensively in the different quarters of the world and attended a great variety of meetings, but he had never found any before that were so good and heavenly as the one he was then enjoying. We think there were no dissenting voices. In the evening some fifteen rose for prayers. It was a heavenly place in Christ Jesus. We enjoyed our visit very much, and had great occasion to rejoice in the Lord. We expect to hear glad tidings from Chicago as the result of the labors of their faithful pastor. When he resided in Boston, he proved himself worthy of the confidence of all who knew him. It is evident that the Lord led him to Chicago, and that he would have him remain for the present to help in scattering light and truth throughout that great and wicked city. Brn., pray for Chicago.

Monday morning, June 21st, we left C. for the New Hartford campmeeting, in Iowa, where we arrived Tuesday morning. At Dubuque, we met Bro. Luman Munger, who loves the Lord. We learned from him that the people in D. are anxious to hear more about the reasons of our hope. We trust the time will come when they will be gratified.

We are now (Tuesday June 22nd) at the New Hartford campmeeting, surrounded by the dear saints, sweet singing, a pleasant grove, pleasant weather, and a prospect for a good meeting. New Hartford is one hundred and nine miles west of Dubuque, on the Dubuque and Sioux City R. R. The town was named after New Hartford, Ct., from whence came the first settlers. Among these was Bro. S. B. Ensign, a faithful Bro. in Christ, who has commenced preaching "the gospel of the kingdom." Brn. F. H. Kenney, P. Buck, A. H. Eggleston, and J. Gildersleve, are present, with whom we are not particularly acquainted, but learn they are faithful ministers of the New Testament. P. S. W. Deyo is present also, with whom we enjoyed two campmeetings last year. He is esteemed very highly for his earnest, self-denying, and very successful labors in Iowa. He reminds one of the old pioneers among the Methodists, who labored night and day, early and late, summer and winter, with an unfaltering zeal, to lead men and women to Christ. The Lord has greatly blest his labors, and many delight to say that he was the instrument in leading them to Jesus. It was a pleasure to greet him again. His whole heart is in the cause of his Divine Master. We love such men.

In our next, we hope to have more good news to tell our readers.

DO ANIMALS THINK?

That animals think is as clearly established by incontrovertible facts, as it is that men think; hence those who assume that matter cannot be so organized as to be capable of thinking, and, consequently, man must have an immortal soul, distinct from his physical organism, that does all the thinking; should also assume that animals have immortal souls, because they can think.

The following facts are from one of our exchanges:—

"While living at Durham," says Dr. Warwick, "I took a walk one evening in Lord Stamford's park. On reaching a pond in which fish were kept ready for use, I observed a fine pike of some six pounds weight. At my approach he darted away like an arrow. In his hurry he knocked his head against an iron hook fixed in a post in the water, fracturing the optic nerve on one side of his head. He appeared to suffer great pain; he plunged into the mud, floundered hither and thither, and at last, leaping out of the water, fell on the bank. On examination a portion of the brain was seen protuding through the fractured skull. This I carefully restored to its place, making use of a silver toothpick to raise the splinters of broken bone. The fish remained quiet during the operation; when it was over he plunged into the pond. At first his sufferings appeared to be relieved; but in the course of a few minutes he began rushing right and left until he again leaped out of the water. I called the keeper, and with his assistance applied a bandage to the fracture. That done, we restored him to the pond and left him to his fate.

Next morning, as soon as I reached the water's edge, the pike swam to meet me quite close to the bank, and laid his head upon my feet. I thought this an extraordinary proceedin. Without further delay, I examined the wound and found it healing nicely. I then strolled for sometime by the side of the pond. The fish swam after me, following my steps, and turning as I turned. The following day, I brought some young friends with me to see the fish. He swam toward me as before. Little by little he became so tame as to come to my whistle and eat out of my hand. With other persons, on the contrary, he continued as shy and as wild as ever."

This anecdote is averred to have been read, in 1850, before the Liverpool Literary and Philosophical Society. Who will deny that the pike proved himself not only intelligent, but even capable, singular though it may seem, of gratitude?

Both revenge and gratitude imply intelligence; still more so does the application of an unforeseen expedient. These are demonstrated in the following incidents published in a New York journal.

In Madagascar, an elephant's cornac, happening to have a cocoa-nut in his hand, thought fit, out of bravado, to break it on the animal's head. The elephant made no protest at the time; but next day, passing a fruit-stall, he took a cocoa-nut in his trunk and returned the cornac's compliment so vigorously on his head that he killed him on the spot"

At Pondickerry, a soldier who treated an elephant to a dram of arrack every time he received his pay, found himself one day the worse for liquor. When the guard were about to carry him off to prison, he took refuge under the elephant and fell asleep. His protector would allow no one to approach, and watched him carefully all night. In the morning, after caressing him with his trunk, he dismissed him to settle with the authorities as he best could.

A train of artillery going to Seringapatam, had to cross the bed of a river. A man who was sitting on a gun-carriage, fell; in another second the wheel would have passed over his body. An elephant walking by the side of the carriage saw the danger, and instantly, without any order from his keeper, lifted the wheel from the ground, leaving the fallen man uninjured.

The same journal has the following:

At Clemency, on the border of Switzerland, a wolf, toward nightfall, entered the village, and immediately gave chase to a small terrier belonging to no one in particular. Instead of taking shelter in the nearest cottage, the dog rushed on to the end of the hamlet, and, entering a wheelright's yard, leaped safe and sound into the kennel of a huge mastiff. The wolf had followed too closely to recede, and the mastiff, in spite of a heavy chain that cramped his movements, darted out suddenly and seized the wolf by the skin of the back. The sequel was remarkable. The mastiff, impeded by his chain began to yield to the struggles of the wolf, which was a full-grown powerful beast, when, just at the right moment, another large dog arrived at full speed, accompanied by the little terrier, who had evidently seen his comrade's need of assistance, and gone off to procure it. This unexpected ally put an end to the conflict, and the wolf was speedily mastered."

SISTER L. M. STODDARD.

For the past two Sundays the church and congregation at Lowell St. Chapel have enjoyed the privilege of listening to Sister Stoddard, of Worcester, Mass. We remember our sister more than twenty-five years ago, when she was one of the earliest and most effective of the female preachers proclaiming the speedy coming of Christ. For many years she has remained at home, till within a few months she has started out anew; and her message is—"Behold He cometh!" which she presents in a clear, interesting, forcible, Scriptural manner; just what is wanted while the Bridegroom tarries. We think the church or churches which secure her services will be much benefited thereby. G. T. A.

THE HYMNS OF THE JUBILEE HARP.

For the convenience of those who wish to carry the hymns in their pockets, we have had a lot bound with flexible covers, the margins of the pages being trimmed close to the printed matter, making it very convenient for the pocket,—the most complete hymn book in use among us. Price 75 cts. per copy, postage 12 cts; $7.00 per dozen by express. AG'T.

NOW READY.

The Scriptural Question Book, for families and Sunday Schools, which has been out of print for some time past, is now ready. Price, single copy, by mail, 15 cts. $1.25 per dozen by express. $1.65 by mail. AG'T.

NEW TRACT.

The Resurrection of the Wicked Dead, by L. C. Collins. A good tract on this subject. Price, by mail, 4 cts. single copy; 20 cts. per dozen; $1.00 per hundred. AG'T.

A WORD OF TESTIMONY.

Suffer a word by way of just acknowledgment to the liberality of Bro. Blain, who has freely and gratuitously distributed his book, "Life not Death," through this region. I can bear testimony to the assistance rendered by the perusal of it, in first struggling out of old notions and errors of tradition. I trust Bro. Blain may receive aid so readily that he may stand clear of pecuniary encumbrance, and enjoy the consolation of seeing the truths he loves rapidly spreading and advancing in his old age.

I intended or hoped, ere this, to have expressed the interest and attention with which I examined that portion especially of the work of Wellcome and Goud on the "Plan of Redemption," which was to me so new and true, that I read and re-read and commended to my brethren. But pressure of duties, ill health, and, it may be, forgetfulness, have intervened. C. COLEGROVE.

THE TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held at the National Campmeeting, Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28th, 1868, the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That we raise TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year.

Resolved, That our preaching brethren be, and hereby are, requested to act as Agents in this good work, to solicit contributions to the Tract Fund, as often at least as once in every quarter, and forward the same to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, BOSTON, MASS.

WHAT SAVED ME FROM INFIDELITY.

In early youth I was taught to believe the Bible, and was told that it taught the immortality of the soul. As I grew older, reason taught me and made me believe that man was mortal. Hence I was about to lay aside the word of God as a worthless fable, when some one placed a tract in my hands written by Bro. Miles Grant; and to my inexpressible delight I found that revelation harmonized with reason. From that day to this I have never doubted God's holy word.

How many there are to-day who are drinking the waters of infidelity for the want of a tract.

"Shall we whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high,
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?"

No, let us use every effort to promulgate the truth as it is in the Bible. H. M. ROSE.

SECRET SORROW.

While we would cast all our care upon Him who careth for us, the heart yearns for human sympathy and love. Words of consolation are precious when the heart is burdened with grief which words may not tell. I have been reading an article on this subject, from which I will copy a few extracts; and I trust that many others will be blest and comforted by them as I have been.

"Many persons into whose faces we look, have sorrows, the existance of which would never be imagined from anything that we can see. We pass them by with a hurried glance which reveals nothing of the pent up emotions that struggle within. Could we see their hearts as we see their faces, how much of sorrow's history it would be ours to know.—Even our friends, intimate though we be with them, often have troubles that we know not of. The origin of these may date beyond the time of our acquaintance, and they choose not now to speak of them even to us. Yet the hidden grief is in their hearts, and in secret, tears fall which our eyes are not permitted to see. There are also some of their troubles which are known to us, but we never mention them in their presence. These heavy burdens they must bear alone, so far as human aid may go; our sympathy may be felt, but cannot be expressed.

And even in those cases where we may speak freely concerning the griefs which oppress, we cannot always enter into full sympathy with the sufferers. Our experience may be of an opposite character, and we may not feel in a sympathetic mood; or the story of grief may have been so oft repeated to us that we become indifferent, though to the sufferer the sorrow may still be as heavy as before. Then, in solitude must these griefs be borne, and the tears they cause be shed in secret. The heart is then thrown back upon it own resources. Human spmpathy has reached its limit, and failed to fully meet the case. The soul thus left alone, with the consciousness that it is beyond the power of friends to help, finds its strength severely tested. But when the heart and flesh fail, then faith may triumph. In utter helplessness we fall into the arms of Him who alone is able to uphold us, and there we feel safe as a child nestling upon its mother's breast. God would have us feel our dependence upon him, and he has, therefore, so ordered it that nothing short of himself can satisfy the soul.

Our secret sorrows may thus be made to us the means of our growth in holiness and usefulness. They need not weigh us down and make us hopeless and despairing, for the divine voice bids us cast our burdens on the Lord.

He can bear what would crush us, and he lifts the load that presses the heart, he gently soothes the troubled spirit with blessed promises of consolation and of help."

CONFERENCE AT ANTIOCH, IND.

In accordance with the announcement previously made in the "Herald," the brethren of the "one faith" convened at Antioch, Ind., June 10th, 1869. After a social interview, conference entered upon its duties by electing Bro. J. S. Hatch, Chairman, the writer, Secretary, and Brn. Oliver Tabour, Hugh Barnhill, and — Drew, committee of arrangements.

ORDER OF CONFERENCE EXERCISES.

1. Report of evangelical committee, as follows:—Total amount of orders on the Treasurer, issued to evangelists, for evangelical labor, since October, 1868, $126.20.

2. Report of Solicitor and Treasurer:—Whole amount subscribed for evangelical labor, $325.00. Amount of subscription paid, $210. Amount of subscription unpaid, $115. Amount paid on order of evangelical committee, $126.20. Remaining on hand in treasury, $83.80.

The following items were brought up for consideration, to wit: 1. What is the time basis of christian union and co-operation? 2. Is it expedient to make further evangelical effort? 3. What are the most efficient means of evangelization?

After careful consideration, thorough interchange of sentiment, and candid investigation of these propositions, the following conclusions were drawn and unanimously adopted:—The true basis of christian union and co-operation: A profession of faith in the things concernin; the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, as taught in the Scriptures of truth; and works in accordance with the precepts, as given by Jesus Christ and his apostles. It is expedient to not only continue but extend evangelical labors. The most efficient means of evangelization are, for evangelists to visit the partially organized congregations as well as new fields, keeping a correct account of the receipts and expenditures, placing to the credit of the evangelical fund all amounts received, and settling strictly with the church (through its committee) as often as may be required; permitting the evangelist to remain in a field of labor until he can consult with the committee.

The following resolutions were tested, and passed unanimously:

1. That Bro. E. C. Andrus act as solicitor and treasurer, until the meeting of the next conference. (Address, Big Indian, Indiana.)

2. That Brn. Richard Corbaley, Hugh Barnhill, and Cyrus Tabour, act as the evangelical committee until the ensuing conference. (Plymouth, Ind.)

3. That Brn. I. E. Andrus, J. H. Nafe, and G. A. Demonte, be appointed as a committee to ascertain and report the cost of a tent, furnishings, etc., for the use of the church.

4. That all the evangelizing brethren present report themselves, and be supplied with commendatory letters by the Secretary.

5. That the minutes of this conference meeting be published in the "Herald" and "Crisis."

The meetings were well attended, especially on Saturday and Sunday. The word of life, the glories of the coming age, when the kingdom of God shall be reorganized on the earth, and the means through which aliens from God can become fellow heirs and partakers of its blessings, were from time to time presented in a clear, comprehensive manner, by Brn. Shafer, Chaplin, Andrus, Berick, Hatch, Foor, and others. Social meetings, from the first, were the order of the day. Brotherly love, unity of sentiment, and a strong desire to become more like the heavenly pattern, characterized each interview. All seemed deeply conscious that more thorough activity, perfect holiness of life, and practical religion, were necessary; exhorting each other to constancy, investigation of the word, nonconformity to the world, brotherly love and sobriety, the more as the day approaches. The sympathetic tear was not wanting, and each acknowledged that it was good for us to be there. Three accepted the good news of the kingdom of God, and were immersed for the remission of their sins. Love, tenderness and harmony were manifest in all the proceedings—official, instructive and social.

On Saturday evening the emblems of the Lord's broken body and shed blood were partaken of by his expectant children, while the pressing questions, Shall we meet in the kingdom of God? and, How long, O Lord, how long? were accompanied with the prayer, Come, quickly. Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus.

The conference adjourned Saturday, June 12th, 1869 (the meetings were protracted until the Monday following), to meet again (D. V.) on Thursday before the third Sunday in October, 1869, due notice of which will be given. J. K. THOMPSON, Secretary.

BRO. GRANT:—I will acknowledge again the kind favors received from friends through Bro. Leslie: Lyman Town, Waupun, Wis., $2.00. Loring Morse, Acworth, N. H., $2. Ruth Haskins, No. Canton, Ct., $1. Susan Jennings, Seneca Falls, $1. M. M. Bradley, Conn., $1. Abner Hardy, Groveland, Mass., $1. E. P. Robertson, Worcester, Mass., $2. C. W. Smith, Will Co., Ill., $1. F. G. Davis, Reading, Mass., $1. My whole heart goes out in prayer to God for my friends. I find enough, if I will, to keep me praying without ceasing, and I hope to praise him while I live, that I may ere long praise him in a land of endless felicity. Dear friends of Christ, let us show our love by keeping the commandments of Him who brought us salvation, ever remembering that we are not our own, for we are bought with a price. God help us to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and rejoice in hope of the complete, everlasting, and glorious liberty of the children of God in a better world. Let us gird our loins with truth, and imitate Jesus while we wait to see his face; and amid the trials and sorrows of our earthly lot, let our minds be fixed on the delightful theme that will, if we are found among the ransomed of the Lord, employ our grateful hearts to all eternity. My health is good.

Yours in love, J. B. WADSWORTH.

From Sr. S. E. Teeple.

BRO. GRANT:—Whilst meditating on the goodness and mercy of God, I thought I would write a few lines for the Crisis, and let the saints of God know that I am on the Lord's side, and that I love his cause, his truth, and his people, and mean to ever remain with them as long time lasts, and then be with them as long as eternity lasts. Then there will be rest for the weary. I long for it; I sigh, I groan for it. I cry, Come, Lord Jesus, and save the purchase of thy blood. I often think how much Jesus has done to save men, and how many warnings have been given from the saints of God that they might repent; and to-day how many are in the broad road that leadeth to death; so careless, so indifferent. God have mercy and save them! I find perils thickening on every hand, and it seems much harder to keep aloof from every thing that would lead us astray than it was some years ago, and I know we need the watching, enduring, and praying spirit.

On Sunday (20th), I attended a grove meeting held in Morris. I knew of none in my vicinity who went, and if other places did not turn out any better there could not be many there. But there was a good congregation, and I felt in my heart to praise God that there were some who had ears to hear and hearts to understand. The good Lord was there by his Spirit, and his blessing was felt in the hearts of those that would receive it. It was good to be there. They had come from the east, west, north, and south, and I was permitted to grasp the hand on the right and on the left, and behold faces that I had not seen in a long time. My heart was cheered and comforted hearing Brn. Tatro and Flagg from the stand, and others who gave in their testimony. But one thing I regretted. None heard mine. I felt that my heart was too full, the time too limited, and that others could improve it far better. But perhaps I may never have such an opportunity again. The moments are gone; they were too precious to be wasted, but I let them pass, like many others, and the meeting broke up, and the people all scattered to meet no more till the judgment of the great day. Then there will be no uninterested ones, but all, saint and sinner, will take a part.

I have my trials, sorrows, and afflictions, but they are naught compared with the joys and reward of the future. Pray for me, Brn. and sisters, and I will not forget the mercy seat, for

"There, there on eagle's wings we soar,
And time and sense all seem no more;
The Lord comes down our souls to greet,
And glory crowns the mercy seat."

Hotchkissville, Ct. S. E. TEEPLE.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. N. H. REED, Bear-River, N. S., writes, Apr. 23d:—"As something more than a year has passed since the Brn. have seen anything in the Crisis from the tract distributor in Nova Scotia, I should like to report myself as still in the good work. For the last year, I have not effected so much in the way of distributing tracts and books as in the former three years, owing to the fact that I had not the means to purchase. I do not generally succeed in getting more than one half the first cost of the tracts; so that I am now entirely drained for funds to carry on the work of tract distribution, unless the Lord opens the hearts of some who have wherewith to give for this purpose.

As I have had some experience the past four years in this work, I would say that no one need fear that their money will be put to a bad use if invested in this way. I do not feel the least to regret what time and money I have expended in this work. My heart has been made glad while I see the good resulting from those silent preachers. They pave the way for our preachers to come in with the blessed hope.

In Shelburn Co., where a part of my time has been spent for the last nine months, in preaching with other brethren, as well as in the tract business, the Lord has blessed our labors greatly; for it has not been more than three years since the first heralds of the coming kingdom visited this county, and now two churches have been erected; besides, several communities have become strongly tinctured with a true understanding of Scripture, as regards the state of man in death, the final end of the wicked, and near coming of Jesus. Of late, seventeen have been baptized at Charlesville and Shag Harbor. It has not been without contention that we have succeeded in getting the truth to them.

Of late, while considering the vast difference between truth and error, and their effects, I have been made strong and bold in the Lord to defend the cause of truth, and sound it out that there is no immortality to man without seeking for it through Christ; also that there is no eternal hell of suffering. Many do not receive us as christians, because they are ignorant of what we teach. So let those who have means try and get light abroad by distributing tracts, as well as helping otherwise; for many who would not, from the fear of speech, venture to our meeting, would read our faith from tracts at their own fireside, and so be caught in the truth, as I have often witnessed.

I hope the friends of truth will not fail to consider Bro. J. B. Fitch's request, made in the Crisis of Apr. 7th, for means to purchase a tent. The mites from the many would help wonderfully in forwarding the cause of truth. I feel satisfied that a tent would be of great use, as we are shut out of most places of worship in this country. My prayer is that God will assist us gloriously in our noble enterprise, so that many more may be made ready to meet Jesus at his coming. My address is NELSON H. REED, Bear-River, Annapolis, N. S. Yours in love of the truth."

BRO. W. D. Reichnor writes, June 21st:—"Yesterday I attended the little church of Advent believers gathered beneath the mammoth tent at Camden, N. J. The season was precious; for though (to be candid) I am not with these people in sentiment fully as I have been, yet I still love occasionally to join them in their beautiful songs of harmony and in their effective prayers. Being not quite so strenuous for the observance of the 'letter' simply, I am striving to follow hard after the Spirit, and so I frequently receive blessings wherever I may be. But the occasion yesterday seemed like a great family gathering. There were many old and familiar faces still turned, praise God, Zionward, and hearts longing, I doubt not, to see the King in his beauty. We were strongly reminded of old times. We were especially pleased with the happy remarks made by Bro. Flagg, inviting 'all the religious denominations of Camden to unite with us in the work of benefiting and converting the people to the Lord. Let party lines be forever broken down. Let us not be known as Presbyterians, Methodists, nor Baptists; let us be all one in the Lord; and if any of you have a good old-fashioned Methodist hymn having power in it you would like to sing, why, start right up, and sing it, and let us have a good time together waiting on the Lord.'

We do love the spirit of Christian liberty, wherever found; and wherever we meet with it there seems a strong sympathy within us which responds at once and heartily. There will be good result from these meetings. The brethren are encouraged, and are working together earnestly. May they ever possess the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and harmony crown their cheerful labors with the fruition of love and good deeds."

BRO. F. A. SHELDON, Thompson, Ct., writes:—"I am a reader of the 'Crisis,' which I prize next to my Bible. Its columns come filled with blessed good reading. O how I do love to hear from the dear Brn. and Srs. of like precious faith. It fills my heart with joy to know that that there is a remnant who will cling to the Bible hope, and the Bible way of obtaining immortality. How often do we hear from the popular preaching of our day that old lie of the devil,—'Ye shall not surely die.' Gen. 3:4.

Last Sabbath afternoon, a funeral sermon was preached from 2 Sam. 12:23. The minister said the child was not dead, but living in heaven; and when David, the child's father, should die, he would go to heaven too. Now this is all mere assertion that can never be proved. The text reads as follows:—'But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me.' It says, 'he [the child] is dead.' I ask, is he alive in heaven? Again, the Bible says, 'David after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell onsleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption.'—Acts 13:36. Does this look like his going to heaven alive? What does Peter say about David? 'Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. . . . For David is not ascended into the heavens.'—Acts 2:29, 34.

I thank the Lord that Peter spoke out freely on this point, and if he was not ashamed to do so, why should we be? Can we see this doctrine of the devil proclaimed and not lift our voices against it? No. While we have the word of truth, we will stand up firmly for it, let the consequences be what they may. Yes, let us be true to our trust, and valiant soldiers in the army of the Lord; and when he shall come with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all the ungodly, then, and not till then, shall that blessed hope be consummated, namely, the hope of eternal life."

BRO. I. DAMMAN writes:—"I beg leave to report through the Crisis to the dear saints of God scattered, that it is not too late to preach the faithful word of God. The cause of God has been rising for a number of months. Several have been converted and reclaimed. The first Sunday in May seven were baptized. At the close of our conference held in Holden, the church was set in order. Two deacons were chosen, and we enjoyed a precious communion season. On the following Wednesday and Thursday went to South Holden and held two meetings. Baptized six happy souls. Found the cause rising in that place, the saints taking new courage, sinners weeping, and more waiting to be baptized when I go again. On Friday eve. met the saints in Brewer. Had a refreshing season, and shouted for joy. Stopped with the saints in Bangor over the Lord's day. The Spirit of the Lord helped our infirmity, the saints rejoiced in the Lord, and two were baptized. That week I baptized fifteen. Bro. Baker baptized seven in Brewer. I love the work of God. May the good Lord help us to think more of his work. Let men complain if they will. We are happy to know that poor sinners can be saved in these days of peril."

BRO. W. H. DOUGHTY writes:—"I am striving for the kingdom, and hope soon to stand on the other shore with all the blood-washed millions in spotless robes of white. I am satisfied that we are nearing the port of eternal rest, and it stands us all in hand to have on the whole armor of God, if we expect salvation when Jesus comes. May the Lord help poor sinners to flee to Christ for refuge before it shall be for ever too late.

When I left the Alton Bay meeting, I came to South Wayne, Me., and commenced holding meetings in this and some other towns. Few came out at first, but soon the Lord began to work, and backsliders began to confess their backslidings, and sinners to seek the Lord. Several gave good evidence that they had found him. The interest still continues, notwithstanding the opposition (for I have had plenty of that); but it has only made the truth look better. Nothing kills an enemy quicker than to see a christian suffer long and be kind. I have been called by those who profess to be christians a false teacher, a false prophet, an infidel, and other hard names; yet, thank God, none of these things move me; but through it all the Lord has stood by me, and the result is, that where six months ago there were none who believed in the mortality of man and the soon coming kingdom of God, now there is a goodly number looking for the blessed hope. May the Lord keep them blameless until the appearing of Jesus Christ.

I would say for the brethren in that place, they would like preaching brethren passing near them to give them a call and preach the word of life. They are poor, but honest."

BRO. J. K. BELLOWS writes from New York, June 18th:—"I came home in April all exhausted, hoping by a little rest and quiet I might regain my strength; but I can endure nothing as I could a year ago. It is quite a cross to me to stay at home. I want to be out in the field proclaiming the near coming of our dear Lord.

This is a year fraught with deep interest to the waiting flock. I am looking every day for the sign of the Son of man, which will open the great prayer-meeting, when they will call upon rocks and mountains. Sinner! pray now to Jesus, before he arises up and shuts the door; then it will be too late. Brethren and sisters, let us be christians in deed and in truth, remembering we cannot be saved with animosity or hardness in our hearts. All must be forgiven. All must be love.

My health is not improving. Pray for me. Brethren desiring errands done in the city, I will do the best I can for them. My address is 19 Orchard St."

BRO. H. CAMPBELL, Green Point, writes:—"Dearly beloved brethren in Christ: Gladly would we see you all face to face, that we might comfort each other by our mutual exhortation. These are times in which we need the help of each other in prayers and exhortation, because the spirit of drowsiness has crept over the waiting church to a great extent. The many disappointments to which we have been subjected, would have caused us to have given up any further investigation, if our faith stood in the wisdom of men; but thank God, our faith is in the power of God, the sure unerring word of prophecy, whereunto we do well to take heed.

Thank God, the knowledge of the time is not the evidence of our preparation for the kingdom, but a heart filled with love for his appearing; a meek and quiet spirit. If we have this spirit, we shall be able to receive the weak in faith to our bosom. Do not rashly judge them, but receive them kindly."

BRO. B. P. MANNING writes:—"I am a great sufferer yet; have lost all of this world's goods, and am now without a home. I wish to say to the brethren, one and all, that I have got rid of morphine, and every thing that is wrong in the sight of God. I have been blest of God ever since Feb. 8th, 1869, and am trying to serve the God of Daniel the best that I know. I ask all the brethren to forgive wherein I have hurt their feelings in the past. I desire your prayers, that God will deliver me from the prison I am in, that I may be free again to do some little good before I go hence to be here no more, or Jesus comes.

I am in North Sutton, N. H., with the brethren. There are some good brethren and sisters here, striving to do the will of the Lord. I am glad the time of our deliverance is near. Brethren, live holy, live humble, watch and pray always, till you receive your reward in the kingdom of God."

BRO. B. MATTHIAS writes from Kansas, May 26th:—"I have been here about ten days. Am surprised to find so large and beautiful a country; under general cultivation, it would become immensely rich in produce. But little labor is necessary to a large yield; from the show of waste, I should think they regard the labor of gathering more than they agreed for. Not only in this State does this appear, but in Ohio, Indiana, and Missouri. Plenty of sectarians here. It is very refreshing to find a christian who understands his profession, or can give a reason of his hope.

We are twelve miles south of Olathe, on the Santa Fe road. Olathe is a growing town, at present the terminus of the Fort Scott road, penetrating a rich district of iron and coal. This road has its beginning at Kansas City, west."

BRO. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN writes from Webster, Mass.:—"Myself and family are now in perplexity and distress, being in great need of temporal things. 'Blessed is he that considereth the poor.'"

STILL THEY COME.

BRO. GRANT:—As an encouragement to brethren, please insert the following extract from a letter I lately received from a new field. J. BLAIN.

"DEAR BRO. BLAIN:—I am thankful to God for opening your eyes to see the truth, as through you my eyes have been opened to see a precious truth. I have been a Baptist sixteen years, and a minister fifteen years. One year ago the idea of man living a life parallel with God, and that life one of misery, brought me to a halt. I told my views to the brethren, and they and I wept and prayed over it. Six months rolled round, and I requested a letter, which was refused. Some were for expelling for heresy; some said that I studied too much, and some that I was deranged; but they finally voted to retain me in the church for the time being. During this time I was weak or confused, and only searching for truth; but a friend put your 'Death not Life' into my hands, and it was what the clay was on the eyes of the blind man. O, what joy filled my heart. I grasped it as a thirsty man would a cup of water. . . . They say I may remain in the church if I will keep quiet. I have the sympathy of the society, and half of the church; and the rumor is that half will leave the church if I do. I would like to write more, but cannot now. You will hear from me again. I enclose pay for 'Death not Life,' and others will send for it soon. Direct to Rathboneville, Steuben Co., N. Y. D. B. H."

Obituaries

STAPLES. Fell asleep in Jesus, Nov. 11th, 1868, Willie A., son of Bro. Nathaniel and Sister Esther Staples, of Raymond, Me., aged twenty-one years, six months, twenty-six days.

For some three years Willie had loved the "blessed hope." It had been his support through all his sufferings, for he suffered much from a nervous affliction, until a short time before his death, when in answer to prayer he was freed from his infirmity. All praise to Him who ever heareth children when they cry. Willie attended the campmeeting at Alton Bay last fall, hoping to be restored to health through the "prayer of faith"; yet willing, as he remarked to the writer, to suffer still if it were the will of God, counting even this as one of the "all things." According to his desire, Brn. Hook, Damman and Willie were called, and supplicated the throne of grace in his behalf. For a time after his return, their prayers seemed to have availed; then, as though it were for a trial of his faith, he experienced a return of the attacks to which he had been subject. Anxiously did his parents wait, fearing lest he would be disheartened and lose his faith in Him who hath promised. But when again permitted to join in prayer at the family altar, clearer, stronger than before was the faith of the afflicted one. In perfect submission to the will of Heaven, he bowed and "kissed the rod." "Not my will, but thine be done," was his prayer. Such faith was not desired, for from thence he began to recover; and but little time elapsed ere fever burned his life away, yet of this affliction he was healed, for He is "faithful that promised." When laid upon a dying bed, Willie still trusted in the Savior, and when, as he remarked, he had given himself up into the hands of Jesus to die, he extolled the blessed hope, and after calmly exhorting his friends to faithfulness, and to meet him in the kingdom, he slept in Jesus.

The funeral was attended by Bro. J. A. Libby. Comforting words were spoken from Matt. 11: 28. That we who remain may also cherish the blessed hope, and be ready to meet Willie and other dear sleeping ones in the morning, is the prayer of the writer. J. E. S.

HARTER. Died, at the residence of her father, in Sempronius, May 10th, 1869, Hattie, wife of Alonzo Harter, and daughter of Daniel P. and Mary S. Berean, in the twenty-fifth year of her age.

The subject of this notice was universally beloved. Favored by nature with a kind heart and a lovely disposition, she cultivated and cherished those graces that so much adorn and go to make up the true lady. In March last she was united in marriage to Alonzo Harter, who enjoyed the society of his loving bride but seven short weeks.

Her funeral was attended by a large circle of friends, and her remains were interred in the Indian Mound Cemetery, Moravia. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from 2 Tim. 4: 7, 8. A. BOUGHTON.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, June 22. Ismael Pacha, Viceroy of Egypt, arrived in London to-day. He is the guest of the Queen at Buckingham Palace, which has been fitted for his residence. A series of brilliant fetes have been arranged in his honor and will take place during his stay in this country. The Viceroy was met at the railway station by the Prince of Wales and others, and, escorted by a large military procession, was conducted through the streets to Buckingham Palace. An immense crowd of people lined the way and repeatedly cheered the Pasha.

The son of the late King Theodorus of Abyssinia, who has been at school here, will be sent to India, as the climate of England proves unfavorable to his health.

It is reported that France is endeavoring to renew the September convention with Italy for withdrawal of French troops from Rome, and that she only requires sufficient guaranties from Italy for the security of the Papal territory before concluding the treaty.

PARIS, June 24. The Emperor to-day visited the camp of Chalons and made a speech to the soldiers. He reminded the army that this was the anniversary of the battle of Solferino, and said he was pleased to see that they had not forgotten the great cause for which they fought ten years ago. The Emperor continued as follows: "Preserve the remembrance of the battles fought by your fathers and yourselves, for our victories are the history of the progress of civilization. You will thus maintain the military spirit which is the triumph of noble over vulgar passions. It is fidelity to the flag, devotion to the country. Continue in the same course and you will always be worthy of so great a nation."

It is rumored that the negotiations which were recently renewed for commercial conference between France and Belgium are likely to fall through again.

PARIS, June 23. Prince Heni of Bourbon has married Miss Payne, an American heiress. He has not renounced his position as candidate for the Spanish throne. [Henri of Bourbon, alluded to above, is probably Duke of Seville, cousin of ex-Queen Isabella.]

FLORENCE, June 23. Great precautions are being taken by the authorities at Naples, Turin and Milan to guard against outbreaks. It is feared that the revolutionists are inciting the disturbances. There had been several arrests at Genoa.

VIENNA, June 23. The Government announces a policy of reserve in respect to the Ecumenical Council which cannot be foreseen.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24. Katatasi has been appointed Minister to Washington. He has been instructed to present the Emperor's congratulations to President Grant.

FLORENCE, June 26. The country is tranquil everywhere. The attitude of the population and the vigilance of the authorities prevent further disturbances.

ZURICH, June 26. In consequence of the order forbidding Mazzini to reside in certain parts of Switzerland, he to-day departed for London.

MADRID, June 26. There was an exciting debate in the Cortes to-day on the policy of the government toward Republicans and the arbitrary conduct of the civil governors.

PARIS, June 27. The Emperor has written a letter to M. Schneider, President of the Corps Legislatif, in which he says: "The policy of the Government has been made manifest with sufficient clearness to prevent equivocal interpretation. Now, as before the elections, it will continue to perform the task of reconciling strong power with sincerely liberal institutions."

MADRID, June 22.—The Republican members of the Cortes are about to issue a manifesto advising all their supporters to swear allegiance to the Constitution, if positively required to do so. The clergy consider it their policy to reject the oath as a body.

The Republican demonstration to-day was quite large and passed off quietly.

BREST, June 25.—The signals constantly received from the steamer Great Eastern, through the cable, are excellent. They have not been interrupted since the sailing of the fleet. The work progresses with every prospect of success.

BUCHAREST, June 25.—An attempt has been made to assassinate the Priest of the Council of Ministers.

SECRET SOCIETIES IN INDIA.—So passionate is the desire for combination that the first task of every Hindoo heresiarch is to found a secret society, with caste rules, passwords, and secret customs. The London "Spectator" says of this feature of Indian life:

"Every little body of outcasts which happens to break off from society forms itself into a community, every little sect becomes a separate nation, separate as Jews among Europeans, intermarrying, eating and, where possible, dwelling only among its members; every trade becomes a Trade Union—for example, the printers, who are an anomaly in Hindooism, have formed a very strict one, and the palanquin bearers are more united than English shipwrights—and even criminals display the same disposition. More than forty criminal societies are known to be spread over India, with laws, customs and means of communication of their own, bound together by bonds which, except in rare instances, are never known to break. The Government, aided by a man of genius, succeeded in breaking up one such, the well-known fraternity of Thugs; but it has not yet succeeded in putting down the society which lives by poisoning; and has been baffled for years by a third, which maintains itself under the decorous title of the 'Basketmakers' exclusively by crime. The very bankers and bill dealers form castes, and their secret language is the despair alike of the English bankers and the Government Post Office. Every such society, no matter whether the bond be caste or creed, or race, or crime, keeps if it can its own lodging places, its own temples, its own post, hides itself and its proceedings from the remainder of the world in a secrecy which, all natives alike desiring the same protection, it is not etiquette to invade.

There are associations whose bond is a disbelief in this or that rule of morals—one such, for instance, admits, in defiance not only of Hindoo morals, but of Hindoo instincts, a community of women—but the remainder of society, though as genuinely shocked as New England is by Mormonism, would regard it as wrong to interfere, to scorch the obnoxious temples, or put down the obnoxious worship. The one cardinal law of these bodies, no matter of what kind, is fraternity against the outside world. They may hate each other, or despise each other, or kill each other, but on a society question raised by the rest of mankind they are united to the death. The Mohammedans everywhere have towns, villages, temples, places within which no infidel foot ever is or can be set. Its missionaries everywhere keep up the flame of Islam, the hope that the day is coming, is at hand, when the splendid throne which Timour won for the faithful shall again be theirs. They have their own papers, messengers, mail carriers, and trust no other. Before the telegraph, their agents outstripped the fastest couriers Government could employ. The Government express was then carried by Mussulmen, who allowed private messengers to get a few hours ahead. Every dervish, moolan or missionary is a secret agent. This organization, which has always existed, has of late always been drawn closer, partly as the result of their great mutiny, which taught the priests their hold over the soldiery, partly by the expiration of the 'century of expiation,' and partly by the marvelous revival of the Puritan element in Mohammedanism itself. The old hereditary purpose to expel the infidel has become a definite plan of insurrection at the first favorable chance. This may happen any day, should a momentary defeat of English power in the North tempt the Affghan Emir to proclaim a holy war. The way in which the English manage, under this state of things, is thus explained:

The Government of India wisely abstain from any attempt to regulate the social life of two hundred millions of men; white officials in Bengal usually number about two per million; the natives will not preach, except under temptation or pressure, for insurrection is in a way the national cause, and in a district like Dacca, where Mohammed gains thousands of converts every year, a Holy War might be preached every Sunday in every mosque, and a 'Sacred Rent' be accumulated for years, without any official ever hearing of such occurrences. Even when warned, Government can do very little. It cannot arrest Mussulmen missionaries while Christians are preaching at will; stop subscriptions for Islam while subscriptions for the Gospel are published in every paper; arrest the Moolah for denouncing the Infidel while the Padre is denouncing the idolator. Its policy has hitherto been to wait till rebellion descends into the streets, and from that policy it has never, so far as we know, departed,—but once—in the great Treason Trials of 1863. Every now and then it lays hands on a leader, under its own despotic right, collates great quantities of evidence furnished by spies, traitors, converts, or stupid persons who do not see the drift of their own confessions. The conspiracy must go on, and the Government of India must, as it has just done, warn its foes that while it respects their temples, and refrains from interfering with their sermons, and does not consider subscriptions as acts of treason, it is, nevertheless, thoroughly aware of all that is intended."

LIMA, May 28. In my last letter I mentioned the extraordinary phenomenon, near Locumba, which causes the death of all animals that approach that fatal spot. I am now enabled to give you some particulars. An American gentleman, who passed over the locality, confirms the previous reports. On the Locumba road, about twenty-two leagues from Tacua, there exists what is here termed a dry arroyo, but in fact is the bed of a former river, into which, from time imm-morial, no water has been known to pass. During the late earthquakes, which destroyed Arica and partly Tacna, the shocks were strongest in the neighborhood of Locumba and the Arrrieros. A mule-driver reported that one of the mountains near the arroyo had been split open, and a small stream of fetid water was oozing out of the mountain into the arroyo. No attention was at first paid to the fact, nor to the mortality among the animals that visited the neighborhood. It was only when the people began to leave Tacna, and flee from the scourge of the yellow fever, which was devastating the cities to the Valley of Locumba, that they became aware of the fatal effects upon their animals, at a distance of as much as eight and ten miles from the arroyo. "The stench," says my informant, "I can compare to nothing else than old bilge water, of the smell of which you become painfully conscious. Within twelve miles from its source, my horse dropped down under me, and in five minutes he was dead. He vomited three or four times a thick black substance, similar in consistency and appearance to the black vomit. I was thus left to walk fifteen miles to the nearest house, two-thirds of which I may call a mules' grave-yard, so thickly was the old road covered with them. The cause of this singular freak of nature is unknown; but it seems that the gases which have impregnated the atmosphere produce the vomit and death of the animals that inhale it. What these gases are composed of science alone can solve." A Commission has been ordered by the Government to examine into this extraordinary matter and report upon it.—Cor. N. Y. Paper.

Passing Events.

☞ Sixty-one newspapers were started in the United States during May.

☞ The Emperor Napoleon has had to give up smoking.

☞ The Pope having displeased the Rothschilds, they cannot raise any more loans for him.

☞ The emancipated peasantry in Russia are industriously mowing and sowing now that they have a greater personal interest in the proceeds.

☞ Count Bismarck has so far recovered his health as to be able in favorable weather to walk in his park, supported by a stick.

☞ Oats six feet high were cut recently in Los Angelos county, and oats seven feet are noted as among the tall things in the neighborhood of Sacramento City, Cal.

☞ Princess Kazlowsky, of Moscow, whose father lost all his fortune, declined the aid of all her friends, and now keeps a cigar store, by which she earns enough to support herself and father.

☞ Carlos de Cespedes, the present leader of the Cuban insurgents, was in 1857, a student in Middletown, Conn. He was at the time an ardent admirer of American institutions, and was deeply impressed with the liberal ideas and principles of the Constitution of the United States.

☞ The Sultan of Turkey has conferred the title of Pasha upon Sir Samuel Baker in recognition of his humane gallantry in assuming the guidance of the expedition to exterminate the slave traffic on the White Nile, dispatched by the Viceroy of Egypt at the instance of the Prince of Wales.

☞ There is a mistaken idea prevalent that strawberries will not keep more than one day. If the fruit is kept in a cool, dry place where the air is plenty, it can be kept nearly a week. But it is a bad plan to shut the berries up in a tight box and place it in a damp refrigerator.

☞ Sir Henry Rawlinson has found Eden. He maintains that the Babylonian documents in his possession will give us the whole history, which is recorded in Genesis from the time of Abraham. The garden of Eden, he asserts, is the primeval name of Babylon.

☞ A graceful expression of thanks for kindness received during the late visit to Paris was presented by the Prince of Wales to the Empress—a basket containing every known species of rose, from the black rose of Holland to the white rose of York.

☞ The posts for the New York Elevated Railway are set as far as Thirteenth street, three miles uptown, and it is expected that in about ten weeks, the road for that distance will be opened. The rails are to be of steel, and the car wheels of wrought iron with flanges an inch and a half deep, to lessen the danger of running off the track.

☞ Another blow has been struck at ecclesiastical domination in Austria. The Minister of Public Worship has addressed instructions to the Governors of the provinces, pointing out that when priests are confined in clerical houses of correction by their bishops, the Episcopal sentences are only valid so far and so long as the condemned priest voluntarily submits to them.

☞ It is reported in New York that shipments of arms and ammunition are rapidly going forward for the Turkish Government. Colonel Rassan Bey, a high public functionary of the Porte, is said to be superintending the shipment of 20,000 stand of arms, recently purchased from the United States Government. A number of ocean steamers have also been purchased, it is stated, for the same destination.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preachers sending appointments to Wakefield, Mass., are particularly requested to correspond with JOHN B. ADAMS.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. JAMES B. TREFETHEN.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Hampton, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. Rufus S. JOHNSON. They will find a home at his house.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. WELLS, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. YORK, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. HITCHCOCK, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. POWELL, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preachers desirous of coming to Wrightville, Ct., will please correspond with the writer, and also call on Bro. D. Grant, near the Chapel, as arrangements have been made with him by the Church to that effect. By order of the Church,
ELD. A. D. FLAGG, Cor. Sec'ry, Torrington, Ct.

Notices.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Tremont Campmeeting will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue over the following Sunday. Ample arrangements will be made for board and lodging for those who cannot bring tents with them, but all who can are requested to bring tents. Bro. E. G. Kingsbury, of Chelsea, will be on the ground with his large tent, which will seat nearly one thousand. Now, brethren and sisters, you who can arrange to devote one week in such a meeting as this in the service of God, for the salvation of souls, and the renewing of your own spiritual strength, come up to this feast of tabernacles. The location is excellent, free from dust, and many other annoyances which often attend such gatherings.

All who expect to attend are requested to be on the ground at the commencement of the meeting, to secure a full share of its benefits; and pray that the blessing of God may attend this effort, which has been so fully realized in years past. Bro. Geo. T. Adams will probably secure a reduction of fare on the Old Colony Rail Road for those who come through Boston.

By order of the Committe of Arrangements,
HENRY V. DAVIS.

Grove Meeting Fourth of July.

There will be a grove meeting held in Faysville, Mass., commencing Saturday, July 3d, at half past one o'clock P. M., and hold over Sunday, the 4th. The brethren and sisters scattered abroad are invited to come to this meeting and labor for the salvation of the unsaved. The grove is only a few rods from the depot on the B. C. and F. R. R. Call on Bro. and Sr. H. S. Woods, who will do what they can for the comfort of all. There will be those present who labor in word and doctrine to preach the word. For the brethren,
C. GOODRICH.

Grove Meeting.

A grove meeting will be held in Albany, N. H., in Bro. Joshua Piper's grove, commencing Friday, July 2nd, and holding over Monday, July 5th. When the arrangements are completed, due notice will be given. Albany is pleasantly situated among the mountains between Tamworth and Conway. The stages will doubtless bring those who wish to come to the ground. Those who come by cars, will leave them at Meredith Village, on the B. C. and M. R. R., and thence by stage direct. Brethren will please come prepared to remain through the meeting. Come by cars, stages, with private teams, on foot, or in any way, to meet with us. This is a new field, and an interesting time is expected. In behalf of the brethren,
L. C. McKINSTRY.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting in Barre, two miles and a half southeast of Knowlesville, Orleans Co., N. Y., in the grove of Mr. C. Phelps, commencing July 3d, at half past ten o'clock, and hold over the following Lord's day. Elder Wm. A. Fenn will be present. A general invitation is extended to all.

If the weather should not permit services in the grove, they will be held in the Christian church close by. P. THURTLE.

Still on Zion's Hill.

The Mass. Mission Tent will remain (the Lord willing) through the week, and over the Sabbath, July 4th, on Zion's Hill, near East Weymouth. Meetings afternoons and evenings. Brn. Phelps and Thurber are expected through the week. Brethren, pray for us. The interest is increasing.
ENOCH MORRILL.

Protracted Meeting.

There will be a protracted meeting in Barnston, P. Q., beginning Sabbath, July 11th, and continue over two Sabbaths, as the brethren may arrange, in the tent or otherwise. Will some of the brethren meet me at my son's residence, Derby Line, Saturday, July 10th? S. W. THURBER.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting on land owned by Bro. Washburn, in Bethel, Vt., on Camp Brook, commencing Saturday, July 3d, at one o'clock, to continue over the Sabbath. Come, brethren, to the meeting. All are invited. We want Bro. Varney to come, if he is in this section of the country, to assist in preaching the word. Brn. D. Braley and J. A. Cleaveland will be present, with others. For the church,
J. WASHBURN, } Com.
G. W. LEWIS, }

Tent and Grove Meeting in Hopkinton, N. H.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting in E. G. Kimball's grove, in Hopkinton, N. H., July 4th and 5th, commencing at ten o'clock A. M. each day. Bro. Edmund Moulton, of Whitefield, N. H., and others, will be present to preach the word. An opportunity for baptism will be offered on the 5th. We hope to meet with friends from all the surrounding towns, who desire to hear the word of life, and especially with those who feel called upon to labor for the salvation of souls.

The New Hampshire Tent will be pitched outside of the grove, and should the weather be rainy, the meeting will be held in the tent. Brethren from a distance, by bringing some bedding, can lodge in the tent, or at houses near by. Horse-keeping can be had at reasonable rates.
JOSEPH H. TEWKSBURY.
E. G. KIMBALL.

Eld. D. D. Leavitt, of Holderness, is expected at this meeting. If desirable, arrangements will be made for similar meetings in other localities. As the Tent will probably be pitched Saturday afternoon, the scattered ones are invited to come with their provision, prepared to stay through the meeting.

The Grove is in District No. 5, near road leading from Hopkinton Lower Village to Weare, about two miles south of the village. Let all make an effort to attend. For the Brethren,
C. W. SARGENT.

Special Notice.

Shall those in Indiana, who look for the coming of the Lord, meet in a conference capacity this year? If so, it is time the matter was understood. If I mistake not, the "Indiana Christian Conference" has not met since August, 1866. In 1867, a part of the members of said conference went into an organization called the "Gospel Association," which has had one or two meetings. But as this Association has tests to which many of the brethren will not submit, it is earnestly desired that the members of the "Indiana Christian Conference" meet and re-organize next August. I want to hear from all Christians in Indiana who look for the Savior in regard to this matter. Do not neglect it now, but write immediately. Address
G. W. GREEN, Memphis, Clark Co., Indiana.

Notice.

There will be a meeting held in the grove on the farm of Samuel Gilmore, Holden, Maine, to commence at ten A. M., July 4th. and continue over the 5th. The meeting will be free for all who believe in Jesus Christ, and do not marvel at the fact that he will raise from the dead both the righteous and the wicked. We heartily invite you to come, filled with the Spirit of Jesus, and labor for the salvation of souls, and a preparation to meet the Judge of all the earth. In behalf of the brethren,
I. DAMMAN.

Kingston Grove Meeting.

The Annual Grove Meeting held at Kingston, N. H., (near Bro. F. Gale's), will be held this year two days, Sundays and Mondays, July 4th and 5th. It is expected that Elders J. Pearson, Jr., G. W. Burnham, W. Burnham, C. Cunningham, and Bro. Haskell will be present. Let there be a general rally of the brethren and sisters in the region to this feast. F. GALE.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

To the friends of the Alton Bay Campmeeting I would say, the probability is that our meeting will commence Sunday, Sept. 5th. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee, J. G. SMITH.

Discussion.

If the Lord will, the discussion of the following question will commence at Warren, Vt., (Union Church), July 1st, at ten o'clock A. M.

Resolved, That the seventh-day Sabbath is not binding on the Christian church.
J. H. F. VARNEY, Affirms.
D. T. EVANS, Denies.

Basket Meeting.

The Bethel Church of Springfield will hold a Basket meeting on the camp-ground, Monday, July 5th. Bro. Pile is expected to preach. All who can come are invited to be present.
For the brethren, B. F. THOMPSON.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a meeting in Steep Brook, Fall River, Mass., in Ashley's grove, about three miles north from the city, Sabbath, July 4th. The grove is on the Old Colony Rail Road. All are invited to attend. I expect to be there to preach the word. EDWIN R. WOOD.

Notice.

I expect to preach on the Alton Bay camp-ground Sunday, July 4th, at ten o'clock A. M. and one P. M. Boats are expected to run from nearly all of the towns around the Lake, to carry people to the meeting who wish to attend. J. COUCH.

Campmeeting.

The Campmeeting in Maine, to commence about the 23d of August, will be held on the Drew farm, about two miles from the village. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the poor and the preachers to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting.
In behalf of the Committee, I. DAMMAN.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting in Foster, R. I., near the Hopkin's Mill, to commence June 26th, and hold over the fourth of July. Preaching brethren from abroad, come. Brethren and sisters, make a little sacrifice to get out to this meeting. It probably will be the last meeting of the kind you will ever have. Good homes for all who come from abroad. E. BELLOWS.

Barn Meeting.

Providence permitting, there will be a meeting at North Sutton, N. H., in Charles L. Andrew's barn, commencing Saturday P. M., July 3d, and hold over Sunday, July 4th. Bro. John Parsons, of Northwood, and other preaching brethren are expected to be present. All are invited.
A. D. FOLLANSBEE, for the Brethren.

Conference.

The conference at Alton Corner, N. H., will commence evening, July 1st, and hold over the following Sabbath. The meeting on the Sabbath will be held on the Alton Bay camp-ground at ten o'clock A. M., and one P. M. For the Brethren,
J. COUCH.

R. I. and E. Ct.

Our next conference will be held at North Scituate, R. I., commencing Wednesday, two P. M., July 7th, 1869. Brethren, let us awake. We have been slumbering. Come, preacher and delegate, from every church. Let us have one more general rally on the old battle-field of North Scituate.
H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Notice.

Whereas we are holding a protracted meeting in East Weymouth, and there will be a campmeeting in Tremont the last of July, and the National Campmeeting in Springfield, Mass., in August, it is thought advisable not to hold a State Quarterly Conference till after these general gatherings are over.
S. W. THURBER, President.
P. S. BUTLER, Secretary.

Notice.

There will be a meeting in the grove of A. H. Smith, Wolcot, Conn., July 4th. Bro. A. Simpson will preach the word. Come, brethren and sisters, far and near. Let us once more raise our voices in praise of Him we love in this beautiful grove.
For the brethren, G. L. WHITE.

Notice.

The Conn. Advent Christian Conference is hereby invited to hold its next session with the church at Cheshire Street, Ct., to commence Wednesday evening, July 21st, at half past seven o'clock, and continue over the following Sabbath. There is a rising interest in this place, and it is a subject of earnest prayer that God will bless this effort to the salvation of sinners. Brethren, although it is a busy season of the year, please make the sacrifice necessary to come, and God grant it may be like the old fashioned Cheshire Street meetings. Business of importance is to be transacted, which should prompt every church to see to it that delegates or letters are on hand. The chapel is about three miles west of West Meriden Depot, on the Hartford S. and New Haven R. R. If those coming on the cars will write to me in season, I will make arrangements for conveyances, and give notice accordingly. For the church, WM. A. DURAND.

To all whom it may Concern.

Please notice that the undersigned Missionaries have left the "Star of Hope Mission," though still engaged in Mission work. Friends writing us will please direct their letters—Care of G. W. Smith, No. 273, West 22d Street, New York City.

(Danielsonville, Ct., for the present.)

Minnesota Campmeeting.

This meeting is appointed at Ottawa, to commence Sabbath, June 27th, continuing over Monday, July 5th. The State Conference will commence its annual session, June 24th, at the same place. As these meetings will be held thus in connection, we look for a season of special interest, and one in which all our strength shall be united to give new life and energy to the cause throughout the State. The committee are arranging for the comfort of all who attend, and we trust every part of the State, even to the extreme frontier, will be represented in this general gathering.

REDUCTION OF RAILROAD FARE.

Ottawa is situated about sixty miles south-west from St. Paul, on the St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad (formerly the Minnesota Valley,) which runs from St. Paul to Mankato.

Those coming by the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway will change cars at Mendota, where they will purchase tickets for Ottawa.

The fare on the St. Paul and Sioux City R. R. is reduced one-half, and when buying tickets for Ottawa be sure and ask for return tickets. Return tickets will be good for ten days.

A boarding table will be provided for those who do not choose to bring their own provisions, at a reasonable rate. Also feed for horses can be obtained on the ground.
EDWIN T. HIMES, Chairman Com.

Notice.

I wish to say to the Brother who wrote me last September, sending me one dollar to aid in buying tracts, that we were moving at the time, and I lost the letter; if he will write again, we will be glad to give any information he may wish, if in our possession. WILLIAM COOK, Hesper, Kansas.

Notice.

The meeting in Jay, July 4th, will be at Kennedy Corner, for baptism. ARNOLD G. IRELAND.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

THE LAND OF REST.

O, land of rest, for thee I sigh,
 Where toil and pain shall cease,
Where tears are wiped from every eye,
 And all is love and peace.

O, land of rest, for thee I sigh,
 Where saints and angels meet;
The land where we shall never die,
 But live at Jesus' feet.

O, land of rest, for thee I sigh;
 This world is not my home;
And signs proclaim in earth and sky
 That Jesus soon will come.

There I shall see, all robed in white,
 The saints of every clime;
And then I'll sing with sweet delight
 Those heavenly songs sublime.

Till then I'll toil, and watch, and pray,
 The battle ne'er give o'er;
His truth maintain and word obey,
 Though Satan stand before.

O, land of rest, for thee I sigh,
 Where toil and pain shall cease,
Where tears are wiped from every eye,
 And all is love and peace.

THE EARTH AS IT WAS, AS IT IS, AND AS IT WILL BE.

After the waters of the flood had abated, Noah built an altar, and God promised him "while the earth remaineth," or while as yet all the days of the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night, shall not cease. No doubt the flood caused a great change in our earth, and I doubt whether cold and heat, summer and winter, existed before the flood as they now exist. The position of some learned men is—If "cold and heat," and "summer and winter" did not obtain before the flood, then the position of the earth was changed at the time of the deluge. The axis of the earth—the globe, is now inclined to the ecliptic 66½ degrees; consequently it declines 23½ degrees from a perpendicular position to the plane of the ecliptic, or to the plane of its own orbit. This produces the following results:

1. Inequality in length of day and night.
2. Heat and cold, summer and winter.
3. Inequality in rain and drought.
4. Inequality in fertility of soil.
5. These inequalities subject man to varied sickness, break down the human constitution, and cut short human life. Also confine many important productions of the globe within very narrow zones. These things obtain now by reason of the altered position of the globe; but such, we have reason to believe, was not the condition of the primeval earth.

If the axis of the earth were perpendicular to the plane of its own orbit round the sun, the following consequences would be the result:—

1. Its North and South poles would be always enlightened.
2. The days and nights would be equal the world over.
3. The cold of winter and the heat of summer would give place to perpetual spring.
4. Excessive rains and excessive drought would give place to cloudless days and dewy nights.
5. Hills and mountains, now covered with perpetual snow and washed by the mountain floods, might become fruitful and pleasant; and thus would the globe become a physical paradise.

Such, we believe, was the condition of our globe before the flood; therefore the health and vigor and long life of the race.

But the earth is "moved out of its place"; and, therefore, instead of perpetual spring, we have the desolating influences of winter, the scorching rays of a summer's sun; perpetual snows cover our mountains, and the poles are locked up by icebergs. We have storm and tempest and hail, commingled with the howling tornado, the lightning's flash, and the thunder's roar.

But the time is coming when God will shake terribly the earth, set it upright, and paradise be restored. We shall then not only have a physical but a moral paradise. The earth will then yield its increase, the nations be blessed in Messiah, and the saints possess the kingdom, and the greatness of the kingdom, and the dominion under the whole heaven; and a universal shout of acclamation shall echo through the heavens and resound from pole to pole. ROCHESTER.

We returned to this place and people and spent the Sabbath with them in their new place of worship. Here we met Bro. J. Wendell preparing for the summer campaign with the N. Y. Mission tent, also Bro. Smith from Florida, with a cheering report of the state of the cause there, and Bro. Dennis from the West, who went out with Bro. Clough. After shifting from place to place, we have got back to that sacred spot, the old tent ground. Our edifice is the new Arsenal. No stairs to climb, no lack of room, and no fears of breaking down. We had a good congregation and a heavenly sitting together in Christ Jesus. Our communion table, reaching nearly through the entire room of one hundred feet, was filled, and a second row of seats was furnished and filled three-fourths of the way round, though the rain and sickness kept many away, and the members from the country were obliged to return home before the evening services.

This is Rochester of to-day, after two years conflict with the world, the flesh, and the devil; and when we take into account the many that have moved away, pillars of the church when we came here, and the many that are now boating on the canal, beside the multitude that have gone into all the world from Rochester, carrying the light like Sampson's foxes; and then, again, as it is reported by candid church members of other societies that one half of their number are fully in this blessed faith, we exclaim, What hath the Lord wrought?

This must be the great centralizing point for the people of this country waiting the return of our blessed Savior. Therefore having obtained a place sufficiently commodious, we are prepared to negotiate with the Adventists of America concerning a National Convention in this place. If this should be thought advisable, I think the church would unitedly invite such a delegation with warm hearts and cordial welcomes.

A few more words. The street cars run by our door. The room we occupy is eighty-four by one hundred feet. Throwing open the big doors on either side, it seems like the old tent back again. Here the loud hallelujahs ascended yesterday (June 20th) as in olden times. Our conference meeting was one of the best we ever had. All hearts united, all countenances beamed with joy. We felt, How good for brethren to dwell together in unity. Bro. P. A. Smith was with us, with steam all up for the kingdom. Unexpectedly (the Elders having previously consulted) an invitation was extended to have me again take the oversight of this flock as pastor. I desired first to know how universal this desire was in the church. When I learned that there was only one neutral out of the ninety-three numbers assembled, I felt constrained, though with great sacrifice, to accept. Brethren, pray for me; pray for the church in Rochester. It is the most important field in America. Come with your National Conference. Come with the love of God in your hearts. Come with the flaming light of prophecy. Come to illustrate practically the religion of Christ. Do not bring along a bad habit. Do not come with light conversation. Do not come with jesting. Come with a heart realizing that God has intrusted us with the most important and solemn message that the world has ever known. Bring it in your hearts. Bring it in your acts. Bring it in your every countenance, and may God help you to bring it to the sinner's heart. Yours in hope, H. PRATT.

P. S. Brn. in the East will accept this as an apology for not complying with their solicitations, or answering all of their letters of invitation. I will give due notice when I can be East. H. P.

COMFORT IN GRIEF.

Why dost thou weep, mother? Why art thou so sad? Thy tears fall like rain. Thy head is bowed in sorrow. Poor mother! thy child is dead; she hath gone from thy sight; they have laid her in the dust; the sweet voice is hushed; the music of its childish laughter no longer is heard; the patter of tiny feet no more shall gladden thine ears; the soft, dove-like eyes are closed; the little hands, cold as ice, are meekly crossed over the still bosom. The once rosy cheeks are pale as snow; the golden hair damp with death's dew. So beautiful, so cherished, so loved, so loving, the bud hath withered ere it blossomed, nipped by the frost of death.

They tell thee, "Thy child is an angel in heaven." Yet thy tears fall.

"She is not lost, but gone before." Thou weepest still.

"She is in the presence of Him who said, 'Suffer little children to come unto me.'" Still thou dost grieve.

"She is wearing a golden crown." Thou art not comforted.

"She is praising her Redeemer with a golden harp."

Thy child is dead. Well dost thou know it; she is in the grave, deep in the cold, damp earth; dust has returned to dust again. But thy child shall come again from the land of the enemy. She will awake from the sleep of death, to immortal life. "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." The bud will blossom with a sweeter perfume in a fairer garden: the bud will ripen into an immortal flower. It will bloom forever, unsullied by the touch of sin, its fragrance untainted with the breath of suffering, sheltered from the desolating blast of death.

Take comfort, mother. Thou wilt see thy child again. Dry thy tears. "Even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." Take that cheering promise to thy heart for comfort. She will be restored to thee. Thou wilt lose her no more. There will be no parting there. There shall be no more death, "neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away."

"'Mong pastures green he'll lead his flock,
 Where living streams appear,
And God the Lord from every eye
 Shall wipe off every tear." JACKSON.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The New York State Annual Conference met according to appointment at Wolcott, N. Y., Thursday evening, June 3d, which was spent in prayer and supplication to God for his blessing upon the meeting.

Preachers present: D. Cogswell, I. Allen, C. F. Sweet, A. C. Newell, C H. Leverton, B. P. Stevens, M. R. Miles, Wm. Morrell, W. J. Hobbs, E. Cowles, and E. S. Jennings. The preaching was good, the social meetings excellent, and love and unity prevailed. For the sake of brevity I do not give a detailed report of the subjects, time, and who preached.

The church at Wolcott have our thanks for the welcome we received, and for their untiring efforts to make our stay pleasant and agreeable. May God bless, encourage and strengthen them to be steadfast unto the end.

Business meeting convened Saturday morning, nine A. M. Bro. D. Cogswell of Dansville, Vice President, in the chair. A committee of four, consisting of the following persons, were appointed by the Pres. to prepare business for the action of the conference: C. F. Sweet, B. P. Stevens, B. C. Simonds, and W. J. Hobbs. While the committee were attending to their duties, reports from the various churches were presented; some prospering, some having trials.

The committee presented the following names for officers, who were elected for the ensuing year: D. Cogswell, Dansville, Pres.; B. P. Stevens, Butler, Vice Pres.; B. C. Simonds, Darien, Treas.; W. J. Hobbs, Honeoye Falls, Sec. For Board of Trustees: D. Cogswell, J. Wilkinson, Stephen Finck, John S. Beeman, N. T. Withington, B. C. Simonds, N. McCullock.

The tent matter was next considered. We found quite a heavy debt against it. As it has been undergoing repairs at Rochester, and as there was an old claim against it, quite a sum must be raised. As the brethren and sisters wanted to do all in their power for the cause they love so well, they concluded to set the tent and its laborers free, and raised then and there about one hundred dollars, which they put in the hands of the Treasurer, which will meet the debt and leave a little in the treasury. We hope and trust that those who love the truth, and were not present to take stock in this missionary or tent movement, will be ready to contribute liberally to sustain it in the field.

The conference passed the following resolution: Resolved, That we invite Brn. J. Wendell and B. P. Stevens to travel in the State of New York with the tent, and appoint them agents to solicit funds for the sustenance of the same, and require them to keep strict account of all monies received and paid out, it being their duty to report the condition of finances monthly to the Secretary of the board of trustees.

The conference adjourned to meet for the first quarterly session at Darien, Sept. 17th. 1869. W. J. HOBBS, Clerk.

MINUTES OF CENTRAL ILLINOIS ANNUAL A. C. CONFERENCE.

Conference met at Clayton, June 5th, 1869, and was opened by prayer, the President in the chair. Minutes of the preceding conference read and adopted. Visiting brethren and sisters were invited to a seat with us. The conference then proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: Eld. Larkin Scott, Pres.; Eld. O. D. Gibson, Vice Pres.; W. W. Cate, Sec.; and Bro. John Gilles, Treas. Voted, that a business committee of two be appointed by the Chair; and Brn. D. S. Clark and S. Wing were appointed.

Met at four o'clock. Heard reports of preachers. Eld. D. S. Clark gave an interesting account of his labors as an evangelist with "Shiloh Tent," which terminated in the long-to-be-remembered tent meeting in Chicago; his labors since in Sharland; and more recently at Winchester, where the people are anxious to hear more, and want a tent meeting. O. D. Gibson had labored in four different places until last fall. Had since scattered his labors beyond in Brown, Scott, Pike, and Schuyler counties, with generally no apparently animating results. The good seed has been sown. W. W. Cate had labored in several places in Brown Co., near Hersman; good seed has been sown, and in Bro. Nokes' school-house a debate last winter was the means of scattering much light. During the past winter sickness has deprived me of much energetic effort, but the Lord has given me health again, and I am determined to do what I can, and let my light shine. L. Scott.—I have preached in Hancock, Brown, Cass, and Scott counties; interest good in all these places, but especially in Scott county, near Winchester, where the interest was intense; and they are not yet satisfied, but listen with interest to what I can say, for I am rough-spoken, and sometimes make mistakes, but I mean well. I have sown the seed broadcast, in tears, and expect to reap the harvest when the Master comes.

Reports of churches. Clayton reported by Bro. S. Wing. Our church at present is in rather a low state; yet our prayer-meetings have generally been kept up. We had an interesting series of meetings last winter; several were baptized. Present number about twenty-five. Have no regular preaching.

Mount Pleasant. Reported by Bro. John Gilles. We have about forty names on our church book, but many have moved away, many are cold and indifferent, yet there are a few living ones. Prayer meetings have been kept up on Thursday evenings for years. We have preaching once a month by Eld. Scott.

Oak Grove church. Reported by Bro. John Nokes. Bro. Gibson labored with us last summer. Bro. Scott preaches once a month. Bro. Cate has labored some, also Bro. L. Rich. Our congregations are good. The state of religion is low.

Denver church. Reported by Bro. Wiley. About one half of our members have moved away, including many of our best working members; interest low. Bro. Scott preaches in our chapel once a month.

Winchester church. Reported by Bro. John Bush. I have scattered many tracts around Winchester. Brn. Clark and Scott have preached there lately. Court house full of interested hearers. I think the interest is on the increase. Many are seeing light, and some are rejoicing in it. We have good meetings without preaching. We want more preaching. We want a tent meeting.

Business committee reported the following business: Believing Brn. Leander Rich and John Bush are called to labor in the Lord's vineyard; therefore Voted, that they be licensed to improve their gifts as ministers of the New Testament. Voted, that Eld. O. D. Gibson labor as as Evangelist with "Shiloh Tent" the ensuing season; pending which an interesting debate on tent labor followed by Brn. Clark, Gibson, Scott, and Sister Mansfield. Voted, that the sum of three hundred dollars be raised by the churches of this conference for the support of the Evangelist. The sum of $110 was immediately pledged by the five churches represented. Voted, that a committee of one for each church be appointed to confer with their respective churches for the purpose of raising the above sum. The following were appointed such committee: Brn. S. Wing, J. Bush, R. D. Wiley, J. Gilles, S. D. Nokes, Charles Palmer, J. Pine, A. Annis, A. S. Calkins (for Auburn), W. W. Thompson, Bro. Wise, Springfield, Eld. Olsen, John Dunham Jr., James Burbank, Bro. Chamberlain Barry, Eld. G. W. Hurd, Burlington, Eld. C. Bunnell, and Bro. Wm. Leaf of Havana.

Letters were received from Eld. S. B. Maybey, giving notice of his uniting with the Northern Ill. Conference; also from Elds. G. W. Hurd and J. C. Bywater; the latter is laboring in Caldwell Co., Mo. Bro. Hurd is preaching in Burlington, Ionia, and Tennessee. Voted, that the proceedings of this conference be published in the Voice of the West and World's Crisis. A vote of thanks was voted to the Brn. and friends of Clayton, for their hospitality and kindness manifested during this meeting.

Adjourned to meet at the call of the Chair with the tent-meeting at Winchester in August next.

Thus ended the business meetings of our third Annual session, characterized by harmony of action, and dispatch in business. Our preaching was indeed an intellectual treat. We had the privilege every evening during the meeting, and Sabbath P. M., of listening to the great woman preacher of the North-West, Mrs. M. S. Mansfield, of Michigan. Toil and suffering have left their mark on her visage, yet we listened with delight to the same voice as she poured forth in impassioned eloquence the words of life. And while she presented the truth with such clearness and power, it looked so plain that we could not help thinking that all honest persons must see and embrace it. On the subject of "Immortality being brought to light through the gospel," and also, "What is our hope?" she was emphatically plain and pointed; but perhaps her happiest effort was on Sabbath eve, on—"The church in her loneliness and toil without a visible head." There were but few dry eyes in that crowded hall; it was evident the seed was taking deep root; and may many sheaves in the great harvest, now nigh at hand, tell of the good accomplished at this meeting.

Eld. D. S. Clark was present and assisted in dispensing the word. His effort on Sabbath, A. M., on the "nature of the soul," was logical and convincing.

FROM THE NORTHWEST.

BRO. GRANT:—I am out on the northwest frontier, among the Indians and half-breeds, and some white people, preaching the kingdom of God, and giving out tracts to those that can read. There never was any Advent gospel preached here before I came to these regions. I find the truth takes hold of the people here as well as down east. I was out here last winter, and have just returned. When I arrived at Crow Wing, I was received with open arms and glad hearts by all classes. I could hear the young Indians on the hills singing out, "Misser Reed has come! Misser Reed has come back!" I have invitations all through these regions to preach Christ's blessed gospel. While on my way here, I received a call from the Methodists to preach in their house. I shall do so as soon as I get around to it.

Now, my brethren, to you. I feel that Bro. John Wadsworth must have a horse to carry him and his backloads of tracts. I am acquainted with that faithful brother. He was converted at Rochester, under the labors of Bro. Grant, at the big tent. He was formerly a southern slaveholder. As soon as he heard the glad tidings of Christ's soon coming, he left all, and, loaded down with tracts, like a faithful St. Paul, who counted all things loss for Christ, he has traveled night and day, and slept out of doors a part of the time. When I saw him down South, he had traveled so much that his boots were worn through on the bottom, and his feet on the ground and very sore.

My Brn., in the name of our God in whom we trust, shall this be so any longer? Let us send him money to buy a horse. I will send him ten dollars. How many more will send him the same? If he should get more than enough to buy a horse, he wants a saddle and bridle. May God deliver us from covetousness. The Bible tells us that no covetous man shall inherit the kingdom of God. I am sorry there are so many professed Adventists among us who can spend money to decorate their poor mortal bodies, fit up fine houses, and let Christ's cause and people suffer in the streets. I find the more I give, the more the Lord gives me. Let God into your hearts and pockets, and have some sunshine on the way. Do not forget Bro. Wadsworth. Send all remittances to Eld. Miles Grant, Boston, Mass., or to J. B. Wadsworth, Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

Brethren, let us attend to this matter at once, and not wait until the man is dead. This Bro. is doing a work that no other man can or will do. I send my ten dollars to-day. Help him to carry his heavy load.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION.

DEAR BRN. AND SRS.:—I would say to you who are anxious to hear from me, my health is better, and the Lord is still doing a great work here. The work is reviving all around; in our meetings, and among the poor down in the cellars, and up in the garrets. I am again able to take hold of the work in earnest. I passed through very severe trials while sick, but the Lord has heard these people pray, and raised me up again.

We are suffering very much for a larger hall; many go away Sunday evening, because they cannot get in; every place is packed full, stairways and halls. Yesterday I was sent for to go and visit a sick woman in G—— St. When we got there we found her earnestly seeking the Lord. She was so weak with consumption she could hardly speak. We talked with her; found her willing to throw her helpless self on Christ, and trust him for salvation. She knew but little about religious matters. Her mother, being poor and wicked, rented a house and let furnished rooms by the week to girls of disrepute; so she made her living. This poor child lay in a little room, where she heard the wicked words of those wicked creatures; but in it all she prayed, and there found the Savior. She was a married woman with two children. Her husband left her in poor health with those two dear little girls. She returned home to her mother and had to stay with those wicked ones; but this shows the Lord can and will hear us when we pray, no matter about the place. It grieves her very much to think she is in such a place; her mother kept it, and she had no where to go but to her mother. Oh! what sorrow and suffering and broken hearts I find in one day. To-day my heart is sick of the things my eyes behold, and I ask,

"How long, O Lord, wilt thou remain away?
 My heart is growing weary of thy so long delay."

Sometimes I think, How can the Lord stay away? But then we must have patience, that after having done all we may stand still and see his salvation.

We visited a large number yesterday. If each case could be written down, what a book we might make; but you will know it all in the kingdom. One case was a backslider. She was very low; but how she wept and prayed; such tears, such pleading with God for mercy, such poverty, it almost broke my heart. I tell you, sisters, my heart is almost killed when I see such scenes as I visited yesterday.

Another was one who was seeking the Lord and found him, and she with her neighbors gave God the glory so loud and so long, I did not know but what we all should be arrested for making such a noise; so we ran home and left twelve of them jumping and shouting and singing. When we got home there were three or four messages to come and pray with others, and so passed the day.

We have many sick ones now, and no doubt shall have during the hot weather. Sisters, if you have anything for the sick ones, do remember us just now, for we need it very much. If you have any men's wrappers for the sick to wear, we will thank God and pray for you, if you will send them along. One of our missionaries from the South was in that smash-up on the train from Washington, and was badly hurt; and after we got him washed, and his wounds oiled and bound up, and he was able to sit up, we really did need a wrapper and slippers for him, for he was very much bruised; but we had none. All the women that come wear my wrappers and slippers; but when the men come sick I have nothing to put on them, and you know I believe in making sick folks comfortable, especially missionaries. For I know that "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me"; and I am so glad.

Now, friends, pray for us, that our faith fail not; for if ever the devil was mad, and roared, and foamed, it is to-day. If ever he set snares for christian feet, it is in these last days. The Lord can give us grace and wisdom. Yours in the highways and hedges,

June 16th. A. E. SMITH.

FAITH IN GOD.

Thy way, not mine, O Lord,
 However dark it be!
Lead me by thine own hand,
 Choose out the path for me.

Smooth let it be, or rough,
 It will be still the best;
Winding or straight, it leads
 Right onward to thy rest.

I dare not choose my lot;
 I would not if I might;
Choose thou for me, my God;
 So shall I walk aright.

THE BIBLE.

The BIBLE belongs to the realities of "this world and that which is to come"; while Idealism, or Transcendentalism, finds no place save in human theory. "Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, That the man which doeth these things shall live by them. But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise: Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven . . . to bring Christ down from above? or who shall descend into the deep, . . . to bring up Christ again from the dead? [because he had come, and had been raised up from the dead.] But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth and in thy heart; that is, the word of faith, which we preach; that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."—Rom. 10: 5–9.

I. "The righteousness which is of faith," involves a right faith. When we believe God, then, however sinful as subjects of law, we become right (righteous, or right-wise) as to faith. This heart-faith must lead to righteousness of life and destiny—right with God. This righteousness of faith involves the elements of all that is right with God, and in harmony with his loving will toward men. The principle embraces all doctrine of duty, the knowledge of divine things, and an obedience unto salvation. This righteousness is adapted to our state as sinners, and is the only righteousness possible or needful for us. God can be just when he justifies the believer. Rom. 3: 21–26.

II. How, then, shall a man be just with God? By believing what God hath done, is doing, and is preparing to do, for the redemption of man and earth. Rom. 1st to 8th. It is not by any thing ideal, away up, or down, or off in the regions of fancy; it is by accepting the word of faith into our hearts. It is by believing in and confessing the Lord Jesus, and his resurrection from the dead. These grand facts of the gospel insure and pledge to us the promised salvation.

III. "The coming man" (the desire of all nations for a world-wide Instructor, Deliverer and King) is Jesus. His sermon on the mount gives the platform for the kingdom to come. His pardoning grace to publicans and sinners, and his proposed dominion to secure the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets," commend his loving will to our faith. Ps. 72; 1 Cor. 15: 24–27.

IV. The second advent will not take place according to any ideal theory, but as set forth in "the word of faith," and conformably to the first advent. The resurrection of our dead will conform to that of his risen and glorified humanity. The glory of his person, and his retinue of co-heirs and co-kings will be that of his kingdom seen in the holy mount, and the reward of "the just and the unjust" will accord with this word, which is nigh us, in our hearts, the word of faith that Paul preached; but not according to any transcendental imagination or device of man. Indeed, all who go away up, or away down, or away off, from "the word of faith" on any grand point, are deluded and led astray, and subject to the crushing penalty that awaits "the unjust." Rev. 22: 18–19. The good Lord is working out his purpose according to one matter-of-fact plan, so that now the hoped-for RE-genesis (regeneration) is confirmed to our faith by the first or past genesis. The resurrection of the just and the glory of the kingdom will be so realized as to fulfill the word, and conform to the memorials of his gracious doings in the past.

There is nothing else that we believe, sustained by such proof and such facts of creation, providence and redemption, as those that confirm this "word of faith." It is most reasonable to believe the love of God toward us. It is a righteous thing to believe, and so become heirs according to promise.

THE SERVICE OF PATIENCE.

Betty was a match-seller. She was brought in her old age to believe in Jesus as her Savior, and from that time thought she never could do enough for him who had washed her sins in his own blood. Ever ready to speak of her Master to all she met, and of unwearied kindness, she was one "who went about doing good," "always abounding in the work of the Lord." But in the midst of her labors she caught cold, and was confined to her bed for days and weeks with rheumatism.

One day a minister called on her. He was surprised to see his old active friend and neighbor so happy in her bed; and said, "I little expected to find you so patient in bed, when you have always led such an active life. It must be a trial to lie there so long."

"Not at all, sir, not at all sir," said Betty; "when I was well I used to hear the Lord say to me daily, Betty, go there; Betty, do this; Betty, do that; and I did it as well as I could. Now I hear him say daily, Betty, lie still and cough."

The poor woman had only "learned in whatsoever state she was therewith to be content;" her homely words showed that she understood the service of patience.

GOOD ADVICE.—Bishop Thomson recently gave the following excellent advice to a class of young preachers: In regard to speaking "too long and too loud," perhaps the error of the present day lies in the opposite direction. You must speak loud enough to be heard, and long enough to make an impression. Be industrious Methodist preachers. Not wasting time, not lounging on dry-goods boxes, or in stores; neither depending on genius. He who is diligent in the work of God, will succeed, whether he have genius or not. "I," said the Bishop, "was, the other day, in company with the father of Gen. Grant. I asked him what was the reason of his son's wonderful success. Said the old man, 'He has no special genius, but he is of untiring industry. He is always at work.' So it should be with ministers."

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite for a minister to make the pulpit an advertising medium, even if tickets to an exhibition are presented to himself and family.

It is not polite for school teachers to show partiality to their scholars, or manifest an overbearing and tyrannical disposition towards any of their pupils.

It is not polite, if asked a civil question by a stranger in the street, or at your place of business, to give him a short or gruff answer.

It is not polite, if a gentleman in the cars rises to give his seat to a lady, for her to offer it to a gentleman who may accompany her, with the expectation that another will rise.

It is not polite to hang about stores, offices, or depots, where you have no business to transact.

It is not polite to get offended with a person who does not choose to patronize the society or the object you represent.

It is not polite to suffer yourself to be prejudiced against another, because some enemy may have spoken disparagingly of him. There are those full of prejudice against most worthy people, solely because they have heard adverse reports, circulated by the evil-minded and the slanderer.

It is not polite to stand at the doors of your shop, or on the sidewalk, and invite the passes by to walk in and purchase. People know what they want without your aid.

It is not polite when a trader charges you a certain amount for an article, to lay down a less sum, even if a copper or two only be lacking.

It is not polite to subscribe to a benevolent cause, and never pay your subscription.

It is not polite to take a wet umbrella in the cars, and hold it in a position to drip on a neighbor.

It is not polite to request another to purchase an article for you, and then refuse to take it.

It is not polite to wait upon a well-dressed customer, who has just entered your store, to the neglect of one who may be poor, or too modest to thrust himself forward, and who has been patiently waiting for his turn.

It is not polite to stop a vehicle on the cross-walk, where ladies and gentlemen are constantly passing.

It is not pollte to speak in a manner that may wound the heart of a child. Persons are often at fault, in the presence of the diffident, in making remarks that touch most keenly the sensitive heart.

It is not polite to perform any unnecessary work, or go on excursions of pleasure on the Sabbath.

It is not polite, when sitting in a car, an omnibus, or a pew, to place your feet upon the cushions.

It is not polite to keep your seat in a car, when an aged person, or a person lame or deformed, is obliged to stand.

— When you come to the other side of the water, and have set your foot on the shore of glorious eternity, and look back again to the waters and to your wearisome journey, and shall see in that clear glass of endless glory nearer to the bottom of God's wisdom, you shall then be forced to say, "If God had done otherwise with me than he has done, I had never come to the enjoyment of this crown of glory."

PRAYING AND WORKING.

I like that saying of Martin Luther when he says, "I have so much business to do to-day, that I shall not be able to get through it with less than three hours' prayer." Now, most people would say, "I have so much business to do to-day that I can have only three minute's prayer; I cannot afford the time." But Luther thought that the more he had to do the more he must pray, or else he could not get through it. That is a blessed kind of logic: may we understand it! "Praying and provender hinder no man's journey." If we have to stop to pray, it is no more a hindrance than when the rider has to stop at the farrier's to have his horse's shoe fastened; for if he went on without attending to that, it may be that ere long he would come to a stop of a far more serious kind.—C. H. Spurgeon.

TO CLEAR A ROOM OF MOSQUITOES.—A writer in a South Carolina paper says: "I have tried the following, and find it works like a charm. Take of gum camphor a piece about one third the size of an egg, and evaporate it by placing it in a tin vessel, holding it over a lamp or candle, taking care that it does not ignite. The smoke will soon fill the room, and expel the mosquitoes. One night I was terribly annoyed by them, when I thought of and tried the above, after which I never saw nor heard them that night, and next morning there was not one to be found in the room, though the window had been left open all night.

FINDING JESUS.

A poor colored woman in New York died, leaving four orphan children, with no one to care for them but God. A neighbor who had no children of her own took them all to her own house, and did every thing she could for them. She sent them all to school, and went out every day to work to earn money to buy them clothes and books. When they were old enough, she procured good places for them, and taught them how to perform well the duties of servants. She did all this for their bodies, without any thought of their souls.

Maria, the oldest of these children, had a home in a christian family, who felt anxious that she should make Jesus her friend. But all was dark within, and she could not understand how to come to the dear Savior. She could not see that she had only to open her heart, and invite him to enter in. The good aunty who had brought her up with so much care was taken severely ill, and seemed near death; and her heart, too, had no hope and no light. Maria was in great distress. In addition to her anxiety for herself, she felt a care she had never before known, both for the body and soul of her mother-friend. She came to her mistress, Mrs. Baker, crying bitterly.

"Will you not tell her the way to Jesus?" she said. "Will you not pray for her?"

"You go to Jesus, and tell him how troubled you are, Maria; and he will hear you."

But Maria could not find Jesus. "It is all dark," she said. "I try all the time to find him; but I can't."

So week after week passed, and still the poor girl and her aunty were under the cloud. Maria had left her place to take care of her aunty, and Mrs. Baker saw her but seldom. One morning, however, as she went in to inquire about them, Maria met her with a face radiant with joy.

"Why, Maria!" was all her mistress could say.

"Oh, I have found him!—I have found Jesus! Oh, I want aunty to find him too!" she exclaimed.

"You must ask him to come to her."

"I do: I keep asking him all the time. When people are here talking around me, I don't hear what they say, I want so much to have him here."

"But tell me, Maria, when did Jesus come to you?"

"Last Wednesday. Oh, I was so discouraged! I had asked him ever so many times, and I thought I must give up. I went to bed Tuesday night; but I could'nt sleep. I could only say, 'Come, Jesus! come, Jesus!' In the morning, I got aunty's breakfast; and then I went into the bed-room and kneeled down, but I couldn't say one word. I thought I must die, and go to hell. But then these words came into my mind:—

'Trust simply to my word,' He said,
 'And leave the rest to me.'

"It seemed as if Jesus whispered those words to me. I couldn't speak; but joy filled my heart. I could only sob, and cry, 'O Jesus! O Jesus!' I wanted to call out, and tell aunty I had found him; but I couldn't say a word. I could only love him, and give him all my heart."

"And, when you tell your poor aunty about this, what does she say?"

"'I wish I could find him too;' that is all."

Mrs. Baker kneeled down by the side of the sick woman, and asked the dear Savior to reveal himself again in that lowly home to this other seeking, sorrowing soul; and then she whispered to Maria to pray too. She did not hesitate a moment, but, in a low voice and earnest manner, poured out her heart before the Lord. "O Lord!" she said, "I thank thee that I may come to thee, and that I may tell thee all I want. I am a great sinner. I have a very wicked heart, and very bad feelings to a great many people; but Jesus has taken away this sinful heart. I thank thee, dear Jesus. And now please to come to aunty, and show her the love thou hast shown to me. Do, dear Jesus, come now. Do fill her heart with joy as thou hast mine. Dear Jesus, do come; do not wait. do come now, and show aunty the way. And please bless my sister, who has come almost to thee, and has turned back; and my other sister, who does not want to come; and my little sister. Oh! show them all thy love. And please show thy great love to all the poor people in the city, and to all the poor people in the whole world. And please bless the dear friends who have brought me to thee; and please fill the whole world with thy love, dear Jesus. Amen."

It was not long before Maria's prayer was answered, and her aunty, too, was rejoicing in Jesus' love. Oh, how happy they now were! for there is nothing in the world can give such joy as to find Jesus, the Savior of the soul.—The Freedman.

BAD BOOKS.—Bad books are like ardent spirits; they furnish neither aliment nor medicine; they are poison. Both intoxicate—one the mind, the other the body. The thirst for each increases by being fed, and is never satisfied. Both ruin—one the intellect, and the other the health—and together, the soul. The makers and venders of each are equally guilty, and equally corrupters of the community; and the safe-guard against each is the same—total abstinence from all that intoxicates mind or body.

"I AM."

God calls himself I AM, leaving a blank, which each soul may fill out with that which is most precious to himself.

Perfect weakness, Lord, are we,
Say, O whither shall we flee?
Father, say'st thou unto me
I am thy Strength?

Full of wickedness and sin,
Savior, canst thou make us clean?
Yes, for I have ever been Thy Righteousness.

Weary of the care and strife
With which all the world is rife,
Say, thou Lord of light and life,
I am thy Rest.

Father, the storm beats wildly. See!
Must all its rage be spent on me?
No, I have made myself to be Thy Refuge sure.

Content, then, dearest Lord, we'll be,
Since we can find our all in thee,
And be thou ever unto me
My All in All.

"ONE EVENT UNTO ALL."
Eccl. 9: 3.

A friend writes me, complaining that the whole sentence is not quoted when Eccl. 9: 5 is used to prove the unconscious state of the dead, which if quoted entire, he thinks, would only prove that they did not "know anything under the sun." Very well, suppose we admit it; then how about Samuel and the witch of Endor (1 Sam. 28: 12, 13); will he say that was in the night, consequently "Samuel" was above the sun? How about "Moses in the mount"; the thief "in paradise"; the rich man "in hades" and his five brethren; the "spirits in prison"; the "souls under the altar," and John's "fellow servant"? How about the spirits of the dead being angels, and becoming ministering spirits to those who shall be heirs of salvation? If the dead do "not know anything under the sun," how about their having been permitted to return, and just now are hovering over us and impressing us with ideas of peace and consolation, and "if they could only speak" they would say to us, "Do not weep for me, for I have had more peace, joy and happiness since I died, than in all my life put together"? How about their sympathizing with us in all our sorrows, afflictions, griefs and adversities? How about their communicating to and communing with us, and being guardian angels over us? Not a spiritist, oh no! of course you are not. You are only foster-father or mother of, and foster-brother or sister to, all the members of that family, who, nevertheless, are legitimate children of the same parent-stock, back to which you trace your origin genealogically. You ought to be a spiritist though, in order to be consistent; and I fancy if it were not for the origin from which they sprung, you would not be so backward in acknowledging your "country cousins." Never mind, a quarter of a century hence (or sooner) they will have become a little more popularized and fashionable, and then you can own and ask them home with you, without bringing any blush to your cheek.

You discover by this time, perhaps, that it does not help your view of the question at all, to put in the words "under the sun"; nor does it change the meaning in the least to leave them out. Let us examine the context fully. Solomon begins by saying in verse 2, "All things come alike to all; there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not: as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath." Then in verse 3, he says particularly of that "one event," that it specially is an evil among all things that are done under the sun; thus, "This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all; yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead." Shall we say "go to the dead under the sun"? No, no; that evidently will not be a good reading; but it would do to say that "madness is in their heart while they live under the sun; and after that they have lived under the sun, then they go to the dead."

Now this "going to the dead" being "cut off out of the land of the living" (Isa. 53: 8), was the "one event" which Solomon deplored as an evil of great magnitude under the sun; for he said truly, "The light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun; but if a man live many years [under the sun], and rejoice in them all; yet let him remember the days of darkness; for they shall [future tense] be many." Darkness comes after the sun has gone down and night has supervened, during which whatever does or does not transpire is not "under the sun"; and just so of life and death; the one being likened to the light of the sun (life), and the other to the darkness of night (death). So the old hymn,

"The day is past and gone,
The evening shades appear;
O may we all remember well
The night of death draws near."

"For to him that is joined to [i. e., connected with] all the living [under the sun], there is hope; for a living dog is better than a dead lion"; i. e., it is better to be a dog and be alive, than to be a lion and be dead; and then Solomon gives the reason for making such a declaration: "For the living know [something; well, what? how much do the living that are under the sun know? Why,] that they shall die"; i. e., sometime, but they hope not to die soon; "for the living" while living "know" something, but the living when dead "know not anything." "For the living know that they shall die; but the dead know anything, neither have they any more a reward [in anything that is done under the sun]; for the memory of them is forgotten" by all that are still under the sun, or, by all the yet living with whom they were connected when they too were living.

But unfortunately for a certain class, who think they will "know more" when they are dead than they now do in life (and it is a most unfortunate thing for them, if not for the world, that their expectations shall not be realized); Solomon proceeds to say of the dead, "Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun." Now you will please notice particularly he does not say there love, i. e., the love that was had for them by the living in that place under the sun; but their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; because they who possessed this love, hatred or envy, are now dead.

Then Solomon returns from the "land of darkness" to the "land of the living," and says by way of antithesis in relation to the dead to the living, "neither have they [the dead] any more a portion forever in any thing that is done [as they did have when living] under the sun." Wherefore, "Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest, all the days of the life of thy vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun; . . . for that is thy portion in life, and in thy labor which thou takest under the sun." Therefore, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest." By quoting the whole sentence, we do find that living men do not know much, and dead men know less.

Be advised, and do not try to torture yourself, or the text either, by trying to get wise beyond or above what "is written."

For the World's Crisis.

"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES."
John 5: 29.

Search the Scriptures, and you will find no immortal-soul doctrine taught in the Bible.

(Concluded.)

But we will search the Scriptures further. In Matt. 25: 41, we read the wicked shall go away "into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels"; and in Rev. 20: 10, "into the lake of fire and brimstone." Upon these passages all are agreed that they mean one and the same thing. The last quoted passage proves that the lake of fire is the place prepared for the devil and his angels, because, during judgment, we find him and all whose names are not written in the book of life, in the lake of fire. Here, then, we have the wicked with the devil in the everlasting fire, to be punished; and verse 14 tells us the nature and name of the punishment, saying, "This is the second death." Fire causes death, but never preserves life. Paul speaks about the doom of the wicked, and says concerning the time of it, that it shall be when "Jesus shall be revealed from heaven." In the next place he mentions fire, then punishment; and then declares that "they [the wicked] shall be punished with everlasting"—does he say punishment? No. He says, they "shall be punished with everlasting destruction."—2 Thess. 1: 8–9. Destruction dissolves itself in death; hence what in Revelation is termed "the second death," is by Paul termed "everlasting destruction."

In Matt. 3: 12, the wicked are compared to chaff, and in 13: 30 to tares, to be burned. Now I ask, do these passages, which are some of the very strongest on the subjects of everlasting life in torment, favor the idea of endless life in torment? or do they teach death by absolute destruction, as the punishment of the wicked? From the above quoted passages, with some others, it is inferred that the wicked shall live for ever in torment, though not a word is said in any of them that the wicked shall or will live after they are consigned to their doom. Here, then, is only inference to prove that the wicked shall live for ever in torment; which, if correct, must be substantiated by some plain, positive passage; yet that can not be done. And more than this. I will now show you what the Bible says about the wicked, and with plain, positive passages prove that the above inference, that the wicked shall live in endless misery, is incorrect. Job says, "The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction."—Job 21: 30. David says of the wicked, "They shall consume, into smoke shall they consume away."—Ps. 37: 20. Again, in Ps. 92: 7, David declares that the wicked flourish to "be destroyed for ever." In Ezek. 18: 4, we read, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Now having the plain declaration of the Lord, as plain as language can make it, that the wicked shall be destroyed, burned up, consumed, die, not only the first but the second death; why then contend that they shall live forever in endless torment, on the only ground of being cast into everlasting fire; when at the same time we know that no language could be used to make it more certain that a thing would be destroyed, than to cast it into the fire?

The believer shall have everlasting life for his reward; but the unbeliever shall not see life; and as punishment for his unbelief be destroyed by "the second death"; hence unbelief is the "sin unto death."—1 John 5: 16. This is the case concerning original as well as actual sin. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die," is the declaration of God's truth, take it in whatever sense we will. The punishment of original and actual sin differs in this: from the first is redemption through Christ, who "hath brought life and immortality to light"; but from "the second death," as the penalty for actual sin, there is no redemption, for the Lord declares of them, "They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise."—Isa. 26: 14.

Thus, by searching the Scriptures, we find that the wicked shall be destroyed, but that the righteous shall enjoy eternal life; for Christ says, "I give unto them eternal life." But why and how give eternal life, if the soul were immortal, and could not die even in a lake that burneth with fire and brimstone? Here is an inconsistency. Either Christ can not give eternal life at his coming, or the immortal-soul doctrine must be incorrect. Now, what is to be done? Our only remedy is to search the Scriptures. The question of the young lawyer—"What . . . shall I do that I may have eternal life?" does not appear as if the principal part of him had been immortal already. How is it that the righteous, at the day of judgment, shall go into life eternal, if the soul is immortal and cannot do anything else but live forever?

Without referring to particular passages, if we consider the certainty that we all must die, and that death is a state of inactivity and insensibility; that Christ at his coming will raise them from the dead, and give unto them eternal life; can we possibly come to the conclusion that man has an immortal soul, that must live for ever either in happiness or misery, when the Bible does not tell us a word about an immortal soul? The doctrine of immortality through Christ, by the resurrection from the dead, is a plain, simple truth, taught in the Bible, and can be substantiated by any amount of proof; but the doctrine that the soul is immortal, living whilst the body is dead, is based on mere inference, and that from passages that will admit of a different interpretation, generally stronger on destruction than on the immortality of the soul.

Paul says, "The first man Adam was made a living soul." David prayed the Lord for such living souls as Adam, to deliver their souls from death, and to keep them alive in famine. Ps. 33: 19. Now if the soul were immortal, it would be rather inconsistent to pray that the soul might be kept alive. "Let my soul live," says David, "and it shall praise thee."—Ps. 119: 175. But how is immortality obtained, if all are doomed to die? Paul says (Rom. 2: 7) we must "seek for . . immortality." Where must we seek it? Christ says, "Come unto me." Paul says, the second Adam (Christ) "is a quickening [that is, a life-giving] spirit"; hence, Christ says, "I give unto them eternal life." Thus it follows, if we serve the Lord, though we have to die, yet we shall "have everlasting life," not because we have an immortal soul, but because we through Christ shall be raised to a new life.

As the first death is not the end of man's destination, according to the purpose of God, but that he shall afterwards be judged, for we read, "It is appointed unto men once to die, and after this the judgment"; hence the wicked must be raised as well as the righteous, in order to be rewarded according to their deeds done in the body. Now, if we ask, Why are the wicked raised? theology would answer, To be punished with everlasting punishment. If we ask, In what does the punishment of the wicked consist? it is answered, Of everlasting life in torment; or, to make it stronger they say, endless life in misery. But if we search the Scriptures, they tell us that the punishment of the wicked is everlasting, because there is no redemption from it; but ask, What is the nature of their punishment? and Scripture declares as positively as words can make it, that it is death, and not life. Besides this positive declaration, that the punishment of the wicked is death, all the various expressions made use of, such as, "destroyed," "consumed," "burned up," "cut off," "made an end of," "devoured," etc., indicate the death of the wicked as their final doom.

Again, life cannot possibly survive, or outlive destruction; and yet Paul positively declares that the disobedient "shall be punished with everlasting destruction." All the figurative language, such as "flaming fire," "fiery indignation," "everlasting fire," "unquenchable fire," not leaving either "root nor branch," etc., denote death by destruction, rather than life in misery.

But the question might be raised, Why are the wicked to come forth from the grave, if they shall not live for ever? Yes, and I ask, Why call the body forth from the grave, if the soul is immortal, and could be punished for thousands of years in hell, before the resurrection and judgment, at which it is expressly said that all shall be rewarded according to their deeds done in the body.

It is true, the description of the rich man, as it is given, seems to say that sinners, or rather the rich (sinners are not mentioned), would be suffering in hell whilst the body is buried. But no man can reconcile the description of the rich man and Lazarus with Christ's and the apostles' plain teaching throughout the New Testament, if he takes the above passage to prove that the wicked go to a place of torment, and the righteous to a state of happiness immediately after death. If we go back to the Jewish antiquities, and there find that the Jews in ancient times believed that they (the Jews) in death are carried by angels into Abraham's bosom, and the Gentiles go to hell, in their opinion, a subterraneous fire; and then understand the Savior's object to be to show the unbelieving Jews that in regard to his Messiahship, even if their ideas were true about the dead, and one of them would be sent from Abraham's bosom, that they still would not believe; for he further declares, "They have Moses and the prophets"; and, "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead:" hence, if we understand the Savior thus to have taken the peculiar notions of the Jews themselves (as he often has done) to convince them of their stubbornness and unbelief, and let him teach us in plain, unambiguous language when and how the righteous and the wicked are rewarded, we have no trouble to understand him.

Now to the question, Why are the wicked to come forth from their graves, if they are not to live for ever? Scripture answers the question. 1. To be judged, and (2), To be destroyed by "the second death."

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

"There shall be earthquakes in divers places."—MATT. 24: 7.

"The sea and the waves thereof roaring."—LUKE 21: 25.

"Fearful sights and great signs shall there be from heaven."—LUKE 21: 11.

The attention of the world is being forced to the contemplation of very startling phenomena, of late, in the shape of earthquakes, tidal waves, etc. Disturbances of the earth, and of the tides of the sea, and of the course of nature, on an unprecedented scale, have been the subject of excited tidings from all quarters of the globe. Editors and scientific men have been led to pronounce upon them as among the most remarkable and extensive of which there is any written record. They have been experienced at short intervals during the past two years, and especially the last four or five months. It is also believed, by those most knowing on the subject, that the last of this cluster of gigantic commotions has not yet been felt. Later and fuller details are continually increasing, and commanding an unusual degree of interest among scientific men.

A secular paper remarks: "In both hemispheres, but especially on this continent, and among the adjacent islands, these visitations of tornadoes, floods, and earthquakes, with their tidal waves, and fissures emitting gas, fire, smoke, steam, and boiling water, are becoming alarmingly frequent. Last autumn they had them all in high revelry at St. Thomas and the neighboring islands, and such terrific hurricanes of rattling hail along the southern frontier of Texas as was never known there before, back to the first occupation of the country by the Spaniards. This year the line of operations of these celestial and subterranean phenomena appears to be (with the recurrence of the meteors) along the Pacific side of the continent, and may be traced to the late disastrous convulsions of the dry land and the sea along the western coast of South America. Violent storms follow in the track of earthquakes, and such storms doubtless result from the derangement of the atmospheric equilibrium by the disturbing gases and electrical forces arising from these subterranean outbreaks."

The first of this great, and more recent series of convulsions, so far as our intelligence now extends, occurred in the Sandwich Islands, eleven days before the terrible disaster in Peru. Violent shocks were felt in different parts of the group from the 2d to the 9th of August, accompanied with heavy storms of thunder and lightning. The western coast of South America was devastated by awful earthquakes from the 13th to the 15th of August, and at the same time the shocks were felt again in the Sandwich Islands, though less severely than before. On the 17th there were shocks in New Zealand. About the middle of September shocks were felt by vessels in the Eastern Pacific. On or about the 1st of October they were felt from the 21st to the 25th, with considerable severity, and were repeated slightly up to the 6th of November. On the 23d of October we hear of earthquakes in Ireland. On the 4th of November there was one at Vancouver's Island.

The shocks have followed no particular direction, and been confined to no particular quarter of the earth. Beginning in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, they seem to have affected all its eastern shores and its southern and western islands, and, skipping the whole breadth of the North American Continent and the Atlantic Ocean, to have broken out in Ireland. We may yet learn that the remoter countries of Asia have likewise been shaken.

The tidal waves, which have accompanied all the most serious of these convulsions, are peculiarly interesting subjects of study. It has been remarked, as an evidence of the rapidity with which they travel, that they reached the California coast as early as the morning of the 14th of August, having moved over a distance of four thousand miles in a little more than fourteen hours. But it now appears that their speed is even greater than this, for they were felt in the Sandwich Islands, nearly an equal distance, on the evening of the 13th, only four hours after the earthquake in Peru, lasting through the night, and obtaining their greatest force the next morning, almost simultaneously with their appearance on the opposite California coast. This would give them a velocity of about a thousand miles an hour.

A great tidal wave fell upon Hawaii, one of the Sandwich Islands, on the 15th of October, destroying a great many houses and other property.

Something of the terribleness of these tidal disturbances may be better understood from the letters of eye-witnesses and sufferers. The British Vice Consul at Arica exclaims:

"Gracious God, what a sight! I saw all the vessels in the bay carried out irresistibly to sea (anchors and chains were as pack-thread,) probably with a speed of ten miles an hour. In a few minutes the great outward current stopped, stemmed by a mighty rising wave, I should judge about fifty feet high, which came in with an awful rush, carrying all before it in its terrible majesty, bringing the whole of the shipping with it, sometimes turning in circles, as if striving to elude their fate."

A writer from Lima, says: "I saw the whole surface of the sea rise, as if a mountain side, actually standing up. Another shock, accompanied with a fearful roar, now took place. I called to my companions to run for their lives on to the Pampa. Too late! With a horrid crash the sea was on us, and at one sweep—one terrible sweep—dashed what was Iquique on to the Pampa. I lost my companions, and in an instant was fighting with the dark water. The mighty wave surged, and roared, and leaped. The cries of human beings and animals were dreadful."

The New York Sun of November 19th, expressed itself thus: "Such a universal pother in the bowels of the planet was never known before in human experience. Wicked men of science have, it is true, been profane enough to say that the primeval hell beneath earth's ribs was fast cooling, when it wasn't; and this may have led to the late demonstrations, although one is sorry to attribute vindictive feeling to so august, wise, and venerable a body astronomic.

Certain it is that a great rebellion has taken place for some cause or other, and that the earth has been shaken from centre to circumference. So far from there being any decrease of vigor in the igneous energies, they are more active than ever. Etna, and Vesuvius, and Hecla—that pretty toy of the Icelanders—are henceforth to be set down as among the prettiest fireworks of the creation, and have been completely shorn of what used to be the tremendous rock-rendings and oceanic fires, which have made the Pacific islands so famous and so terrible. All over the globe, as by a general conspiracy and premeditated simultaneous movement, there has been a regular Walpurgis hellabaloo, and fiery dance of destruction and death. Vesuvius and the Tahitian volcanoes roared to each other at the same moment in voices of primeval thunder, across the immeasurable brine, which writhed with a new and unheard-of agony, wrecking great ships in its wrath, and swallowing their ruins like so many grains of sand."

On the 8th of December a fresh eruption of Etna broke out. The mountain became enveloped in smoke, and exploded at times with deafening detonations. The streams of lava swept over the surrounding country, and the ashes from the crater were blown into the streets of Messina.

On the 12th of December, the ship Isaac Jans, from Port Townsend, when a few days out from Acapulco, encountered three fearful tidal waves, filling all aboard with consternation. If the ship had not been with her head on, she would undoubtedly have foundered. Like accounts are multiplying upon us with almost every foreign mail.

Now, it is but natural, right, and wise, for intelligent and thinking men to inquire into the meaning of all these commotions in earth, air, and sea. There is particularly one relation of these things which no man, with the Bible in his hand, should overlook; and that is, that they have been predicted by the inspired writers, and by the Lord Jesus himself, again and again, as the forerunners of the day of judgment. People may laugh and sneer as they please, but God hath spoken on the subject; spoken plainly, spoken repeatedly, and given the assurance that these are the signs by which we are to know that the end of this age is near at hand.

"Earthquakes in divers places," "the sea and the waves thereof roaring," along with other marvelous coincidences, are unmistakably described in the Scriptures as God's warnings of the nearing day of his coming to judge the earth. Nothing can well be more positive and definite than that fearful irregularities in the realm of nature are to herald the "day of the Lord;" and that Christ's coming will transpire in a time specially marked by startling occurrences. Nor does it alter the nature of the case, to allege, that there have been earthquakes, storms and commotions of the sea and sky in other ages, or that they may be accounted for on natural principles. God knew what nature is, and by what laws she is governed, when he pointed to manifestations in her economy for indications of the fulfillment of his purposes. And when, as now, the most intelligent investigators and observers, by figures and dates of history, prove to us that "these upheavings of the earth are greatly increasing in number and violence," and assuming a character of universality and terribleness never known to have been heretofore, there certainly is just reason to begin to conclude that He who made these predictions knew something about them, and that the great events with which he has connected them as the harbingers, are really not far off.

The day, the month, the year, we may not know: but the signs we may know, and see and feel. And "when these things begin to come to pass," the command of the Saviour to His people is, that they draw from them certain conclusions, and "know that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke 21: 31.

"And yet," writes one of our correspondents, "the great mass of mankind are utterly regardless of all the solemn warnings which these upheavings of the earth are thundering into our ears. There are scoffers who mockingly exclaim, 'Where is the promise of his coming, for all things continue as they were from the beginning?'" The church abounds with evil servants, who say in their hearts, my Lord delayeth his coming, and are smiting their fellow servants, and are eating and drinking with the drunken. Learned doctors, acknowledging the frequency and terribleness of these visitations of God, yet refer to them as capital jokes, and fit subjects for witticism. Many mockingly allude to 'the shaky condition of the globe,' and make light of these awfully solemn things. Though the Almighty has given it as a sign of his advent, that "there shall be earthquakes in divers places," and even secular men, caring but little for what Christ in his word has said, are being moved by what is occurring, yet there are those who call themselves christians, who can close their eyes, and pass it all as a matter of unmeaning merriment. Alas! alas!

"But whatever careless and worldly-minded christians may say and do, in regard to these mysterious doings of God, if we love the Lord Jesus Christ, and desire his coming, and believe that he has given us any sign by which to know that his coming is near, these late terrible 'earthquakes in divers places,' must be viewed as signs that the day is at hand. Blessed, also, is he that will regard them as the noise of the chariot wheels of the coming King. Our duty is to watch and pray, knowing that soon he that has promised to come, will come, and will not tarry. For he will surely come. He has promised to come. God has said that he will come. Angels have come from heaven to give assurance that he will come. The Holy Ghost in the hearts of prophets and apostles has taught that he will come. And everything in and around us augurs that his coming is near. Let men take warning, and be prepared to meet their God."—Prophetic Times.

DEFILEMENT.

The inspired word declares, "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." To indulge in the habit of using as a beverage cider, ale or wine, or fermented liquors of any kind, are they not all defiling? To indulge in smoking or chewing tobacco, taking snuff or opium, are not all these also defiling? Furthermore, is not "eating swine's flesh, and broth of abominable things," also akin to defilement? Isa. 65: 4; 66: 17.

To indulge in the many luxuries of the present day, to gratify an insatiable appetite,—are they not also defiling, when, as Paul says, we are to eat and drink only to the glory of God? Do we heed all these admonitions—the words of Christ's patience, and are we kept in this hour of temptation? Says Paul, "But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection; lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." Furthermore, "And ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and spirit, which is his." 1 Cor. 6: 19, 20.

How can we indulge in costly, superfluous, or vain attire, idle trifling words, vain conversation, in evil speaking, grudges, or even in evil thinking of any one, and not be defiled? Can we surmise evil thoughts or utter evil words against any brother or sister (not first going and telling them their faults), and not be defiled? For to us is the exhortation, "Looking diligently lest any man fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness spring up and trouble you, and thereby many be defiled." Heb. 12: 14, 15.

Again, has any one called our reputation in question, or spoken aught against us, and if we thereby neglect our devotional duties, either in public or private, are we not thus defiled? Shall not the apostle's motto be ours? "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." If we neglect to "follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another," are we not defiled? If we also are conformed to the world, and do not present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, are we not defiled? If we do not "cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God," then shall we not in neglecting this be defiled?

If we do not consecrate all to the Lord, and "do good to all, especially to the household of faith," shall we not be defiled? If we do not administer to the temporal necessities of even the least of Christ's brethren, shall we not thus be defiled? If we are hearers of the word only, and not doers, are we not defiled? If we neglect his commands, shall we be found undefiled, to whom is the plain, unalterable declaration, "And there shall in no wise enter into it [the New Jerusalem] any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life."

Dear brethren and sisters, do we not all wish to have this apply to us? "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." The day of destinies is near at hand. The trying hour is just upon us. Rewards will soon be given. Let us, then, walk circumspectly, redeeming the time, that we may not fail to receive a full reward.

For the World's Crisis.

NO DEVIL—NO BAPTISM—NO TEMPTATION.

"The record" (Matt. 3 and 4) tells us of the baptism and temptation of Jesus. In baptizing there must be a baptizer, one baptized, which together make up the baptism. "John the Baptizer" did baptize. Jesus was here the one baptized, and that made out the baptism here recorded. So much is plain.

Thus "the temptation" embraces the tempter, the devil, satan. "The tempter came to him"—Jesus. . . . "Then the devil leaveth him, and behold, angels came and ministered unto him."

NOTE. If no devil, there was no "tempter." If no tempter, there could have been no temptation, nor one "tempted." Then of course the whole is as a Shaker's dream. And then the birth, baptism, burial, and resurrection of Jesus, floats off into the myths of mysticism, by the same boat.

All the parts must be consistent; all real or all alike unreal. See Rev. 22: 18–19; Isa. 8: 20. Let no one "sacrifice to his own dross." J. B. COOK.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

MORAL PRECEPTS.

38. Importunity in prayer commended.—"Because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me. . . And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him?" Luke 18 5, 7. "Because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth."—Luke 11: 8.

Importunity in prayer condemned.—"But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions as the heathen do; for they think they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be ye not therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him."—Matt. 6: 7, 8.

This proposition is so similar that it scarcely needs a reply. Earnestness and constancy of prayer are commended, while we are admonished not to use "vain repetitions, as the heathen do." The wise man says, "Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thy heart be hasty to utter anything before God, for God is in heaven and thou on the earth, therefore, let thy words be few." Hence we are to approach the Majesty of the skies with becoming reverence; we are to avoid the customs which the heathen adopt in addressing their gods; for an illustration of which please see the worship of Baal, as recorded in 1 Kings 18: 26–29.

39. The wearing of long hair by men sanctioned.—"And no razor shall come on his head; for the child shall be a Nazarite unto God from the womb."—Judg. 13: 5. "All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no razor come upon his head; until the days be fulfilled in which he separateth himself unto the Lord, he shall be holy and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow."—Num 6: 5.

The wearing of long hair by men condemned. "Doth not even nature itself teach you that if a man have long hair it is a shame unto him?"—1 Cor. 11: 14.

This needs only a simple remark to obviate all difficulty. We will state for the information (?) of the skeptic, that many customs and practices, which were sanctioned by the old Mosaic law, passed away and were rendered obsolete by the termination of that dispensation. Hence his quotation from the New Testament of a declaration which was made long after the fulfillment of the law, bears no evidence against the customs of the previous dispensation.

THE SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING commences August 28th, continuing till Sept. 6th. Particulars hereafter.

NEW HARTFORD CAMPMEETING.

We are now (Thursday, June 24th) in the far off woods of Iowa, one hundred and nine miles west of Dubuque. The weather has been rather against us thus far. It is quite wet, and has been for months. As a result, the grass and wheat look well, but the corn is very backward. Much of it has not yet been cultivated at all. The fruit prospect in the west is unusually promising.

Many of the people in this western country are from New England. This makes us feel quite at home among them. We are pleased with their enterprising, earnest, hospitable spirit, which is more manifest in new countries than in those which have been longer settled.

Our meetings to-day have been blessed. The Spirit of the Lord has been working powerfully on a number of hearts. Bro. Wm. Himes is with us, and preached in the P. M. He was heard with interest while speaking on the second coming of Christ. He is a noble young man. A part of the day has been occupied by the sessions of the "Iowa Christian Conference." Bro. F. H. Kinney was chosen President for the ensuing year, and Bro. J. Gildersleve Secretary. The truth is spreading in this state, as the result of the earnest labors of the faithful watchmen in the vineyard of the Lord. There appears to be less bigotry among the western people than in the east; hence it is easier to reach them with the "gospel of the kingdom."

Monday morning, June 28th. The weather continued wet until yesterday afternoon. It rained every day during the week. We never attended a campmeeting before as wet as was this; but most kept in remarkably good cheer, and there was but very little sickness. Tents and bedding became quite wet, but all, so far as we could learn, were glad they came. They felt richly paid in the good they received in the meeting. The meetings of yesterday were excellent. The morning was wet, but about noon it cleared off, and the sun shone upon us with a most cheering aspect. It seemed almost like the dawning of a new world, after being so long deprived of sunlight. It was much like the moral change at the conversion of a sinner. Many were disappointed in not being able to attend the meeting, in consequence of the weather.

A goodly number requested prayers, and we hope to meet them in the kingdom finally. Two were baptized by Bro. Deyo. Last evening we had a pleasant communion season. Bro. Wm. Himes preached on the subject of future punishment, showing that the wages of sin is death, and not eternal life in misery. We do not see how any one can adhere to the Bible and come to any other conclusion; yet many good men do not see this truth, because they have never taken time to give it a careful examination. They suppose their views must be right from the fact that many good persons have believed and preached it for centuries. They seem to have more confidence in the opinions of distinguished men, than in their own reading of the Scriptures. It is encouraging to see people beginning to read and think for themselves.

The general expression of those who spoke in the meetings the last day was to the effect that, by the help of the Lord, they were going to live better than ever. Several resolved to reform in their physical habits, and quit the use of whiskey and tobacco, tea and coffee, high-seasoned food, and all rich living; and from henceforth eat and drink to the glory of God. This will prove a great help to their spiritual growth; and they will find it much easier to resist the temptations of Satan.

"PAST RECOVERY."

There is quite a stir among the ministers of the Episcopal church. For sometime past, several of their leading men have been drifting into the forms and ceremonies of the Roman Catholic Church. This has been carried so far, that a convention was called in Chicago, June 16th, to take measures to correct the evil, and to utter an earnest protest against such things. Those who called the convention speak of the present state of things in that church as an "alarming crisis." One of their number says:—"We are, as I apprehend, in a state of revolution." Another says:—

"Thirty years' membership in this church has thoroughly convinced me that our church, as it is, is a failure and past recovery, without a thorough reconstruction. Our formularies are teaching constantly a false Protestantism—while building with one hand we are pulling down with the other. The weeds grow faster in our garden than the good fruit."

Says another:—"Protest? Yes! every time, and a thousand times if necessary. What else can we do? How can we hold up our heads with a church that admits everything and believes everything, and leans to everything that is Popish, and hates nothing so much as the simple truths dear to the children of God, without a protest?"

There is much theological confusion at the present day in nearly all the evangelical denominations. They present a dark picture.

THE SPIRITUALIST'S GOD.

When people reject God and his word, as the spirits teach men to do, the wild theories and fables they are left to adopt are truly startling. Satan leads them as far as he can from the truth, and at the same time endeavors to make them believe they are all right.

The following from the Banner of Light of July 11th, 1868, gives some questions to the spirits, and their answers relative to the God they would have us accept:—

"Q.—It is said in the Bible that man is made in the image of God. Please tell us what that image is.

A. He is made in the image of everything that ever was, that is, or that ever shall be. He holds within his calibre everything that exists, that ever has existed, or that ever will exist. Now God is included in this. If he exists at all he exists everywhere, (and we have taken in everything), every place, every time, every condition. I believe that the human stands above all things else, and holds within its embrace all the past, present and future. In this sense he is created and exists in the image of God.

Q. What is God essentially?

A. Everything. Essentially you are God, I am God—the flowers, the grass, the pebbles, the stars, the moon, the sun, everything is God."

The world is fast drifting into practical atheism. As Paul said, "Even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind." If they will not believe the truth, they must of necessity take the opposite, which would be a lie. The one who rejects the truth, and adopts a lie instead, may easily become a deceiver and liar himself. Hence Paul says of this class: they speak "lies in hypocrisy," "deceiving and being deceived. While they are deceiving others, they are being deceived themselves by the demons.

It is all important that we love the truth—"buy" it "and sell it not." A person must have a real love for the truth to be a true christian. If he loves a good name more, or any other worldly object, it cannot be expected that such an one will ever shine very brightly in the service of the Lord. The Lord will finally reject those who do not love his word. The cause lies further back. It is this: When we do wrong, and will not repent, we grieve away the Spirit of God. When that is grieved away, that which causes us to love the truth of the Bible is gone from us. The less we have of the Holy Spirit, the less we care about the Holy Scriptures.

A FACT.

It is a fact that we never find in the Bible the words "eternal, everlasting, immortal, never-dying, endless," or their equivalents, applied to soul or spirit, as a part of man. Neither are these qualifying words ever applied to the original Hebrew and Greek words—nephesh and psukee, for soul, ruach and pneuma, for spirit. The natural inquiry is, why not, if it is proper to say that man has an immortal soul or spirit? Who can tell why we do not find a single word in the whole Bible concerning an immortal, accountable personality in man? We find the heathen believing and teaching it, but not the Bible writers. What shall we do with these facts? We know of nothing better than to believe them.

"THE T. C. I. O."

There is an increasing interest connected with the "T. C. I. O." society. Its secrets are known only to its members; but its object is declared with boldness. The people of this country seem to be about ripe for almost any revolution, They are uneasy, chaffing, and plotting all sorts of schemes, for the purpose of providing a remedy for the growing political, social and moral evils. There is no ground to hope for a better state of things till Jesus comes to reign in glory.

The following is from the Imperialist, the organ of the "T. C. I. O" society:—

THE T. C. I. O.

The following letter is a fair sample of many that are daily sent us from all parts of the country:—

"BALTIMORE, April 30, 1869.

To the Imperial Publishing Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I see that you publish in the Imperialist the 'Official Gazette' of an organization known as the T. C. I. O. If the object of this society be to secure the establishment of an Imperial government in the United States, there are a number of my friends who are prepared to join it with me. I should therefore be under great obligations to you if you would inform me how and when I can apply for membership. Among my friends are many who would heartily co-operate with any society organized for such a purpose. I shall, of course, regard all such information as strictly private and confidential.

Yours, etc., ———."

We should be pleased to answer all such letters singly, but as our correspondence is already too large to admit of our undertaking the task, we are compelled to classify our letters and respond to them in a general way through the columns of this journal.

We presume that the writer of the above letter addresses us in good faith, and is really desirous of obtaining the information he seeks, for the reason specified. We know there are many who would gladly unite with any organization having for its object the advancement of the Imperial cause in the United States, and, if it were possible, we would gladly afford such persons every facility of uniting with the T. C. I. O. That we can only do so indirectly, however, must be evident to any one who for a moment reflects on the uncertainty attending the transmission of letters by mail, and the danger, in case they contain any information of value, of their falling into the hands of those who would make an improper use of such information. As we have no personal knowledge of those who address us letters of inquiry like the above, the reasons for our declining to forward the desired information must be apparent to all.

The relation existing between the Imperialist and the T. C. I. O. is precisely similar to that existing between a Masonic journal and the Masonic fraternity. As far as possible, they represent and are the recognized organs of the craft, but they are not Masonry, nor do they control the order. The same may be said of the Imperialist. Though recognized as the official publication of the T. C. I. O., we are not the order nor do we control it in any respect. Beyond the few facts already generally known, we are neither authorized nor disposed to publish any information concerning the organization.

The T. C. I. O. is a secret, political and social order. Its object and purpose is to secure the establishment of a strong central government in the United States that shall secure peace and prosperity to the country, protect the rights of our national creditors, and reorganize society on a basis that shall admit of no equality but that of equal responsibility to and protection under the law. It is not an armed military organization, nor are its members pledged to anything which the constitution of the present government defines as treason. It contemplates no revolution other than that which can be accomplished through the pressure of powerful moral influences, If, however, the control of our national affairs should suddenly pass from the hands of the many, and one strong-minded intelligent man should declare himself "the government," the revolution would have been accomplished, and the T. C. I O. would owe no other allegiance than that demanded by the crown. Further than this we can make no disclosures, even though the motives of our correspondence were fully known to us, and their faith assured to us by something more substantial than a promise.

Extreme caution is at all times demanded in the management of important secret organizations, and the T. C. I. O. is no exception to the rule The rapidity with which this order has increased, and the secresy which, until lately, has been preserved with regard to it, is owing to the fact that existing secret political organizations have afforded extraordinary facilities for its extension throughout the United States. It is to popularize the ideas already so extensively promulgated that the Imperialist is published, and with no other object or purpose on the part of its conductors. We would have it distinctly understood, therefore, that we represent the T. C. I. O. in no other sense than that of being its accredited organ, and we are authorized to pursue no other course than that already adopted by us towards those who wish to unite with it. We trust this reply will be fully satisfactory to our correspondents, and that they will not expect us to betray the confidence reposed in us by furnishing them the information they desire.

OMENS.

The following is copied from one of our exchanges:—

"The Grand Army of the Republic has not hitherto attracted much attention, notwithstanding the evil nature of its organization, because it has not up to a late period shown any evil disposition. But now that it is charged with Imperialistic tendencies, and is perceived to be actively at work collecting together a large amount of money for unavowed purposes, it is high time that the people should wake up and examine into the character and proceedings of the association, and ascertain whether we are nourishing a viper in our bosom.

The organization is pernicious in its constitution, because it has three distinctive characteristics which should never be found belonging together to any one body of men; nor should any two of them be so found. First, it is a military body; it is commanded by a Major General, is officered by Colonels, Captains, etc., and styles its societies in military parlance 'Posts.' Second, it is a political body, being entirely composed of members of the Republican party, with not a solitary Democrat in its ranks. Third, it is a secret society, with grips, passwords and signs.

Now, we hazard nothing in saying that it is contrary to the spirit of our institutions and to the enlightened sentiment of our people that we should have among us either secret political, secret military, political military, or military political associations; how much more dangerous to our welfare then, must be the existence in our midst of a secret political military organization, which, under the control of corrupt politicians, may become a potential engine in uprooting the institutions of our country and destroying the liberties of the people. That this danger is real is sufficiently shown by the apprehensions that have been excited by the statement that this hydra-headed association, aided by that other abortion, the Union League, is secretly working for the establishment of an empire.

Englishman's Greek Concordance.

This work is valuable to all Bible students, and should be in the hands of every minister of the gospel. Notwithstanding its value, many know nothing about it. For their good we copy the following from an exchange:—

"It enables one who has the least acquaintance with Greek to find every Greek word in the New Testament, in every passage in which it occurs, together with the rendering given it in the common English version. A proper use of it would save many a would-be critic from exposing his ignorance of Greek, while it would enable many a diligent searcher after truth to reach conclusions which, without it, are beyond his reach. No man should ever feel sure that he has the correct rendering of a word in the New Testament until he has examined it carefully throughout the book; nor should any man who expects any aid from the Greek, continue without this Concordance a single day longer than necessary."

In Crisis of June 23d, in article "Philosophy and Vain Deceit," next to the last paragraph, read voids instead of "words."

THE HYMNS OF THE JUBILEE HARP.

For the convenience of those who wish to carry the hymns in their pockets, we have had a lot bound with flexible covers, the margins of the pages being trimmed close to the printed matter, making it very convenient for the pocket,—the most complete hymn book in use among us. Price 75 cts. per copy, postage 12 cts; $7.00 per dozen by express. AG'T.

NOW READY.

The Scriptural Question Book, for families and Sunday Schools, which has been out of print for some time past, is now ready. Price, single copy, by mail, 15 cts. $1.25 per dozen by express. $1.65 by mail. AG'T.

NEW TRACT.

The Resurrection of the Wicked Dead, by L. C. Collins. A good tract on this subject. Price, by mail, 4 cts. single copy; 20 cts. per dozen; $1.00 per hundred. AG'T.

BOOK MARKS.

Some of our brethren have inquired where they could get these little pointers,— for book marks to stick on the leaves of their Bibles, to point to the passage they want to refer to. For the accommodation of all such, we have some for sale at this office. Price, a card of twelve for 25 cents. AG'T.

THE TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held at the National Campmeeting, Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28th, 1868, the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That we raise TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year.

Resolved, That our preaching brethren be, and hereby are, requested to act as Agents in this good work, to solicit contributions to the Tract Fund, as often at least as once in every quarter, and forward the same to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, BOSTON, MASS.

BETHEL CHURCH, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

BRO. GRANT:—The Bethel Church in Springfield have secured the labors of Bro. Wm. N. Pile, of Newark, N. J., and he has moved to this city, and will preach half of the time for them. We feel pleased that we have secured the services of one so competent to expound the word of God, and who has had experience in the christian warfare. Although young in years, he is devoted wholly to the great work of saving souls from the wrath to come. He is not a bigot, nor a one-sided man, but urges holiness of heart and free salvation.

The church numbers about one hundred and fifty members, and we have an average congregation of two hundred and seventy-five to three hundred, and a good Sabbath school of about one hundred scholars. We are told we are exerting a good, healthy influence in this place, and trust we shall be instruments in the hands of God in opening the eyes of the spiritually blind to see the great and glorious truth of the Lord's speedy advent.

Our church is open and free for all to join who sustain a good christian character, irrespective of sectarian creeds or different theological views. Our pulpit has been and is still free for all that love the Lord and sustain a Bible reputation: and we find by past experience that the only way to obtain a progressive christian church is not to place constraint upon the ministry. As a whole, we are a prophetic people, living in a progressive age of the world, and God's word will be all understood by his church before he comes.

Yours, waiting for redemption,

THE "T. C. I. O."

BRO. GRANT:—I see you request a solution of the mystery of the initials, "T. C. I. O.," which are employed by the society sustaining the Imperialist. As soon as I read your request, I undertook to detect, if possible, the meaning of these cabalistic capitals. My conclusion is this: they are the initials of certain Latin words, expressing the enormous aspirations or preiensions of those who originated, and who engineer this organization. I do not regard any high-sounding phrase as exceeding the measure of the designs and ambition of those who shall engage to promote and perfect the last great confederation of evil. Of course, my conjecture, or solution, may be incorrect; but I herewith submit it for your consideration.

EXPLANATION OF THE INITIALS "T. C. I. O."

Terrestre Celeste Imperium Orbis, or, Terrestrial Celestial Empire of the Universe. This may be varied a little thus: Totius Celeste Imperium Orbis—Celestial Empire of the Whole World. In place of Celeste, may possibly be substituted Catholicum; and your readers can see how the phrase will then run. I am quite inclined to think this explanation is not far from correct, but perhaps some brother may have a different one; and if so, I shall be happy to see it.

Yours very truly, C. COLEGROVE.

"BE YE ALSO READY."

Reader, there is a solemn day just before us, a description of which we may read in the following language: "The great day of the Lord is near, it is near and hasteth greatly. The mighty men shall cry there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness. A day of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities and against the high tower. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the Lord, and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as the dung. Neither their silver nor gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of the Lord's wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy; for he shall make even a speedy riddance of all them that dwell in the land."

O, what a day that will be! Never has this world seen such a day. Little does the world realize that such a day is soon to burst with all its terror upon these scenes of sin and wickedness. Truly the world is asleep. The awful time approaches, but the world heeds it not. Signs thicken day by day. Wickedness increases. Love waxes cold. Faith is waning. Crime abounding. The clouds look more portentous. The war cry is heard on every hand, but still men high in office are crying "Peace, peace." O how blinded! What surprise and terror will seize them when suddenly that awful day will break upon them.

That terrible day so long foretold by ancient prophets is surely at hand. The angels in heaven are all ready to commence the great harvest. Soon it will be said, "Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great." Multitudes are truly in the "valley of decision," and the majority are deciding against God and his truth; and just now the great day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision. What a scene that will be when God ariseth to shake terribly the earth. Who can abide the day of his coming? Thank God, there is a refuge provided for all those who will accept it. Jesus, the Son of God, has died for my sins. By faith in his blood I can obtain pardon and be prepared to stand uncondemned when he appears. Christ, our passover, is sacrificed for us. If his blood is sprinkled on our hearts we shall be safe.

Reader, are you thus secure? Have you believed on Christ, and are you ready for his coming? Are you all ready and waiting? Are you pure in heart? Do you pray without ceasing? Are you doing all you can to save sinners from the great storm which is so near? If you are in Christ, all is well. That day will have no terrors for you.

Sinner, come to Jesus. Hasten, while he waits to receive you. Tarry not in all the plain. Escape for your life! Look not behind you. Flee to the arms of Jesus, and when he comes you will be made like him, for you shall see him as he is.

BRO. BLAIN'S TRACTS.

BRO. GRANT:—Without wishing to occupy more space than belongs to me, I would simply beg to commend to our brethren the effort of Elder Blain, in aiming to secure means to cancel the obligation he has incurred to his printer, in the recent re-issues of his book, "Death not Life." Many of these have been freely donated, and have done good service. I was myself essentially benefited in the perusal of this work, and doubtless many others can say as much. As Bro. Blain is considerably advanced in years, it would seem an obvious inexpediency and even injustice to allow him to labor under an oppressive burden of debt. A little aid from each would relieve him. Bro. Blain, who had a traveling letter of membership and sympathy with Mr. Dobney's church in Maidstone, England, has put in his letter with our Adventist Society in Yorkshire, and been cordially received.

Yours sincerely, C. COLEGROVE.

BRANCHES OF THE TRUE VINE.

God looks to the depths of men's hearts. Where seeds of truth have been sown in good and honest hearts, does he not see that which calls forth his love and admiration? His discerning eye sees pure motives, aroused by love to Him who "first loved us." For, the followers of Jesus do, in some measure, possess his spirit.

It was not to gain the homage of the people that Jesus often turned from his way to comfort the sad and cheer the weary. It was his joy to do so, because he loved them. And now, how heartily his forgiven people enter into his labors. How gladly and unsparingly they help the needy. The sick, cared for by them, do not have to feel that they are a burden, because love makes the labor so light. If one, in climbing toward truth and God, stumbles and loses his foothold, or misses the way, a brother's heart says not, "He is lost—let him go," but a strong hand is held out, and a cheerful voice encourages to new efforts.

Thou art infinitely tender and compassionate, O Shepherd of Israel! This is why we see such beautiful exhibitions of meekness, and patience, and long-suffering, among mortals who have been learning of thee. This is why we need not faint or be discouraged, so long as our eyes are fixed on thee.

A church without spot or wrinkle will soon bear palms of victory, and of them Christ will not be ashamed before his Father and the holy angels. J. E. LLOYD.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION.

BRO. GRANT:—I have written down a few things that have occurred since I have been here on a visit to the "Star of Hope." I have always visited Anna once a year since she has been laboring in New York. We have labored very successfully together in Philadelphia. I find her at work for her Master, in garrets, cellars and courts of New York, assisted by Sister Boyd. Truly the Lord is with them, and blessing their labors. Here is a living army of dear colored people, that will be saved through their instrumentality. While I am writing these few lines, they are enjoying themselves in a good meeting below; their voices are so sweet, and their power with God so great, I can hardly write.

This has been a high day at the "Star of Hope,"—the colored people say, "High Market day." I left New York with Sr. Smith and nineteen candidates this morning, at nine o'clock, for Fort Hamilton. There dear Bro. Cox, of 24th St. church, buried them in baptism. We had a shouting, happy time. It was as much as I could do to keep from jumping and acting just like them, dear, free children in Christ. Praise the Lord for a religion that has power in it.

Last Thursday night, while Sr. Smith was preaching, there was present a rough looking sailor. The Lord lifted the curtain and let him see his true condition. He cried out, "God be merciful to me a poor sinner!" He asked for some tracts. We conversed with him on the subject of religion. All he could say was,

"Ise a great sinner, but de Lord has done great things for me. He sot me free down in Old Werginney, wen I was a slave of Gov'nor Wise; and in de time of de war I was sot free. I had a good mother—died a slave, went home to heaven shouting. She used to talk to us children 'bout Jesus. I never thought much 'bout it till now, and now Ise got to go away to sea widout Jesus. Won't you pray for me?"

We pointed him to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world. Next morning he went to sea at five o'clock. May the Lord finish the work he has begun.

Sallie and I were out visiting the other day. As we were going along, a woman came out of her house and asked us if we were tract ladies? We said, Yes. She had been hunting for some one to come and pray with her sick friend. Feeling our steps were ordered of the Lord, we went in, and found her a true penitent. She saw her condition—was almost distracted. We pointed her to the Lamb of God, read over the promises, sang and prayed, then left her.

The next day, Srs. Smith, Boyd, and myself called on her again, after we closed a meeting we had been holding in one of the devil's dens. She was more peaceful in her mind. We read over the promises, when that moment she was set at liberty, and made a new creature in Christ Jesus. Now she is able to go from house to house to tell what the Lord has done for her. Praise the Lord! oh my soul! We had an old-fashioned shout. This is not the only case, but many more such cases I could repeat to you. May the Lord bless the "Star of Hope," temporally and spiritually. Your Sr. in garrets and cellars,

June 27th. MALVINA HELGESON.

THE DORCAS MISSION.

To-day I have engaged anew in the mission work in Philadelphia. My health is fully restored, and I enter my field of labor with delight. The same Lord who sustained me in the past will raise up friends for me now. I could have been busily engaged in other kinds of labor, but this appears to be the one to which the Lord has especially adapted me.

In going my "rounds" to-day I met a number who had been brought to Christ through our instrumentality, and found them rejoicing in the Lord. Truly, some seed fell on good ground. As Christ has richly blessed our labors hitherto, we have confidence in him that he will continue to bless.

We have not the pledge of a penny from any one to help us on our way, but the Lord will open the hearts of his people. We do not wish to have any other missions neglected, pecuniarily, for our own. May the Lord direct in all these matters. It is our purpose to visit from house to house, warning and beseeching men and women to turn to the Lord; to visit the widow and the fatherless; to administer to the sick and the needy; to feed the hungry and clothe the naked; to hold neighborhood meetings; and, in short, to do all the good we can amongst the lowly. Finally, brethren and sisters, pray for us, that we may have judgment, discretion, grace and strength for our work. My address for the present is given below. A faithful account of receipts and expenditures will be given by us, from time to time.

Yours, among the lowly,

F. H. BURBANK.

Correspondence.

From Sr. C. E. Gierlow.

BRO. GRANT:—I am still a way-worn pilgrim, wandering through this vale of tears, without any continuing city, nor any abiding home. I often wonder why it is that I am not permitted to settle down in some quiet nook, where, like others, I may be at rest. But here I am, amid the noise and bustle of this fearfully wicked city, longing for the time to come when righteousness and peace shall fill the earth; and God knows why I am here; I shall know hereafter. Perhaps he has something for me to do or say for him; but oh! it is so dark, and vice stalks through the streets with unblushing face. God's name is blasphemed, his laws are trampled under foot, and his people are despised. What can such a poor weak worm of the dust as I do.

There are, I believe, some of God's children in this place. I have attended "Grace (Episcopal) Church" and Sabbath School, and felt that God was there. The rector preaches as "A dying man to dying men."

The Superintendent and teachers of the Sabbath School appear to feel their responsibility, and the children are being trained up for Jesus. I took charge of a class for a few Sabbaths, and was surprised to find them so prompt in their recitations, and so far advanced in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures. Their singing filled me with joy, the hymns being much like our own.

God bless the dear "little flock" who are looking for Jesus to come soon, to set up his everlasting kingdom. I know many of you and love you well, but I may never see your face again "on this side of the river," nor take the friendly hand that has ministered to my comfort in the past; but I hope one day to greet you in that better land, where flowers bloom not to fade, where tears are never shed, and where loved ones never die.

My husband and both my children are here. Both are married, but neither of them are christians. Please to remember them in your prayers, that their names may be found in the "Book of Life" when Jesus comes.

Yours, looking for everlasting life,

C. E. GIERLOW.

San Francisco, Cal., June 20th.

From Eld. T. J. Cox.

BRO. GRANT:—It fell to my lot on Sabbath, June 27th, by appointment of Sr. A. E. Smith, to bury beneath the liquid wave nineteen happy souls who have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty, and taken a stand against the world, with a determination to fight the good fight of faith till Jesus comes. These were the fruits of the faithful labors of the missionaries of the "Star of Hope," all colored; and a happier, more rejoicing number it has not been my lot to behold. The full effusion of their grateful hearts, when raised from the baptismal grave, was uncontrolable, and the glorifying of Jehovah's name gave some evidence of the Spirit's work upon the heart. They were the gatherings from the by-ways and hedges, some of whom, however, had been members of other churches; one, indeed, is now a member of a Presbyterian church, who, on seeing the truth, embraced it and felt that she must follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. She walked into the water demure and stately, but when raised from thence the Spirit took possession of her, and her hallelujahs and rejoicing, methinks, would be but badly tolerated in any of the Presbyterian churches now.

Glory be to God, there is some work being done, and this looks quite like a revival in this part of the vineyard. From what I could see in the latter part of the winter and spring, I thought a cloud was hanging over here; and, indeed, I often heard it said, "The Mission is going down and must close"; but when I see such an ingathering from a few weeks of persistent effort (and there are now many more anxious to go forward in the ordinance), my heart swells with thankfulness to our heavenly Father that there is even so much being done.

You know by experience, Bro. Grant, how hard it is to effect much good in the large cities, and especially in New York; the professing christian is too proud to listen to the fanatical doctrine, and the worldling has too many ways of amusement to engross his attention to allow him to attend to the calls of mercy and the claims of God. Thus we see that the Star of Hope is shining even more brightly than the surrounding luminaries.

The truth is quite apparent to my mind, that there are but very few laborers so peculiarly fitted, as Srs. Smith and Boyd, for the arduous work which God has committed to their hands,—a work which it seems no others can or will do. We may attempt to describe the climbing into garrets, the tumbling into cellars, and the besieging of the haunts of squalid wretchedness and crime, but it needs to be seen to be appreciated; and it would be well for those who dwell upon the balmy mountain top, or in the comfortable country cottage, to think of these servants of Jesus in their dark and dismal walks, and remember that whatever they may do to one of these his little ones, they do it unto Him.

Often and often it happens that these sisters are called upon to leave their more legitimate field, and go to stand by the bedside of the dying, and point the distracted mind to the scenes of peace and rest beyond this vale of tears; and then to preach to an entirely strange and often a solicitous crowd, the words of hope over the departed one.

But I fear my feelings have carried me beyond your forbearance to follow, and must draw to a close, hoping that God may bless, and those who call themselves his may not withhold their support, either by means or prayers, from this worthy object of carrying the last gospel message to the benighted, perishing ones, to compel them to come in. Time is closing. Work is urgent. Means are required, and by giving as well as working we may insure for ourselves the happy plaudit at last of "Well done."

Yours in hope, T. J. COX, Elder of the Advent church, No. 138 West 24th St., N. Y.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. J. H. DENNIS writes from Rochester, June 28th:—"The good old Crisis I still appreciate very highly. It meets with a very cordial reception every week. About every golden moment during the past ten months has been employed in sounding the last great alarm, warning the race of impending judgment. This has been the cause of my long silence. Many have had an ear to hear, and quite a large number have changed their uniforms, and are bearing with us the reproach and shame connected with the blessed truth as it is in Jesus. They rejoice with joy unspeakable, that their blind eyes have been opened to behold the beautiful harmony and light which exists in the sacred volume.

The truth makes people free indeed, and being free in the Lord, we can ever afford to suffer with him, knowing that we are to be disciplined and made perfect through suffering. We desire not to aspire to rise higher than our Lord, or his first followers, but with Paul be ever in a frame of mind to glory even in tribulation. Let us be disciples in very deed, taking every needful step cheerfully, without ever murmuring or complaining, knowing that all things work together for good to them who love God supremely, and each other fervently.

Satan desires us, but shall we be guilty of yielding, even though he come as an angel of light to seduce us, so long as God's power is so great? Who shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord? He that hath begun a good work has the ability to perform it. The Bible is replete with precious promises. There is one for every emergency. So let us not, my brethren and sisters, be at all backward in pleading them, for He who made them will ever see that they are verified. In conclusion, let me admonish you in Bible language, 'Keep the munition; watch the way,' and let us not grow impatient in the closing hours of time, and thereby forfeit forever our beautiful Eden home. Let us confide a little longer in our heavenly Pilot, and he will land us safely on Eden's evergreen shore."

BRO. W. A. SHEFFIELD writes from Suwannee Shoals:—"I do not get the Crisis very regular, yet I seldom lose a number. By the last mail I received that of May 26th and June 2nd, both of which, if possible, surpassed all former numbers in sound reasoning and Bible truths, with perhaps an exception or two on the part of correspondents.

It has been and is yet being taught that God has a hell into which he puts the souls of impenitent persons at death, and there keeps them in conscious misery eternally, permitting the devil, the chief of sinners, to remain in the world or somewhere else to tempt more people, that when they die in their sins they may be placed in the hell torment of those who have preceded them. This is not in harmony with the true teaching of the Bible, but has been used for ages to frighten sinners to repent. The Bible does not teach it; it is simply error.

I sincerely concur with your views in relation to the distribution of tracts, and those expressed with regard to prayer-meetings and spiritualism. Your exposition of Paul's desire to depart is positively in harmony with his entire correspondence with the ancient churches. I also agree with your answer to a convert in the Crisis of June 2nd, that christians of all denominations will be saved. Whoever does the will of the Father as Christ did when on earth, hath the Spirit of the Savior, and those who do not keep the commandments do not as the Christ did, and hence hath not the Spirit, and unless ye have the Spirit ye are none of his. Eternal life,—immortality, is only promised to the obedient, and is never spoken of in connection with the disobedient.

I have just heard from a series of meetings held by Bro. Smith in Georgia, while on his way North, and that eleven were added to the church."

WHAT IS WANTED.—We want in you a christianity that is christian across counters, over dinner tables, behind the neighbor's back, as in his face. We want in you a christianity that we can find in the temperance of the meal, in moderation of dress, in respect for authority, inamiability at home, in veracity and simplicity in mixed society. Rowland Hill used to say he would give very little for the religion of a man whose very dog and cat were not the better for his religion. We want fewer gossiping, slandering, gluttonous, peevish, conceited, bigoted christians.

To make them effectual, all our public religious measures, institutions, benevolent agencies, missions, need to be managed on a high-toned, scrupulous, and unquestionable tone of honor, without evasion, or partizanship, or overmuch of the serpent's cunning. The hand that gives away the Bible must be unspotted from the world. The money that sends the missionary to the heathen, must be honestly earned. In short, the two arms of the church, justice and mercy—must be stretched out,—working for man, strengthening the brethren, or else your faith is vain, and ye are yet in your sins.—F. D. Huntington, D. D.

OURSELVES AND OUR SAVIOR.—O! did we but know ourselves and our Savior! We are poor, and he is rich—we are dead, but he is life—we are sin, but he is righteousness—we are guiltiness, but he is grace—we are misery, but he is mercy—we are lost, but he is salvation. If we are willing, he never was otherwise. He ever lives, ever loves, ever pities, ever pleads. He loves and saves to the uttermost all who come unto him.

WHEN a friend told Plato what scandalous stories his enemies had propagated concerning him, the philosopher replied, "I shall have the more reason for trying to live so that no one shall believe them."

Obituaries.

LORD. Died in Lowell, May 9th, 1869, in the blessed hope of immortality when Jesus comes, Deacon Timothy Lord, aged eighty-seven years.

Father Lord was an exemplary christian, one of the excellent of the earth. Of late he has seemed to be wholly given up to God and his Bible. He died in the full enjoyment of our precious faith, saying, Glory to God! peace, peace! I shall sleep but a little while before I shall arise to meet the Lord in the air, and so remain forever with him." He had been Deacon in the Calvinist Baptist church a number of years, until about seven years ago, when his attention was called to searching the Scriptures. He being a reasonable man, and having the Spirit to guide him, soon found that these things were so, and, like good old Job, maintained his integrity to the last. HANNAH LORD.

BANCROFT. Died, in Warehouse Point (East Windsor), Conn., May 28th, after an illness of two weeks, Eliza Ann, wife of W. Hall Bancroft, aged forty-nine years.

Our sister for many years lived so as to adorn the doctrines of the gospel of Christ, and by her well-ordered life and godly conversation, with a good testimony, has left to surviving friends the comforting assurance that she was a follower of Christ, and as such an heir of eternal life, to be given at the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ; and that, though death has broken their present association, it is not necessarily eternal, but that through grace, as manifested in the gospel, it may be renewed and enjoyed by them forever in the kingdom of God.

Words of comfort and hope were spoken on the funeral occasion by the writer. R. K. S.

STEARNS. Died in Massena, N. Y., June 15th, 1869, Sister Clarissa Stearns, aged fifty-one years.

She leaves an affectionate husband and three children to mourn her loss. She gave her heart to God at the age of fifteen, since which she has been an example of piety and patience, especially for the last six years; during which she suffered extremely from that dire disease, a cancer.

She selected the text for her funeral discourse, called her friends to her, took an affectionate leave, and sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, awaiting the trump of God to call her forth to enjoy the bliss of an unfading, undying, sinless world. Funeral discourse by the writer from Col. 3: 4, to a large concourse of people, who assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to her whose light had shed a sacred lustre around the cross, winning her fellow pilgrims to gain the crown of glory, honor and immortality. S. G. MATHEWSON.

COVELL. Died in Sweetland Centre, Muscatine County, Iowa, May 22nd, 1869, Mrs. Clarinda Covell, wife of Jonathan Covell, formerly of Norwalk, Ohio, aged sixty-six years.

Mother Covell had long been watching the decline of her husband with all the devotion and care of a fond wife, when she was taken down with lung fever, and in one short week lay cold and silent in death, while he yet lingers upon the shore of time, but soon to follow. She lived and died a devoted christian, beloved by all who knew her. She was ready for the great change, although it came so unexpectedly, and her testimony that "all is well" showed her confidence and hope in the dear Redeemer at the last departing hour of mortal life. For many years she had looked with much interest to the time of Christ's second appearing to raise the sleeping ones to life, and set up his kingdom under the whole heavens, when she expected her reward, the gift of eternal life. May the Lord bless this affliction to all the surviving friends. S. K. GIBSON.

SEVERANCE. Died in Northfield, Mass., April 17th, 1869, Emma Louisa Severance, aged twenty-seven years.

Sister Severance was one of those bright examples of pure goodness of which the world can boast but few. She was lovely and beloved; her life worthy of imitation; her last days calm, serene, and heavenly. Even in death she was sweet and beautiful, and what will she be in the resurrection morn, after receiving these glorious touches of immortality:

"—— new rising from the tomb,
With lustre brighter far shall shine,
Revive the ever-during bloom,
Safe from diseases and decline."

A. M. HIGGINS.

KENT. Died in Webster, June 5th, Adelia D. Kent, aged forty-two years.

Sister Kent was one of God's jewels, and one who tried to adorn the doctrines of his dear Son with a consistent christian life.

The writer tried to comfort the family on the funeral occasion with the gospel assurance of a re-union again in the resurrection morning. A. M. H.

WATKINS. Died in South Casco, May 3d, 1869, Newell, only child of Wm. and Elizabeth Watkins, aged one year and twenty days.

We tried to give comfort with the promise that Newell should live again when Jesus comes. May the Lord bless and bring them to the better land. JESSE GAY.

LYLE. Fell asleep in Jesus, at Newark, N. J., June 27th, 1869, after a lingering illness, Linda, second daughter of John and Jane Lyle, in the nineteenth year of her age.

Married.

In Salem, Mass., June 23d, by Eld. Rufus Wendell, Mr. L. N. OLMSTED, of Hartford, Conn. and Miss ELIZA A. MELDRAND, of Salem.

In Wilbraham, July 4th, by Eld. P. S. Butler, Mr. HENRY C. BUTLER and Miss ADDIE F. JONES.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

MADRID, July 1. In the Cortes, yesterday, Gen. Prim, in reply to Senor Orenez, said the government would never accept a coup d'etat, but devote all their endeavors to the consolidation of liberty.

July 3. In the Cortes to-day the Ministers of Interior and Justice declare that the clergy and municipal authorities were ready and willing to take the oath presented by the Constitution. Admiral Topete, in reply to a question of Senor Orenez, said the idea of a Republic was impossible now that a monarchy had been voted and was represented by the Regent. The national troops have been dispatched against the Carlist conspirators in Andalusia and Arragon.

BRUSSELS, July 4. The Viceroy of Egypt has gone to Paris.

LISBON, July 3. A vessel which has just arrived here from Fayal brings the intelligence that serious disturbances had broken out in various parts of the Azores in consequence of the increase of taxation.

BREST, July 4. At noon on Saturday the Great Eastern had run 1145 knots from Brest and had 1281 knots of cable. Everything was working well.

LONDON, July 2. The New York Herald's special says Carlist risings are reported in Spain. In Victoria the streets were filled with a revolutionary mob, armed with scythes and revolvers, and shouting for Carlos and Cabrera. They murdered the Alcade and wounded thirty citizens, many of them mortally. Similar risings are also reported in Cartagena and Valencia. Troops have been dispatched to suppress them.

HONG KONG, June 9. A great and decisive battle has been fought between the Imperialists and the Mohammedan rebels. The latter were defeated with a loss of 20,000 men. The Chinese have offered further insults to foreigners.

The news from Japan is unfavorable. The civil war continued and heavy fighting was anticipated.

The hotels on and in the neighborhood of the Boulevards in Paris suffered by the panic caused by the election riots. From one establishment over eighty families left in one day, and another was completely evacuated. On the whole, it is calculated that in two days at least 42,000 strangers quitted the capital.

The negotiations between France and Belgium for a commercial treaty have closed with a satisfactory understanding on all points.

DOMESTIC.

St. Louis, July 1. Advices from Kansas in regard to the late storms and freshets in that State say, in the neighborhood of Junction City and west of there, the flood is reported greater than any other since the settlement of the State. Bridges have been carried away, houses destroyed and many lives lost. The greatest disaster occurred at Chapman's Creek, thirteen miles west of Junction City, where several houses were washed away and thirteen persons known to be drowned. It is supposed that a number of others have perished. The rising of the streams was so sudden and unexpected that before the residents in the valley were aware of danger their dwellings were surrounded with water and all chance of escape cut off. It was reported that numbers had escaped by climbing trees, and in that situation were awaiting a decline of the flood. At Manhattan fourteen dead bodies had been seen to pass floating in Blue river.

Ellsworth, Kansas, July 1. No mails or trains have arrived here from the East since Friday last. There has been great destruction by the freshet to bridges and the track of the Kansas Pacific Railroad, from Solomon river to Manhattan, and thirty lives are reported lost. The Indians are going to their reservations and submitting to the new policy of the Government.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 1. The Senate of the Fenian Brotherhood have issued an address to the American people, in which they ask their sympathy and assistance on the ground that fifteen millions of Americans have Irish blood in their veins, and that Ireland has been a national ally of America from the time of the Revolution to the present day, while England has been a persistent enemy of this republic, as is shown by her hostile action during the late rebellion. They declare that the Irish people are ready to unite with America, that such a union, backed by a brave and devoted people, would give the United States the control of the commerce of Europe. They ask for the coöperation of every true American without distinction of party, as they declare the cause in which they are engaged too sacred to be made a battle ground of contending factions. Gen. O'Neil arrived this afternoon, and the Senate has been in session ever since.

THE RECENT STORMS AT THE WEST.—The recent rains at the West seem to have been unusually violent and destructive, and mail advices from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Iowa and Kansas, contain sad stories of the damage done to the growing crops. In Illinois the storm was heaviest in Iroquois, Ford and Livingston counties, and the Peoria Transcript of June 28 says it is impossible to estimate the damage which has been done to the farmers in that section of the State. The crops were completely destroyed, the fences were washed away, and in some cases the farms themselves were ruined. The roads were very badly washed and many bridges were swept away, and railroad travel was generally interrupted by the washing away of the track and the loss of bridges. In Wisconsin considerable damage was done to the growing crops, and in Iowa the storm was the severest which has ever been known there. The crops in that State have been so badly damaged that farmers are almost discouraged. At Clear Lake, Ia., a house with nine inmates was carried away by a swollen stream, and four of the inmates were drowned. In Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Kansas the most severe storms occurred on Thursday and Friday of last week, but in Michigan the storm reached its height on Saturday and Sunday. In all the States mentioned above, the damage done seems to have been widely extended, and the accounts thus far received of the damage done are probably very meagre compared with what actually occurred. The agriculturists seem to have been the principal sufferers in all the localities from which reports have been received.

THE SABBATH IN FRANCE.—The cable dispatches afford a good illustration of how the Sabbath is observed and respected in the French empire. These telegrams are supposed to bring us news of the most important events. The dispatches from France for Sunday and Monday record but three events in that empire for the two days, and all of these occurred on Sunday. These were—first, an interview between General Dix and the Emperor, at which Mr. Dix took leave of his majesty, and introduced Mr. Washburne, his successor as an American Minister. Second, the commencement of the general elections for the corps legislatif. This was an election in all parts of France. Third, the French Derby horse race. "This is the way the French remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy."

It is shocking to our Sabbath-keeping people, although we must remember that the Reformation which gave origin to our modern way of observing the Sabbath never pervaded France enough to change the tendency of its people to make the Sabbath a mere holiday. It is to be regretted, however, that Mrs. Dix and Washburne, even out of a desire to accommodate themselves to the etiquette of the court, should lend themselves to this desecration of the Sabbath. They went from a country where the Sabbath is universally observed; they are sent to represent the institutions of the country. Even the French would regard them with more respect if they adhered to the customs of their native land, and their own countrymen will hardly excuse such wholesale disregard of the Sabbath.—Cleveland Leader.

UNUSUAL SCENE IN WALL STREET.—Seldom has Wall street been as excited as now. Once or twice in its history the troops have been sent down there to keep order. If the excitement continues to increase as it has for the last five days, the presence of the police will be needed to keep the bulls and bears from rending each other. The stringency of money has been terrible. Men who count their securities by hundreds of thousands cannot get currency enough to meet their common liabilities. Unheard of prices are asked and paid for money such as no business can stand. Beside the withdrawal of currency from the market by the Government, a clique is known to exist who are locking up greenbacks and lending at high rates, keeping up the appearance of stringency but suffering themselves no loss.—N. Y. Cor. Journal, July 2d.

Passing Events.

No wonder so many Mormon converts who come from England, for bigamy at least, have ample encouragement under the mother country's laws. A man may even have three wives legally in the United Kingdom. Suppose he is an Englishman, and marries an English woman in London. That alliance is binding. But he may go into Scotland, and, out of her own country, she has no claim upon him. He may then go to Dublin, wed with a buxom Irish lass, and then skip back to London, leaving her as defenseless as her Scotch sister. It is a very common impression, too, in England, that the marriage of an Englishman with an American woman in America cannot be considered binding in England.

In making excavations for the improvement of Madrid, a singular discovery has been made near Porte de Fuencarral. The ground at a depth of more than three feet and covering a surface of about forty feet was found composed of carbonaceous human bones, being the remains of the funeral piles of an old inquisition which was established upon this spot and where its victims were burned. There were also found many skulls, bones, etc., which have been carefully deposited in one of the cemeteries of Madrid. A great number of instruments of torture were also found.

A strong Republican manifesto has been published in Saville. Its appearance was simultaneous with the departure from that city of a party of Republicans numbering one thousand. It is rumored that they have gone to Portugal, and will enter Spain through Estre Madura. Troops have been sent in pursuit.

Over one thousand people were arrested during the recent riots in Paris, among whom was Baron Alphonse de Rothschilds, who was kept in "durance vile" for three hours before he could convince the police authorities who he was.

In the largest Episcopal church in Mobile, after a contribution is taken up, it is ceremoniously handed to the pastor, who asks all who have contributed to rise, when he solemnly consecrates the money. Everybody gives something.

Wealthy Cubans are sending their money to the United States for safety. It is estimated that $2,000,000 are sent away from the island every week.

Mrs. E. Stahl of Bloomington, Ill., who has for years been afflicted with a complication of diseases, has been restored to health by a stroke of lightning.

While workmen were making an excavation near 23d street, in New York, this week, springs were struck which discharge water at a rate estimated at 250 gallons a minute.

The Bishops and Archbishops who are to have seats at the Ecumenical Council number 922, of whom 600 belong to the Latin races.

A Mormon elder was recently made very much of a parent. He was presented with nine boys and five girls the same morning.

Prince Arthur is coming to Canada in the fall, and will be attached to the rifle brigade. He will return to England in the spring.

Failures in Smyrna and Constantinople have been so frequent lately that a commercial crisis throughout the East is feared.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Tremont Campmeeting will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue over the following Sunday. Ample arrangements will be made for board and lodging for those who cannot bring tents with them, but all who can are requested to bring tents. Bro. E. G. Kingsbury, of Chelsea, will be on the ground with his large tent, which will seat nearly one thousand. Now, brethren and sisters, you who can arrange to devote one week in such a meeting as this in the service of God, for the salvation of souls, and the renewing of your own spiritual strength, come up to this feast of tabernacles. The location is excellent, free from dust, and many other annoyances which often attend such gatherings.

All who expect to attend are requested to be on the ground at the commencement of the meeting, to secure a full share of its benefits; and pray that the blessing of God may attend this effort, which has been so fully realized in years past. Bro. Geo. T. Adams will probably secure a reduction of fare on the Old Colony Rail Road for those who come through Boston.

By order of the Committee of Arrangements,
HENRY V. DAVIS.

Still on Zion's Hill.

The Mass. Mission Tent (the Lord willing) will remain on Zion's Hill, near East Weymouth, two Sabbaths longer, July 11th and 18th. Meetings Wednesday and Saturday evenings during each week at half past seven o'clock. The meeting is doing much good. Brethren and sisters, pray for us and the meeting, that the Lord may send out the right kind of laborers, to help us in the good work.

Brethren wishing to come to spend the Sabbath with us can take the boat at Litchfield's wharf, 234 Broad street, Boston, at half past five, and stop at Hingham, then coach to the tent. Through fare, twenty-five cts. All will be cared for when there.
ENOCH MERRILL.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

Providence permitting, the Alton Bay Campmeeting will commence Wednesday, Sept. 1st, and close Thursday or Friday of the next week. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee,
J. G. SMITH.

Conn. Conference.

The Conn. A. C. Conference will hold its next quarterly session at Cheshire Street, Conn., to commence with preaching Wednesday evening. July 21st, at half past seven. The first business session will be held on Thursday afternoon, at half past two. Let every preacher be present at that time, if possible, and all the churches be sure to send delegates in season. Now, brethren, do not fail to be prompt in attending to this call.

Those coming via Meriden will find conveyance at the depot to meet the noon trains north and south. Those coming via Plainville on Canal R. R. will be met at the Cheshire Depot on the 1-20 train south. Strangers coming with their own teams, inquire for Cheshire Street (not Centre), as the Street is four miles north east of the Centre.
B. HITCHCOCK.

Campmeeting.

The Campmeeting in Maine, to commence about the 23d of August, will be held on the Drew farm, about two miles from the village. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the poor and the preachers to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting.
In behalf of the Committee, I. DAMMAN.

R. I. and E. Ct.

Our next conference will be held at North Scituate, R. I., commencing Wednesday, two P. M., July 7th, 1869. Brethren, let us awake. We have been slumbering. Come, preacher and delegate, from every church. Let us have one more general rally on the old battle-field of North Scituate.
H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Tent Meeting, Camden City, N. J.

On account of the deep and increasing interest manifested in the Tent meeting now being held in Camden City, N. J., it has been voted by the churches and congregation to continue it perhaps two weeks longer, or as long as the interest demands. Preaching three times Sundays and five evenings of each week, by Elders H. K. Flagg, J. G. Hook, and others. R. WILLARD.
J. M. STETLER.
J. N. WELFONG.

Conn. and R. I. Campmeeting.

OAK GROVE ADVENT CAMP, WINDHAM, CONN.

There will be a campmeeting at the above mentioned place, commencing Saturday, Aug. 14th, and continuing eight days. This is a new field, and offers many encouragements for one of the best meetings ever enjoyed. The word of invitation is to churches, families, and individuals. One and all, far and near, come up to the feast.

You will find beauty and convenience of location. The ground is situated on the Providence, Hartford and Fishkill R. R., five miles east of Willimantic, and half way between Waldo's and South Windham stations. Cars will stop on the ground, which will be known as the Oak Grove Advent Camp. Efforts will be made to obtain reduction of fare on H. P. and F., N. and W., and Northern and New London R. R., and perhaps others. Those who come from New London or Palmer will change cars at Willimantic. The grove is as clean as a carpet, free from dust, and has an excellent spring of water close by.

Your expenses can be light. The committee hope to bring this meeting as near to the old-fashioned campmeetings in simplicity and power as possible. The expense of the ground is nothing, and its fitting up trifling, so that no heavy burdens will be thrown upon those who come. Board not exceeding 75 cts. per day; also arrangements for individual boarding. Rooms in a neat, unoccupied house near by, to let cheap, for cooking and lodging purposes. Lodgings in private families for those who apply early, at most reasonable rates. Rich pasturing for horses, at one shilling per day, or from 50 cts. to 75 cts. per week; also feed in stables, at low prices.

The object of this meeting is to carry the light of Divine truth into this new field; to proclaim aloud the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ; to teach transgressors their ways, that sinners may be converted to God, flee the "wrath to come," and "lay hold on eternal life." We trust none will come for strife or controversy with their brethren, nor to press some side issue; such will meet no favor. But we exhort all to come in the spirit and power of Elijah's God, to be workers together with God against unbelief and sin. We assuredly expect the Lord with us.

We say again, Come. The whole region around the ground waits to welcome us and bid us come. Let distant churches unite to get fares reduced on their respective R. Roads. Bring your tents, also ample bedding for each individual. May the Spirit of God summon the host.

I. B. POTTER,
B. HITCHCOCK,
E. BELLOWS,
H. F. CARPENTER, } Committee of Arrangements.

P. S. By team the Camp is eighteen miles southwest from Danielsonville; fifteen west of Plainfield; four south of Scotland, and three from Windham Centre, Ct.

Notice.

"As ye would that others should do unto you, so do you even unto them."

The little church at Week's Mills, China, Me., are trying to build a meeting-house, and they need help to finish it from those who observe the above rule. It will require about $200 to complete it. Now let all who are interested in the cause of Christ, and are able, do something for this enterprise. All monies may be sent to Alton C. Doe, Week's Mills, China, Me. Small and large gifts will be very acceptable, and they should be forwarded immediately. In behalf of the church,
ALLEN DAMON.

Notice.

The Second Advent Christian Church of Rochester, N. Y., will hold meetings in their new hall, New York State Arsenal, corner of Monroe and Jackson streets, as follows: Sundays, prayer and conference meeting at 10 A. M. Sunday school at 12½ P. M. Preaching at 2 and 7½ P. M. The weekly prayer meetings: Tuesday and Friday evenings, of each week. The regular monthly church and covenant meeting will be held the Friday evening (7½ o'clock) before the first Sunday in each month. JAS. E. WELLS, Cor. and Rec. Sec.
Voice of the West, please copy.

Notice.

Whereas we are holding a protracted meeting in East Weymouth, and there will be a campmeeting in Tremont the last of July, and the National Campmeeting in Springfield, Mass., in August, it is thought advisable not to hold a State Quarterly Conference till after these general gatherings are over. S. W. THURBER, President.
P. S. BUTLER, Secretary.

Protracted Meeting.

There will be a protracted meeting in Barnston, P. Q., beginning Sabbath, July 11th, and continue over two Sabbaths, as the brethren may arrange, in the tent or otherwise. Will some of the brethren meet me at my son's residence, Derby Line, Saturday, July 10th? S. W. THURBER.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held at Rogersville, Steuben Co., N. Y., commencing Saturday, July 17th, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the Sabbath. Sister E. S. Jennings is expected to be at this meeting. D. COGSWELL.

New York State Mission Tent.

The Lord willing, a tent meeting will be held at Springville, Erie Co., N. Y., commencing July 13th, and continue two weeks, and longer if it shall seem to be duty. J. WENDELL.
B. P. STEVENS.

Special Notice.

Shall those in Indiana, who look for the coming of the Lord, meet in a conference capacity this year? If so, it is time the matter was understood. If I mistake not, the "Indiana Christian Conference" has not met since August, 1866. In 1867, a part of the members of said conference went into an organization called the "Gospel Association," which has had one or two meetings. But as this Association has tests to which many of the brethren will not submit, it is earnestly desired that the members of the "Indiana Christian Conference" meet and re-organize next August. I want to hear from all Christians in Indiana who look for the Savior in regard to this matter. Do not neglect it now, but write immediately. Address
G. W. GREEN, Memphis, Clark Co., Indiana.

Notice.

Any church wishing my labors during the coming fall and winter in protracted efforts, (if time should last), address me immediately.
A. D. FLAGG, Torrington, Conn.

Notice.

Pictures of Chloe Lankton and her residence in New Hartford, Ct., can be had of J. C. Garriques, 608 Arch Street, Philadelphia, by enclosing $1.00. The proceeds, above cost, to go to the benefit of Chloe.

Notice.

Those at the west wishing books, tracts, or charts, can be supplied at Rochester, N. Y., by addressing Dr. J. Naramore, (Eagle Block) Rochester, N. Y.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

"THE WAVES OF TROUBLE SHALL NOT OVERFLOW."

When sorrow's waves run high,
I trust alone in God,
He will not pass me by,
But help me stem the flood.

When sorrow's waves roll high,
I kneel before the throne,
And upward raise my eye,
For blessings that shall come.

When sorrow's waves roll high,
I lay me down and rest,
Not doubting but that I
To Christ am anchored fast.

He'll bear me o'er the flood,
Though wild the surges roar;
For all that trust in God,
Shall find his promise sure.

Then let not sorrow's tear
Bedim this lustrous eye,
Since he is ever near
To hear the suppliant's cry.

To comfort all who mourn
His earthly mission made,
To heal the heart so torn,
By sorrows unassuaged.

O, may I ne'er repine,—
I cannot fate control,—
But ever bear in mind
We haste to reach the goal.

His love shall cheer my heart,
His spirit lead me on,
From every idol part,
And cleave to his dear Son.

Now hushed be every sigh,
Ye murmurs, cease to rise,
The Comforter is nigh,
He'll bear me to the skies.

FALSE THEOLOGY.

To-day I had the pleasure of listening to a little modern theology, as advanced by one of the watchmen of the M. E. church; and it pained me to the heart to hear one who claims to be leading men to the Lamb of God, thus abuse the word of God. I could but think of the admonition given by the Savior: "If the blind lead the blind, shall they not both fall into the ditch?"

His remarks were based upon the words of Paul to the Corinthians;—"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law; but thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." He went on to prove that there was at some time, far in the future, going to be a restitution of the earth, and a resurrection of "the bodies of men"; for "as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." "As in Adam all die," he said could not be made to mean the soul, but the body simply; for the whole chapter was treating on the resurrection of the body. In other words, asserting that the man did not die, only the prison he lived in; while the man went to his reward; viz., hell, or heaven.

Claiming that Christ's obtaining the victory also gave us the victory, and that too at death, therefore at death we can shout, "Where is thy sting?" and as we lies cold and silent in the grave, we can claim the victory. Monstrous absurdity! Is it any wonder that under such teaching thousands of infidels have been made? And is it astonishing that from this lie of the devil ("thou shalt not surely die") should spring that personification of all unrighteousness—spiritualism? No, it is not. It is the legitimate result of such expositions of God's word.

How is it that people of ordinary mental capacity can so err in regard to this great and glorious doctrine? Paul makes it so plain when the redeemed are to sing their song of triumph over these their enemies. Hear him: "So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

From this misinterpretation of the word, he proceeded to eulogize the great terror of mankind—death, describing it as though it were one of the dearest friends man has, calling it the gate to the regions of bliss, and in an ecstasy of joy (apparently) exclaimed, "O blessed death, indeed! would that Christ could come and abolish death, and him that hath the power of it, that is, the devil." And he will. That is a part of his work to be performed at his second advent; for he declares, in the apocalyptic vision, "And death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged every man according to their works. And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire." This, we see, succeeds the judgment, is not prior to it; which would not be the case if men went to their reward at death.

Thank God, the light shines clear on these subjects, and those who have ears to hear, and eyes to see, can both see and hear and understand. Watchmen upon the walls of Zion, be faithful in proclaiming the truth. It seems as if the final conflict between truth and error was about to transpire, when the people must renounce this heathen dogma of immortal-soulism, or accept its finale, even spiritualism, and a complete denial of the Bible.

It is not necessary, in order to preach the truth, that we denounce the churches. It is not right thus to do. But we can contrast the truth with error, and do it in a kind, charitable spirit and manner. The people must decide. They can not always halt between two opinions. Truth and error are ever antagonistic.

In the theological world there can be seen two grand centres, around which truth and error are gathering. One centre consists of Satan's lie, "Thou shalt not surely die," or, innate immortality. The other centre, eternal life, and immortality through Jesus Christ alone. These two centres have been gradually assuming antagonistic positions. Till now, the two have engaged in conflict; spiritualism, and an open denial of the Bible, in opposition to materialism (so-called), being a literal interpretation of the Bible, and a firm faith in the doctrines which it advocates.

The nominal churches do not all see the position in which they stand; but the time is fast approaching when they must see; and then will come the great division, or ultimatum of the conflict. Church of God! arouse yourselves. Gird on the armor anew for the last conflict. Trim your lamps, and march to the victory. Let God be true, though it make every man a liar. Hold up the truth as God has given it to us, till Jesus comes, and the dead are raised, and then, and not till then, will be brought to pass the saying, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" E. M. RIPLEY.

"LOVERS OF PLEASURES MORE THAN LOVERS OF GOD."

This is being verified among us now, whether we are in the last days or not. It seem to be the string touched to secure success by both professor and non-professor; pleasure, pleasure, pleasure, is the order of the day. The church seems to have discovered, after years of experiment, the secret of reaching the purses if not the hearts of the mass through this channel; and it is bearing its legitimate fruit—"The way of truth is evil spoken of. If the minister lacks funds, a donation party is announced from the desk, or the deacons shrewdly suggest an oyster supper in some public place; the tickets are sold, and it comes off gaily, with an ice cream saloon in one corner, and a female post office in the other, generally lacking the dance. To decorate the church, a "mite society" is called, where card playing is introduced as an innocent amusement. If the missionary fund is drooping, a sewing society is the result, with gaiety and mirth.

The larger the parties, the less pointed the preaching. The oftener the gatherings, the fewer the prayer-meetings. And while the church turns aside to shake hands with the world for its glittering dust, her savory influence is stale, and she becomes poor indeed. Herein lies the deception in trying to serve God and mammon.

Were these parties not gathered under the name of religion, their influence would be far different. You present to this class, the world, as perishing for the want of the bread of life, and the preaching of the gospel, and you will for the most part turn empty away; but advertise from the desk a gathering for that purpose with the present indulgences,

"Where youth and pleasure meet,
To chase the glowing hours with flying feet," and the same class will be there, as the best place to buy amusement under so respectable a heading. And who can tell the nice shades of difference between a Catholic priest selling indulgences to support his cause, or the Laodicean church" supporting her cause by selling indulgences in the form of pleasure parties, downy pews, popular sermons, and journeys to heaven on "flowery beds of ease"?

Query. Does the gospel teach any but free-will offerings as acceptable to God for sustaining his word, or is the gospel a beggar, to obtain permission to bless the world, if in no other way, by the mites gathered from pleasure parties, even down to the sale of the black man whose price is paid into the treasury of the Lord?

I often think of the old story of the English nobleman, who advertized for an experienced coach driver, as he had a dangerous gulf to pass in his ride. Three applied. The first, being questioned, said he could drive within a hand's breadth of the precipice and be safe. The second dare not drive so near; and by this time the third one was off. Being asked why he left, he said there was no chance for him. But when questioned, said he should drive as near the other side as possible. The nobleman assured him he was the very man he wanted. "The first shall be last and the last first."

How numerous the hand-breadth professors are in the church, God only knows. When will professed christians cease to see how far they can stretch and mystify the gospel, and expect salvation? If the good sense of this nobleman and his prudent coach driver were exercised by the professed seekers after truth, what a straightening of crooked places there would be. How darkness and error would flee away, and the true light shine. What a scattering of the fables of these last days, and a building up of the truth. What a change of effort and skill would be made to bring men to the gospel, which now is made to adulterate and bring the gospel to the world.

But as the seare the signs to appear in the "last days," the snares, fables and delusions we are so often cautioned to beware of, may we through grace and truth escape them, being in Christ. B. C. SIMONDS.

For the World's Crisis.

TWO QUESTIONS AND ONE ANSWER.

The first question is propounded by some of those who hold the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and is this:

What is the need of a judgment day?

The second is generally though not always asked by those who disbelieve the doctrine of the resurrection of the ungodly:

What need of their resurrection if they are to be destroyed? Why not let them remain dead?

I must admit that the Almighty does not do unnecessary things, but I think with a clear view of the nature of the judgment we shall see the necessity of a day, and also of the conscious existence of the whole human race in that day. The object of our earthly judgment-seat is to ascertain the guilt or innocence of accused persons, as well as to pronounce sentence on the guilty. But the judgment-seat of Christ cannot be instituted in God's arrangement of things for the purpose of ascertaining the guilt or innocence of all or a part of mankind. Neither is it simply and solely for the purpose of pronouncing sentence on the guilty, or of conferring honor and reward upon those who have been accepted in Jesus Christ.

There is another object which is before all this. Even the object for which all things are and were created, namely, the glory of God.

But what is the glory of God? It is the matter or ground which excites or draws forth esteem, applause, honor, praise, as adoration to the Most High. It is that which will make the earth and heavens echo and re-echo with hallelujahs. It is the excercise of his glorious attributes which excites the admiration and elicits the praise of his creatures. It was that which inspired the song of Moses, the man of God. It is that which will cause the ransomed host to sing the song of Moses and the Lamb: "Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty! Just and true are thy ways, thou King of Saints. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee: for thy judgments are made manifest."—Rev. 15: 3, 4.

See also another Scripture. "And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together."—Isa. 40: 5.

God's righteous dealings with the race must be acknowledged by all men, good and bad. "All they that go down to the dust shall bow before him, and none can keep alive his own soul."—Psa. 22: 29. "The Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them."—Jude 15.

How many passages of Scripture there are that represent the ungodly as being ashamed or confounded in the judgment. Why shall it be so? Because they shall be convinced of their ungodliness, of God's merciful dealings with them, of his long-suffering, and of their perverseness.

In Luke 19: 12, we have the parable of the nobleman who went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. What I have to say on this passage is with reference to the servant who received the one talent. The unprofitable and wicked servant is convicted out of his own mouth. So also in Matt. 25: 41–46. The judge convinces them. The angels of God witness, and the righteous see the righteousness of his dealings, and are led to cry out, "True and righteous are thy judgments." If the righteous are to be "rewarded openly," will the wicked be rewarded in secret?

To sum up, we will ask the question; What need is there of a judgment day?

Ans. The glory of God demands it.

Ques. Why must the ungodly be raised if their punishment be death; why not let them remain dead?

Ans. The glory of God demands that they stand up and acknowledge their sentence just before an assembled universe. (I do not say that this is the only reason, but it is one powerful reason.)

Now, sinner, one word to you. Have you any regard for the glory of God? Have you ever done anything to the glory of God? He pronounces you guilty: will you acknowledge it to his glory? He offers you pardon in Jesus Christ if you will but repent. Will you glorify him by repenting of your sins and believing on Jesus, by throwing yourself on his loving mercy, and begin to bear fruit to the glory of the Father now? Or will you put it off until the day in which every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess? The Almighty has sworn that to him you shall bow. When will you do it? Be stiff-necked no longer. Bow. Now is the day of salvation. Will you accept it now? And when Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall you appear with him in glory. WILLIAM MORPHY.

GRINDING THE DIAMOND.

The poor sufferer lay in severe pain on her bed. It was nearly twenty years since she had known a well day; more than half that time since she had walked a step; and nearly two years since she had sat up. Her limbs were jerked by spasms; her back had deep sores on it from lying so long; and whenever one was relieved by a new position of the body, another would be made.

She never complained; and the cheerfulness with which she endured all this from day to day, and from year to year, was a matter of amazement to all. Her friends, who saw the Bible always lying near her, knew well from what springs she drew water. They all said it was one of the darkest providences they ever witnessed.

One night, as the sufferer lay sleepless from terrible pain, she began to look back upon the past. What a wreck life seemed, dating from her bright school-days! What a mystery that she must be so helpless, and such a sufferer, while her school-companions could walk, and move, and act, and enjoy life! What was the object of her heavenly Father in putting her into this slow, hot, long-continued furnace?

As she lay there thus communing with herself, the room seemed suddenly to fill with light, and a beautiful form seemed to bend over her. His face was calm and gentle, but full of pity. She was not at all frightened, nor deemed it strange that he was there, though she was aware that she never saw him before.

"Daughter of sorrow!" said he, in a voice soft as the zephyr that just rocks the rose on its stem, "art thou impatient?"

"No, but I am full of pain and disease, and I have so long been a sufferer, that I see no end to it; nor can I see why I must suffer thus. I know that I am a sinner, but I have hoped that Christ's sufferings, and not mine, would save me. Oh! why does God deal thus with me?"

"Come with me, daughter, and I will show thee."

"But I cannot walk."

"True, true. There, gently, gently!"

He tenderly took her up in his arms, and carried her away, far away, over land and water, till he set her down in a far-off city, and in the midst of a large workshop. The room was full of windows, and the workmen seemed to be near the light, and each with his own tools, and all so intent upon their work that they neither noticed the new comers, nor spoke to one another. They seemed to have small, brown pebbles, which they were grinding and shaping and polishing. Her guide pointed her to one who seemed to be most earnestly at work. He held a half-polished pebble, which was now seen to be a diamond, in a pair of strong iron pinchers. He seemed to grasp the little thing as if he would crush it, and to hold it on the rough stone without mercy. The stone whirled, the dust flew, and the jewel grew smaller and lighter. Ever and anon he would stop, hold it up to the light, and examine it carefully,

"Workman," said the sufferer, "will you please to tell me why you bear on and grind the jewel so hard?"

"I want to grind off every flaw and crack in it."

"But don't you waste it?"

"Yes; but what is left is worth so much the more. The fact is, this diamond, if it will bear the wheel enough, is to occupy a very important place in the crown which we are making up for our king. We take much more pains with such. We have to grind and polish them a great while; but, when they are done, they are very beautiful. The king was here yesterday, and was much pleased with our work, but wanted this jewel in particular should be ground and polished a great deal. So you see how hard I hold it down on this stone. And, see! there is not a crack or flaw in it. What a beauty it will be!"

Gently, gently the guide lifted up the poor sufferer, and again laid her on her own bed of pain.

"Daughter of sorrow! dost thou understand the vision?"

"Oh, yes, but may I ask you one question?"

"Certainly."

"Were you sent to show me all this?"

"Assuredly."

"Oh! may I take to myself the consolation that I am a diamond, and am now in the hands of a strong man who is polishing it for the crown of the great King?"

"Daughter of sorrow! thou mayest have this consolation; and every pang of suffering shall be like a flash of lightning in a dark night, revealing eternity to thee; and hereafter thou shalt 'run without weariness and walk without faintness,' and sing with those who have 'come out of great tribulation.'"

THE JOURNEY OF LIFE.

"No shadows yonder!
All light and song;
Each day I wonder,
And say, How long
Shall time me sunder
From that dear throng?
No weeping yonder!
All fled away;
While here I wander
Each weary day,
And sigh as I ponder
My long, long stay.
None wanting yonder,
Bought by the Lamb;
All gathered under
The evergreen palm;
Loud as night's thunder
Ascends the glad psalm."

Human life may be compared to a journey to a better country, in the which we have for company parents, brothers and sisters, and kindred and friends, together with many others. Happy are those who, knowing Jesus Christ as the way, the truth and the life, have no fear of falling short of the heavenly Canaan. None of us can tell how short the journey of life may be, or when "the silver cord" will "be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern," but must be content to live on from day to day, striving to perform our daily duty, and believing, as it has been touchingly expressed, that "it is a righteous as well as a tender hand which keeps the next day's page safely folded down."

The time will come when, remembering some of those who used to be in our company, and who are now sleeping in death, we shall be sorry that we did not endeavor to make the journey pleasanter to them, and think of all that we would do and say if we had to go over the same ground again—all that we might have done and said to them; and how we would gather flowers instead of thorns, and help them over the rough places, and lead them to the green pastures and beside the still waters of gospel comfort.

How cheerily and pleasantly we might all pass through the journey of life if we would only be tender and pitiful one towards another, and "bearing one another's burdens, and so fulfilling the law of Christ," speaking a word in season to him that is weary, and walking in love, for his sake who loved and gave himself for us.

If we are God's children, we shall not only converse frequently of the home to which we are journeying, but try and persuade others to go along with us. We read in the Scriptures, that John, while walking with two other disciples, drew their attention to the Savior, saying, "Behold the Lamb of God": and that those other disciples hearing him speak, followed Jesus. Are there none, dear reader, in the daily walks of life, to whom you could also say, "Behold the Lamb of God"? It may be that the Holy Spirit would be pleased to make it a word of power, and that they too would be persuaded to follow Christ. One of the two disciples was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. We are afterwards told that, as soon as Andrew knew the Lord, he rested not until he found his brother and brought him to Jesus. Have you no brother or sister whom you can bring to Christ? Philip also findeth Nathaniel. Have you no friend whom you would find?

The woman of Samaria hasteth to tell her neighbors. Is there no one whom you could tell of the love and power of the Messiah? No one to whom the invitation of Moses to Hobab might be given, "Come thou with us and we will do thee good; for the Lord has spoken good concerning Israel"? No weary and sorrowing one, no burdened and careless one, whom you might invite to come to Jesus? It may be that there are some who are not of the household band, some wanderer from the right way, heedlessly pursuing the downward path that leads to destruction; do not say, "What is that to me? It is no business of mine." Make it your business. These poor wanderers are, perhaps, not aware of their danger. They do not see any harm in it; they do not know that it is the wrong path. No one ever told them any better. Go after them. Do not mind a little trouble, do not be contented with merely warning them, or even pointing out the right way; help them to return at once. A little while, a few years at most, and they will have passed beyond the reach of your influence. We must not only be gentle, we must also be faithful, not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; "teaching and admonishing one another" not harshly, but "in Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing, and making melody in our hearts unto the Lord." Never forget that religion makes us cheerful and happy. Many find it hard to sing the Lord's song in a strange land. They are afraid to lift up their voices for fear of being thought singular, so that those who journey with them are none the better for their company.

Who can tell but there may be some in that little band, some yearning brother or sister, or friend, some careless worldling, or timid and anxious inquirer hungering and thirsting after righteousness, listening for the sound of the gospel trumpet; wondering at our silence, hanging upon our words, watching our actions, doubting, and yet longing to believe, if they only knew how; if they could only be quite sure that it was a subject of such vital importance, and drawing their own conclusions, that if God were indeed our Father, and Christ our Savior, we could not but speak and sing aloud for joy. What a solemn thought for silent, lukewarm professors; eloquent, perhaps, on every other subject, but never saying a word for Christ; calling themselves soldiers of the cross, yet acting like citizens of the world; uttering no watchword, making no sign, bearing no banner, but ashamed, as it were, of the great Captain of their salvation. Better for such an one that "a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea." Instead of helping and encouraging others in the christian's warfare, you are only hindering and keeping them back.

There was a time when they loved and looked up to you; you might easily have led them into the right way then, but it is too late now.

Dear reader, may we pray with the Psalmist, "Let not those who seek thy face be confounded for my sake, O God of Israel." A few short years, and death or change may have separated us forever from those that love us. The present is the seed-time of the future, now, while they are with us. The night cometh, when no man can work.

THINGS AS THEY ARE.

BRO. GRANT:—In March I came to this western country for the benefit of my health. From what I have seen, and what knowledge I have obtained, I find that true believers in our Lord's coming are very few and far between in this State; and there are not more than two or three preachers in all the State; and yet the prospects for doing good, with the right laborers, might be much more successful than in some places in the East, where laborers seem to be quite plenty and twenty-five years have been spent in sowing the seed.

It seems to me that if the Advent ministers possessed the same spirit that many did in days past, when they did not count their lives dear to them, but went forth with zeal and love, in harmony with the swift message (Rev. 14: 6, 7), and many wore themselves out and were hastened to the grave in proclaiming this joyful message,—we would not see so many now taking their ease, settled down among kind friends, where they can enjoy their christian society and share their hospitality. There are scattered ones in this great West that need to be hunted up and fed; they are starving to death for food: and there is plenty of it, if it could be dished out to them in a proper manner.

Is there no responsibility resting upon any one in this matter? Brethren in the East, think of these things, and then remember what your Lord will say to the faithful servant when he comes. Do you believe he will very soon come? Then let there be a practical demonstration of your faith.

There is no time for delay. What is done must be done quickly. The Judge is at the door. We can not be mistaken. The signs have been given. We are in the exhausted state of all prophetic dates. History fails to give any more light. The night is dark, and in an unexpected moment the day-star will shine forth, and He who will lighten this world with his glory, such as never has been seen, will be seen coming in the clouds, to receive his waiting, ready Bride, and give reward to each as their works may have been. Then tale-bearers will have finished their work; jealousy will no longer mar the peace of any; discord and strife will have no place; all wars in families, or among neighbors, or nations, will cease for ever, and man with man will be at peace. Who are not willing to fight through the war, and put up with a soldier's fare a little longer, that he may secure a home in such a country? Remember, there is no pension offered to deserters,—only to the faithful soldier. Now is the time to gird on the armor more tightly, and stand with it on night and day. Unworthy I am; but Jesus is worthy, and I cling to him.

1 CORINTHIANS 15: 36-38.

"Fool!" measuring your faith by your ignorance, and because you cannot understand the manner, rejecting the fact; when there is nothing more unaccountable in giving life to a dead body than to a kernel of grain. God gives it a body. And as he gives a body to the grain that dies, so he can to man.

Let me ask a few questions. Was it that same body of Lazarus that had lain four days in the grave, bound hand and foot, that Jesus raised, still bound? or was it another body, with the spirit of the old body in it? If the old corrupted body of Lazarus could be raised up in four days after he was dead, why not in four months, or four years, or four thousand years?

Will that reward which every man receives be in this body, or in another body, with the spirit of this old body incorporated in that other body?

Shall we see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of God, with their old bodies, or will the spirits of their old bodies be incorporated in other bodies?

Will Job see God for himself with his old eyes, or will those eyes be incorporated in another body; so the old Job will not see for himself, but another see for him?

Will Paul have his crown placed on his head, or will it be placed on the head of another body like Paul's? Will such a head fit such a crown? MOSES JORDAN.

CITY OF GOD.

When I think of thy pearly gates, thy jasper walls, and thy golden streets, my heart is full and my eyes fill with tears at the thought of such dazzling glory. And I ask myself, Shall I be there? The answer comes back, Jesus says I may. Hear his last prayer for his dear children "Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, may be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory" This great and unspeakable gift is all because Jesus loves us. We are made pure and spotless by his most precious blood. Thank his dear name that he has numbered me among the objects of his redeeming love. I will serve him while I live, and my prayer is, Instruct me out of thy love, and guide me continually. E. HUTCHINS.

BREAD CAST ON THE WATERS.

A young man living in New York at the time of the discovery of gold in California, was led by the prevailing excitement to sell all he had here and travel to that land of promise. He arrived safely, made his way to the mountains, and worked hard for months, but with little success. Soon his money was gone, his clothes nearly worn out, and he must either starve or find his way back to San Francisco, and get employment there. He started on foot, and slowly made his journey. One afternoon he came to the bank of a stream which must be crossed. A ferryman was ready with a row-boat.

"What is your charge?" asked the traveler.

"One dollar, sir."

"Well, I shall have to foot it up the stream till I can find a crossing place." "Are you hard up?" asked the ferryman.

"I'm dead broke," was the desponding reply.

"Jump in; I'm not the man to send a fellow adrift;" and with a few vigorous strokes they were soon in the middle of the stream.

Here the boatman stopped rowing, and, looking in his face, asked: "Is your name Jones?"

"Yes," replied the other, with a start at finding himself recognized.

"Didn't your father belong to the church in B—— street?"

"Yes."

"I thought so;" and with that he drew from his pocket a bag, and commenced counting out gold pieces. "I have made five hundred dollars by ferrying passengers; here are three hundred of them for you. You can pay me when you are flush; or, if that don't happen, then all right. You think I'm crazy, perhaps," continued he, observing the astonished looks of the traveler, "but I was never in better senses in my life. When I was a little boy, and my mother was a poor widow, many a time has your father visited our home, and when he had gone, somewhere about the room we would find money for a barrel of flour, or to pay the rent, when we knew not before where it was to come from; and as long as I live, if I have only a crust, when I find one of his sons in want, he shall get the biggest half."

The loan was gratefully accepted; by its aid the traveler was able to reach San Francisco, earn enough to repay his benefactor, and return safely to his home. This story, with the exception of the name, is a true one, related by the traveler himself, illustrating the precept: "Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days."—American Agriculturist.

Gems.

— The children of God have much in hand and much more in hope.

— The trees that are most in the sun bear the sweetest fruit.

— Proud hearts and lofty mountains are always barren.

— Contentment is a pearl of great price, and whoever procures it at the expense of ten thousand desires, makes a wise and happy purchase.

— "Get thee behind me, Satan," said our Savior when tempted by the enemy of mankind. So, when we are tempted to do wrong, we should take our Savior's example, and cast the tempter aside.

— God's livery is a very plain one; but its wearers have good reason to be content. If it has not so much gold lace on it as Satan's, it keeps out the foul weather better, and besides, it is a great deal cheaper.

— A hidden light soon becomes dim, and, if entirely covered up, will soon expire for want of air. So it is with hidden religion. It must go out. There cannot be a christian who in some aspect does not shine.

— You may as well dismiss from your heart all thought that you can have peace with God while you retain in your bosom a single feeling of ill-will toward any human being whom God has made.

— He that pursues honor, applause, or worldly reputation, is like the foolish schoolboy running after the butterfly, and neglecting his book; both meet with disappointment, dissatisfaction, and reproof.

— True it is most painful not to meet the kindness and affection you feel you have deserved, and have a right to expect from others; but it is a mistake to complain of it; for it is of no use; you cannot extort friendship with a cocked pistol.

— We should be careful to practice, and treat the humblest menial with courtesy as delicate as we would show the children of affluence and honor. So shall we transfer in them a corresponding refinement, which will tend eventually, perhaps, to make them purer in morals and more elevated in mind.

— How sordid is the love of gold. This base passion is beneath even the contempt of the true man. None are so hard to reach by the saving power of truth as the worldly-minded. Milton describes Mammon in heaven as failing to see the Deity himself, having his eyes always fixed on his golden pouches.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to comb your hair in the presence of persons who are at their meals.

It is not polite for our literary institutions to confer titles on rich nabobs and dull jackasses, to the neglect of real worth and splendid talents.

It is not polite for editors to approve of or condemn a book before they have carefully read it.

It is not polite for a conductor on a car to be cross and crabbed to his passengers, or to answer a proper question with indifference or unkindness.

It is not polite, when soliciting charity, to carry a baby in your arms. The discerning and intelligent are not thus entrapped.

— It is not polite for a professedly christian institution, on account of a difference of opinion among its managers, to separate into two distinct bodies, and thus incur double the expense of support.

It is not polite to speak unpleasantly or sharply to a customer at the counter, or to a stranger in the street; or to be indifferent to the wants of an humble, unobtrusive individual. "A little word in kindness spoken" has made many a fortune, and, what is better, secured a pleasant and peaceful life, a triumphant death, and a blessed immortality.

It is not polite, when you meet a sick acquaintance, to remark, "How dreadfully you look"—"You appear very feeble," and the like. A man who is ill needs to be encouraged.

It is not polite for lay members of a church, not blest with remarkable talents, and who have, withal, weak and feminine voices, to usurp a large portion of the time in speaking or praying, to the edification of none but themselves.

It is not polite for a person, speaking in public, to turn his back to the congregation, even if he should say some severe things to them.

It is not polite to select articles of a storekeeper, have them done up, and then neglect to send and pay for them.

It is not polite for a conductor, when his car is full, to make his passengers uncomfortable by crowding in others, especially on a hot day.

It is not polite, while sitting in the cars, to extend your arms behind the backs of your neighbors.

It is not polite to allow your children to enter the cars with anything in their hands to molest passengers, or allow them to stand on the seats with dirty shoes.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

A STRONG CASE.

At a recent temperance meeting an old officer of Napoleon, who had been twenty-three years a soldier, gave his experience. He rose before the audience, tall, erect and vigorous, with a glow of health upon his cheek, and said: "You see before you a man seventy years old. I have fought two hundred battles, have fourteen wounds upon my body, have lived thirty days on horseflesh, with the bark of trees for my bread, snow and ice for my drink, the canopy of heaven for my covering; without shoes or stockings on my feet, and with only a few rags for my clothing. In the desert of Egypt I have marched for days with a burning sun on my naked head, feet blistering in the scorching sands, with eyes, nostrils and mouth filled with dust, and with a thirst so tormenting that I have opened the veins of my arms and sucked my own blood. Do you ask how I survived all these horrors? I answer, that under the providence of God I owe my preservation, my health, my vigor, to this fact, that I have never drank a drop of spirituous liquor in my life," and, continued he, "Baron Laray, chief of the medical staff, of the French army, has stated it as a fact that the six thousand survivors who safely returned from Egypt were all of them men who abstained from the use of ardent spirits."

PHENOMENA OF THE BRAIN.

One of the most inconceivable things in the nature of the brain is that, although the organ of sensation, it should itself be insensible. To cut the brain gives no pain; yet in the brain resides the power of feeling pain in any part of the body. If the nerve which leads to it from the injured part be divided, we become instantly unconscious of suffering. It is only by communication with the brain that any kind of sensation is produced; yet the organ is itself insensible. But there is a circumstance more wonderful still. A certain portion of the brain itself may be removed without destroying life. The animal lives and performs all those functions which are necessary to simple vitality, but it has no longer a mind. It cannot think or feel. It requires that the food should be pushed into its stomach; once there it is digested, and the animal will even thrive and grow fat. We infer, therefore, that a part of the brain is simply intended for the exercise of the intellectual faculties, whether of the lower degree, called instinct, or of that exalted kind bestowed on man, called reason.

HEAD WORK.

Dr. Willard Parker, a physician of extensive practice, recently said in one of his addresses in Brooklyn: "No man can do head work faithfully for more than four or five or six hours. If that time is exceeded, all the phosphorus is carried off, and the man becomes irritable, broken down, and has softening of the brain. I have seen this overwork in lawyers, doctors, clergymen, and merchants, who have worked the brain for ten hours. They have dropped under the burden. You cannot violate the law of God with impunity. Sr. Walter Scott did a large amount of brain work in his day, but he did not overwork himself. In his latter days, however, he became pecuniarily embarassed, and resorted to his literary pursuits to save himself; but he worked too hard, and completely broke himself down." Let head workers take warning. But there are too kinds of brain work—the knotty, red-hot kind which exhausts the worker and accomplishes results, and the sleepy, slouchy sort, which hurts no one and amounts to little, be it five or fifteen hours a day.

BEST METHODS OF REST.—History tells us that of those few great brain workers of the world who died prematurely, many brought on or aggravated their diseases which carried them to their early graves, by depriving themselves of necessary repose.

It is well for hard-working students to take a noonday nap, either just after—or, better still—just before dinner, especially when their sleep at night has been seriously disturbed. It is better to take a nap just before than just after dinner, because the sleep is usually less dreamy and more refreshing when the stomach is tolerably empty than when it is loaded with food. There is wonderful refreshment in a nap of half an hour just before dinner—especially for the nervous, the dyspeptic and the overworked. It calms the nerves, rests the brain, equalizes the circulation and prepares the system for the reception of food—Dr. Beard.

HOW TO PREVENT SOMNAMBULISM.—Somnambulism is a very dangerous affection, which it has hitherto been found extremely difficult to cure. Prof. Pellizzari, of Florence, seems to have hit upon a successful as well as a curious plan, which simply consists in winding once or twice around one's leg, on going to bed, a thin, flexible copper wire, long enough to reach the floor. Eighteen somnambulists treated in this way have been either radically cured or temporarily weaned from their unfortunate infirmity. The Gazette Medica, of Venice, which reports the fact, says that copper wire is known to dissipate magnetic somnambulism, and that this circumstance led the professor to have recourse to this strange remedy.

VENTILATION IN SUMMER.—The parlor should be aired every day, and thrown open broadly to the sunshine, whether needed or not. In living rooms, where people often gather, ventilation is not complete unless such a current of air passes through them as to continually change the air.

☞ Stramonium leaves (stinkweed) moistened in water and applied as a poultice will cure any felon. Afterward use stramonium salve to heal them.

THE HEAVENLY CITY.

O, that home of the blest, in my visions and dreams
Its bright jasper walls I can see,
Till I fancy but thinly the vale intervenes
Between that fair city and me.

There the fair trees of life in their beauty do grow,
And the river of life floweth by;
For no death ever enters that city, you know,
And nothing that maketh a lie.

That unchangeable home is for you and for me,
Where Jesus of Nazareth stands;
For the King of all kingdoms forever is he,
And he holdeth our crowns in his hands.

O, how sweet it will be in that beautiful land,
So free from all sorrow and pain;
Where with songs on our lips, and with harps in our hands,
We meet one another again.

THE TEN TOES OF THE IMAGE.
Dan. 2: 41, 42.

Are they identical with the ten horns of the fourth beast, Dan. 7: 7? Such, indeed, has been the general, nay, almost universal opinion of all the Second Advent Bible critics; and without stopping to reflect upon the matter, I have ever been of the same opinion. But for obvious reasons I am now compelled to abandon that view of the matter.

That the legs of the said image are identical with the said beast, there can be no reasonable doubt; and, indeed, there is none among first class critics. Now the said image is supposed to be symmetrically formed and perfect in all its parts; and the subdivisions thereof should bear somewhat analogous proportions to the historic facts of the rise and fall of the several powers symbolized. Let us see. The head of gold answers to the Chaldeans, who held the Jews in bondage about one hundred and fifty years. The breast and arms of silver answer to the Medes and Persians, who reigned about two hundred years. The belly and sides (margin) answer to the Grecians, who reigned about two hundred and fifty years. The legs of iron answer to the Romans, who reigned over the same people about eighteen hundred and sixty-three years, till A. D. 1798, when their power was broken forever, and the feet of the image began to be developed.

Here the time, times, and the dividing of time (Dan. 7: 25) terminated. Here the suffering people of God were "holpen with a little help," and were taken out of the hand of the little horn; or, in other words, out of the hand of the persecuting power of Rome in her Papal form. Here her dominion was taken away, and subsequently divided into ten states, corresponding to the ten toes, and answering to the peculiar specification of the said image in all its distinctive features. Here, too, free toleration was granted all men to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences; and the blasphemous assumptions of mystic Babylon to correct heretics, and to erect a standard of faith for all classes, was forever blasted. Nay, a new era dawned upon the whole Roman world, and her former greatness fell to the ground with a crash; and now she lies low in the dust and the clay of earth covers her lifeless form. The thunderings of the Vatican are no longer feared, and her palsied arm reaches but little beyond the seat of the beast. Nay, her own children have learned to hate her, and the moral heavens are pregnant with the odor of her stinking carcass.

When we look back upon the long history of Rome, how strikingly it corresponds with the long legs of the said image. And as we trace the successive events of history (from the rise of the iron kingdom) down to the ever memorable epoch of A. D. 1798, and compare them with the prophetic outlines, it seems to me no man can say the feet of the said image were ever developed prior to this point of time.

Let me illustrate: It is granted that the iron kingdom arose B. C. 65, and began to be divided A. D. 395; and here it is said the feet began to be developed. See "The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened," page 278. If this is true, then it follows that the feet are longer than the legs by fourteen hundred and seventy-three years. In other words, the relative proportions of the legs and feet would be as one is to four; i. e., the legs would be only one hundred and sixty, and the feet fourteen hundred and seventy-three years long to the present time. This, we say, is inadmissible, and out of all harmony with the divine plan of unfolding future events.

We have said that the feet of the image began to be developed in A. D. 1798, when the dominion of Rome was taken away, and subsequently divided into ten or more states. But here we are met with the ready reply, that Rome was divided into ten states long before this, and we readily grant it; but none will say that those states are now in existence, known and distinguished as such among the nations of earth. Nay, they have long since lost their original identity, and were buried beneath the rubbish of revolution and national decay. Bible critics and historians widely differ in assigning each its proper place in prophecy; for the reason that revolution succeeded revolution in such rapid succession in those days. A popular historian has said, that "from the extremity of Scandinavia to the frontiers of China, nation after nation appeared, the new assailant pressing on its predecessor, crushing it, and marking its onward passage with blood and devastation." Nevertheless, they (the ten horns) appeared in their proper place upon the head of the beast, in the early history of Rome, to aid us in distinguishing the fourth beast from its predecessor, and to locate the rise of the little horn, or the papacy, the last of all persecuting powers.

This, indeed, was an important epoch in the history of the church. Here she passed into her wilderness state (Rev. 12: 14); here the two witnesses began to prophesy in sackcloth; here the saints and times and laws were given into the hand of the said horn (Dan. 7: 25); here the sanctuary of strength (the christian church, Dan. 11: 31) was polluted; here the daily sacrifice (the rights of the people to worship God in their usual way, and according to the dictates of their own conscience) was taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate was placed in its stead, upon the broad basis of political and ecclesiastical power combined, and shall prosper till the indignation be accomplished (Dan. 11: 36) in A. D. 1798.

"O the depths of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out." Three of the original ten horns, we all know, were plucked up "by the roots" when the said little horn came up in their midst. And the rest lost their national identity in rapid succession during subsequent revolutions. And it is the very extreme of folly to talk of their existence now. We may as well talk of the present existence of the Canaanites and other co-existing tribes.

Then it follows that we must look for other ten kings to rise, not in the head of the beast, in the early history of Rome, but in the feet of the image, in modern Rome; if, indeed, we are to understand that the toes of the said image signify so many independent states, which I am inclined to doubt; for the obvious reason that the prophecy contains no positive evidence of the fact. Let us see. "And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potter's clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay. And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly broken. And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men; but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay. And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." Not a word here of ten distinct nationalities, and it is an unwarranted assumption to say Rome must develope just ten, and only ten distinct states, when the stone smites the image upon the feet. The presumption is equally as strong and justifiable that she is to develope (in the last extremity) just two, and only two, grand divisions, corresponding with the two feet, with perhaps ten (more or less) subordinate states.

In either case, we have all that the most exacting minds can demand, in the present condition of the Roman states. There is Victor Emanuel, and the Pope of Rome, each at the head of a separate division, and each claiming jurisdiction over the same territory. Nor have they forgotten their ancient title—Romans (the strength of the iron); they claim to be Romans still. Nor will they cleave one to the other. Nay, indeed, there is no compromise. "They shall mingle themselves with the seed of men"; which we may reasonably imagine relates to diplomatic agency and international laws. They are, indeed, recognized as independent states, and their ambassadors are received at foreign courts. I repeat it; it is "in the days of these kings" that the God of heaven will set up a kingdom.

I have said that the indignation (Dan. 11: 36) was accomplished A. D. 1798. This I understand relates to the judgments decreed upon the people of God; for it is said (verse 32), "But the people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits; and they that understand among the people shall instruct many; yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days."—Dan. 7: 25; Rev. 11: 2. Nor will any one dispute the fact, that about the year 1798, this dreadful persecution and power to slay the said people ceased forever.

We may talk of the downfall of the Papacy: it is already accomplished. We speculate upon the drying up of mystical Euphrates, or the Ottoman Empire, that "the way of the kings of the east may be prepared"; and if this, too, is not already accomplished in the recent settlement of the Grecian question, in which it was granted that all the Christian powers of Europe* ("the kings of the east") should have the right to protect their own citizens within the Turkish Empire; it will surely transpire in some more signal manner soon; nay, very soon. And then, dear Lord, we hope to see thee.

Is it indeed true, dear Savior, that thou art coming so soon? The formal professor of religion, the scoffer, and the brainless multitude, say, No. So "the fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." D. Clow.

Janesville, Wis.

* "The kings of the east," is a figure of speech, meaning the contiguous, or adjacent nations. There are numerous instances of this form of speech in prophecy. See 1 Kings 4: 30; Judges 8: 10.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR CREED.

We believe—"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." We believe—"God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him." We believe, "The Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into [him an immortal soul? No.] his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." We believe—"God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good."—Gen. 1: 1, 27, 31; 2: 7.

We believe a falsehood was uttered when "the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die."—Gen. 3: 3, 4. We believe God told the truth when he said to Adam, "For out of it [the ground] wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3: 3, 19.

We believe—"Man lieth down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Job 14: 12. We believe—"The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence."—Ps. 115: 17. We believe—"His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."—Ps. 146: 4. We believe—"The living know that they shall die; but the dead know not anything."—Eccl. 9: 5; 6: 10. We believe, "All go to one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again." We believe the patriarch David is "both dead and buried," and "is not ascended into the heavens."—Acts 2: 29, 34. We believe—"It is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment." —Heb. 9: 27. We believe—"God hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness."—Acts 17: 31. We believe—"The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation."—John 5: 28, 29. We believe—"That the wicked is reserved to the day of destruction; they shall be brought forth unto the day of wrath."—Job 21: 30. "Reserved unto the day of judgment to be punished." 2 Pet. 2: 9. We believe—"The heavens and earth that are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men."—2 Pet. 3: 7. We believe—"The heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up." "Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness," or, the righteous.

We believe—"The workers of iniquity shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb." We believe—"Evil doers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth; for yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be." We believe—"The meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace;" "and their inheritance shall be forever." We believe—"The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever." "For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth, and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off."—Psa. 37. We believe—"The righteous shall never be removed; but the wicked shall not inherit the earth.—Prov. 10: 30.

We believe—"The promise, that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith."—Rom. 4: 13–16. We believe—"If ye are Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."—Gal 3: 24. We believe—"This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." "Whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began."—Acts 1: 11; 3: 20, 21.

We believe—"So shall it be in the end of the world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."—Matt. 13: 30, 38–43. We believe—"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, then shall he say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25: 31–34. We believe—"The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom, even forever and ever." Dan. 7: 18, 22, 27. We believe Christ, who said, "I will not drink henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." Matt. 26: 29. "And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom." Luke 22: 29, 30.

We believe Christ who said, "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." "Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find watching. Verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them." Luke 12: 31–40. We believe—"The kingdoms of this world are" to "become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11: 15.

We believe there will be "a new heaven and a new earth"; when "the tabernacle of God is with men"; who has said, "Behold, I make all things new"; and, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my Son." We believe—"The holy city, New Jerusalem," will come "down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." "And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it; and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honor into it." We believe—"There shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life." Rev. 21: 1–27.

We believe when man had fallen that the Lord drove out the man from the garden of Eden, lest he take also of the tree of life and "eat and live forever," and placed cherubims and a flaming sword, which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life. Gen. 3: 22–24. We believe when man is restored—"The gates of it [the New Jerusalem] shall not be shut at all by day; for there shall be no night there." Rev. 21: 25. And, "In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations."

We believe then will be fulfilled, "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them"; "and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away." We believe this earth being restored, wherever the curse rested, that then "there shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him; and they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads." We believe—"Blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book." Also, we believe—"Blessed are they which shall be called to the marriage supper of the Lamb." Also, "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."

We believe—"All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness. That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17. We believe—"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein; for the time is at hand." We believe this event is near, even at the door. "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me to give every man according as his work shall be." We believe—"As the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." "For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth." Rev. 1; Luke 21; Matt. 24; Mark 13; Rev. 22. S. L. Manley.

For the World's Crisis.

"WHO SHALL STAND?"

"But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap."—Mal. 3: 2.

The coming of the day of the Lord is to be a great day, and is an event in which but comparatively few at the present time are very much interested; and although it is looked forward to with great joy and anticipation, by those to whom it will be a deliverance from this world of sin and sorrow to a world of eternal blessedness, yet, when it does come to pass, will be the greatest day of mourning the world has ever witnesed. Not only will peace and joy attend it by those who are found worthy of eternal life, but sorrow and regret will come upon the hearts of many who have misimproved the precious time which has been allotted them. The day when the great Refiner shall gather together the people, and subject them to a refining which shall separate all that are truly his from those which are not, is soon to come, and then who shall be able to stand?

This is the great question for us to answer individually; it is not, whether this one or that one shall be accepted as the Lord's or not, but, shall I be able to stand when he appeareth? Is my peace made with God, and can I welcome the coming of the Just One with joy and gladness? Do I desire to be in the presence of Christ and his angels, more than to enjoy the things of this world, and to participate in those worldly pleasures where our Savior would not be welcomed? Am I in possession of that love which "worketh no ill to his neighbor," but will cause me to do good unto all men, as Christ, who is our example, did, while here on the earth? For surely "we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ, . . . and every tongue shall confess to God. So then, every one shall give account of himself to God." Rom. 14: 10, 11, 12.

According to the Word, in order for us to be able to stand before the Lord in the day of his coming, we must have pure hearts—hearts entirely free from all jealousy, hatred, envy, covetousness, evil-speaking, backbiting, and everything which is contrary to the spirit of Christ; for, "if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Rom. 8: 9. And if we are not his, we can not expect to reign with him. But it is certain that if we do have the Spirit of Christ, we can have full confidence that we are truly his, and need have no fear lest we should be lost at last, for we know that our Redeemer lives, and that his promises are sure.

Yet we know that "the spirit that dwelleth in us, lusteth to envy," but "God giveth grace to the humble; and if we "put on as the elect of God," that "humbleness of mind," of which Paul speaks, we shall be willing to suffer with, and for Christ, and be counted as nought in this world, if we may but reign with him in his kingdom. For the promise unto us is, that "if we be dead with him, we shall also live with him; if we suffer, we shall also reign with him." 2 Tim. 2: 11, 12.

Then let us each one examine ourselves daily, and see that we are unspotted from the world, having the Spirit of Christ, and that we are in readiness to hail him with joy when he shall come. "Wherefore, take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand." Eph. 6: 13.

SEEDS.

"A wonderful thing is a seed—
The one thing deathless forever!
The one thing changeless—utterly true—
Forever old and forever new,
And fickle and faithless never.

Plant blessings, and blessings will bloom;
Plant hate, and hate will grow;
You can sow to-day—to-morrow shall bring
The blossom that proves what sort of a thing
Is the seed, the seed that you sow."

THE BEST NAME.

THE GROUND OF OPPOSITION.

It is a matter of fact, that a man can profess nothing in our time which will call down on his head the same united and unmitigated persecution from all the surrounding religious parties, as the profession to be a christian—simply a christian—no more, no less. It has become unpopular to be simply a follower of Christ—a disciple of Christ—nothing more, nothing less. It is unintelligible to the good people of our time, for a man when inquired of what he is, to say, a christian—a disciple of Christ. In the time of the apostles, for a man to say, "I am a christian," or "I am a disciple of Christ," told what he was, Their opponents could understand it. When a man says, "I am a Lutheran," "I am a Calvinist," "I am a Wesleyan," etc., it is easily understood; but to be a Lutheran, calls forth no persecution, no united, determined and unmitigated opposition. In the same way, to be a Calvinist, a Wesleyan, etc., calls down on a man no united, persistent and unabating persecution. A man may be a Roman Catholic, bow down to images, worship relics, the Virgin Mary, count beads, observe Lent, and all the other disgraceful mixtures of Judaism, Paganism and Christianity ever palmed on the credulity of mankind, and call down on him no serious opposition. A man may become a Swedenborgian, and swallow all the mythical, imaginative and dreamy vagaries of that worldly sect, and call down no serious opposition. But the day a man declares himself a Christian, nothing more, nothing less, declares that he receives the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as it is in Jesus, that he is simply a follower of Christ—his disciple, and nothing else, he is a subject of hostility for every partisan in the land. The day a man declares himself a member of the church of Christ, and nothing else, he is a subject for the gauntlet. Why is this? Why are those who profess simply to be christians—disciples of Christ, and take the law of God as their only rule of faith and practice, opposed more than any other people in this country? Why do all others unite in opposing them? This is the question we now propose to answer.

1. They claim that there is but one divinely authorized religion on earth—the religion of Christ, as set forth in the New Testament, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit; and that all the other religions in the world are spurious.

2. They maintain that there is but one Savior, and that he has but one gospel, and has anathematized any man or angel who shall preach any other, or even a perversion of this one.

3. They maintain that there is but one church of Christ, and that all others are spurious having no divine authority.

4. They maintain that the one church of Christ should be designated in the same way now, or by the same terms, as in the time of the apostles—that all unscriptural names for the church, or the people of God should be discarded.

5. They maintain that the law of Christ is the supreme authority in the church—the absolute authority—and that all other laws for the church are spurious usurpations and sinful.

6. They maintain that the conditions on which a person is to be received into the church, are simply those set forth by the apostles and first evangelists, in their practice, in proselyting, founding churches, and taking care of them.

7. They maintain that all the people of God should belong to the one body, and be united in it. "I see nothing in that to call forth opposition," replies some one; "all that appears almost self-evident." It is not that this ground is not almost self-evidently right, that calls forth the opposition. Entirely different is the reason for opposition. The ground is almost self-evidently right, and, success must attend righteous efforts to maintain and defend it. This, too, is one of the circumstances calling forth the opposition. If the claim were fallacious; if the ground were untenable, if the position were evidently false, if no success were attending, if the results of success affected no party around us, there would be no serious opposition. But here is the trouble. The ground is impregnable, so manifestly so, that any one can be made to see it, possessing fairness and candor enough to be a christian at all. Any man can see at all. Any man can see at a glance, that there is but one divinely authorized religion on earth; but one Savior, one gospel, one church, "one fold," and that it should be designated in the same way, or in the same terms now, as in the time of the apostles; that there is but one law of Christ—that it is supreme—absolute; that persons should take precisely the same steps now to become members of the church that they did in the time of the apostles, and that all the people of God should be in the "one fold," under the "one Shepherd." The people by thousands in all directions can be convinced of all this, and are becoming more and more convinced every day. They are, too, going over continually in vast numbers, and taking their stand on this invulnerable ground. But the reader inquires again for the cause of opposition. Look at the consequences that must follow, if this ground succeeds. Look at the following list:

1. If there is but one divinely authorized religion, then, all the other religions in the world are spurious, to be rejected and thrown aside. As soon as a man is brought to see this, if he is an honest man, and we cannot see how any one can fail to see it at a glance, he sets out in search of the one religion. He soon decides that the one religion is the religion of Christ. He does not want a form of that religion, or something like it, but he wants the religion of Christ itself. He says, I want that or nothing. This leads to the exclusion of everything else. With him, there can be no compromise. He can yield nothing. His religion is divine. It came from God. All other religion is spurious. Here the ground of united opposition begins.

2. If a man takes the ground that there is but one gospel, as every candid man must, when he thinks about it, then everything else, bearing the name gospel, must be repudiated and discarded. He does not want a man to preach his views of the gospel, or prove some doctrine by the gospel, or preach something like the gospel, but he wants a man to preach the gospel itself, and nothing else. This sets aside and abolishes all preaching of Romanism, Mormonism, Universalism, Unitarianism, Trinitarianism, Calvinism, Arminianism, Lutheranism, Episcopalianism, Presbyterianism, Methodism, Baptistism, etc., as spurious and wholly unauthorized. Here again is ground of opposition.

3. If a man takes the ground, as we certainly do, that there is but one Lord, the one head, and but one foundation for one church, one body, one fold, one building, and that there is but the one temple, or kingdom of God, and that any separate organization, or body, is spurious, it is equivalent to a proposition to abolish all the religious organizations in the world but the one, disband them and set them aside. We cannot expect them to do this without a struggle. There are men in these side organizations that have spent the vi gor of their lives in building them up, and they will not see them abolished without a hard fight.

4. When we condemn all names, as religious designations for the people of God, except those applied to them in the Bible, and discard them, we virtually propose to abolish all the names of the popular establishments in this country, and set them aside. Here is another ground of opposition. These names by long use, have become dear to those who have adopted them and fought under them for years. They will not give them up without opposition.

5. When we assert that the law of Christ is supreme—absolute, and that all other laws are spurious usurpations, and wholly unauthorized, we come in direct collision with a long list of most venerable creeds; and our proposition is nothing less than a proposal to abolish all these venerable creeds and do them away—to supersede the whole of them by the law of Christ. In this we cannot expect to succeed without opposition.

6. When we come before the people with a proposition to unite all the Israel of God in one body, on the one foundation—the one rock, which is Christ—under the one law, the law of Christ, we virtually propose to abolish all the partisan religious organizations now in existence; to supersede and set them aside, as new confederacies, wholly unauthorized by King Jesus. This is the proposition we have now for all the parties in the land. Whatever it is that constitutes that something called Calvanism, is an addition to the law of God, and we cannot unite on it. Whatever it is that constitutes that something called Arminianism, is an addition to the law of Christ, and we cannot unite on it, but the law of Christ itself, we all admit to be right, and we can unite on it. We cannot unite on Luther, Calvin, or Wesley, but we can unite on Christ. We cannot unite on Presbyterianism, for many of us do not believe it. We cannot unite on Methodism, for many of us do not believe it. We cannot unite on Baptistism, for many of us do not believe it. But we can unite on Christianity, for we all believe it. We cannot unite on any sectarian name, if it were right to do so, for we cannot agree on any sectarian name; but we all are willing to be called christians, disciples of Christ, the people of God, saints, and can agree to be called by scriptural designations.

Our mission is a plain one, and one in which there can be no compromise. We come to restore Jesus, or Lord and King, to the hearts of the people of this generation, and induce them to unite in him, as their only head and leader, under his name and law, in his body, the church, to be his and be governed by him. His authority we recognize and adore. His law we delight to honor. His church we desire to build up. His name we admire and extol above every other name. But every other leader we repudiate. Every other head is a usurper. Every other law proposed for the people of God is an imposition. Every other name proposed for the people of God is a deception. Every other organization than the one on the foundation laid by him, with another name, another law, an independent set of officers, and operating separately, is treason in the government of God. Our mission is to call the people back from all these side organizations to the ancient name, the first foundation, the religion of Christ itself; the gospel as it was at the beginning, to the one body, the one faith, one hope, one spirit, one immersion, and in this we have been abundantly blessed of the Lord.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

For the World's Crisis.

A HAPPY DAY.

There are many things in this world which make us sorrowful and sad. We may think we are strong at times, and rejoice in the confidence, thinking that we shall never again be brought into darkness and doubt. But how little do we realize the weakness of our hearts. How often has our treacherous heart given us the slip. Perhaps we imagined it almost impossible for anything to overcome us, we felt so strong and joyful in God. But, alas! our boasted happiness is soon gone. In an unexpected moment, when we were off our guard, we have said or done something which has spoiled all our peace. We have felt as confident as Peter; but when the test came, we were just as weak as he, and, like him, have gone away to weep and pray, and give vent to the pent-up feelings of our burdened hearts. We sorrow and weep, and go mourning because we are no more like our blessed Savior.

Many there are to-day whose comfort and happiness is spoiled because of sin; they once enjoyed heavenly fellowship with God; their songs of praise were often heard, and their happy faces shone with smiles of joy; but now all is changed; their countenances look sad and melancholy; they are restless and unhappy. Like the little barque at sea, they are tossed and driven at the mercy of the winds and waves. They often sing,

"Where is the blessedness I knew,
When first I saw the Lord?
Where is the soul-refreshing view
Of Jesus and his word?
Those peaceful hours I once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still!
But they have left an aching void
The world can never fill."

How sad it is to live in such a state as this. No rest, no peace, no comfort, no joy. Truly such a life must be dark and cheerless. Yet, there are thousands walking in just such a comfortless and unsatisfied state. Why is all this? It is because they have yielded to temptation. They have allowed sin to creep in, and the Spirit of Jesus (if they had it) has taken its flight, and they are left to mourn over their sinfulness.

Then there are many other things which spoil our happiness in this world. Death is making its fearful ravages on every side. When we have our friends around us, all in the enjoyment of health, we feel happy and cheerful; but how suddenly and unexpectedly is our circle broken. That great and awful enemy, death, has snatched a loved one from our embrace, and we are left to mourn, and to meditate in solitude upon the loved and cherished but no longer present one.

This is, indeed, a land of darkness, sadness, and death. Many are mourning over sin, and many over the loss of those they love. Our homes are made desolate, our hearts burdened with grief, our spirits riven with anguish, and we cry from the depths of our hearts, Come, Lord Jesus, and bring the happy day. How blessed it is to know there is a joyful day just before us, when we shall find deliverance from all the evils of this world. Jesus, who died on the cross, is soon coming to redeem his people and crown them with eternal blessedness. There will be no more temptation, no more sinning, no more backsliding, no more grieving of the Spirit, no more mourning. Death will never invade that peaceful clime. We shall be free from all evil, and from all liability to sin. God will make all things new. Wickedness of every description will be done away, and the glory of God shall fill the earth as the waves do the sea. The ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion, "with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads. They shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

Will not that be a happy day? How sweet will be the re-union of loved onees in that blessed morning. What songs and shouts of gladness will arise as we reach that shining shore. Glory to God! The prospect is transporting. Soon all the saints will find rest in the paradise of God. Dear Jesus, wash my heart in thy most precious and all-cleansing blood. Grant me thy Spirit to renew and transform my mind. Deliver me from all evil. Help me to live holy and walk humbly with thee, that in the day of thy coming I may be found without spot and blameless.

J. W. Thomas.

THE BIBLE.

How comes it that this little volume, composed by humble men in a rude age, when arts and science were but in their childhood, has exerted more influence on the human mind and on the social system, than all other books put together? Whence comes it that this book has achieved such marvelous changes in the opinions of mankind, has banished idol worship, has abolished infanticide, has put down polygamy and divorce, exalted the condition of women, raised the standard of public morality, created for families that blessed thing, a christian home; and crowned its other triumphs by causing benevolent institutions to spring up, as with the wand of enchantment? What sort of a book is this, that even the wind and waves of human passion obey it? What other engine of social improvement has operated so long, and yet lost none of its virtue? Since it appeared, many boasted plans of amelioration have been tried and failed; many codes of jurisprudence have arisen, run their course and expired. Empire after empire has been launched on the tide of time, and gone down, leaving no trace on the waters. But this book is still going about doing good, leavening society with its holy principles, cheering the sorrowful with its consolations, strengthening the tempted, encouraging the penitent, calming the troubled spirit, and soothing the pillow of death.

ROCHELLE TENT-MEETING.

We are now (July 2nd) attending a tent-meeting at Rochelle, Ill., with Bro. Wm. McCulloch. We arrived here Wednesday morning, June 30th, and found Bro. McCulloch, in company with Brn. A. Bailey and E. H. Burrington actively engaged in trying to lead men to Christ. The extreme wet weather had prevented the people from getting out to the meetings, but much good had been accomplished. We found that the judicious course of Bro. McCulloch and his associates had produced a very healthy influence upon the community. The Baptists had opened their house for meetings, when it was too wet to be in the tent. One Baptist minister attends the meetings and is ready to assist in the devotional exercises. Another minister has become nearly satisfied that we are preaching the truth, and thinks our meetings are the best he ever attended. We expect to hear soon that he is preaching the blessed hope.

The meeting closed on Sabbath evening, July 4th. The interest continued to increase to the last; and members of other denominations urged very hard to have the meetings continued. Some unconverted said they had never attended any meetings before where they felt interested. They could see something real in the truth as it was presented. They could understand it. It meant something. It removed the fog and mysticism which had been made to envelope the Scriptures in consequence of the popular fables taught at the present day by many professed watchmen. We learned that some ministers in the place cautioned their hearers against going to the meetings in the tent. No doubt some were kept away by this means, but quite a number of the members of the different churches became deeply interested, and three ministers came and helped us in our meetings, and showed a true christian spirit. May the Lord bless them with perfect love. One of them had been quite opposed, but became pretty well satisfied that we were declaring the truth in relation to the nature of man. He became greedy after the light on the subject, and our conviction is that he will yet see and preach the very truth he has opposed so earnestly.

If we can only get an honest man to search the Scriptures on the subjects of "life and death," the personal coming of Christ, the saints' inheritance, and other kindred truths, we have no fears but that they will see the light in which we are rejoicing. The most difficult persons we have to meet are those who are so prejudiced they will not even take the trouble to look at the reasons of our hope. They know they are right, and that we are wrong, without an examination. They cannot believe their good father and grandfather could be wrong in their religious views, because they believed just as their minister preached; who could not have been mistaken, because he was educated at a certain noted theological institution, where they had the instruction of very learned men. They talk just like the Jewish Rabbis in the days of Jesus and the apostles, and the opponents of Luther at the time of the reformation.

Saturday, July 3d, the people in Rochelle celebrated the anniversary of the American Independence. We learned that wickedness abounded during the day and evening. As we could not have meetings in the tent that day, we went to Afton, some twenty-two miles from Rochelle, and attended a "basket [illegible], who has done much to assist in spreading the glad tidings concerning the coming kingdom. On our way there, we had to go six miles by private conveyance from de Kalb. We never before went over six miles of such deep mud. It took two hours and a quarter. Some of the way the mud came up to the axle-tree. The people in New England never saw the like in the worst spring traveling. The mud was almost as black as coal. This black, rich soil is from eighteen inches to three feet in depth in Illinois.

The continued rains, and the cold weather have about spoiled the prospect for any success in raising corn this year. Some of it now (July 6th) has not yet been cultivated at all. We have not seen since we came west, a single field of corn that looked promising for a good crop. There is much satisfaction in raising corn in the west, when a single boy can cultivate some twenty or thirty acres. One man here will take care of forty or fifty acres as easily as he could four or five in New England. The land is very rich and easily cultivated, yet we prefer to live among the New England hills, where the birds in the trees carol their morning songs at early dawn; where pure air and soft water are abundant; and the eye can feast upon an ever-varying landscape of beautiful scenery, composed of hills and mountains, brooks and rivers, glens and meadows, wild flowers and ornamented gardens; all enlivened by the hum of busy industry, and sweetened by the charms of good society in happy cottage homes, where, at morn and early evening's hour may be heard the voice of song and prayer to Him in whom we live and move and have our being; and from whom comes every good and perfect gift. We say we love the old Puritan soil and homes the best.

But to return to our meetings in the west. The basket meeting that we found at the end of our tedious ride through the mud, was a pleasant occasion. We met Bro. J. Hartman there, the Methodist minister from De Kalb, with whom we united in the meeting. Most felt that it was good to be there. After the meeting, all enjoyed the dinner at the free table, which was bountifully supplied by the generosity of those who were interested in the meeting. Brn. Burrington and Bailey, from De Kalb, were also with us. We felt sure that we enjoyed the day much better than those who sought their comfort in the pleasures of the world.

We returned to Rochelle, and preached in the Baptist meeting-house again in the evening. While the mass of the people were assembled to witness a display of fire-works, we spent a happy hour in talking of the beautiful home which the christian is to forever enjoy in the coming kingdom. We felt grateful to our Baptist Brn. for letting us hold meetings in their very neat and commodious meeting-house. May the Lord bless them with more and more love for Jesus.

At the close of our meeting Sabbath evening, we found some who wished to be baptized, and arrangements were made to have the baptism the next day at 5 P. M., by Bro. McCulloch. There is an open door at Rochelle, and we hope to hear that the truth has taken root in many honest hearts that shall bear much fruit to the glory of the Lord.

Monday morning, July 5th, we took leave of our kind friends at Rochelle, and went to Chicago, where we met a hearty welcome from Bro. Ramsey, at the depot. He gave us good tidings relative to their meetings during the last two weeks. We found the church and their pastor very actively engaged in devising plans to do missionary work in the city. They have divided the entire city into some fourteen districts, and have appointed Brn. and Srs. to scatter tracts, visit the poor and find out their necessities, hold prayer-meetings, and do all they can in their respective sections to lead the people to Christ. The Lord has stirred up some noble hearts to enter into this work with earnestness. They purpose to meet every Monday evening at the Chapel, report progress, and make provision to spread the light and truth as fast as possible. Engaged in such a work, the church must prosper.

"THEIR WICKEDNESS IS GREAT."

When the prophet Joel was moved to write of the condition of society at the time of "the harvest," which Jesus informs us "is the end of the world," he says: "Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great." Our Lord also informs us that it will be as in the days of Noah and Lot when the Son of man shall be revealed. At that time there was great wickedness, and but few who loved and obeyed the Lord. There are many professed followers of Jesus, while but few appear to have real love for him, sufficient to cause them to keep his commandments. They may wear an ornamental gold cross about the neck, and append crosses to their ears; but they know nothing about the real cross of Christ, or the joy and peace that fills a true christian's heart. They have taken up with a mere shadow of christianity, that saves no one. Satan has persuaded them to accept his counterfeit; and like a man with a purse full of counterfeit money, which he has taken for genuine, they feel quite rich over that which will only fit them for a terrible disappointment, when they come to a knowledge of their true condition. Those who raise a warning voice against these things are looked upon as was Lot by the Sodomites, when he went out to tell them of the judgments that were coming upon them for their wickedness. The duty of the christian now is much like that of Jonah when he went to warn the Ninevites. It is an unpleasant work; but it must be done or terrible results will follow upon the watchman who refuses to sound the alarm. It is as truly an act of love to raise the warning voice, as it would be to sound the fire alarm when we see a neighbor's dwelling in flames.

To the reader we would say, let us be true to our fellow men, so that their blood shall not be required of us at last, because of our neglect of duty. Let us not do as did Jonah when he attempted to get around the cross of warning the Ninevites; but obey the Lord at once, and then enjoy the smiles of our Savior. We must be willing to sacrifice our good names in the cause of Christ, if we would enjoy perfect love and peace. He who is twisting all ways to get the honor of this wicked world can never be free in Christ. Wickedness abounds to an alarming extent; and if we unite in fellowship with it, our hope of eternal life will prove a failure. We must come out from the world and be separate from its spirit and manners, if we expect to be ready to meet Jesus when he comes in glory to set up his kingdom. We can not mix the world and christianity together and have any assurance of our salvation. The christian religion is the most radical of all systems. It allows no compromise with evil in any form. Only the "pure in heart" have any promise of seeing God. And yet nothing is required of us but what we can do by the help of the Lord.

PROGRESS OF CRIME IN CHICAGO.

One need not inspect very closely to be satisfied that Satan is doing a large business in Chicago. The number of beer and ale saloons is enormous. These fit up men and women for all sorts of wicked things. In the upper classes there is a large amount of fashionable wickedness. Then the popular churches bow to wealth in order to secure its patronage, and that in turn cripples them, and prevents them from exerting a reformatory influence over the people, because they see so much policy among the leading members of the churches that they come to the conclusion that they are about as safe outside as in the church. Thus things go on from bad to worse, year after year, till many come to the conclusion that there is very little if any genuine christianity left. This is no fancied picture, but the true state of things, as we learn from those who are prepared to judge in such matters. It is a sad sight to see so many rushing to destruction, when they might just as well be saved in the everlasting kingdom.

The following is from the Chicago Times:

"In an address to a meeting of Old School and New School Presbyterians, in this city, to consider the proposed basis for the reunion of those bodies, the Rev. Robert W. Patterson 'spoke of the comparatively peaceful condition of Chicago seven years ago, and of the outrageous offences against law and morality that take place now daily. He alluded to the astonishment which even Parisians and Londoners express when talking of the crimes perpetrated here.'"

The fact is notorious that, not only in Chicago, but in all parts of the world, wickedness in all its forms is rapidly increasing. People may well inquire, What do these things mean? There are no signs of the approach of the fabled conversion of the world.

THE ŒCUMENICAL COUNCIL.

The Œcumenical Council to commence at Rome, next Dec. 8th, is to be a very important affair in the history of the Roman Catholic church. It is thought it may be in session for three years. Great preparations are being made for the gathering. The Pope commands that "the patriarchs, bishops, as also us beloved sons, the abbots, and all others who, by right or privilege, are entitled to sit in general councils, and to manifest their opinions in the same, should, from all parts, repair to this Œcumenical Council, convoked by us." He further says:—"They shall be bound to attend the sacred council, unless witheld by some just impediment."

We shall look forward to this great gathering at Rome with much interest. In importance it will surpass all others held in the seven-hilled city for many centuries, and will probably be the most important ever held.

The following are some interesting items connected with the coming Council, as published in the New York Tribune. The first announcement of the Pope's design to have such a Council was made June 27th, 1867, in the great assembly at Rome, when the bishops met to canonize some saints, and celebrate the death of St. Peter. In his allocution, the Pope said:—

"We have already entertained for a long time past a project which is known to several of our venerable brethren, and we trust that that our thought may be realized as soon as the desired occasion shall present itself. Our project is to hold a sacred Œcumenical and General Council of all the Bishops of the Catholic world, in which, by collecting various opinions, we may, by common accord and with the aid of God, adopt the necessary and salutary remedies, particularly in that which concerns the many evils which now afflict the Church. By means of such a Council we have a certain hope that the light of the Catholic truth in which the minds of men are involved will shed abroad its beneficent light, and enable mankind to discern and follow, by favor of the divine grace, the true path of salvation and justice."

THE BULL OF CONVOCATION.

The bull convoking the Council was issued on the 29th of June, 1868. The causes which prompted the calling of the Council, and the mission it is expected to accomplish, are thus referred to in the bull:

"Following the practice of our illustrious predecessors, we have deemed it opportune to assemble a General Council, which we have already long desired, of all our brethren the bishops of the whole Catholic world, who are now called to take part in our solicitude. These, our venerable brethren, being prompted by the warmest love for our Catholic church, and remarkable for eminent piety, and for reverence toward us and this Apostolic See, being anxious also for the salvation of souls and excellent in wisdom, in doctrine, and erudition, and greatly lamenting with us the grievous condition of sacred and profane things, they will hold nothing more precious than to communicate to us their judgment, and to confer with us in order to provide salutary remedies for so many calamities.

"All these things have to be most carefully examined and regulated in this Œcumenical Council, more particularly with regard to all that in these evil times concerns the greatest glory of God, the integrity of the faith, the respect for divine worship, and the eternal salvation of men, the discipline of the orders of the clergy and their solid and salutary training, the observance of ecclesiastical laws, the amelioration of manners, the education of Christian youth, and the peace and concord of all. And further, the Council must seek by anxious study that by the help of God all ills may be removed from civil society, that erring wanderers may be led back into the right way of truth, and that vice and error may be eliminated, our august religion and her salutary doctrine may everywhere be quickened by fresh life, and may still further extend their influence, and thus piety, honesty, probity, justice, charity, and all the christian virtues may gather strength and flourish, to the great benefit of human society. None can ever deny that the strength of the Catholic church and her doctrine does not alone regard the eternal salvation of men, but is essential also to the temporal welfare of people, and to their real prosperity, order, and tranquility, and even to the progress and solidity of human science, as the annals of sacred and profane history clearly prove, by a series of splepdid facts, and still constantly demonstrate.

"Therefore after most fervent prayer offered up day and night in the humility of our heart to God the Father of light, we have judged it to be expedient that this Council should be assembled. For this cause, strong in the authority of God, the Father Almighty, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, and of the Holy Apostles, Peter and Paul, which authority we represent on earth, we, with the counsel and consent of our venerable brethren, the Cardinals of the holy Roman church, by these present letters, announce, convoke, and ordain the sacred Œcumenical and General Council to be holden in that our city of Rome in the coming year, 1869, in the Vatican Basilica, commencing upon the 8th day of December, sacred to the immaculate conception of the Virgin Mary, and to be prosecuted and conducted to its termination by the help of God, to His glory, and to the salvation of all christian people.

"We therefore desire and command that our venerable brethren, the patriarchs, archbishops, bishops, as also our beloved sons, the abbots, and all others who by right or privilege, are entitled to sit in general councils, and to manifest their opinions in the same, should, from all parts, repair to this Œcumenical Council, convoked by us, and to this effect we invite, exhort, and admonish them, both in virtue of the oath they have taken to us and this Holy See, and of Holy obedience, and under the penalties by law or custom, decreed against those who fail to appear at the councils. We rigorously ordain and prescribe that they shall be bound to attend this sacred Council, unless withheld by some just impediment, which, however, must in all cases be proved to the Synod by the intermediary of legitimate proxies.

"We cherish the hope that God, in whose hands are the hearts of men, showing himself favorable to our desire, may grant that, by His ineffable mercy and grace, all the supreme princes and governors, more especially Catholic of all nations, growing daily more conscious of the immense benefits which human society derives from the Catholic church, and knowing that the church is the most stable foundation of empires and kingdoms, not only will not impede our venerable brethren, the Bishops and others, from attending this Council, but will rather aid and favor this object, and co-operate zealously, as becomes Catholic princes, in all that may result to the greater glory of God and the benefit of this Council.

"Obliged to devote, without intermission, our thoughts and our cares to the salvation of all those who acknowledge and adore Jesus Christ, our eyes and heart are turned toward those churches which, formerly attached to the Apostolic church by the bonds of unity, were so flourishing by the merit of sanctity and divine knowledge, producing such abundant fruits for the glory of God and the salvation of souls, and which to-day, by the infernal arts and machinations of him who plotted in heaven the first schism, we find, to our great grief, eloined and separated from that holy Roman church which is spread throughout the whole world.

"It is for this reason that, from the beginning of our Pontificate, we have addressed you, in the fulness of our heart, words of peace and charity. And, although we have not had, by any means, the success we so ardently desired, nevertheless we have never been without hope that our humble and fervent prayers would some day be favorably received and heard.

"Now, as lately, with the advice of our venerable brothers, the Cardinals of the holy Roman church, we have indicated and convoked an Œcumenical Council. We address our words to you again, and we warn and entreat you, with all the earnestness that we are capable of, to come to this same General Assembly, as did your ancestors to the Council of Lyons, held under the blessed Gregory X., our predecessor of venerable memory, and to the Council of Florence, celebrated by Eugenius IV., also our predecessor of happy memory, to the end that renewing the laws of ancient love, and restoring to its vigor the peace of our fathers, that celestial and salutary gift of Jesus Christ, of which in time we have lost the fruits, we may see at last, after a long period of grief, in which darkness and division prevailed—we may see arise the brilliant and pure morning which we have so long prayed for."

PREPARATIONS FOR THE COUNCIL.

The preparations, which, as already stated, were begun in 1867, soon after the announcement of the Pope's intention to convoke the Council, have been actively continued ever since. The Supreme Directive Congregation is composed of seven Cardinals, six of whom are Italians and one a German. To them are joined, as consultors, several bishops and learned priests, among whom are four Italians, one Englishman (Mgr. Talbot,) one Professor of the University of Louvain in Belgium, and Prof. Hefele of the University of Tubingen, in Germany. The latter is the author of by far the best history of the Councils of the Christian church, a work of solid and profound learning, and valued by Protestants as highly as by Catholics. Under the direction of this congregation, special commissions prepare the matters to be discussed and decided upon by the bishops. There is a commission of ceremonies, a politico-ecclesiastical commission, a commission for eastern affairs, one on the religious orders and congregations, one of dogmatic theology, one of ecclesiastical discipline. Italy has, of course, a larger share in the selection of the members of these commissions than any other nation; next to Italy, Catholic Germany has furnished the largest number.

The United States are represented by Dr. Corcoran of Charleston; England, by Mgr. Talbot and Mgr. Howard. Dr. Newman was invited to assist, but declined on account of infirm health. Dr. Dollinger, the great church historian of Munich, has also been invited, but has declined the invitation. For the first time in the history of the Œcumenical Councils, thanks to the art of stenography, a literal account of the entire proceedings will be taken, and the provisions of this kind have been completed. An Austrian Bishop of note, Dr. Fessler of St. Polten, has received the appointment of Secretary of the Council. The sessions of the Council will be held in one of the large chapels of St. Peter's church, and the principal architects of Rome are actively engaged in making the necessary accommodations.

Trustworthy information on the progress of the preparations, and in general of all occurrences concerning it, is given by a periodical paper, issued at the office of the Civilta Cattolica, at Rome, and entitled "Chronicle of Matters relating to the future Council." Germany and France also have periodicals exclusively devoted to the affairs of the coming Council. Among the large number of books which have been published on the subject, that of Bishop Dupanloup of Orleans has probably attracted the greatest attention.

THE TOPICS TO BE DISCUSSED.

The names of the special Commission which we have mentioned before, indicate that the Council, like its predecessors, will extend its discussions and decisions over a large variety of subjects, embracing points of christian doctrine, ecclesiastical discipline, and politico-ecclesiastical polity. Among the subjects which are likely to attract prominent attention are mentioned the reunion of the eastern churches with Rome, the relation of the church to the modern State, especially with regard to the question of public instruction; the position of monastic orders, in the thorough reformation of which the present Pope has always taken especial interest. Many absurd and sensational reports have been published on this subject by the Roman correspondents of the political press, especially that of England. It is natural to suppose that hardly any trustworthy information will find its way to the public, except through the channel of the Roman papers.

1290 DAYS.

"BRO. GRANT:—Is there any thing in history to show that the 1290 days ended in 1824?" (1) Was it the 1260 or 1290 days that were shortened? (2) Do the 1260 days applied to the "two witdesses" represent the same period as the "time and times and half a time?" (3) That is, do they commence and end together?" B. C. BANCROFT.

(1 We do not know of any historic event that marks the termination of the 1290 days in 1824. (2) We do not see satisfactory evidence that either period of time was shortened; but think the tribulation was what should be cut short. We do not see how time can be shortened. (3) Our mind is unsettled in relation to the point involved in the last inquiry.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance.

We most fully indorse the following from one of our exchanges:—

"To many of our readers it may appear like trifling to call attention to a book like this. One might think it almost as appropriate to announce Webster's Spelling book as Cruden's Concordance. Yet, familiar as this book is to the majority of Bible students, we have reason to know that many earnest Bible readers have never owned it or learned to use it. Moreover, there are many others who own it, and to some extent use it, who need to be stimulated to use it more diligently. In studying the Scriptures it is impossible to devote too much attention to the Scripture usage of words, to parallel passages, and to explanatory facts, which can be collated only by the diligent use of the Concordance."

SPRINGFIELD CAMPMEETING.

As the time draws near for our Annual Convention and Campmeeting to be held at Springfield, we shall be under the necessity of carrying out the object of the meeting,—what it was started for in the commencement; not to give every one who wishes, the privilege of pitching a tent on the ground, in which to hold separate meetings and conventions, as some have claimed of late.

The privilege never was asked in the letters that we received, nor by the delegates from the brethren holding the "Life" views (so-called). I see by an article in the "Herald of Life," from the pen of W. S. Campbell, of June 23d, presuming or hoping that a portion of the time at this meeting would be given to their interest. Now for myself, without consulting either of the committee, I do not believe that any two parties so antagonistic in their views can work together in harmony.

The brethren who have paid their money felt very much displeased with their course pursued last year, and will feel still more so this year, if the purposes of the "Life" brethren (so-called) are carried out; who are now claiming more than they asked for at the first.

I saw this morning, for the first time, Bro. Storrs' article in his paper of Sept. 23d, of last year, entitled, "Light Wanted," calling for the money paid by the so-called "Life" brethren to fit up the ground. Bro. Storrs not having seen the vote on the subject taken by the committee, presumed too much, I think. And as he calls for the money, after having had all the privileges asked for before a blow was struck towards fitting up the ground, and after reading the two articles above referred to, I am led to say to those brethren, who paid in money to fit up the ground, and who authorized Bro. Storrs to call through the "Herald of Life" on the committee to refund it,—Let all such present their bill to me, and you shall have your money back, if I have to beg it. I am satisfied that we can never work together in the capacity of a Campmeeting and do any good.

I have written the above on my own responsibility, without consulting the other members of the committee.

And again, I believe it is the right of the committee to say what publications shall be circulated on the ground; and only such as are calculated to build up the cause of Christ should be permitted a place there.

The Young Pilgrim for July 1st.

Sweet stories, beautiful poetry, curious puzzles, and charming pictures, embellish the number for July 1st.

A good little story of the children who longed for and prayed "Thy kingdom come!" A delightful story of the sweet little girl who said "I do love Jesus." Another, showing how "children may be self-denying." Another, about "The children that helped their mother." Another, of the smart little boot-black who studied every day, "little by little," until he became one of the greatest preachers the world ever saw. Beautiful verses about "The City of our God," and "The Pilgrim Band." "What can I do for Jesus?" and what a little girl did. "Hidden Treasures," and "How to be Happy." "Jesus can save me." "Summer." "Is there any good in it?" in playing cards, going to theatres and balls, etc.

Subscriptions may commence with the July number; single copies for the year, and clubs for the year, half year, or quarter. Single copy, 50 cts. a year; 10 copies and over, each 40 cts.; 50 copies and over, each 35 cts. Address Young Pilgrim, Boston, Mass.

REPORT OF THE MORRIS GROVE MEETING.

This meeting commenced Wednesday, June 16th, P. M. The weather being unfavorable, we adjourned from the Grove to the house of Bro. Glover, and had a refreshing season of prayer and conference. In the evening preaching af the fourth district school-house, by Bro. Peter Tatro, from Joshua 24: 21. Was very glad to see him again in the field. It was a very interesting sermon, and the Spirit of the Lord directed it to the hearts of the people, and we felt much edified.

Second day. Preaching from the stand by Bro. A. D. Flagg, from 1 Cor. 15: 22. He gave an outline of the plan of redemption, which was very instructive, and the meeting closed with the best of feeling. A short intermission, after which we had a very interesting discourse from Bro. Samuel Tatro, from John 14: 18. In the evening at the school-house, sermon by Bro. A. D. Flagg. Eph. 4: 18. Then followed some interesting remarks by Bro. P. Tatro.

Third day. Sermon by Bro. Flagg. P. M., sermon by Bro. W. J. Ripley, from Prov. 11: 31. In the evening, sermon by Bro. Ripley, from Titus 2: 11. The Spirit of the Almighty rested upon him while he portrayed so beautifully the glories soon to be revealed.

Fourth day. At the grove, sermon by Bro. Flagg, from Acts 26: 15. Remarks by Brn. St. John and Tatro, after which we had a very interesting meeting. In the P. M., sermon by Bro. Flagg. Eccl. 9: 10. Evening, prayer meeting at the school-house.

Sunday. Sermon in the A. M. by Bro. S. Tatro, from Ps. 49: 8. Bro. Tatro's discourse was very instructive. He gave us conclusive evidence that the soul was the entire man, and that the redemption of us was very precious in the sight of the Lord. P. M., sermon by Bro. A. D. Flagg, from Rev. 7: 17. He gave us evident proof of the position John occupied at the time he saw the vision. Also the time that Christ will sit in the midst of the throne, and spoke encouragingly of the joys that would be ours at that time; warned us of its near approach, and exhorted us earnestly to be also ready.

During the first three days, the attendance was small on account of the weather. Sunday, they came from all parts, and the grove was filled. Altogether, the meeting was quite interesting (although there were some unfavorable circumstances which might have been avoided, had we not suffered, as Paul did, with false brethren and sisters), and we believe it resulted in much good.

N. E. SYMONDS.

For the World's Crisis.

WHY ARE WE SO FEW?

The story of the cross and our blessed religion has been the same from Calvary down to the present time. Thousands have come upon the stage of life, and with them carried the gospel news, endeavoring to send its genial rays to the dark and benighted souls far away, as well as to those around them, that others should with them rejoice in the peace salvation alone can bring to the soul.

Men in the darker ages—and women, too, noble in every department of life, have borne the cross, sounded the glad tidings abroad, and shrunk not to declare the truth before foes seeking to persecute them. They loved the truth more than personal ease, the cause of Christ more than freedom to enjoy the pleasures of their quiet homes, their loved companions, or the little ones entrusted to their care. They feared not the gloom of prison walls, were they permitted to feel they were casting bread upon the waters. They hesitated not before the burning faggot, but preached Christ to the perishing souls with unwavering faith, while they, with mocking derision, bound them to the stake, which marked the boundary of this life, hoping they might even in the waning moments of life bring others to the Lamb that taketh away the sins of the world, thus bringing them to share the glories of a future life in the kingdom. They ceased not, when the curling, hissing flames seized the tender flesh, to praise their Creator, but gave evidence of a peace no earthly joy could impart, till life became the victim of death. But despite these marked evidences of a pure religion, of a soul-elevating and soul-saving power, the majority still pursued the downward path, to end their career in despair.

At the present time, the gospel, unforbidden, can find its way to nearly all parts of the earth, its influence be thrown around all, its advocates receive aid from both the church and the world, and yet but a comparative few come to Jesus. We hear it said, "The story of the cross has one united testimony from thousands of being the most blessed cause, but they will not heed it. If one thousandth part of the proof were brought to bear upon any worldly pleasure or pursuit, they would eagerly rush to share its joys, while they are deaf to the voice that warns them of approaching danger."

Some will talk almost harshly because men will not yield at once. This should not be. Control self; practice patience; candidly take into consideration their state and condition. They are not serving Christ; they are children of darkness, with Satan for a leader, and, could he tempt our first parents to eat of the forbidden fruit, when loveliness smiled from every work of God which surrounded their beings, to the extent that Eden was given as the name of their abode, how much easier can he keep man, who is born in sin, in his service at the present time, when sin rules the plurality of earth's multitudes, lurks in every corner, is so thoroughly intermixed with every event and position of life, that with difficulty we select one here, another there, who bears the image of the divine Master.

The pleasures of life are presented in their most enticing garb; flattering inducements call their attention in the broad road; promises of wealth, power and fame are given as a stimulus to move them on, regardless of a better life. It is not easy to resist the assurances of their leader, turn from youthful associates, forsake long-enjoyed companions, to try an untried course in life. They find it hard to relinquish the hold of influence upon them. There is need of much faith to do so. Nature clings to sin. The old life must be forsaken, a new life entered upon; they feel incompetent, hesitate, the enemy takes advantage of the vacillating mind, presents the charms of life in a new phase, and, ere they are aware, they turn a deaf ear to the "still small voice."

Are we doing what we can to bring them to Jesus? Professing christianity, do we not rest too easily, do little or nothing to advance the cause, and save souls? We think professed christianity errs, laying many stumbling blocks in the way, keeping sinners away rather than bringing them to Christ. We are not watchful, but are watched, and by those who can detect every failing. If we meet to praise the Lord and warn them to flee earthly pleasures, they heed us not, because they feel we have not deep-seated piety within us; they follow us in our every-day life, and witness our wanderings in by-paths, our carelessness, our lack of faith, our want of love, our need of purity, our little meekness, and they know we do not hunger and thirst after righteousness. They see us sowing discord and strife, one at variance with another, and that before the world, forgetting it is better to keep the failing of the family within the family, seeking for the oil of grace to heal our wounds.

Let us lend a helping hand to our brother, our sister, work only in the vineyard, be patient in the Master's service, enduring as good soldiers, fight only for the right, hold up the blessed Savior, let his attributes be seen in our daily life, and we may see souls fleeing to Christ for a shelter from approaching danger.

REPORT OF THE CONFERENCE AT NORTH WHITEFIELD.

The meeting was held June 25th, at two P. M. It was cheering to see the brethren and sisters come in from twenty-one surrounding towns, and with a mind to work for the Lord. His Spirit was with the people. It was the longest conference we have ever held in that quarter. It was the first conference of a large company of young believers in Christ, and left a good impression on the minds of the people, who said it was the best meeting that they ever had in their place.

Preachers present were, A. Damon, H. D. Reed, H. S. Mitchell, G. Weeks, T. Rines, John Somes, J. Kennedy, James Dudley, F. Patterson, and George Wallace.

Voted, our next conference be held at Bristol, New Harbor meeting-house, September next. Day to be appointed by the committee.

BREWER TENT MEETING.

Our meeting in Brewer was continued from June 24th to July 4th at even, and was one which will result in gathering fruit to life eternal. The brethren and sisters in and about the place are active and earnest workers for the Lord. They were fed, edified, and strengthened. The mass of the people were attentive and candid listeners to the word, on Sundays and evenings; but it is a busy place, and but few could attend at other times. Some wanderers resolved to return to Christ, some unconverted ones sought the Lord. A good and, we trust, deep impression of the last-day message and of the Bible hope was left on the minds of many, which we hope will lead them to Christ for salvation. We are glad we pitched the tent in Brewer.

Believers came in from Bangor, Holden, Orrington, Prospect, Hermon, and other towns, and rendered efficient help, with whom we enjoyed very precious meetings, as the Lord blessed us abundantly. We were very kindly received and cared for, and our attachment to them greatly increased. We hope soon to meet them with all the dear saints in the coming kingdom of our blessed Savior.

Bangor, Me. I. C. WELLCOME.

BRO. O. R. HULS, Rockbridge, O., writes:—"There appears to be a great interest awakened in the people of this vicinity about the doctrine that is set forth in the World's Crisis. They appear awe-stricken, and wonder why it is that they have been kept in the dark so long; and when told that they are listening to the traditions of their fathers, and are not taking the word of God as the man of their counsel, they say they wish to be honest; and when they attempt to prove their pet theory, they find that they always fail.

Are there no preaching brethren passing this way, who would stop with us, and preach for us? They will find a few warm friends here. We are 'United Brethren' by name, but not united in the doctrine of eternal misery, the doctrine of immortality in this life, and the resurrection of the wicked to an immortal life."

CLAIRVOYANTS AT FAULT.—Last summer a daughter of Eli Martin of Middletown, Conn., missed a gold watch and chain, two gold breastpins, a bracelet, silver spoons, &c., and supposed they had been stolen. Two clairvoyants were consulted, who said they had been stolen, and each gave a like description of the thief. It was not thought best, however, to make an arrest, and the articles were given up as lost. About a week ago Mr. Martin pulled off some ragged plastering in one of the rooms in his house, and discovered an umbrella inside the wall, in which he found all the missing articles. It seems that Mrs. Martin, in an insane freak, placed the jewelry in the umbrella and then put the umbrella between the walls from the garret. She afterwards committed suicide by jumping into the Connecticut river.

A WESTERN STORY.—Deacon B., of Ohio, a very pious man, was noted for his long prayers, especially in his family. One Monday morning, the deacon and his wife were alone, and as was his custom, after breakfast a prayer was offered. There being an unusual amount of work that day, the deacon's prayer was short, and seizing his hat and milk pail he started for the barn. His wife, being deaf, did not notice his absence, but supposed him to be still engaged in prayer. On his return from milking he was surprised to find her still kneeling. He stepped up to her and shouted "Amen," when she immediately arose and went about her work as if nothing had happened.

Obituaries.

BAILEY. Fell asleep in Jesus, in Lewiston, Me., Jan. 31st, 1869, Sister Emily C., wife of Bro. Joseph W. Bailey, aged twenty-five years.

She professed faith in Christ about two years since. Soon after she gave him her heart she was baptized by the writer, and lived a christian until the last. When she found that she must leave her dear husband and little ones, she made all the arrangements for her funeral, and accordingly was carried to Richmond, and words of comfort were spoken by the writer. In this blow a husband has lost a kind and faithful companion, children a good mother, the church one of its dear members, and the world a true friend. May the Lord bless the afflicted family, and help them to be ready to meet her when the Life-giver comes.

J. PARTRIDGE.

CORBETT. Suddenly fell asleep in Jesus, in Richmond, Me., May 27th, 1869, Sister Martha E., wife of Bro. James Corbett, aged thirty-two years.

Our Sister, with her dear companion and a number of others of this village, had but a few weeks before sought and found the Savior, which had bound them together by the strong ties of christian affection. Our Sister seemed in haste to do up her work from the first. She was faithful to the last, and she was never heard to complain. Before she breathed her last she called her companion and charged him to be faithful, to always maintain the family altar, to keep the children together, and to meet her in the kingdom; kissed him, and fell on sleep. She leaves three children, mother and father, one sister, and brothers, with a large circle of friends and the church to mourn her loss; but we are comforted that we shall soon meet again. She was borne to the Free-will Baptist church, and words of comfort were spoken to the afflicted family and sympathizing neighbors from Job 14: 14.

JOBES. Died on the 7th of June, in Lima, N. Y., of consumption, Samuel N. Jobes, aged forty-two years.

Deceased appeared to be entirely resigned to the divine will. Although the thought of leaving his dear companion was at times very painful, yet he was calm, often exclaiming, Our separation will be a brief one; for soon Jesus will come; then we shall have a glorious meeting. He expected to rest in the grave until the resurrection morn. He was perfectly resigned in regard to the future, committing all his interests into the hands of Him who "doeth all things well." My heart is sad, yet I sorrow not as those who have no hope. He will come again from the enemy's land, where pain and death can never come.

EMELINE B. JOBES.

MCMILLAN. Fell asleep in Jesus, in Rochester, N. Y., Sr. Janet McMillan, aged fifty years.

We have lost a sister, a mother, and a much esteemed christian. May the mother's God be the orphan children's God, and her hope their hope, and her home their home forever. They request the prayers of the brethren in this their great affliction.

H. PRATT.

BARTLETT. Died, in East Boston, July 5th, Bro. Isaac Bartlett, aged sixty-seven years and seven months.

Bro. Bartlett suffered greatly the last few months of his life, but he now sleeps in Jesus.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, July 6. The appointment of Catacazi as the Envoy of Russia to Washington is regarded as an important step toward a more active policy on the Eastern question. Catacazi is charged with the duty of carrying the congratulations of the Czar to General Grant, in lieu of the special mission for which he was first intended.

MADRID, July 7. Prime Minister Prince Hohenlohe has issued a circular to foreign powers on the Ecumenical Council. He warns the Governments of the principal dangers which they ought to guard against, and particularizes the decision which the Council may announce in regard to the infallibility of the Pope, the disposition it may make of the question of church property, and other points likely to come up of an essential political character. He believes that all States having Catholic subjects are intimately concerned in the proceedings of the Council, and ought to take a common attitude. He suggests that it might be well for these powers to hold a conference and not leave the Council in doubt of their position in regard to its decision.

PARIS, July 8. The political commotion in France continues. The Emperor has decided to give way to the Chambers and change his system of government. He meets with great difficulties in his efforts to complete the new combination, but the grand event is expected in a week. The new Ministry will emerge from the Centre Gauche party between the radical minority and the adherents of the empire. The Centre Gauche are for the empire, but insist upon responsible Ministers, or Parliamentary government, the same as in England.

PARIS, July 8. The Pays to-day says that the Emperor has written a letter, from which it quotes the following declaration in regard to the Corps Legislatif:

"On the 19th of January I committed a great fault by acting without previous concert with the majority. I caused it to regard with suspicion my sentiment toward it. All my efforts should tend to regain its confidence."

The Pays does not give the address or date of the letter.

In the Corps Legislatif to-day, M. Rouher said in reply to some remarks of M. Jules Favre, that the Government and the Chambers would always agree in opposition to revolution.

LONDON, July 9. (New York Herald's special.) The Ministerial crisis in France increases in interest. The Constitutional opposition in the Corps Legislatif declare their ultimatum to be the retirement of the Minister of State, M. Rouher. While the Emperor desires his retirement he is reluctant to dismiss him on account of his ability and his devotion to the Imperial Government. M. Rouher's failure to comply with the wish of the Emperor and tender his resignation is severely criticised. Yesterday the proprietor of one of the leading journals said to him: "M. Rouher, your time has come; clear out." "I know it," answered M. Rouher, "but my wife won't resign." This is literally true; Madame Rouher objects to giving up the honors which she receives at the palace as the wife of the chief of the Emperor's ministry. The Emperor will wait a while before insisting upon the unavoidable resignation until this little domestic trouble of his Minister can be arranged. The majority of the Assembly are opposed to the propositions demanded by the members of the left centre, which are as follows: First, a responsible ministry. Secondly, autonomy of the Legislative Assembly. The Emperor is therefore obliged to temporize with the majority, whom he does not wish to openly defy, hence the present dead lock, which must end in the course of the present week.

BREST, July 11. A dispatch from on board the Great Eastern reports that up to Saturday noon she had run 2023 knots from Brest, and paid out 2287 knots of cable. The work was proceeding without interruption.

MADRID, July 11. Much political agitation prevails in Lisbon, and the Government is taking unusual precaution to prevent an outbreak.

DOMESTIC.

New York, July 8. A late Kingston, (Jamaica) paper has the following: "Special advices from Porto Rico announce that a great revolution against Spain has broken out in that Island. The city of Ponce has been set on fire by the insurgents and nearly burned to the ground. Circulars have been distributed ordering the negroes and the natives to burn all houses marked with blood. All the houses of wealthy Spaniards were thus designated, but those who owned them were not discovered, however. Some of the most prominent were killed after the fires. During the confusion several soldiers were also killed, and the authorities did not attempt to maintain order.

Most of the richest families have left for St. Thomas, en route for Europe and the United States. Many poor people fled to the mountains. The overseers of the neighboring plantations and the white laborers have been conscripted by the authorities.

A general uprising was momentarily expected. The soldiers were mostly raw recruits from Spain, and were rapidly dying of yellow fever. The revolutionists were becoming bolder and were only awaiting the yellow fever to continue a little longer its deadly work before commencing an active warfare. The negroes, too, had of late displayed much dissatisfaction and many had left their masters and escaped to the mountains, where the revolutionists are fast congregating in large numbers."

Montreal, July 7. Letters from Jeff. Davis, now at Paris, renders it doubtful if his health will ever permit his return. If he recovers sufficiently to permit travel, he will spend the summer in Canada.

CHINESE LABORERS FOR THE SOUTH.—A contract has been made in San Francisco for the supply of twenty thousand Chinese laborers, to be employed as plantation hands in the State of Tennessee. The very faithful and intelligent manner the Chinese laborers performed their work in constructing the Central Pacific Railroad has attracted attention to this unsurpassed class of rough laborers. It is understood that the passage of these laborers will be paid twenty dollars per month. Another force of twenty-five thousand is being contracted for to proceed to the State of Mississippi.

FLORAL BEAUTY OF THE BLACK HILLS.—A correspondent of the Chicago Times, writing from Wyoming Territory, says that for nine months in the year the sides and summits of the Black Hills are bedecked and adorned with the greatest variety and grandest display of flowers and wild fruits that ever grew from the soil. Every hill-side, nook, valley, lawn, plain and peak, from early April until late December, is georgeously arrayed in countless thousands of flowers of every color, form and size, applicable to the season, and wearing a smiling beauty to welcome each dawning day.

Passing Events.

☞ The disease, known to the ancients as leprosy, is making sad havoc among the inhabitants of the Sandwich islands. This scourge attacks old, middle-aged and young of both sexes. In one group may be seen an aged woman, stalwart man in the prime of life, the girl in her teens, the schoolboy and child of four years of age. All bearing the distinctive and never to be forgotten marks of leprosy. The ears of one are swollen, another's hands are deformed, the fingers being drawn into the palms of the hands and one or more joints gone from each finger, while another's face is so swollen and disfigured that his own friends find it hard to recognize him. There is no cure for his horrible affliction. Its victims are all sent to an island devoted entirely to their occupation, and are compelled to remain there for life.

☞ There is a rock in Jacksonville, Alabama, discovered two years ago, that has plain cyphers of 1870 in large figures upon its face, and the cyphers are evidently formed there by the same hand that formed the rock; for it is plain to be no device of man. And equally mysterious, the discoverer being directed to it by a voice from a person that he could not see, and the voice said the cyphers were a living witness of a new era in the world's history, and of the terrible day spoken of soon to come.

☞ Myriads of grasshoppers have appeared on the line of the Sacramento and Placerville (Cal.) Railroad, and it is represented that they were so thick that the wheels of the locomotives passing up and down the road frequently slipped, making it necessary to use sand.

☞ The railroad carriage factories in France have received orders to supply 60,000 wooden seats, each provided with four strong cords, and thus to be suspended from the roofs of the freight cars, for the purpose of transporting large bodies of troops.

☞ Thus far we have heard of the drowning of about forty persons by the late terrible deluge in Kansas. It was the heaviest flood ever known in that region, and the extent of the damage cannot be estimated.

☞ France is well prepared to fire grand salutes or make her enemies dance to a lively set of balls. She has 8,845 guns, the bulk of which are new rifled cannon, With this ordinance, the Emperor ought to be able to maintain his ordinances.

☞ The National Methodist campmeeting at Round Lake is a great success. Upward of five hundred persons were present yesterday. Clergymen from all parts of the country are in attendance.

☞ There is so much dissatisfaction in New Zealand with the conduct of the English Government toward the colony regarding the war with the aborigines that there are actually threats among the colonists of a severance from British authority.

☞ It is understood that so soon as the Great Eastern returns to Europe she will take fresh cable on board and start for India to lay a line between Bombay and Suez.

☞ The celebration of the opening of the Suez Canal has been postponed till Nov. 17 by official proclamation.

☞ A Richmond negro, who bought his freedom eighteen years ago, is now worth $50,000, and owns the largest livery stable in Virginia.

☞ Nearly all the Poles believe the next year will witness the restoration of their nation in all its freedom and glory.

☞ A wise man of Canada finds that the frogs are building their nests in the middle of ditches, and predicts a dry summer.

☞ Numbers of ladies are becoming newspaper reporters in New York.

Notices.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The Tremont Campmeeting will commence Monday, July 19th, and continue over the following Sunday. Ample arrangements will be made for board and lodging for those who cannot bring tents with them, but all who can are requested to bring tents. Bro. E. G. Kingsbury, of Chelsea, will be on the ground with his large tent, which will seat nearly one thousand. Now, brethren and sisters, you who can arrange to devote one week in such a meeting as this in the service of God, for the salvation of souls, and the renewing of your own spiritual strength, come up to this feast of tabernacles. The location is excellent, free from dust, and many other annoyances which often attend such gatherings.

All who expect to attend are requested to be on the ground at the commencement of the meeting, to secure a full share of its benefits; and pray that the blessing of God may attend this effort, which has been so fully realized in years past. Bro. Geo. T. Adams will probably secure a reduction of fare on the Old Colony Rail Road for those who come through Boston.

By order of the Committe of Arrangements,
HENRY V. DAVIS.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

Circumstances are such, that the committee have decided that it will be best for the Alton Bay campmeetimg to commence Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over the 12th. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee, J. G. SMITH.

Still on Zion's Hill.

The meeting under the tent will close Sabbath evening, July 18th. We have thus far had a glorious meeting. The Lord has blessed. The truths of the gospel are getting hold of the good people in that vicinity. Brethren, come and help us, and pray for us that this meeting may wind up with a glorious triumph. Meetings Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday evenings. ENOCH MORRILL.

Tent Meeting at Waterloo, N. H.

Providence permitting, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched near Waterloo Depot, about two miles north of Warner Village, on Thursday, Aug. 5th. Meetings to hold day and evenings through the week, and over the Sunday following. Brethren will bring their own provisions and bedding. Come to labor for the lost and perishing.

D. M. LEAVITT.

J. C. SHOREY, Tent Master.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched on the Messer Place (so called,) on the road leading from Laconia to Lake Village, N. H. Meetings to commence July 24th, and hold over two Sundays. Meeting free for all. Come, brethren and sisters, to work for the Lord. Preaching brethren are invited, such as the Lord sends.

D. M. LEAVITT.

J. C. SHOREY, Tent Master.

The Tent in Bangor, Me.

The Maine Mission Tent was pitched in Bangor, July 7th, where we have been gathering the masses to hear the word. The prospects are good, and the work will go on. We remain this week, and over the Lord's day, July 18th, if not longer.

Tent Meeting, Camden City, N. J.

On account of the deep and increasing interest manifested in the Tent meeting now being held in Camden City, N. J., it has been voted by the churches and congregation to continue it perhaps two weeks longer, or as long as the interest demands. Preaching three times Sundays and five evenings of each week, by Elders H. K. Flagg, J. G. Hook, and others.

R. WILLARD.
J. M. SPEILER.
J. N. WELFONG.

Conn. and R. I. Campmeeting.

OAK GROVE ADVENT CAMP, WINDHAM, CONN.

There will be a campmeeting at the above mentioned place, commencing Saturday, Aug. 14th, and continuing eight days. This is a new field, and offers many encouragements for one of the best meetings ever enjoyed. The word of invitation is to churches, families, and individuals. One and all, far and near, come up to the feast.

You will find beauty and convenience of location. The ground is situated on the Providence, Hartford and Fishkill R. R., five miles east of Willimantic, and half way between Waldo's and South Windham stations. Cars will stop on the ground, which will be known as the Oak Grove Advent Camp. Efforts will be made to obtain reduction of fare on H. P. and F., N. and W., and Northern and New London R. R., and perhaps others. Those who come from New London or Palmer will change cars at Willimantic. The grove is as clean as a carpet, free from dust, and has an excellent spring of water close by.

Your expenses can be light. The committee hope to bring this meeting as near to the old-fashioned campmeetings in simplicity and power as possible. The expense of the ground is nothing, and its fitting up trifling, so that no heavy burdens will be thrown upon those who come. Board not exceeding 75 cts. per day; also arrangements for individual boarding. Rooms in a neat, unoccupied house near by, to let cheap, for cooking and lodging purposes. Lodgings in private families for those who apply early, at most reasonable rates. Rich pasturing for horses, at one shilling per day, or from 50 cts. to 75 cts. per week; also feed in stables, at low prices.

The object of this meeting is to carry the light of Divine truth into this new field; to proclaim aloud the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ; to teach transgressors their ways, that sinners may be converted to God, flee the "wrath to come," and "lay hold on eternal life." We trust none will come for strife or controversy with their brethren, nor to press some side issue; such will meet no favor. But we exhort all to come in the spirit and power of Elijah's God, to be workers together with God against unbelief and sin. We assuredly expect the Lord with us.

We say again, Come. The whole region around the ground waits to welcome us and bid us come. Let distant churches unite to get fares reduced on their respective R. Roads. Bring your tents, also ample bedding for each individual. May the Spirit of God summon the host.

I. B. POTTER,
B. HITCHCOCK,
E. BELLOWS,
H. F. CARPENTER, } Committee of Arrangements.

P. S. By team the Camp is eighteen miles southwest from Danielsonville; fifteen west of Plainfield; four south of Scotland, and three from Windham Centre, Ct.

Notice.

Brethren of Vermont, Greeting:—We want a campmeeting in our own State, and it has seemed to me for some time that we could have it. I have talked with the brethren in Bridgewater, Densmore Hill, Bethel, and Marshfield, also with two from Springfield, and all that I have seen are for having such a meeting. We need in connection with it a State conference.

Brethren, I think it would be for the glory of God for us to have such a meeting and conference, and you who are in favor of it, let us hear from you in some way as to the time and place. I am not particular myself, but I should think it would be best to have it as soon as we can after the Alton Bay meeting. We doubt not our brethren of Mass. and N. H. would assist us.

Will some brother, or brethren, if they know of a good location for a meeting, let us know where? There is a good place in Bethel, on Camp Brook, where we held our grove meeting the 4th, two miles from railroad, not hard to get to, a splendid grove. I should like to have it there. Let us hear from you soon, brethren.

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Special Notice.

Shall those in Indiana, who look for the coming of the Lord, meet in a conference capacity this year? If so, it is time the matter was understood. If I mistake not, the "Indiana Christian Conference" has not met since August, 1866. In 1867, a part of the members of said conference went into an organization called the "Gospel Association," which has had one or two meetings. But as this Association has tests to which many of the brethren will not submit, it is earnestly desired that the members of the "Indiana Christian Conference" meet and re-organize next August. I want to hear from all Christians in Indiana who look for the Savior in regard to this matter. Do not neglect it now, but write immediately. Address

G. W. GREEN, Memphis, Clark Co., Indiana.

Conn. Conference.

The Conn. A. C. Conference will hold its next quarterly session at Cheshire Street, Conn., to commence with preaching Wednesday evening, July 21st, at half past seven. The first business session will be held on Thursday afternoon, at half past two. Let every preacher be present at that time, if possible, and all the churches be sure to send delegates in season. Now, brethren, do not fail to be prompt in attending to this call.

Those coming via Meriden will find conveyance at the depot to meet the noon trains north and south. Those coming via. Plainville on Canal R. R. will be met at the Cheshire Depot on the 1-20 train south. Strangers coming with their own teams, inquire for Cheshire Street (not Centre), as the Street is four miles north east of the Centre.

B. HITCHCOCK.

Campmeeting.

The Campmeeting in Maine, to commence about the 23d of August, will be held in Pittsfield, on the Drew farm, about two miles from the village. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the poor and the preachers to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting. In behalf of the Committee,

I. DAMMAN.

Grove Meeting in Ohio.

There is to be a two days meeting, commencing at three o'clock P. M., Saturday, July 17th, in the beautiful grove near the Olentanzy Church, on Bro. Martin Bacon's farm, four miles east of Bucyrus. Bro. H. G. McCullock and others will be present to preach the word. All are invited to attend. Inquire for Martin or Dexter Bacon. Will our friends in Ohio, who cannot come, pray for us?

H. A. KING.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held at Rogersville, Steuben Co., N. Y., commencing Saturday, July 17th, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the Sabbath. Sister E. S. Jennings is expected to be at this meeting. D. COGSWELL.

Grove Meeting at Westfield, Pa.

There will be a grove meeting at Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa. (near the village), commencing Friday, Aug. 27th, to continue over the Sabbath following. C. F. Sweet, D. Cogswell, and others, are expected to preach the word. All are invited to attend. For the brethren, J. W. TAYLOR.

Notice.

"As ye would that others should do unto you, so do you even unto them."

The little church at Week's Mills, China, Me., are trying to build a meeting-house, and they need help to finish it from those who observe the above rule. It will require about $200 to complete it. Now let all who are interested in the cause of Christ, and are able, do something for this enterprise. All monies may be sent to Alton C. Doe, Week's Mills, China, Me. Small and large gifts will be very acceptable, and they should be forwarded immediately. In behalf of the church,

ALLEN DAMON.

Notice.

The Second Advent Christian Church of Rochester, N. Y., will hold meetings in their new hall, New York State Arsenal, corner of Monroe and Jackson streets, as follows: Sundays, prayer and conference meeting at 10 A. M. Sunday school at 12½ P. M. Preaching at 2 and 7½ P. M. The weekly prayer meetings: Tuesday and Friday evenings, of each week. The regular monthly church and covenant meeting will be held the Friday evening (7½ o'clock) before the first Sunday in each month. JAS. E. WELLS, Cor. and Rec. Sec.

Voice of the West, please copy.

Notice.

Whereas we are holding a protracted meeting in East Weymouth, and there will be a campmeeting in Tremont the last of July, and the National Campmeeting in Springfield, Mass., in August, it is thought advisable not to hold a State Quarterly Conference till after these general gatherings are over.

S. W. THURBER, President.
P. S. BUTLER, Secretary.

Special Notice.

There are five men in Westfield named E. Owen, and my letters are seriously delayed and much confusion results from persons writing me, failing to address Lock Box, 618. E. OWEN.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrible, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

MY DYING LINDA.

How solemn the hour, 'tis the triumph of death!
Disturb not the dying with tears,
The conflict has come, she is yielding her breath,
And closing up nineteen frail years.
Be still, troubled heart, thy loss is her gain;
Oh, soon will she sweetly be sleeping,
Forever released from sighing and pain,
Reposing in angelic keeping.

Thy touch, cruel monster, may prostrate the just,
But failing they fear not thy sting;
On Zion's new morning they'll rise from the dust,
And glad songs of victory sing.
Then let thy shaft fly, and number my child
With the millions thine arrows have slain,
Thy hand cannot wrest from that spirit so mild
The pledge of her living again.

How memory dwells on the past happy hours
Of Linda, her childhood and home,
When with her fond playmates she gathered the flowers,
Unconscious of sorrows to come.
She dreamed not of lingering and wasting disease,
That chills like the cold autumn day,
Which changes the foliage of beautiful trees,
And turns their green leaves to decay.

I yield to thy holy will, merciful God,
Whose judgments are wisdom and truth;
My loved one is sealed with the peace-speaking blood
Of the Savior she found in her youth.
I know she'll awake, and be led by her Lord
To drink of the life-giving river;
And witness the wonders of Eden restored,
And dwell with the ransomed forever.

Ye slumbering saints, the moment draws near
When the reapers will visit each tomb;
Their shoutings will startle each blest sleeper's ear,—
"The harvest, the harvest is come!"
And thy gathered ones, Lord, from land and from sea,
With angels shall join in the story,
Of sovereign Grace, that brought them to be
At home with the King in his glory.

PENCILINGS OF A PILGRIM.

CRITICISM.

Criticism comes legitimately within the province of the newspaper press. It is this critical, sifting, scrutinizing element attaching to journalism that makes the press so powerful an educator. It is also according to the genius of the gospel to "reprove, rebuke, exhort;" to "prove all things; hold fast that which is good," and throw the rest away. We are encompassed with infirmities. Errors and imperfections are the common heritage of mortals. There is no occasion for vanity or censoriousness. Nevertheless, we may "bear one another's burdens" by timely suggestions, friendly criticisms, and faithful reproofs, and thus secure a greater amount of usefulness and a higher development. Some of our weaknesses are innate, and require the pruning knife to go deep in order to be effectual. On the other hand, many of our blunders are acquired, and may be corrected by a little painstaking. We are creatures of habit. Imitation is a prominent characteristic of human nature. We often take on the peculiarities of those for whom we entertain a high respect. Before we are aware of it, we are exhibiting certain mannerisms that sit gracefully, because naturally, upon others; but awkwardly, because artificially, upon ourselves. Allow me to touch a few points where those who really desire to improve will find it quite within their power to do so. "He is my friend, who tells me of my faults."

MURDERED WORDS.

Words are the vehicles of thought. Good thoughts are worthy to be conveyed in good language. What is worth doing at all, is worth doing well. The masses can hardly be expected to attain any great proficiency in using words with philosophical or even grammatical exactness. The language of the populace, though sufficiently intelligent for all practical purposes, will continue to be marred with all kinds and degrees of blemishes. But this need not and ought not to be the case with public speakers. Language is their staple commodity, and it ought to be used with a fair degree of ease and accuracy.

A public teacher, whose words are so powerful in moulding the sentiments and souls of listening thousands, has no right to be reckless of his vocabulary. He may not be able to learn a dozen languages, but he can attain a tolerably correct knowledge and use of his own mother tongue. It is sheer carelessness —not to say laziness—that makes many a minister a life-long murderer of the English language. A little personal discipline, coupled with a habit of observation in reading and hearing, would soon be crowned with success in rectifying at least the baldest blunders that are currently made. I grant that a pious ignoramus is far better than a polished sinner, to preach the gospel. But if the various pulpits of the land could be relieved of a large number of both classes, perhaps the world would be better off.

I have known men to be licensed to preach, who never learned to spell "license" correctly; and in talking they always use this word as though it were a plural noun. Thus: "The Church gave me a license, but I have seldom used them." I have heard pulpit occupants say "doctr*ing*" for doctrine; "brethr*ing*" for brethren; "cert*ing*" and "certingly" for certain and certainly; "mounting" for mountain; "mornin'," "meetin'," "comin'," "dyin'," etc., for morning, meeting, coming, and dying; "sot" for sat; "oncest" for once; "luridicous" for ludicrous; "tex" for text; "prevade" for pervade; "magicians" with the hard sound of "g"; and "debauchery" with "ch" hard, as though it were spelled "debaukery." Many, especially in New England, have an affected way of omitting the sound of "r" in their words. Thus they pronounce Lord, "Laud"; more, "moah"; girl, "gull"; church, "chuch"; fire, "fiah;" water, "watah"; murder, "muddah"; heart, "hot," etc. These are only specimens of what might fill a volume.

Perhaps the reader will be better prepared to decide whether these are beauties or blemishes, by a practical example. Here it is:

"I oncest had an appointment to preach in a certing chuch, situated on a high mounting. It was a fine mornin', and the people kept comin' moah and moah till the house was full. The Laud gave me a tex, and if ever I preached with powah, it was certingly in that meetin'. As soon as I sot down, the brethring backed up the doctring I preached. The watah flowed from many eyes, and the fiah bunt in many hots. The Sperit of the Laud prevaded the place. Foah gulls lost their strength. Some said it was a luridicous scene, but a moah gloriouser meetin' I never attended!"

SING-SONG.

Some well-meaning persons fall into a regular sing-song, whenever they get a little earnest in exhortation or prayer. I am informed that certain brethren never feel satisfied with their religious exercises, until they strike the sing-song key. They seem to have imbibed the erroneous notion that such a tone is the special result of divine influence. They are entirely mistaken. It is nothing more nor less than habit; and a very unfortunate one, too. Such a habit may consist with deep piety, but it is not at all the result of it. It is a false religious education that leads us to measure a man's piety by any such manifestations. The basest hypocrisy is sometimes glossed over with sympathetic whines and sanctimonious tones. To persons of intelligence and taste the sing-song style must ever be repulsive and unprofitable.

Nothing is so powerful as simplicity. True eloquence gushes out in natural strains. Let none imagine that I am opposed to earnestness. Nay, let us have more of it. We need mightier demonstrations of gospel power all over the land. Let the fire of salvation burn and the waves of glory roll! Never let this feeble voice be raised to hush the rising and swelling tide! Never let this hand be outstretched to steady the ark of God! But let the outworkings of the Spirit within us be natural, free, and scriptural. Let us guard against whatever is artificial and affected.

If we find ourselves running in unfortunate grooves of thought, or speech, or feeling, or action, let us get out of the rut. It is best to break up bad habits, and cultivate whatever is "pure and lovely, and of good report." Let us have more earnest talk. Let us have more thrilling song. But keep the two exercises distinct. Leave it for Jews and Catholics to indulge in simpering tones and senseless sing-song. A. A. PHELPS.

THE KINGDOM NEAR.

"So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."—Luke 21: 31.

The long dreary winter is past. Again I hear the sweet notes of the Spring birds' happy song, as they skip and carol full of glee. The mountain streamlet has broken its icy fetters, and now goes foaming and sparkling onward, far away. The gentle, refreshing showers are restoring the colors in old earth's faded carpet, and waking up the pretty flowers, that so long have been sleeping in their snowy beds. Concealed from mortal sight, the hidden forces of nature work out their appointed tasks in silence, but without mistake or delay; and when the soft spring winds from southern lands and tropic isles breathe over the verdureless landscape, lo! the buds pierce their green veils, the leaves shake out their folds, and all nature is teeming with new life and beauty. When we see these things come to pass, we know that summer is nigh at hand; "so likewise," we see unmistakable signs that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand, even at the door.

We fully believe the long, dark night of sin and death is almost over. The glorious morning is soon to dawn, when Zion's light shall come. Already the genial rays of the Sun of Righteousness seem to light the eastern sky. Soon the voice of the great Life-giver will pierce the tombs; earth's sleeping saints will come forth and join the happy number that rise to meet their Lord. Oh, joyful meeting! Oh, blissful day! Dear Savior, let thy kingdom come. We long to join in the song of redemption, and crown thee Lord of all.

"Watchman, in that golden city,
Seated on his jasper throne,
Zion's King, enthroned in beauty,
Reigns in peace from zone to zone.
There on sunlit hills and mountains,
Golden beams serenely glow;
Pearly streams and crystal fountains
On their banks sweet flowerets grow.

Watchman, see! the land is nearing,
With its vernal fruits and flowers;
On, just yonder, O, how cheering,
Bloom forever Eden's bowers.
Hark! the choral strains there ringing,
Wafted on the balmy air;
See the millions, hear them singing,
Soon the pilgrims will be there."

STAR OF HOPE MISSION.

BRO. GRANT:—The Lord is with us at the "Star of Hope Mission." Such meetings as we are having; it would pay to come quite a distance to enjoy one of them. There is such a contrast in the meetings now and when I came home sick, so few then came out to the meetings. Our Mission House is now packed in every hole and corner, and if you get in on Sunday nights you must come in good time. We have been asking the Lord to give us a larger place, but no higher rent. So this week a city missionary said to me, "Sister Smith, I don't see how you get along and do so many things, with so little room. And when you have any thing extra going on and want a larger room, you can have our hall; it will hold four times as many as yours, and you can have it and welcome."

Glory to God! who can say he does not hear and answer prayer? I will love him as long as I live. Yesterday was the fourth of July, and a wonderful day at the "Star of Hope." It was just a week since nineteen of our folks were buried with Christ in baptism, and you that know any thing about the colored people may know what kind of a day we had of it. We came together at six o'clock in the morning, all that were seeking a deeper work of grace, to tell the dealings of God with us; and such a meeting—it can't be told; it held till a quarter of nine. Such happy souls, such deep experiences. I thank God for a religion that we know we have, because we feel it.

At ten o'clock we went to the City Mission, to a general class or experience meeting of laborers from all the different wards, and it did us good. We had thought nobody was troubled as we were, but we found by the experiences we heard yesterday, that all who labor for God must suffer trials alike. My heart was cheered like Paul at the "Three Taverns." I took courage and went on.

At two o'clock we took charge of the Sunday School. At half-past three we had our prayer and conference meeting. At five I stepped out of the meeting and went with the city missionaries to No. 6 Clark St., to out-door preaching; this was the first time I ever preached in the street, and it was a new thing for a woman in the streets of New York city. Such a mass of people; all kinds, colors, sizes and ages. We had permission from the Mayor, and policemen to keep order; but it was very quiet considering the motley mass collected together. When I looked around and saw so many young girls, I felt impressed to tell some of my experience, how the Lord dealt with me when quite young, and how I found the Savior when a child. It seemed to have a good effect, and many were melted to tears.

Opposite where we stood was a house of disrepute, of white inmates; and as I related the case of a young girl which came under my observation, how she had left her father and mother, and came to this city to lead a life of shame, and how her poor mother grieved about her, and we believed there were some within the sound of our voice that had done the same thing,—there was a woman in this house opposite standing at the window. How she cried. We saw we were telling her sad story also. She kept wiping the tears away all the while I was talking; and after I closed, Bro. Davis, an old man who had been a street preacher two years, prayed, and the Lord helped him. It seemed as though this poor girl's heart would break. My sympathies were aroused, and I shall visit that house as soon as an opportunity offers. These poor creatures, as soon as you mention the name of mother, are nearly killed.

Last Friday I went through Green St. with one of our city missionaries. This is a street with some seven blocks of fashionable houses of disrepute. As we went from house to house, giving out tracts, we saw some who were beautiful. About five or six o'clock they dress up, and sit at the windows and out on the steps; and I thought some of them were the handsomest creatures I ever saw. The houses were painted nicely outside, and furnished in style inside; and they were just as polite as could be, dressed in the most tempting and fascinating manner, and every thing as clean as possible.

I stood in astonishment and looked at them, and thought in my very heart, O God! is there no way to save these poor, miserable souls? Such beauty, such talent, such education, as some of them have, such music, all, all wasted, all used for the devil, all used to decoy and lead men and women astray; and I do not wonder either; every thing to captivate, and to the inexperienced it seemed as though all were happy.

O, my sisters, my heart is stirred way down deep, and I shall put forth all the effort I can to reach some poor children, and bring them out of that street, and send them home to their heart-broken mothers. My field is large already, but I can reach a little further than these souls, and help some poor widow's prayers to be answered who has a daughter, but knows not where, that she may return home to her roof once more. Every once in a while the devil hits me a knock, and tries to hedge up my way; but every time he only knocks me into a larger field. Glory to God! he is more than all that can be against me.

There are some that would like to see the little mission die, but it is like the vessel anchored in the harbor; the more the winds blow and the hurricanes roar, the tighter the anchor gets in foundation below. The "Star of Hope" never prospered more, spiritually, than now; never was there such an entire consecration, never such a spirit of working for souls, as there has been the past month. The whole membership is in good working order, and the Lord is blessing us and giving us souls for our hire.

Now you, who feel for our mission, will you go with us at the hour of twelve every day, and ask God for his sustaining grace? I do not ask for money, though I need it, but my heavenly Father knows what I have need of better than I can tell him. But I do ask your earnest prayers, and the sympathies of those suffering saints who know it is that I may be immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

"Through tribulation deep,
The way to glory is,"

Bro. J. K. Bellows preached for us last evening, after which we received by the right hand of fellowship eight more that have lived out their probation and walked worthy of their profession. So you see yesterday was a busy day, and so it has been ever since I have been able to work; but I feel rest will come by and by, for there is one that remains for the people of God. Yours in the highways and hedges, ANNA E. SMITH.

MILK AND HONEY.

I do love the "sincere milk of the word." The land of Canaan is represented as a land flowing with "milk and honey." David, speaking of the words of God, says, "How sweet are thy words unto my taste; yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth." A full soul may loathe the droppings of the honey-comb, but they who hunger and thirst after righteousness long for the sincere milk of the word, that they may grow thereby.

Doctrines are good in their place; indeed, they are as indispensable as the bones in the bodily frame; but I do not particularly admire bones with all the flesh and sinews removed. Knotty points may be the favorite portions of Scripture with some, but while I love the whole blessed Bible as it is, yet I do not seek for hard things, or things "hard to be understood," but love to dwell upon those portions that are so plain that he who runs may read, and and the "way-faring man though a fool" need not misunderstand.

How precious are the Psalms of David, and many portions of Isaiah and the other prophets. Yes, there are mines of precious ore in the Old Testament Scriptures; yet we have a still more glorious and full revelation in the New. Praise the LORD for the free gift of his blessed word!

It cannot be all in vain that the Bible is so universally circulated through the world. What other book has ever had so large a circulation? It is within reach of almost every person who can read. And it is the purpose of God that his word shall not return void. It will accomplish its destined mission. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

Webster, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

NOT KNOWING.

I know not what shall befall me, God hangs a mist o'er my eyes,
And so each step in my onward path he makes new scenes to rise,
And every joy he sends me, comes as a strange and sweet surprise.

I see not a step before me, as I tread on another year,
But the past is still in God's keeping, the future his mercy shall clear,
And what looks dark in the distance, may brighten as I draw near—

For perhaps the dreaded future has less bitter than I think,
The Lord may sweeten the waters before I stoop to drink,
Or if Marah must be Marah, he will stand beside its brink.

It may be he has waiting for the coming of my feet,
Some gift of such rare blessedness, some joy so strangely sweet,
That my lips shall only tremble with the thanks they cannot speak.

O, restful, blissful ignorance! 'Tis blessed not to know,
It keeps me so still in those arms which will not let me go,
And hushes my soul to rest in the bosom that loves me so!

So I go on not knowing; I would not if I might,
I would rather walk in the dark with God, than go alone in the light,
I would rather walk with him by faith, than walk alone by sight.

My heart shrinks back from trials which the future may disclose,
Yet I never had a sorrow but what the dear Lord chose,
So I send the coming tears back with the whispered word, "He knows." —M. G. Brainard.

MY ANTI-TOBACCO CREED.

"I believe, and therefore have I spoken."

I believe that tobacco is a rank poison. Science ascribes to it all the attributes of poison; and if its votaries are not poisoned to death, it is owing to counteracting causes.

I believe that its common use is not only expensive, filthy, and injurious to the BODY, but that it deadens the moral sensibilities, renders the mind abnormal, and creates an impervious casement about the soul, which tends to repel all gospel appeals. The gospel has a poor chance with a sinner intrenched in this narcotic.

I believe that but few of our smoking young men attend any church with any regularity, and few that do attend become converted to Christ; and, unless these few renounce their idol, they usually make shipwreck of hope and dishonor the church.

I believe the good men in our churches, who are victims of tobacco, are manifestly stupid when they smoke, and fidgety and irritable when they don't smoke, and the habit is a prodigious drawback upon their power to do good. Christians all imbued with the "higher life," who live near God, don,t smoke. They are above it.

I believe that tobacco tends to destroy the usefulness of christian ministers who use it. It makes them slaves, and does much to paralyze their energies in relation to christian enterprises. Enveloped in clouds of smoke, their pipe, cushioned-chair, and fashionable literature, take the place of Christ and revivals of religion in their souls. Men of the Whitefield, Wesley, Finney, and Beecher type dont smoke.

I believe that tobacco creates and incessantly feeds an appetite for alcohol, and hangs like a mill-stone on the neck of temperance. Move heaven and earth as you may, by eloquence and legislation, still, intemperance will rage like a prairie-fire, till you strike at its mighty feeder, its mighty causes—and tobacco is one.

I believe that the masses in our cities and villages cannot be converted so long as submerged in alcohol and tobacco. "Strains as sweet as angels use" have little more effect on them than the winds of heaven on the bodies of dead men. If they cannot relinquish their idol, how can they be saved?

I believe that whole nations are besotted by deadly narcotics; that China is drunk on opium and tobacco; and that whilst such obstacles—more insuperable than Chinese walls—block up the way the conversion of the world is a hopeless enterprise—George Trask.

THE PITCHER IN THE DESERT.

There is a pleasant story told of a man living on the borders of an African desert, who carried daily a pitcher of water to the dusty thoroughfare, and left it for any thirsty traveler that might pass that way.

There is something so quiet, so genial and unselfish in this little act of kindness, that it meets an instinctive response from the common heart. It is such a little thing, and yet so full of blessing to the weary pilgrim panting with thirst amid burning wastes and under tropical skies. There is such an outgleam of goodness in the humble deed, that it touches our hearts with impulses of kindness and sympathy for the needy and sorrowing, the weary and afflicted.

But not alone in African deserts may such deeds be done. The world is a spiritual Sahara, a vast desert, full of pilgrims wayworn and weary, to whose fainting lips may be pressed by loving hands the refreshing draught. And when Jesus shall come in his glory, he will remember the "cups of cold water" given to his disciples, and as a reward to those who have loved him he will utter these final words of welcome, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world," for "inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Let no one say, however limited or lowly his sphere, that he cannot do anything in the Master's service.

There may be wanting the talents, or means, or position for great achievements, but Christ tells us that the least gift to one of his disciples for His sake shall in no wise lose its reward.—Little Christian.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to sell an article less than cost to a new customer to get his future trade, intending to make up your loss at some future time, thus giving him the impression that you sell cheaper than your honest neighbor, who resorts to no such tricks to deceive.

It is not polite to whine over losses. A real, energetic man will persevere, and again be successful.

It is not polite to subscribe for the erection of a church, or any benevolent enterprise, while at the same time you owe honest debts which you refuse to pay.

It is not polite for christians to meet and pray for the prosperity of Zion, and that "brotherly love may continue," while they refuse to speak to, or have fellowship with, some members of the church.

It is not polite to place boxes or other articles on the sidewalk, with hooks or nails in them, whereby ladies' dresses can be caught and injured.

It is not polite, on a second marriage, to reflect on a companion, by frequently mentioning the kind disposition and amiable character of a former husband or wife.

It is not polite to avoid the company of a friend, or to treat him coolly, without giving him a reason for your conduct. Some evil-minded person may have circulated a slander, or brought a false accusation against him. A friend should never be forsaken, unless you have indubitable evidence of his guilt, and you have labored faithfully and affectionately to restore him to virtue.

It is not polite for a string of vehicles to continue to pass over the cross-walk, expressly laid for passengers, when there are those waiting to pass along.

It is not polite for a merchant to charge more for his goods than he expects to get, and then suffer himself to be beaten down in his prices.

It is not polite for a minister who desires to display his skill, and amuse a thoughtless congregation, to select detached sentences and odd phrases, or simple words, from the Bible, as a foundation for his discourse.

It is not polite for ephemeral critics, even if they do belong to mutual admiration societies, to be severe on men of talents who do not coincide in their views, or patronize their literary efforts. We often find, in what are called first-class periodicals, papers from men who have become popular on account of something which they have written in years past, which would hardly be passable in the columns of a country newspaper. Sometimes works of real merit are suffered to lie neglected because the authors were too independent to bow down, and kiss the feet of Dagon.

It is not polite to refuse to do any necessary work, no matter how elevated your condition, or wealthy you may be.

It is not polite to repeat a story, especially if it is a long one, to your friends. If you are apt to be forgetful, just inquire if you have not told the story before.

It is not polite to wear your nails long, or to have them soiled at the ends.

It is not polite to show letters sent to you in confidence, or to expose the bad grammar, or incorrect spelling of a document kindly loaned you by a friend.

—Hints on Common Politeness.

JUST SUCH NEIGHBORS.

A man stopping at a tavern for rest and refreshment, began to talk about his journey. He had come from a neighboring town; he was moving away, and glad enough to get away too. Such a set of neighbors as he had there, unkind, disobliging, cross, and contrary, it was enough to make any one want to leave the place, and he had started, and was going to settle in another region where he could find a different set of inhabitants.

"Well," said the landlord, "You will find just such neighbors where you are going."

The next night another man stopped at the inn. He too was on a journey, was moving. On inquiry, it was found that he came from the same place from which the former traveler had come. He said he had been obliged to move from where he lived, and he did not mind moving so much as he did leaving his neighbors; they were so kind, and considerate, and accommodating, and generous, that he felt very sorrowful at the thoughts of leaving them and going among strangers, especially as he could not tell what kind of neighbors he should find.

"Oh, well," said the old landlord, "you will find just such neighbors where you are going."

Does it not seem possible that men will generally find about such neighbors as they are looking for? Some people are always in trouble; others "follow peace with all men." Who knows but we can have just about such neighbors as we wish for, simply by treating them as we ought to?—The Christian.

THE UNHOLY DESIRE OF DRESS.

You wish to dress your wife better than your circumstances will allow. She wants to have you. She is a woman of spirit, as it is said, and she does not mean to be a drudge. "Why should our neighbors," she says to her husband, "dress any better than we? They are made of the same flesh and blood that we are. See how they come out. I don't think a man of any spirit would let his wife and children go to church dressed as you let us go. Look at these children. You would think that they had come out of some slop-house! If I had married as I might have married, we should have had different times—I and my children!" How many men are stung to the quick by such remarks from their wives! Oftentimes their moral sense revolts, at first, and they feel indignation; "continual dropping wears a stone;" and by and by the man is dressed a little better than he can afford, and his wife and children are dressed better than he can afford; and somebody must pay for the extravagance. I do not say that they are tempted to steal; but I do say that they grind. They mean to get it out of the milliner, out of the dressmaker, or out of the merchant. They intend to make one hand wash the other somehow; and they go into petty meannesses to bring it about And this desire to dress better than they can afford is taking off the very enamel of their virtue, and taking out the very stamina of their religious life. Unimportant as it seems, ostentatious vanity in dress has ruined many a family, and damned many a soul! —Henry Ward Beecher.

THE RED SEA.—The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about sixty miles in that sea is steamy and sticky. Every thing in the shape of iron or steel about the ship takes a coat of rust. During the summer months no one travels on the Red Sea unless compelled by business or military orders to do so. In the winter and spring the passage is delightful Yet the navigation in that body of water is always attended with many dangers. The Red Sea is long and narrow, with sunken rocks and projecting reefs; and counter winds prevail, which produce dangerous currents. There are three light-houses in the sea, which must be kept by salamander-like men, since the thermometer runs up to 120 degrees in July, and approaches 99 in early spring.

THE LITTLE BLIND GIRL; AND How to Overcome Evil Propensities.

DEAR CHILDREN: Do you ever realize what a great blessing you enjoy in the use of your five senses of seeing, hearing, tasting, feeling and smelling? Just think what a calamity it would be, to be deprived of the use of any of them, and especially of seeing. What if you could never look upon your dear friends? Just consider this, and it may lead you to be thankful for these gifts of a beneficent Creator.

Away up here in the Green Mountain State, in a rural district of woody glens and flowery dells, lives a little girl of ten summers, who is totally blind. A little more than two years since, her bright eyes danced with joy as she beheld the lovely landscape, and plucked the gay flowers, listening, meanwhile, to the rich music of the feathered choir. But attractive as were the beauties of nature, they could not charm her away from her school and her book, to which she was strongly attached. The gladsome faces of three brothers and two sisters enlivened her home, and assisted in executing her childish schemes, when lo! it was discovered by an affectionate mother that Seba (for this is the name of this little girl) could not see as clearly as formerly, and this dimness of vision increased, until she could no longer behold even the loving faces of her parents.

Their anxiety had become intense; for in addition to every lovely object being hidden from her view, little Seba was now prostrated with dire disease, and for several months was unable to move even a limb. Many skillful physicians were consulted, but could not discern the cause, or at least did not agree relative to the cause of this blindness and distressing sickness. Some thought a tumor on the brain, others maintained it was simply amaurosis, but all agreed in there being no hope of life. Opium was freely administered, to quiet as much as possible her excruciating distress, the little time she might live.

After remaining in this sad condition for some five or six months, she began to raise her fingers a little, and from that time gradually returned to conscious life and a degree of health, and can now ride nine miles to attend church with her parents, still, as I remarked at first, is totally blind. But, sad to relate, the opium administered to relieve her distress had become so powerful a habit, it seemed impossible for her to get along without it, and if attacked with headache, or other ills, must have more opium.

Her parents, distressed, knowing she could never enjoy good health, and probably would not live long a confirmed opium-eater, reasoned with her; but, alas! the gnawing claims of an opium-eater clamored for more, and if denied she became almost frenzied. A short time after, her mother overheard Seba earnestly pleading with God, that he would help her to overcome this evil habit; and soon her mind seemed fixed, for she said to her father,

"I shall take no more opium."

For some nine weeks she has not tasted it, and has suffered neither spasms or frenzy in consequence, but is far better off without it. Sometimes she has headache, and her little brothers and sisters say,

"Seba, don't you want some opium?" but are quickly met with a decisive "No."

Now, dear children, if Seba could overcome by the help of God, can you not overcome your bad habits in the same way? If tempted to get angry, or speak naughty words, go to God to help you to overcome, that you may enjoy the beauties and glories of Paradise with all the good in the kingdom.

A LITTLE BOY'S TRIAL.

At a recent communion season, a little boy of ten years remarked in his testimony, he had many trials and temptations, but thanked the Lord he had been delivered out of them all. His father doubted if he understood the nature of trial, and on reaching home at the close of the service inquired of him when his last trial occurred, and in what it consisted. The little fellow thought a moment and said,

"Last Friday at school, the boys were scrambling for tins, and I pushed the one ahead of me so he could not stop soon enough to pick up his, and he punched me. The trial was to know whether I should fight him or not; but I concluded to walk away and leave him."

It is needless to add the father was convinced. What a lesson for older christians.

E. O.

A NOBLE BOY.

A crippled beggar was striving to pick up some old clothes that had been thrown from the window, when a crowd of rude boys gathered about him, mimicking his awkward movements, and hooting at his helplessness and rags. Presently a noble little fellow came up, and, pushing his way through the crowd, he helped the poor man to pick up his gifts, and placed them in a bundle. Then, slipping a piece of silver in his hand, he was running away, when a voice far above him said: "Little boy with a straw hat, look up." A lady leaning from an upper window, said earnestly, "God bless you, my little fellow. God bless you for that!"

As he walked along he thought how glad he had made his own heart by doing good. He thought of the poor beggar's grateful look; of the lady's smile, and her approval; and, last and better than all, he could almost hear his heavenly Father whispering: "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy." Little reader, when you have an opportunity of doing good, and feel tempted to neglect it, remember the "little boy with the straw hat."

PRAYING AND DOING.—You every day ask God to make you good, kind, true, and obedient children. But are you also trying to do these things? God cannot make you good unless you are willing to be good. So you have something to do in this matter. Not only pray, but also try, to do God's will.

EVIL THOUGHTS.—Beware of evil thoughts. They have done great mischief in the world. Bad words follow, and bad deeds finish the progress. Watch against them, strive against them, pray against them. They prepare the way for the enemy of souls.

WHAT IS TRUTH?—The question was proposed at a Deaf and Dumb institution, when one of the boys drew a straight line. "And what is falsehood?" The answer was a crooked line.

JERUSALEM, THE GOLDEN.

Jerusalem, the golden!
With milk and honey blest;
Beneath thy contemplation
Sink heart and voice opprest.

I know not, oh! I know not
What joys await us there;
What radiancy of glory,
What bliss beyond compare.

They stand, those halls of Zion,
All jubilant with song,
And bright with many an angel,
And all the martyr throng.

The Prince is ever in them,
The daylight is serene;
The pastures of the blessed
Are decked in glorious sheen.

There is the throne of David,
And there, from care released,
The shout of them that triumph,
The song of them that feast;

And they who with their Leader
Have conquered in the fight,
For ever and for ever
Are clad in robes of white.

PROGRESSIVE LIGHT.

The present is an age of light and also of darkness; both are used interchangeably, the powers of darkness achieving some of their most important victories under the banner of light: and here we wish to notice an instance or two of the results of progressive light. While we believe it is the privilege of every christian to grow in grace and knowledge, instances occur where the misguided mind mistakes pitchy darkness for superior light.

Sometime since an employee of Cæsar's government, probably weary of serving longer under the waning institution, and thinking that better employment demanded his attention, dissolved his relationship with Cæsar, and started out with important light, to prepare the subjects of the everlasting kingdom for the coming of their king; as the message was of vital importance and the king's business required haste, it was announced that, owing to the shortness of time, the light would be hastily communicated to each church, while nonecould be favored with a second visit, lest the Son of man be come before the entire flock be illuminated.

This appeared to be just the thing needed, and consequently created an interest and anxiety to hear. The appointed hour drew nigh, and at last the foremost rays began to dawn on our vision, and had all the appearance of light. We listened again and again, till convinced that either our vision was cloudy, or the rays of light were becoming dusky and indistinct; the latter conclusion was reached by aid of the mirror of truth, which hindered our progress; this, however, was explained to be nothing unusual, as old bottles could not hold new wine, and in turning out former views and prejudices to make room for new light, a convulsion might be expected.

Time passed on, and new accessions of light were frequently reported, which we, being old bottles, of course failed to see; but did discover that the light which at first was prophesied would illuminate the entire church, had suddenly contracted its proposed field of illumination, and become a fixed star, permanently lighting a few favorite localities.

The kingdom was proclaimed to be like the mustard-seed, progressively crowding Cæsar from his dominion, till the whole earth shall be filled. The coming of the Lord was declared to be like the coming of an ordinary individual, only those to whom he made himself known being aware of the fact; and finally, that all knowledge on that point whatever had banished. The change of the original intention to illuminate the entire church, by concentrating upon fixed points, was attributed to new light, with the tide still in its favor.

Much has been said about the focal character of this light, and recent discoveries reveal the fact that it is intensely focal, local, and individual; the rays all centering in the individual himself, whose aspiring tendencies, not content with exchanging the service of Cæsar for the Lord and a home in his kingdom, grasps at the honor of being recognized as head of the church, and the person through whom "Christ will be manifest the second time." These last rays from this focal light are unfolded as gently as possible, lest a sudden illumination should produce a prolonged eclipse.

To guard against mistakes and render success sure, this result is said to be reached by strict adherence to the words of Christ himself, claiming the precedence over all others in this respect, for confirmation of which, a marvelous display of miraculous signs and wonders are promised soon. At this point we feel irresistibly drawn to the words of Christ (Matt. 24: 24,) where it is written certain characters will come in his name, showing great signs and wonders; and this teacher by his own showing merits the particular honor of being fairly noticed here (Matt. 24: 24,) for he claims to come with the "words of Christ alone." Of this honor we could not deprive him if we would, and when asked to believe, we feel justified to remain in unbelief; for, says Jesus, "Believe it not." Matt. 26: 26.

When light becomes darkness, how great that darkness. The process by which this position was reached, was by expounding the Scriptures with child-like simplicity, and an air of deep humility, until borne to the present point by the progressive train. Scriptural testimony referring to the personal coming of the Son of man from heaven was gradually disposed of, till, under the advancing light, and by a process of reasoning through which you could see the point, and at the same time not see it, the eve of wonders has dawned. The Roman Pontiff is no longer without a rival, but with the individual through whom Christ is to be manifest the second time, already upon the earth, it is expected signs and wonders, eclipsing the most remarkable spirit manifestations, will establish his undoubted right and precedence to the position.

Were we compelled by Inspiration to trace the origin of all the unadjustable theories and bold assumptions of the present hour to the Spirit of God, further caution and warning would be unnecessary; but it is written, Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits (1 John 4: 1,) whether they are of God; and that three unclean spirits like frogs working miracles are to gather the whole world to the battle of the great day of God Almighty (Rev. 16: 13, 14.) The comparison is a fit one, and their influence is no less perceptible than the presence of the slimy creatures themselves in Egypt. They accommodate themselves to dry land, water, or mud, jumping from one to the other as necessity requires, while the stagnant pool is their favorite resort. Lukewarm Christendom is the stagnant pool in which the offspring of these unclean frog spirits are hatched; they are equally at home in the religious, political, and social world; they have lulled nominal Christendom to sleep, excited political strife and hatred among the nations, and seek to charm, allure, and divide the little flock waiting for the kingdom of God.

They appear in meeting, jump into the parlor, and, if daylight proves insufficient for their croaking, peep nights. They put light for darkness, and transform darkness into dazzling light. Unquestionably their work is progressive, and if one renders himself conspicuous above his fellows, it is only to be distanced and speedily eclipsed by new and startling developments. The departure of the train becomes the occasion for a swarm of thieves and pickpockets to operate; so we may expect a host of physical and metaphysical developments; spirit manifestations of superior order, meteoric bodies exploding, with rapid progressive light, together with the general rush and confusion as the incoming change of dispensation greets the arrival of the gospel train.

Scriptural jugglery and double-dealing in the hands of experts are practised with effect, for the present hour; the mightiest effort of the powers of darkness has been reserved, but, blessed be God, the bounds are set and time limited; the corrupt festering mass, with all their ungodly deeds and pernicious errors, will soon be hushed in the silence of an eternal oblivion, when the only begotten Son of God, whom his Father and the heavenly host recognize as the only head of his church, shall with triple power and glory return from heaven, triumphing gloriously over all his enemies.

While various conflicting reports change and degrade the order and manner of the coronation of the Royal Prince of the house of David, may our path shine more and more with Inspiration's light, while the rays of these mistaken lights, like those of the setting sun, recede from our view, till lost amid the dawn of that glorious day, when the redeemed of the Lord with everlasting songs shall triumphantly enter the "city of light."

Southington, Ct. O. D. WOODRUFF.

For the World's Crisis.

PRECIOUS FAITH.

The people of the world have many things which they doat upon as very precious; riches, honor, estates, etc.; but the christian has something infinitely more valuable. However highly they may be esteemed, the things of earth are transitory and fleeting. Instability is a characteristic of the present world. Change, decay, and passing away, are indelibly written upon every object around us. But that which precious faith secures to the christian is eternal and abiding. Paul understood it when he said, "We look not at the things which are seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Here we discover the difference between the believer and unbeliever. The worldling walks by sight. The christian walks by faith. God has given exceeding great and precious promises, and he believes them. His faith is called precious, valuable, worth a great price. It is precious, because it unites us to Christ. By faith in him we become members of his body. He is the vine, we are the branches. "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can we, except we abide in Christ." Without Christ we can do nothing. He is all and in all. In him all fulness dwells. There is every thing in Christ a poor sinner needs to make him eternally happy. He is made wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption, to every one that believeth. In him there is a fulness of grace for the vilest sinner.

"Whosoever cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." In him there is rest for the weary, strength for the weak, joy for the sorrowful, comfort for the mourner, hope for the desponding, peace for the troubled, light for the ignorant, health for the sick, and life for the dead; and yet all these invaluable blessings will be of no avail to the sinner unless he believes. Precious faith secures them all.

O, is not this indeed a precious faith, an excellent faith, that gives such precious and lasting blessings? Dear reader, have you this faith? Is Jesus precious to you? Do you believe? If so, he is precious. Or are you wandering in darkness? Is sin a burden? Are you almost discouraged? Is your heart tossed to and fro like a vessel in a storm? Do you sigh for rest and peace? Cheer up. Jesus lives. He sits upon the water floods, and he can say "Peace, be still!" Listen to his loving invitation: "Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest." O believe in Christ. Rest on Christ. Look to Christ, and you shall find sweet peace and comfort, such as the world cannot give.

"We which have believed do enter into rest." Lonely, way-worn pilgrim, are you almost ready to faint? Do the sandals press hard? Are your garments torn and tattered? Is the journey rugged and thorny? Are your enemies strong and mighty? Cheer up. Our Captain is mightier still. Press on a little longer. Cast not away your confidence. Your faith is doubly precious now. We are almost home. We can almost see the glittering spires of the golden city. A little more courage, a little more faith, and the journey will be ended, the conflict over, and you will join the angels and the blood-washed host on the other shore. J. W. THOMAS.

For the World's Crisis.

THE REAL POINT AT ISSUE.

For the want of a little more thought upon the Sabbath question, there is quite a difference of opinion in regard to which day of the week should be observed as the weekly Sabbath. Several points need to be considered.

1. The first thing, however, to be kept in mind in respect to the term Sabbath, is its meaning. And what does the word Sabbath mean? All know that it has no other meaning than rest, simply rest. This being so, we should be careful never to attach to this word any more than what belongs to it. The term Sabbath is a word which the Lord gave to the Israelites to denote, not only a seventh-day Sabbath, but a seventh-week Sabbath, a seventh-year Sabbath, etc. So when they, or their land, were required to rest, whether it was every seventh day, after six days of labor, or every seventh week, or seventh month, or seventh year, etc., it was called Sabbath, because they were required to rest at such times. This is the first thing to be fixed in the mind when we use the term Sabbath. But some have thought that the word Sabbath, when applied to the weekly or septennary rest, points to the definite seventh day, in the exact cycle, harmonizing with that particular day on which the Lord "rested" when he made the world. Now all must admit on a a moment's reflection that it is utterly impossible for all men in every latitude and longitude to do this; consequently the position cannot be correct.

2. The second thing to be borne in mind in settling the Sabbath question, is the day of the week to be observed as the Lord's rest-day, or Sabbath. No sane person will say that God requires impossibilities of any of his creatures. Therefore the Lord never has and never will require all men in every place to keep the exact seventh day, in the exact cycle with that on which he "rested" when he made the world. To advance such an idea is absurd, because it teaches that God, the maker of men, requires of them that which it is impossible for them to do. What, then, does the Lord require in regard to the day of the week on which we should "rest," or keep the Sabbath?

3. This brings us to the third point to be considered. And here we boldly say, and challenge any man to the contrary, that the only seventh-day the Lord has ever commanded man to observe as the weekly Sabbath, is the seventh-day which follows the mention of six days of labor. This we should "remember," that, as the Lord made the world in "six days," and then "rested the seventh," which followed these six days of labor, so we should labor six days, and then rest the seventh day, just as the Lord did. And right here, we join issue with the old Jewish seventh-day-keepers, and take this ground, that the first day of the week, as we state the phrase in our ordinary conversation and writing, is as definitely and properly the seventh day, which follows six days of labor, as it was "the seventh day" on which the Lord rested after he had labored six days in creating the world. Gen. 2: 2, 3. The Lord has nowhere taught us in his word that we are to observe the seventh day of the week in any other sense than this; we are to labor six days, and then "rest" the "seventh-day" which follows such six days of labor. This is all the seventh-day, for the weekly Sabbath or rest-day, that any one has ever found in the Scriptures, or ever will find.

Let me be understood here. I say that no man has ever found or ever will find in the Bible, any other "seventh-day" for the weekly Sabbath, except it is the seventh-day which follows the mention, in the first place, of six days of labor. Let the Jewish seventh-day-keepers disprove this if they can. When I am charged with not having "any particular day of the week" for the Sabbath, I only need say that the day I believe in for the Lord's weekly Sabbath can be and is particularly pointed out; so that all candid and intelligent minds can see it; and all men everywhere can observe it. But those on the other side of the question can never point out or define the "particular" seventh-day in succession of cycles, exactly harmonizing with the definite seventh-day on which the Lord rested, so as to have all men every where observe that "particular day." Let men who profess to be christians meet this point if they can. When this is fairly settled, our controversy may end, in regard to which day of the week we should observe for the Sabbath.

Again I say, I hope my views will not be misunderstood here, neither misrepresented. It is always considered unjust in argument, to lay down false premises for an opponent, then argue their absurdities, for the sake of claiming a triumph. If the Jewish seventh-day-keepers wish to contend that the Lord designed that men should always, in all time and in all places, keep the definite seventh-day, in successive cycles, harmonizing with the exact seventh-day on which the Lord rested; will they tell us why the Lord suffered the children of Israel to journey on such a day from Elim to Sin? (See Ex. 16: 1.) This they did do, as can be clearly seen by noticing the fact, that the day previous to the commencement of gathering the "manna," they were journeying from Elim to Sin; and so on the next "seventh-day" after this, they observed the first "Sabbath" that is spoken of anywhere in the Bible. How will the Jewish seventh-day-keepers escape this dilemma? But if all men, in all places, will remember to do just as the Lord did,—work six days, and then rest the seventh-day following such days of labor, this would be exactly what the Lord commanded in the decalogue, and just what all men everywhere can and should do. But to say that all men, in every place, can observe the definite seventh-day, exactly harmonizing with the regular cycle of days on which the Lord rested when he had created the world, is to say what no man of common sense will be guilty of. Will the keepers of the old Jewish seventh-day "remember" this, and therefore be wise, and see that it would be much better to teach men what they can do, and ought to do, than to teach them what is impossible to be done?

The idea set forth above, of working six days and then resting the seventh, does not allow men to select any day of the week they please for their rest-day, as the Jewish seventh-day advocates pretend; for this is a matter clearly settled by the Scriptures. That the first-day of the week is the true "rest-day," or Sabbath of the Lord, in this dispensation, is as plainly proved by the Scriptures, as ever the old Jewish seventh-day was. The term Sabbath signifies nothing more than rest. If we "rest," as the Lord requires, on the first day of the week, after we have labored six days, we as truly observe the weekly, or seventh-day Sabbath, "according to the commandment," as ever the Jews did. And hence, the Sabbath as an institution is not changed, by changing the day of the week for the Sabbath, as it was at the resurrection of Christ. And that the Sabbath is still binding on all mankind, is proved by the fact that Christ "is Lord also of the Sabbath." And can a thing, of which he is Lord, for the benefit of mankind, ever cease to be while he is Lord? And we have his divine sanction that "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Yes, the Sabbath, or rest-day, was made "for man"—for the good of man. And in the same way the apostle speaks of another institution—the institution of marriage. He says, "Neither was the man created for the woman, but the woman for the man." As, therefore, the woman was created for the good, or benefit of man—all mankind—so was the Sabbath made for the good, or benefit of man—all mankind. When, therefore, the institution of marriage shall cease, by divine authority; then, also, let the institution of the Sabbath cease; and not until then.

Why is it that men, who are such close students of the Bible on other points, are so indifferent to the all-important subject of the Lord's Sabbath, in these days of peril, corruption, and sin? Until more regard is paid to the sacredness of the Sabbath, we need not be surprised at the increase of crime in the land. O, how Christ, the Lord of the Sabbath, is dishonored by the desecrations of this holy institution which "was made for man."

"Day ever bless'd!
Thy light, thy rest,
I hail with glad emotion;
Ordained for man,
When time began,
For solace and devotion.

Day more endeared
Since Christ appeared,
The life and resurrection;
That morning's rays
Shed o'er these days
His glory's bright reflection.

Day ever bless'd!
Type of the rest
That for the saints remaineth;
Happy is he
Who joys in thee,
And ne'er thy joys profaneth."

"ABIDE WITH US."

Blessed Jesus, abide with us! What oft occasion we give thee to depart from us, but again we cry out, Abide with us! We can not live without that glowing heart which thy abiding presence alone can give. Abide with us, dispelling the gloom that sin has made, and filling our hearts with joy and gladness.

O glory be to thy adorable name! Thou art the sinner's friend. As such we have come to thee and found mercy, and we now say to all about us, Come. "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

This we have been saying in a loud voice in the city of Camden, N. J., by erecting, in the name of the Lord, the great Bethel tent, and holding meetings now over the fourth Lord's day, and still in progress; and we trust in God's mercy that some are waking up to the call. Pray for us.

A tent is just the meeting-house for the last call of mercy. Thank God that he ever put it into the hearts of his children to erect a tent and gather under it, and begin to sing, and pray, and invite poor sinners to come and seek salvation. Surely it is the legitimate fruit of the Spirit of God. May it abound among us more and more.

God bless Sister Holden forever, for this gift to his people, under which to invite the poor wanderer to the fold of Christ. And God bless his servants who stand up under it with the compelling power, that God's house may be filled.

"He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus. "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen."

I AM A SOLDIER FOR CHRIST.

Hark! I hear the thunder roll,
And multitudes are doomed to die;
The earth is shook from pole to pole,
And oh, I see destruction nigh.

Antichrists all o'er the land
Lift their poisonous banner high;
I see the demons take the stand,
And loud proclaim God's word a lie.

The east, the west, the north, and south,
Are called, the battle's now at hand;
Devils by legions coming forth;
To arms! to arms! true Christian man.

Hark! hark! bless God, the chorus breaks
From every hill-top, every plain;
The voice of God all nature shakes,
The dead, the dead shall live again.

Now with all christians in the land,
Let names as sects forever cease;
But as true christians take our stand
In Jesus Christ, who gives true peace.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DEVELOPMENTS OF THE PRESENT AGE.

The developments of this age are marvelous, wonderful, and multiform in their character. If we look into the scientific and mechanical world, we behold achievements which a half century ago would have been considered almost miraculous; and the query arises in our minds, Why were these discoveries, so useful to mankind, hidden from the world so many centuries? I see no way of solving this mystery but by looking into the prophecies.

We there read that at the time of the end "many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." Whether this refers to an increase of the knowledge of the Scriptures, as some suppose, or of other things, we are not certain; but of one thing we are certain, which is, that this prophecy is being fulfilled before our eyes. No age of the world has produced such marvelous developments; but with these we also find a corresponding increase of wickedness. We doubt whether the antedilnvians did commit or could conceive of any more heaven-daring sins than are committed in this age.

It was said of that age that the earth was filled with violence, and for this it was deluged with the flood. We have only to look at the horrible deeds of crime portrayed daily before us by the press, to convince ourselves that this age is degenerating. Crime in high life, and low life, and middle life, never was so appalling. Court records and prison statistics never were so blackened with horror; and what will be the end of this carnival of crime? Can we see through the mist the dawn of virtue and universal peace? Will the laws, human and divine, and the dissemination of the gospel of peace, arrest this downward progress? Will Methodism, or Baptistism, or Congregationalism, or any other ism, ever bring about the long-wished-for millennium?

We know that those who look at this dark side of the situation are generally branded as croakers, but we would like to have the knowing ones in the sects above named, or any one else, inform us from Scripture, or any other authority, that the world under the present dispensation will ever be converted to Christianity.

We know there are prophecies relative to the millennial age, which will eventually have their fulfillment; but let us look at the true source of light upon this subject.

Rev. 20: 1–3,—"And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the devil and satan, and bound him a thousand years; and cast him into the bottomless pit and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years should be fulfilled."

We learn from this that none but an angel from heaven will ever be able to bind this strong man armed; the church has been trying to do it for eighteen hundred years, but, judging from the wickedness abounding, which appears to be on the increase, he is yet at large, running riot.

We also learn from this the definiteness of this millennial age. God is a correct chronologist, and when we see in his word the term "a thousand years," we understand it means such, no more and no less; and that there will be a day for them to commence and to terminate. So we must conclude that the theory of the world being gradually converted to Christianity is unscriptural.

We know these views are not in harmony with the current teaching of a very large portion of the religious community; the popular idea is, that the preaching of the gospel, missionary labor, Sabbath School work, and other religious enterprises, are to eventuate in the conversion of the world; but this theory cannot be substantiated by the word of God.

We are informed by the prophet Daniel, that the beast, or mother of harlots (which we understand to be the papacy), is to prevail against the church until the coming of the Ancient of days; and in Rev. we read that it shall make war with the Lamb; but the Lamb shall overcome. But until he is consigned to the bottomless pit, he will prevail against the church. D. N. SMITH.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

40. Circumcision instituted.—"This is my covenant which ye shall keep between me and you, and thy seed after thee: every man child among you shall be circumcised." Gen. 17: 10.

Circumcision condemned.—"Behold, I Paul, say unto you, that if ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing." Gal. 5: 2.

The infidel has made precisely the same mistake here that he made in the previous proposition. Circumcision was instituted in the days of Abraham, and incorporated into the Mosaic law, which was nailed to the cross, for "Christ is the end of the law." So Paul was right when he said, "that if ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing;" for to conform to the requirements of a law which he had rendered obsolete, was virtually, the rejection of him as the Messiah.

41. The Sabbath instituted.—"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." Ex. 20: 8.

The Sabbath repudiated.—"The new moons and Sabbath, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity." Isa. 1: 13. "One man esteemeth one day above another; another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind." Rom. 14: 5. "Let no man therefore judge you in meat or drink, or in respect of a holy day, or of the new moon; or of the Sabbath days."—Gal. 4: 5.

The keeping of the seventh day, as holy time, was also instituted under the law and sanctioned by Jehovah in the Jewish dispensation. Isa. 1: 13 is addressed to a class of persons who had sinned so fearfully before the Lord, that their sacrifices were vain oblations, and their incense was an abomination unto him. Therefore, he saith, "Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and Sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting. Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth." They had sinned until even their worship was offensive to Deity, for "the prayers of the wicked are an abomination to the Lord." Hence he says, "When ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you; yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear. Your hands are full of blood. Does not this sufficiently explain why their new moons and Sabbaths were distasteful to God? But the keeping of the seventh day passed away with the law of which it was a component part. It is well to devote one day in the seven exclusively to the worship of God. The disciples met on the first day of the week, and it was also hallowed by the resurrection of our Lord. Hence we recognize this as the day of worship, but there is now no law of God which commands us to observe the Mosaic Sabbath. Rom. 14: 5, and Gal. 5: 5 are to the point.

COMMEMORATIVE.

"Good night, mother! I'll meet you in the morning."

When the doctrine of the second advent at hand reached Rochester, N. Y., it found lodging in the heart of an esteemed Scotch lady, by the name of McMillan. She was left a widow in 1847, with two little children and penniless in a foreign land; but the blessed hope sustained her, and time and endurance have shown that the true Highland blood could still say—

"These rocks, these mountains fly
From their firm base, as soon as I."

Meeting composedly all the trials of life, caring for and supporting the little fatherless children, she with unwavering effort managed to secure a home, and a business which yielded a good support for herself and family.

Since our tent came to Rochester, she had the joy of seeing her only daughter (a worthy school-teacher, and a member of the Frank St. Methodist church) leave all for this blessed gospel of the kingdom; her only son, too, becoming interested in these things. She had buffeted the storm alone for a score of years, but lately her cup has overflowed. A society has been raised up, the sweet sound of Jesus' soon coming has broke again on her wearied pathway, and her heart beats no more in solitude, but pours forth of its fulness praise to Him who has ever been the widow's God and judge.

But frail nature yields at last. Disease fastens upon the overtaxed system, and baffles all remedies. But visions of beauty come in her broken repose, and she rejoices in sight of port. Spasms and convulsions almost rob her of life, still all is well. Her children sing,

"I'll love thee in life and love thee in death,
And praise thee as long as thou lendest me breath;
And say when the death-dew lies cold on my brow,
If ever I loved thee, my Jesus, 'tis now."

With all the energy and strength of life she cries, "Yes! Yes!"

I repeated those beautiful lines—

"Jesus, refuge of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly."

With firm, clinched hands she says,

"Blessed hope! blessed hope!"

When asked if all was well, she says,

"I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." Then—

"As gentle waves come rippling on the shore,
Or evening sunlight melts on clouds away,
Or infant sobs, subdued, return no more,
So slept our friend, without one dimming ray."

The funeral occasion was one of deep solemnity. The Methodist house was kindly granted and well filled, and all hearts seemed to say, We've lost a friend. She was borne to the beautiful cemetery (Mt. Hope), and there, 'mid lovely flowers, in the soft sunshine of declining day, we laid her down to sleep. Here stood the children and friends. We read, "As a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him." "He knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust."

We sang,

"Then weep no more, lone pilgrim,
O, weep no more to-day;
For we'll meet ere long in our happy Eden home,
In our happy Eden home ever stay."

The fountain seemed broken up; grief was no longer restrained; and we felt it good to weep. The wave of sorrow was hushed at last, and when turning from the grave, the daughter threw back her veil, as if to get the last glimpse of the sleeper, with the voice of affection, sweetened by grief, she said,

"Good night, mother! I'll meet you in the morning."

Thus closed one of those scenes in life the are never forgotten. H. PRATT.

THE ADVENT.

"Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord.

These words are found in Psalm 118: 26,—one of the hallelujah psalms sung by the Jews at the Passover. The "hymn" sung by Jesus and the disciples, after the institution of the Lord's Supper, is supposed to have been one of these Psalms.

Our Lord often quoted from the Old Testament, and he said, "All things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning me."

Our text is quoted twice by Matthew, and once by each of the other evangelists. When our Lord made his public entry into Jerusalem, the whole multitude of the disciples, and the populace, who had seen or heard of his wonderful works, hailed their long-expected King with loud acclaim, "Hosanna to the Son of David. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of Jehovah." Among these were not only the fickle, groveling herd, mindful only of temporal benefits, and expecting (as all did at that time) that their King would then deliver them from the Roman power, and restore the palmy days of Solomon's glory; little children were also there. When Jesus entered into the temple, the children cried, "Hosanna to the Son of David." When the rabble, a few days later, rejected him as their King, and he was led away to be crucified, "there followed him a great company of people, and of women, who also bewailed and lamented him." Here were true friends, who loved him for his own excellence, not "because they did eat of the loaves and were filled." They loved him for his mighty power, exercised in ministries of love to the poor, the friendless, the ignorant, the erring; and they mourned that their benefactor, who, they "trusted, had been he which should have redeemed Israel" from Roman bondage, should be led to a malefactor's death,—a death which seemed to extinguish their hopes forever.

Among all these, may we not believe that there were many who hailed with joy the news of the Lord's resurrection, and when enlightened by the Holy Spirit accepted him as their Redeemer from sin?

When Peter addressed the people, at the healing of the cripple at the Beautiful gate, he charged them with the murder of Jesus, but palliated the sin on the ground of ignorance, even in the case of the rulers, who were chiefly responsible for his death.

O, thou burdened soul, who mayest read these lines, does thy guilt seem too great to be pardoned? Hear the Lamb of God, in his last agony, pleading, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do!" Luke (who wrote the book of Acts) says that when the cripple was healed, about five thousand believed; and some of these, doubtless, had "consented unto his death." Cast away, then, thy doubts and fears. "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin."

Two days later, he visited the temple for the last time, and there uttered his fearful denunciation, "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites." Matt. 23. But his pity and love broke out in touching words, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, . . . how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not."

He closes his last address to the Jews, by an intimation that they would yet be constrained to welcome his return. "Your house is left unto you desolate." "Ye shall see me no more." You have rejected your best friend, your King, your glory and defense, and will even slay him. Ye are given up, then, to suffer the terrible result of your blindness and sin, until overthrown and dispersed, outlawed and down-trodden by all nations, ye shall at length turn unto Him that smiteth you, and, renewing your faith in Moses and the prophets, who wrote of me, ye shall expect your once crucified King as your Deliverer, and penitently exclaim, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of Jehovah."

Then leaving the temple, Jesus returned no more to the city, until the evening of the next day, when he came again to the Passover, the Supper, to betrayal and death.

Who that reads this can say in his heart, "Blessed is He that cometh"? Who believes that "Jesus Christ is come in the flesh," not merely with the mind? "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness." Who of us would rejoice if the King of kings should appear to-day, to "reward every man according to his works"?

Some, whose godly lives show that they are ready to meet the King, are yet so jealous of themselves that they look with terror toward what is usually called "the day of judgment." Meek servant of Christ, dismiss thy fears. He hath gone to prepare a place for thee, that, when he cometh, he may receive thee to "himself." Seek for that "perfect love" which "casteth out fear, because fear hath torment." If you love to commune with him daily, by meditation and prayer; to go about doing good, as he also did; then look up and rejoice, because his coming, the glad day of earth's redemption from the curse, draweth nigh. You "shall be like him, for you shall see him as he is." As he appeared on Tabor and in Patmos, so will he appear to you.

There are many scoffers, walking after their own lusts, who say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" Let us, taking heed to the sure word of prophecy, as interpreted by the signs of the times, answer the scoffers with the glad shout, "Hosanna to the son of David! Blessed be he that cometh in the name of Jehovah."

For the joy of the Lord is our strength.

CHICAGO.

We have been in Chicago from July 5th to 12th. It is truly astonishing to see how rapidly the city grows. We doubt if there has ever been any other city in the history of the world so noted for its rapid progress in every thing, excepting the pure religion of Jesus. Business is done with a tremendous rush. The one thing that seems to engross the attention of the leading men is to get rich as soon as possible. The love of money is the ruling passion, and next the love of pleasure and social gratification. This city must be dear to Satan. He has a strong army quartered here, that exerts a powerful influence in the nation. When he would accomplish any important measure, he may well look to Chicago for his men. In this city there is a concentration of a large number of the most enterprising business men of the country. They perform in a few weeks what it would take other cities of the same size as many years to accomplish. One would not think that the majority of the people had any thoughts of the Lord or a future world, only as taught by the Spiritualists; i. e., that none need to have any anxiety about what is to be hereafter. If there is a people in the world that should heed the caution of our Savior, not to be overcharged with the cares of this life, and to beware of the deceitfulness of riches, it is the people of Chicago. The cold, formal state of the church members is just suited to the extreme worldly spirit that abounds in the hearts of the business men. Naturally they are noble, generous hearted, and when truly converted they make earnest, active christians; but it is difficult to get their attention off from business long enough to think of a preparation for the future. There are some earnest, devoted christians in the city who love to work in the vineyard of the Lord; and they are doing much to hedge up the ways of Satan; but the number is so small, when compared with the enemy's hosts, that they seem lost amid the multitude of their foes.

The Sabbath in Chicago receives but little respect from the mass of the people. It is a semi-holiday. Many stores, groceries, markets, and a host of beer, ale, and tobacco saloons, are open, and do a lively business. We have been in no other city where we noticed so many places for beer and ale drinking. The large number of Germans give these a hearty support. It would be a difficult matter to enforce the Massachusetts prohibitory liquor law in the Chicago portion of Illinois. The Sabbath is the Germans' festal day. Their beer gardens are crowded with the merry ones, who care as little for the worship of the Lord as they do a pagan idol. They are exerting a most unchristian influence in the west. They are a very difficult class to reach with the gospel. They seem to have no faith in the Bible, nor any thing of a religious character. Give them beer, music and pleasure gardens, with none to interfere, and they appear to be satisfied. Some of their festive scenes are low and disgraceful, owing much to the great amount of beer-drinking, which inflames their animal passions.

THE IMPROVEMENTS in the external appearance of Chicago are very marked. A number of miles of very nice pavement are being put down this season. It is composed of pine blocks, tar and gravel stones. The first bring the street to the proper shape, then cover it with boards, on the top of which they place the pine blocks, made by cutting up three-inch plank into pieces about eight inches long, which are set end-wise on the boards, in rows between inch boards, which are taken out, and spaces filled with gravel stones and tar. It is a very handsome pavement, much less noisy than stone, and wers smoother. The paved streets are kept very clean.

THE PARKS of Chicago are receiving much attention. They have arranged to open some new ones on the west side containing some five or six hundred acres, which are to be connected by a street for carriage riding, two hundred and fifty feet broad, and seventeen miles long. The people of Chicago are resolved to spare no effort that will tend to make their city the central and leading one of the nation. They have high hopes, like those who built the tower of Babel.

OUR MEETINGS have been seasons of rich refreshing from the Lord. We closed Sabbath evening, July 11th, with a crowded house, and a very attentive audience. A number requested prayers, and the saints rejoiced in the Lord. The truth is spreading, and new ones are rejoicing in the blessed hope of the coming kingdom. Those who have been members of other churches rise up and say they are surprised to see how carelessly they have read their Bibles. They now see that they have been taught fables instead of the word of the Lord. Strong men are rising up to defend the pure religion of Jesus, and the doctrine he taught. We see some bright omens for the Chicago meetings. There are noble men and women whose whole heart is in the work. They have established a working men's noon prayer-meeting at 68 Fulton St., in the office of Mr. Russel's large planing mill. He is one of the city Aldermen, and much interested in our meetings. Many of the Brn. are filled with a true missionary spirit, and are daily engaged in making efforts to spread the light and truth and lead souls to Jesus. Their labors are not in vain in the Lord. Happy results begin to be seen. Bro. Ramsey, their pastor, is putting forth earnest efforts to reach the people with the great truths committed to his trust. Sabbath afternoons he goes out to Lincoln Park, and preaches to the crowds who assemble there for pleasure or other purposes, and has already seen some rich fruits. His whole soul is in the work, and the Lord smiles upon his labors, and fills his heart with great peace.

We enjoyed our late visit at Chicago very much. It was a feast to hear the testimonies of the friends of Jesus, and see good evidence that they were growing in grace. We often heard them say that their love for Jesus was never before so strong as now; and that they were more than ever determined to do all to his glory. It is certain that nothing short of entire consecration to the Lord will afford us any assurance of our acceptance into his family. Let us give up every thing into the hands of Jesus, and all will be well.

MONTREAL.

Once more we are in the pleasant city of Montreal, enjoying the hospitalities of the friends of Jesus. We left Chicago Monday morning, at 8 o'clock, July 12th, and arrived at Montreal at 10.5 P. M. Tuesday. Distance, eight hundred and forty-eight miles. The church in Montreal has been thinned by several removals, and some backslidings; but there are a number left who love Jesus and his appearing, and are united in the blessed hope. They have had a strong current of opposition to meet; but they have been true to their Master. They have had very little preaching, but they keep up their meetings, and are pressing for the prize. We hope the time may soon come when the Lord will send them help. We had a refreshing season with them.

The popular ministers treat them with much contempt. One of them said to Bro. Buckingham, who is a dear good Bro., that he had no more sympathy with us than with the devil. Bro. B. had been helping in the meetings held by Lord Cecil in the place where this minister preaches who made the remark. All were delighted with Bro. Buckingham, till it was mistrusted that he sympathized with us; and when he was asked the plain question if he did, and answered yes, then came the cold shoulder, and the bitter reproof connecting us with the devil. Bro. B. kindly shook hands and departed in peace.

We feel just like having a new battle in Montreal. We learned, when there, that we can have a nice lot, at a moderate price, in the heart of the city, which is used in the winter for a skating rink. It is easy of access from all parts of the city, surrounded by a high fence, and a gate-way that can be locked up at night. The church in Montreal is poor, but will do all they can to sustain a tent-meeting for four or six weeks on this lot. Now are there not some who will lend the Lord one or two hundred dollars to have the big mission tent, that was first pitched in Washington, D. C., sent to this city? Montreal is an important field; and it seems necessary to do more in order to save what we have gained.

Who will take hold of this work? Please send us an encouraging word. We would like to begin immediately after our National campmeeting at Springfield. Who will lend a helping hand? May the Lord direct.

NAPOLEONIC DEMOCRACY.

A new type of democracy is rising up in these last days, defined by Napoleon III. as follows:—"The government of one man with the consent of all." It is proposed to establish an empire in the United States that shall include the whole western continent; having "one man" to rule, who shall be crowned with imperial honors by the vote of the people, after the manner of Napoleon III. Many are clamorous for a change of some kind, hoping thereby to introduce some new things by which they may be gainers.

A PHYSICAL LUXURY.

Those who have never tried it, cannot appreciate the luxury of a Turkish bath, properly admistered. When in Montreal, July 14th, we called on the hygienic physicians, Drs. Macbean and Rogers, 140 St. Monique St., and enjoyed one of their Turkish baths. Some years since we had a similar luxury at Drs. Miller and Wood, 15 Laight St., New York. Although we have taken a bath every day (with two or three exceptions when it was not possible) for over twenty years, yet we never felt so perfectly clean as after Turkish baths. They leave the skin in the most active and healthy condition. One feels like a new creature after passing through these invigorating baths. For colds and rheumatism they do wonders. We are rejoiced at the success of these Drs. in Montreal, which is a hard place to introduce improvements. These hygienic physicians have already gained a victory over popular prejudice which nothing but true merit and extra success could win. They are practical men, and worthy of the confidence of the entire public.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—The friends who so kindly and promptly responded to our call for the "Crisis" of June 23d, have our thanks.

PERPETUAL SLEEP.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you please give some light on the following texts:—Jer. 51: 39, 57; and John 3; 36. J. W. STOKES.

The passages in Jeremiah read as follows: "In their heat I will make their feasts, and I will make them drunken, that they may rejoice, and sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith the Lord." "And I will make drunk her princes, and her wise men, her captains, and her rulers, and her mighty men; and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith the King whose name is the Lord of hosts."

The truth in these verses seems very plain. During the great feast of Belshazzar at Babylon, some of the people became drunken, and were killed in their drunken sleep without awaking them; hence it is proper to say they slept "a perpetual sleep." The word gohlahm, rendered "perpetual" is also rendered "everlasting," "long," "long time." It is the word used to denote the duration of the hills, in Gen. 49: 26; a statute of Moses, in Ex. 29: 9; the duration of the Aaronic priesthood, Ex. 40; 15; the continuance of the possession of the Levitical priesthood: Lev. 25: 34; and of the present bound of the sea, Jer. 5: 22. Yet, in all these cases, it must be admitted that "perpetual" and "everlasting" do not have the sense of eternal; but an unbroken continuance of that which is named till the time comes to make a radical change. It signifies the longest duration of that to which it is applied; but does not necessarily imply an unending condition. The "perpetual sleep" of the Babylonians can only last to the time of the resurrection of the dead. To us, it affords no proof that those wicked men will never be raised from the dead, but simply affirms that they were killed while in a drunken sleep, without waking them.

John 3: 36 reads as follows: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." What is the life that the wicked do not see, or possess? Most clearly the "everlasting life," which the righteous inherit from Christ. It cannot mean that they have no life at all, because they are in possession of life now, and may have life for a season at the judgment, and yet not see the life promised to christians, which is eternal. All the wicked must have life and stand in the judgment to answer for the deeds done in this life. "The sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every man according to their works." Rev. 20: 13. After the wicked thus come forth from the sea and the land, and are judged, they are "cast into the lake of fire," and die "the second death," from which they are never delivered.

PAPAL BOASTINGS.

The following is part of a lecture given in Library Hall, Chicago, Sabbath evening, July 11th, by one denominated "The Very Reverend John Boylan, P. P." His subject was "The Temporal Power of the Pope." It will be seen that the Roman Catholic church is as boastful as ever, and claims to be the only legitimate power in the world. In its estimation others are only a sort of squatter sovereignties, that have no right to exist. Had that church the power she had in the fifteenth century, her opposers would fare no better now than then. The spirit of the Papacy is unchanged.

Mr. Boylan said, as reported in the Chicago Tribune of July 12th:—

"You glory in acknowledging the unrivaled religious sway of the sovereign Pontiff. You do not forget that you have another country besides America—Rome, the land of faith, the country of our souls, to which we cling with all the power of our existence and the inmost recesses of our hearts. Yes, we should never forget, that it is the eternal rock in Rome that communicates to the American, as well as the Irish church, that strength and durability that has rendered them invulnerable to the naked sword of persecution as well as to the concealed dagger of evil counsel. Yes, our love and sympathy for the Pope in his present trials, so far from being weakened is only increased in proportion as we see error, treason, and infidelity summon their cohorts to pour down upon the citadel of truth.

By the Pope's temporal sovereignty, I mean that the Pope should be an independent King, in order that, independent of kingly will, a national leaning, he would, with that liberty which is the very soul of the church, send forth his decrees independently to every corner of the christian world, and, as Head of the church, freely and fearlessly discharge the duties of the Papacy—the Papacy, which is the keystone of the christian world, the corner-stone of the European edifice, the great bond of kingdoms, and the grand centre of light, civilization, faith, and religion. I may observe, first, that I express your sentiments when I say that, no matter what news we have from Rome, we entertain no fears for either Pope or Church. The church cannot be in danger, unless God and His promises be in danger, and as the edifice cannot be more lasting than the foundations that sustain it, and as Christ himself has promised to his church an endless duration, therefore the rock that sustains it must be immortal. I do not fear for the tree of the church, that has its roots in Rome, its top in heaven, and its branches extending to the utmost bounds of the earth. For eighteen centuries the axe of the infidel and unbeliever has shivered to pieces in that fine old trunk, and when they could not cut it down, they fell down and worshiped it. And surely we do not fear that a godless anarchist, like Garibaldi, would now be able to put down the trunk of Jesse, after eighteen centuries of life and bloom. We are not surprised when we hear of the Pope's trials; but sufferings go before trials. He now carries that cross upon which the Author of truth suffered, from which he redeemed the world. He is the lion-hearted follower of his Divine Master, around whose grave the Jewish doctors placed the flower of Cæsar's army, and proclaimed to the world that the crucified Nazarene was dead. But Easter Sunday morning proclaimed his glorious resurrection. Pius the Ninth now carries His cross, Pius the Ninth, whom all men, even his most bitter enemies, approach with reverence and leave with loving admiration.

The Pope must be either a King or a subject—there is no medium. If he be a subject, then, I assert, in order to be free, he must be above the laws of the King and government under which he would live, which would be a contradiction in itself; for if he be a subject to such laws, he is liable to coercion from that King and government. The best way to see the truth of this reasoning is to see how it would work, if the Pope were robbed of his temporal dominion, and made subject to any King or Emperor. First, suppose the Pope to be a subject of the Emperor of France, I say the other crowned heads of Europe would not tolerate it for a single day, because they would conclude it would give too much influence to France. Suppose him to be what many would wish him now to be, a subject of Victor Emanuel; that is, to have the Pope in the Vatican, and Victor Emanuel in the Capitol, and only think of the Pope, who has received the power of binding and loosing—a power that has the world for its range, and all time for its duration—the subject of a Victor Emanuel, to have Victor Emanuel King of Rome, having his well-paid Post Office authorities to watch closely, and, if they think proper, even to examine all the letters that come in from Bishop, priest and layman, over the world, to the common Father of the faithful, and that it would be in the power of Victor Emanuel to say to the Pope: "You are my subject, and, as such, I will not allow you to raise your voice against my unhallowed principles, or thwart my ambitions and grasping designs." We all know that, however the Pope might be placed, he could not err in any question connected with faith or morals; but to see the uneasy and dissatisfied feeling of the Catholics of the world, to see the Head of the Church thus thwarted and annoyed by an ambitious and jealous monarch, living beside him, naturally jealous by seeing the Pope's power extend to the soul, while his only extended to the body. No, I assert no nation shall be allowed to dispose of Rome—Rome, the rock on which the bark of Peter was moored. It is the inheritance of the whole Christian world; and the monuments of redemption, brought to Rome from Mount Calvary, with all the precious heirlooms of the Church, and above all the independence of the Sovereign Pontiff, shall never be in the custody of Sardinian robbers.

But it is said, have not the Italians the right to have any form of government they think proper? I answer, that if the Pope's subjects would have any right to rebel against the Pope's government, it would either be on account of the badness of its origin, or the injustice of its rule. Now, first, as to its origin. History tells us that it is now more than one thousand years since the Italians themselves elected the Pope, the Head of the Church, as their King, when the Goths and Vandals came down from the north of Europe, cursing the Italian frontier, destroying all before them, the Italians appealed to the Emperor for protection; the Emperor replied that he could not assist them; they then, with one voice, elected as their King one who would assist them, the Roman Pontiff. And no one in this country at least, where all men hold that the people are the source of legitimate power, will deny the people's right at that time to elect the Pope as their King, and who will say now that the Pope's title to his dominions, first, just in its origin, as coming from the people themselves and confirmed by the sanction of 1,300 years has suddenly become unjust."

"ALARM TRUMPET."

A New York correspondent, when speaking of the Imperialist makes the following remarks:

As a model of journalism, both intellectually and morally, it is worthy of praise; scholarly, manly, frank, honest, and pure in its purpose, dignified, loyal I may say, in its bearing, it commands my respect and admiration, contrasting, as in these attributes it does, with even the best class of the journalistic press of our country. I hail it, too, in view of its high end. As a Republican I hail it. I earnestly desire the preservation and perpetuity of this form of government, the best for the pure and the good, the worst for the impure and the base, and I look upon the Imperialist as the forlorn hope in this crisis of the combat for the life of the Republic. I regard its bold, decisive, earnest utterances as the voice of the Great Ruler of nations. I believe that you, Mr. Editor, hold a commission like that of which I read in the book of the Revelation given to the exile of Patmos, to the church at Ephesus by 'Him who walks in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks, and whose voice was as the sound of many waters.' I believe that through you, God is saying what he said to that erring church, 'Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly and remove thy candlestick out of its place, except thou repent.' One of the most alarming symptoms of the times—it must strike even careless observers—is the infatuation of the people generally which leaves them in a state of self-security amid the clearest perception, and the unreserved acknowledgement of the imminent peril which surrounds them.

I hardly ever take up a paper, secular or religious, that is not an alarm trumpet, and yet neither the people into whose ears the blast is blown, or the trumpeters themselves feel real or adequate alarm. The recklessness and blind confidence of the public generally is amazing. They resemble a drunken crew on board a crazy ship in a storm, who gaze with a stupid apathy at every freshly discovered leak, and at the returned plummet showing the deepening water in the hold. As our theologians would say, they seem to be given up to judicial blindness. A philosopher would say it is the natural effect of excessive self-esteem. It was so before the war. A few rational and observant men looked at the political horizon, and noticing the well known signs, said 'foul weather to-morrow.' 'Hear the old wiseacres croaking,' said the sneering bystanders. 'Look out for disunion, secession of the Southern States' 'Nonsense! say the stars are going to fall. The echo of rebel guns in Charleston harbor broke the spell, and incredulity became fact. But even then the disenchantment was only partial. The fearful hurricane was mistaken for a squall. Patriot citizens donned their uniform, seized their muskets, and marched on with trumpet and banner for a ninety days holiday war. They marched through dream land to Bull Run. There the rude shock which the Southern chivalry gave them awoke the soldier somnambulists, and a stern reality took the place of a pleasant vision."

THE TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held at the National Campmeeting, Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28th, 1868, the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That we raise TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year.

Resolved, That our preaching brethren be, and hereby are, requested to act as Agents in this good work, to solicit contributions to the Tract Fund, as often at least as once in every quarter, and forward the same to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, BOSTON, MASS.

LETTER FROM J. B. WADSWORTH.

BRO. GRANT:—I have just received from Bro. D. D. Reed $10, which he wishes to go towards getting me a horse and wagon. I have long felt the need of these, and have been waiting on the Lord believing that he would open up a way whereby I might obtain the means of getting them; so I may regard the receipt of this as a token that the Lord will grant my desire in this respect. I could by these means carry and sell larger works, and the profits on them would pay my expenses, and relieve the brethren and sisters who have already contributed much to support me in my labor. I do not wish to lean on the brethren, as there are calls for help in different directions, demanding their contributions.

Therefore, as I have been requested by my friends to write a work containing some important incidents in my travels, as tract missionary, I am now preparing it for publication, and shall make it as interesting as I can for all who will aid me by purchasing a copy, alike to northern and southern people, endeavoring to touch on the doctrine which we hold, in as comprehensive and brief manner as possible. I do not intend it shall cost more than twenty-five cents a copy; neither do I desire more than this "mite" from any one, unless they are able and disposed to give more. Believing my mission to be of the Lord, and wishing to be guided by his Spirit, trusting in him to carry on his own work, I have ever tried to keep myself from being a burden to any one. And in the disposition of all that has been sent to me, I have had an "eye single to the glory of God," for I am the Lord's, and all that he gives me belongs to him; and if it is his will for me to continue in this work, his will be done; but I do not believe that he would have me travel as I did, for it was a great injury to my health. I was so anxious to labor for him, I was utterly regardless of my health and feelings, until I became compelled to relinquish my labors from the loss of health; but I am now regaining it, and shall prepare my work as soon as possible for publication, and at the same time distribute what tracts I have in the country adjoining, making this my home till the Lord directs otherwise.

I now leave these few lines to the consideration of all who shall read them, praying the Lord to direct. I would suggest that a number wishing to purchase copies would send their contributions in one letter; it would perhaps come safer, and I in return can send the books to one address; but I leave it at the option of the contributors to suit their own convenience. Please give names and post-office address in plain letters; and direct to me at Memphis, Tenn., in the care of Dr. I. I. Leslie, Box 634. Yours in Christ,

J. B. WADSWORTH.

Memphis, Tenn, June 29th, 1869.

[If any one deserves a horse and wagon, we think Bro. Wadsworth is the man. Let those who have the means, and a heart to help the toiling, self-denying missionary, in scattering tracts, send liberally to Bro. W. He has proved himself worthy the confidence of all good people.—ED.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM BRO. F. DOUGLAS.

BRO. GRANT:—The progress of time and changes incident to this mortal life, have brought myself and family to this large and busy city. Indeed, I believe that the "Guiding Hand" had very much to do with our removal here.

A few days after our arrival last fall, I took a couple of bundles, which we had gathered and brought with us, and started to find the "Star of Hope Mission." A half hour's ride on the street cars brought me within a few doors of the conspicuous sign—"Star of Hope Mission," placed across the walk in front of the building. The short walk from the cars convinced me that the neighborhood was a hard one, and that sign seemed as luminous of hope and safety to that wretched crew sailing on the ocean of life, and being borne on the raging waves of intemperance, licentiousness, and every known crime, toward the rock of destruction and whirlpool of death, as the beacon lights o'er ocean's broad waters are to the tempest-tossed mariners nearing the fatal rocks. "Light ahead!" is a joyful sound to the watchers in a dismal storm; and so this sign seemed to say, there is hope for the fallen, whether in the cellar, garret, or on the broad pavement.

It was cold and wet without, and as I entered the building it seemed colder, and on being presented to Sr. Smith, a chill of disappointment came over me, and on glancing around I felt sad. To explain: I did not expect to see Sr. Smith and two of her assistants turning carpenters, and with hammer and saw making an entire change in the arrangements of the first and second floors. The meetings having been held on the first floor, the benches had been removed to the second floor, the pulpit was torn down, and lumber was scattered all over the rooms.

Query. Why all this confusion? to benefit the mission by fitting up the first floor for a store, to sell botanic medicines, and whatever was called for that was simple but useful. A short conversation with Sister Smith convinced me of her earnestness, and her cheerful manner made me more cheerful, notwithstanding the surrounding debris. There was no time to invite me into the upper rooms, reported to be so finely furnished. Indeed, the work went on, and hammer and saw were skillfully used, and I left them, wishing I had more to give, and praying the Lord of the self-sacrificing and diligent to bless them.

It was some time before I was privileged to visit the mission again. It was on a Sunday evening I found the upper rooms full of happy countenances. The Spirit was there, and I felt warm and joyful. I next attended the baptismal scene so beautifully described by Sr. Helginson and Elder Cox. The calmness of the day, the smoothness of the water, the numerous boats filled with pleasure seekers, which hovered around the scene, and whose occupants were respectful and silent amid its solemnities; the joyful fruits of obedience, and the lesson of confidence and hope which it taught, made this the most interesting baptism I ever witnessed.

The following Monday evening, the candidates received the "laying on of hands," and I certify that the Father and the Son sanctioned it, because the Holy Spirit ratified it. The testimonies were many and peculiarly powerful, but one of them especially fastened on my mind.

The speaker was neatly attired in black, of more than medium size, and in the prime of life. Her voice was full and earnest, and her words solid, touching and convincing. In contrasting the present with the past, she said,

"I am not in the 'Tombs' any more; I am not breaking chains any more"; and then Sr. Smith remarked to me,

"That woman's conversion is worth all the Mission has ever cost"; and I thought so too; and she also remarked,

"She lives it, too."

Praise the Lord for reforming power. I dropped in awhile last Friday evening, and again witnessed the workings of the Spirit. Truly the Lord is in this work. By invitation of Sr. Smith, I spoke at the mission on Sunday evening, July 10th. The attendance was good, the atmosphere genial, and the worship spiritual.

Bro. Grant, and readers of the "Crisis," it is great, noble and Christ-like, to rescue and elevate the degraded fallen. There are degrees of misery and crime, and the love-labor that visits cellars and garrets, and comes in contact with everything that is offensive to nice taste, and even risks health and life, is not the easy profession of well-situated and well-to-do ones. O no! talk is cheap, envy common, misrepresentation prevalent, and the devil well pleased. To the thoughtful the present is a study, and the query is, "How long?" The answer of nature is rumbling and confusion, and philosophy speaks with uncertainty and speculation; but Inspiration boldly and persuasively offers hope, explains the past, makes the present prophetic, and reveals a future immortal life.

To me the "one hope" is precious. This trial state is the preparation for the great test. To stand complete will be life, eternal life!

Yours in "expectation sweet,"

ELD. FRANKLIN DOUGLAS.

LETTER FROM BRO. A. D. FLAGG.

BRO. GRANT:—I enjoyed a refreshing season with the brethren and sisters in Pleasant Valley, July 11th. It was my first appointment there, and I was glad to find a few fighting "the good fight of faith." There were no other services in the place, until five o'clock P. M. Then a Rev. (by the name of Winters), a Congregationalist, preached in the Methodist church. He came from New Hartford. I had not heard an orthodox sermon for some time, and thought I would go. I took a sheet of paper with me to note some remarks, so as to compare them with the Bible. After the usual form, he took his text from Isa. 1: 3. After comparing the christians of the present day with the natural stupidity of the animals spoken of in the text, trying to impress the minds of his hearers with the fact that ministers' hearts were broken in consequence thereof, he commenced to pour broadsides upon those who were preaching the entire mortality of man. He said,

"There are some of the greatest talents in the world preaching the mortality of man. Tom Paine was one, Voltaire another. But on their death-bed they were obliged to confess they preached fables." "We do not consider we are mortal, although there are evidences to prove it. The destruction of the antediluvian world, Sodom and Gomorrah," etc. "We do consider we are immortal, although great efforts have been and are being made to convince us to the contrary. Any man who advocates the mortality of man knows he lies." "I always expect to have conscious existence." "If we had no other evidence in the Bible but the rich man and Lazarus, it should convince us." "Alas! alas! how many of our fallen race consider themselves no better than the beasts." "We shall all go to heaven or hell."

After asking God to give me bountifully of his grace, the meeting was closed. I asked Mr. Winters if he did not make an assertion in the desk he could not prove. He said he believed not. I then referred him to the fact that he branded all with hypocrisy who preached the mortality of man. He plainly denied it. I told him I had taken notes of his sermon. He then remarked there were some good men that believed it. He turned the conversation by remarking it was a warm day.

I left the house praying that the Lord would open the eyes of the blind. Brethren, it is a warning to us not to compromise the truth with any man. If we are in the old ship of Zion, let us hold on "Until the last armed foe expires," and then we shall reign on the earth. I love the truth better and better. Yours waiting for redemption, A. D. FLAGG.

For the World's Crisis.

ROCHESTER, JULY 11TH.

We have had another good day in Rochester.

We attended the funeral of a much loved sister at nine A. M. Prayer and conference at half past ten. Baptized three at noon. The wife of one who had thought sprinkling good enough, till she saw her husband go down into the water, only awaits an opportunity to be buried in the likeness of His death, that she may also be in the likeness of his resurrection. Her Sunday clothes scarcely prevailed against her going right along.

The old ship seems to be weighing anchor for another voyage, and I hope she will reach port this time. If the cause in Rochester were mine, I might fear that it would suffer just now; but I have never considered it as such. The cause is God's cause, and I have tried to get a more worthy and capable man to care for it, but as yet the voice of the elders and church is, "Thou art the man." If the cause is to suffer and our unity be broken here, I shall have the satisfaction of knowing I have done what I could for its unity and prosperity, and perhaps may hope for the privilege of living nearer my family, which I have so much desired. "Thy will be done," is the full response of my heart, knowing that "He doeth all things well."

The afternoon and evening services were attended with all the interest of former days. It was good to be there.

Pray for the church in Rochester. Pray for them that would divide us. Pray for me, that I may stand in the counsel of God, and after having done all, STAND. Yours,

H. PRATT.

"ZION'S HILL."

BRO. GRANT:—I attended the "Zion's Hill" tent meeting at East Weymouth a number of times, and lastly on Monday (5th), in company with many others from Boston and vicinity, of like precious faith, where we had a good gathering, and a rich feast together, in hearing, exhorting, praying, and singing Zion's songs. The favor of the Lord was felt and experienced by the many. It was a good place. The love and harmony, good feeling and fellowship, which was and is ever manifest where the Spirit of the Lord is, so prevailed that the lookers on could but feel and confess that this religion was of heavenly origin.

The day passed with great satisfaction to the lovers of Jesus. The tent still stands. The meeting still continues. "Zion's Hill" is still the resort of many, Sundays and evenings, to hear the word of life, the good news of salvation, the glad tidings of the coming glories of the new kingdom. The sound has gone forth of the second coming of Jesus, the one dearly loved by all his loyal subjects and faithful followers. Some were all ready to welcome the sound; others have fallen in love and are captivated with it; so the choral song is sung with higher, sweeter strains of joy and shouts of glory. Hallelujahs were made to echo from the gladdened soul.

May redemption's voice from "Zion's Hill"
Be received with song, the mouth to fill
Their feet firm set upon the Rock,
United with the little flock.

May light and truth be scattered, and the good seed be sown in all that community; and may it bring forth fruit to the glory of God. Thy Bro. for truth to triumph gloriously,

July 10th. L. BOUTELL.

For the World's Crisis.

TRACTS, TRACTS.

Who will supply the treasury of the Maine Mission Tract Society? Such a society exists; and at this time there is not a tract in the Agent's hands, nor a cent in its treasury. A few weeks since an order came to the agent for seventy-five cents' worth of tracts, and he could not fill the order, although the money came with it; for he had not been supplied with money to buy tracts.

Shall our treasury remain empty? For several years I have contributed as freely as I could and begged of others for the Maine tract cause, and sought to turn what tract interest there was to a focal point, and make it an institution, to give it character and influence for the greater spread of the work; but the spirit of this enterprise flags. I know not who is doing anything in this direction. Individuals doubtless procure of publishers and circulate some Individuals donate some to the publishers, but this does nothing to supply our preachers and other tract distributors with tracts.

The Mission tent, which affords facilities for and has been the medium of scattering them abundantly, started this year without a tract to give. But through the good disposition and mission spirit of Bro. F. A. Baker, who has received a supply of tracts for distribution, the tent is supplied with tracts for the present. Thanks to God, and to him, for this.

Shall the means be supplied to furnish our treasurer the opportunity to keep a supply of tracts for those who call, for the ministers, and for general distribution in Maine? Bro. R. R. York, Portland, Maine, is agent and treasurer, and any of our preachers are ready to receive and forward money to him for that purpose. I. C. WELLCOME.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE.

The fourth quarterly session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire was held at Northwood Narrows, N. H., as was appointed in Crisis. A business session was called by the president, Eld. J. Couch, Friday P. M. Meeting opened with prayer by Bro. Levi Allen. The Secretary, Bro. A. W. Sibley, being absent, Bro. John Parsons was chosen Sec. pro tem. Brn. R. Morrill, J. J. Bartlett, and J. T. Langley, were received as delegates.

Voted, That Bro. Joseph Weeks be dismissed at his own request. Voted, That Bro. A. A. Phelps of N. Y. be invited to a seat in the Conference and take a part in the deliberations of the same. Voted, That the next annual conference be held in Concord, N. H. Adjourned till Saturday A. M.

Met as adjourned. Prayer offered by Bro. T. W. Piper. Voted, That Brn. C. W. Sargent of Concord and Charles Parsons of Strafford be admitted as members of this conference. The following preamble and resolution, presented by Bro. Couch, were adopted:

Whereas, Christian union and harmony of action among the followers of Christ are eminently important for their prosperity and usefulness; and Whereas, God has taught us, both by precept and example, that such union and harmony may be most safely and permanently secured by well regulated associations: Therefore,

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the proposition published in the Voice of the West and the World's Crisis to hold a general conference of delegates chosen for that purpose by the Advent Christian Conferences of the United States and Canadas.

Resolved, That this conference will appoint three delegates to represent it in said Convention, and will provide funds to defray their necessary expenses in attending the sessions of the same.

Voted, That the annual session of this conference be on the Thursday following the third Sabbath in September. The following resolution, offered by Bro. Phelps, was adopted: Resolved, That all cases of ordination should be referred to the conference or the ministerial committee appointed for that purpose.

The following resolution, offered by Bro. E. S. Moulton, was adopted: Resolved, That Eld. H. M. Bryant is restored to our fellowship as a christian, but that we advise him not to labor in public as a preacher, until he has established a good christian character in private life. Voted to adjourn without date.

Ministers present: J. Couch, T. W. Piper,

L. Allen, C. S. Emerson, S. S. Mooney, A. A. Phelps, W. W. Sutherland, J. H. Evans, C. A. Smith, J. Parsons, E. Morrill, E. S. Moulton, Chas. Parsons, Chas. W. Sargent, S. B. Brown. JOHN PARSONS, Sec. pro tem.

Extracts from Letters.

SR. E. SMITH, Portsmouth, N. H., writes: "I have been a reader of the Crisis for nine years. It has been next to my Bible, meat and drink to my thirsty soul. How often has my heart been cheered by reading letters from different brethren and sisters. I have felt I wished I could say something to comfort or encourage some one on their pilgrim journey. The Lord, for Jesus' sake, rolled the burden from my sinful heart many years ago. Bless his dear Name! I made a profession of religion with the Congregationalists, but was always in darkness and doubts; thought I had not true religion; did not realize that we had these old natures, through grace, to bring under subjection. Toiled on, prayed on, in my feeble way, never willing to give up, because God did bless me.

Nine years ago circumstances led me among the Adventists. I loved them dearly; but to think that we had no immortality but through Christ at the resurrection, seemed almost like infidelity. I soon began to see the light as it is revealed in his blessed word. The Bible has been a new book to me ever since. How great is the plan of salvation. I wish every one could see it as his blessed word teaches, and embrace it and be saved when he comes."

BRO. B. P. MANNING writes:—"I can say with Job, 'I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my veins be consumed within me.' I am with Bro. John Whipple, in Goffstown, and I am trying to serve the God of Daniel; but the enemy of my soul is trying to destroy me, but my trust is in God, and he will save me as long as I serve him. Trials are heaped upon me, notwithstanding the distress of my poor body. I am satisfied that I shall be laid away in the cold earth in a few days, if Jesus should not come soon. Then I shall be quiet till Jesus comes. Then the angels will find me, and I shall be with my blessed Lord forever in the kingdom of God. Glory be to God! What a blessed thought.

I would say to all the disciples of Jesus, remember me at the throne of grace. How glad I should be to hear from any of God's dear children."

A CORRECTION.—In the Crisis of June 16, I put a letter from Bro. Dobney, of England, in which the word "not" is left out by mistake; it should read, "Mr. Dunn owns the Bible is so silent about it [the intermediate state], that he knows not that sinners are on probation there." J. BLAIN.

Obituaries.

BLAISDELL. Died, in Bath, Me., June 11th, 1869, of consumption, Vesta, daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Anna Blaisdell, aged nineteen years.

This dear child was mild and gentle as a lamb, and although suffering from a lingering and trying disease, yet she could always greet those who visited her with a smile. Two or three weeks before she died, she gained a good evidence of her acceptance with the Lord, and from that time praised the Lord almost continually, and died happy, telling her friends not to mourn for her. They laid her away to sleep until Jesus comes.

H. D. REED.

CURRIER. Fell asleep, Bro. Clark M. Currier, formerly of Bolton, P. Q.

His funeral was attended at Wayne, Mich., on the 6th of July, by Bro. Himes. Bro. C. was personally known to me as well as to many other friends in Canada, who will regret much his loss; for as a minister he was a laborer deeply interested in the salvation of the perishing.

E. G. CHADSEY.

STEBBINS. Fell asleep in Jesus, in Rochester, N. Y., July 8th, 1869, our beloved Sister, Louisa Stebbins, aged ninety-one years.

She rests in hope. Pray for an invalid sister, and a father and mother, who deeply mourn their loss. H. PRATT.

SPENCER. Died, in South Livermore, Me., May 9th, 1869, Louisa F., wife of Stephen Spencer, aged twenty-six years, eleven months, and thirteen days.

E. M. HAGGETT.

BUBIER. Died, in Bowdoin, Me., June 15th, 1869, Jane, wife of Otis Bubier, aged seventy-two years. H. D. REED.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

PARIS, July 13. All the Ministers have resigned. The resignations of M. Routher and Lavalette have been accepted by the Emperor; the other members of the Cabinet remain. The new ministry will be a transitional one, M. Olivier refuses a portfolio for the present but will probably accept in the end. The Radicals are indignant at the prorogation of the Legislative body.

MADRID, July 14. News has been received from Funchal that the republic has been proclaimed in Madeira. Troops have been dispatched from Cadiz to the Island.

BELFAST, July 14. Serious riots occurred here between the Catholics and Orangemen on the 12th inst. The windows in many buildings were smashed, one Catholic schoolhouse was gutted and another badly damaged. Several of the rioters were wounded, and one policeman had three ribs broken.

MADRID, July 14. The remains of a Spanish lady who died in the Protestant faith, were interred here to-day in the general cemetery. This has occurred under a recent order of the Alcade permitting and defending such funerals. Nearly two hundred Spanish Protestants were present. There was no disturbance.

July 15. In the Cortes yesterday Marshal Prim introduced the new Ministers, and remarked that the present Cabinet was constituted from the majority, and that though men had been changed, the policy of the Government was unchanged.

Republican deputies replied, making a severe attack on the government policy.

PARIS, July 15. The French journals comment unfavorably on the prorogation of the Corps Legislatif before the verification of the election was completed. The Government is accused of closing the Chamber in the design of stifling discussion. The session will probably be resumed on the 20th of August. It is rumored that Prince Napoleon is to be made President of the Council of Ministers.

VIENNA, July 15. Severe tumults took place this week among the workmen at Brunn. The military were called out to suppress the riot, and were fired upon by the mob, killing two and wounding twelve. The crowd has dispersed, but great excitement still prevails there, and the authorities are taking every precaution to prevent the renewal of the disorder.

HONG KONG, June 24, via LONDON, July 17. A proclamation denouncing foreigners has been extensively posted in the towns and villages on the Yangtsee river by the agents of a secret society. A conspiracy has been discovered at Foo Chow, having for its object the opening of another Taeping rebellion. It is rumored that over 50,000 men are connected with the movement.

LONDON, July 17. Advices from Rio Janeiro to the 20th ult. have been received, and fully confirm the reported victory of the Allies over Lopez. The Paraguayans lost 500 killed and wounded, 300 prisoners and 12 guns. A treaty establishing a provisional government for Paraguay had been concluded.

MADRID, July 18. The Government has received a telegram announcing that Don Carlos has disappeared from France and has entered Navarre. He was pursued to the frontier by the police.

DOMESTIC.

New York, 13th. A drought of unprecedented severity prevails throughout the greater part of the West Indies. In the island of Trinidad the drought is so intense that the deepest wells in the Port of Spain are almost dry. The country was completely burned up with heat, and several fires had occurred with the most disastrous results. One of the fires had traversed seventy-five miles of country, destroying in its course thousands of acres of growing canes, and other fires had taken place on cocoa plantations with similar sad results.

In St. Lucia the streams have diminished to such an extent that the mills are all at a stand-still for want of water to work them. In Guadaloupe public and private cisterns are alike dried up, and not a drop of fresh water is to be obtained. In the towns the inhabitants are to be seen at the corners of the different streets pumping and drinking brackish water, while the distress of domestic animals and cattle is painful to witness. In Grenada and Antigua the young canes are perishing for lack of moisture, months having elapsed since they have had a heavy fall of rain.

July 15th. A Washington special says: "With the exception of the opinion of Attorney General Hoar and the letters addressed to the French and the British Ministers by Secretary Fish, no action has been taken by the Government upon the landing of the French cable on the coast of Massachusetts. Secretary Boutwell has not, as reported in some quarters, ordered a U. S. Revenue Cutter to proceed to the point where it is proposed to land the cable on United States territory and prevent it, nor is it likely any such course will be pursued. The matter was pending in Congress at the adjournment, and it will probably be left to that body to settle it. Secretary Fish considered it his duty to place the French Minister in possession of the facts so far as the action of our Government is developed relative to the landing of the cable, so that he might inform his Government of the risk it must run in attempting to land the cable on United States Territory without authority from Congress.

TORNADO IN MINNESOTA.—A violent tornado visited St. Peter and other places in Minnesota on the 2d inst., unroofing many buildings, tearing up trees and doing other damage. At Lake Pepin it was especially violent, and the scene on the lake was a remarkable one. The Lake City Leader says:

"We first saw the tornado as it was whirling out upon Lake Pepin. Our attention was arrested by hearing a hoarse and awful roar, drowning the noise of the thunder storm that was then passing over the town. Looking southward we saw a huge egg-shaped cloud whirling at an altitude of say two hundred yards. Its position was then diagonal, with the small end inclining downward. The roar of it was terrible. When it passed out upon the lake it assumed a more upright position, sank a little, and commenced drawing up the waters to meet it; and for some fifteen minutes, about the time of its passage across the lake, the waters over a space of about a hundred feet in diameter, were whirling and rising in spiral form, and with a violence and commotion that was awful to behold. The spray and mist, mixed with the clouds of dust carried by the whirlwind from the shore, gave the scene the appearance of a lake on fire. As it neared the opposite shore, the cloud took the tunnel shape of the ocean waterspout, standing in a perpendicular position. Leaving the lake, it swept the waters out upon the beach for a distance of thirty yards, in waves twenty feet above the ordinary level of the lake. It struck Bogus Creek flatly in the mouth, and, as it rose to climb the bluff and pass over into Bogus Valley, the trees that it lifted from the bluff side were distinctly seen from Lake City, four miles distant, sailing away in the tornado, four or five hundred feet up from the ground. The right wing of the tornado swept to the left of Mr. White's house, being turned by the heavy timber. The left passed over the point of the bluff, and the whole crossed Bogus Creek below the mill, climbed the opposite bluffs, and swept away across the highlands toward Plum Creek. Fortunately there were but few houses in its way where it crossed Bogus Valley, for ruin was in its track. Everything fell before it. Fences were blown away, the largest trees torn up or broken into splinters. One solid white oak, two feet and a half through, was twisted completely off."

THE GERMAN PROTESTANTS AND THE POPE.—A cable dispatch from Worms, (Germany,) says: "The Protestant Congress which assembled here to-day was attended by twenty thousand persons, including representatives from all the States of Germany. The Congress, by a unanimous vote, resolved against the Papal exhortation to return to the Roman church, and in condemnation of the Encyclical letter and Syllabus. The idea of the formation of a united German church is mooted."

Simultaneously with this resolve, at Worms, to decline the Pope's invitation, we have the Presbyterian Assemblies on this side of the Atlantic, resolving to take like action. Incidents like these would seem to indicate that the breach effected in the Roman communion at the Reformation, is to remain unclosed, so far as the German Protestants and the American Presbyterians are concerned,—and yet, the powerful Ritualistic movement in the Church of England, and in the Episcopal Church in this country, together with the now very common declaration, on the part of some of its clergy, that "Protestantism is a failure," (to say nothing of their recent overtures for re-union with the Greek Church,) would seem to give token of a desire at least for a nearer relationship to Rome on the part of all that school of Protestants. Look at it how one will, it is impossible to resist the conviction that the church organizations, and the religious sects of the day, are undergoing remarkable changes,—the result of which, good or evil, it is not easy, as yet, to foresee.—New York Express.

Passing Events.

☞ According to the last reports received from the Roman Catholic missionaries in China, the province of Su-tcheun has been visited by a fearful plague of cholera, and more than one thousand Christians have died. Two thirds of the shops in the principal city were closed, and the Pagans charge the Christians with being the occasion of the plague by their refusal to join the national worship. This has given rise to considerable persecution; the people forming leagues in which they bind themselves not to have any commercial dealings with Christians. Nevertheless four hundred and thirty baptisms are reported for the year. In Corea the persecution which began in March, 1866, with the martyrdom of nine missionaries continues with redoubled violence. Whole masses are proscribed, and the object is to annihilate every vestige of Christianity.

☞ At Lurgan, in Ireland, on the 12th inst., an Orange mob was pelted with stones. They retaliated by utterly destroying seventeen houses occupied by Catholics. The woodwork and furniture of the buildings were then carried into the street and burned. Order was restored at the latest advices. At New Rye the Orange Hall was attacked by Catholics. The occupants fired on the assailants, who were driven away, leaving three men badly wounded.

☞ The Chicago papers give an account of a large tabernacle, or tent, constructed in that city for religious services in Kansas. It is seventy feet in diameter, thirty feet in height, provided with raised seats, and will accommodate fifteen hundred people. It is proposed to go through the State of Kansas, into the new towns where there are no meeting houses, and hold a series of religious meetings. The State is filling up so fast with emigrants that some such plan is required to meet the religious wants of the people.

☞ Mons. Lesseps, the engineer of the Great Suez Canal for uniting the Mediterranean and Red Sea, is coming to this country to make a trip over the Pacific Railroad, which he identifies in magnitude of interest to the commerce of the world, with the immense canal built under his direction. He will also make a tour around the world, and expects to have a vessel shortly leave Marseilles, making the passage through the Suez Canal, and thence to San Francisco, thus avoiding the long trip around the coast of Africa.

☞ The Anglo-Italian Gazette states that the Marquis of Bute has been invested at Jerusalem with the spurs and sword of the celebrated Godfrey de Bouillon, making him the Knight of the Holy Sepulchre. The ceremony was performed in the Latin Chapel of the Holy Sepulchre, called the Chapel of the Apparition, as it was there our Savior is reported to have appeared to Mary Magdalene.

☞ A correspondent of the Allgemeine Zeitung at Nagasaki says that although the principal daimios have all agreed to abdicate their power in favor of the Mikado, their acts are not in accordance with their professions, and it is probable that before long Japan will again be plunged into a civil war as disastrous as that which has just terminated.

☞ A lady recently visited Mount Holyoke who was ninety-four years old, and her previous visit had taken place seventy-nine years before, when she was a girl of fifteen. Yet the nonogenarian remembered her girlish trip perfectly, and recalled with ease the general outlines of the view from the mountain.

☞ Protestantism in Saxony has received a valuable addition by the conversion of the Rev. Mr. Jager, a Franciscan friar, formerly private secretary to the Archbishop of Prague and confessor to the King of Saxony. He has just preached for the first time in Dresden as a Protestant clergyman.

☞ A celebrated physician recently said the Ecumenical Council presented a great danger to the Pope, who, in his present excited state was not equal to meeting opposition, and might have an apoplectic stroke if exposed to it.

☞ A rumor gains ground in ecclesiastical circles, that Mgr. Dupanloup is likely to be named President of the forthcoming Ecumenical Council at Rome.

☞ The Turkish General Vizier is preparing a comprehensive and liberal scheme of popular education for the whole empire.

☞ The Turkish government has granted a sum of 15,000f. towards the restoration of the churches in Crete which were injured during the rebellion.

☞ The Czar has forbidden the attendance of the Russian Bishops at the Pope's Ecumenical Council.

☞ The great Methodist camp meeting at Round Lake, New York, was attended by twelve thousand on Sunday.

☞ Louis Napoleon is reported in very feeble health.

☞ The French cable is expected to arrive at Duxbury on Wednesday or Thursday.

Notices.

Conn. and R. I. Campmeeting.

Oak Grove Advent Camp, Windham, Conn.

There will be a campmeeting at the above mentioned place, commencing Saturday, Aug. 14th, and continuing eight days. This is a new field, and offers many encouragements for one of the best meetings ever enjoyed. The word of invitation is to churches, families, and individuals. One and all, far and near, come up to the feast.

You will find beauty and convenience of location. The ground is situated on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R., five miles east of Willimantic, and half way between Waldo's and South Windham stations. Cars will stop on the ground which will be known as Camp Shetucket Station. Fare will be reduced on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R. 30 per cent from all stations east or west of ground. Fare from Providence and return, $2.50, and the same or further reduction is expected from other roads. Those who come from New London or Palmer, will change cars at Willimantic. The grove is as clean as a carpet, free from dust, and has an excellent spring of water close by.

Your expenses can be light. The committee hope to bring this meeting as near to the old-fashioned campmeetings in simplicity and power as possible. The expense of the ground is nothing, and its fitting up trifling, so that no heavy burdens will be thrown upon those who come. Board not exceeding 75 cts. per day; also arrangements for individual boarding. Rooms in a neat, unoccupied house near by, to let cheap, for cooking and lodging purposes. Lodgings in private families for those who apply early, at most reasonable rates. Rich pasturing for horses, at one shilling per day, or from 50 cts. to 75 cts. per week; also feed in stables, at low prices.

The object of this meeting is to carry the light of Divine truth into this new field; to proclaim aloud the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ; to teach transgressors their ways, that sinners may be converted to God, flee the "wrath to come," and "lay hold on eternal life." We trust none will come for strife or controversy with their brethren, nor to press some side issue; such will meet no favor. But we exhort all to come in the spirit and power of Elijah's God, to be workers together with God against unbelief and sin. We assuredly expect the Lord with us.

We say again, Come. The whole region around the ground waits to welcome us and bid us come. Let distant churches unite to get fares reduced on their respective R. Roads. Bring your tents, also ample bedding for each individual. May the Spirit of God summon the host.

I. B. POTTER,
B. HITCHCOCK,
E. BELLOWS,
H. F. CARPENTER, Committee of Arrangements.

P. S. By team the Camp is eighteen miles southwest from Danielsonville; fifteen west of Plainfield; four south of Scotland, and three from Windham Centre, Ct.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

Circumstances are such, that the committee have decided that it will be best for the Alton Bay campmeeting to commence Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over the 12th. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee, J. G. SMITH.

Tent Meeting at Waterloo, N. H.

Providence permitting, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched near Waterloo Depot, about two miles north of Warner Village, on Thursday, Aug. 5th. Meetings to hold day and evenings through the week, and over the Sunday following. The Tent will be pitched in Col. N. G. Ordway's grove. Come to labor for the lost and perishing.

J. C. SHOREY, Tent Master. D. M. LEAVITT.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched on the Messer Place (so called,) on the road leading from Laconia to Lake Village, N. H. Meetings to commence July 24th, and hold over two Sundays. Meeting free for all. Come, brethren and sisters, to work for the Lord. Preaching brethren are invited, such as the Lord sends.

J. C. SHOREY, Tent Master. D. M. LEAVITT.

Conn. Conference.

The Conn. A. C. Conference will hold its next quarterly session at Cheshire Street, Conn., to commence with preaching Wednesday evening, July 21st, at half past seven. The first business session will be held on Thursday afternoon, at half past two. Let every preacher be present at that time, if possible, and all the churches be sure to send delegates in season. Now, brethren, do not fail to be prompt in attending to this call.

Those coming via. Meriden will find conveyance at the depot to meet the noon trains north and south. Those coming via. Plainville on Canal R. R. will be met at the Cheshire Depot on the 1-20 train south. Strangers coming with their own teams, inquire for Cheshire Street (not Centre), as the Street is four miles north east of the Centre.

B. HITCHCOCK.

Campmeeting.

The Campmeeting in Maine, to commence about the 23d of August, will be held in Pittsfield, on the Drew farm, about two miles from the village. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the poor and the preachers to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting. In behalf of the Committee,

I. DAMMAN.

Grove Meeting at Westfield, Pa.

There will be a grove meeting at Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa. (near the village), commencing Friday, Aug. 27th, to continue over the Sabbath following. C. F. Sweet, D. Cogswell, and others, are expected to preach the word. All are invited to attend. For the brethren, J. W. TAYLOR.

The Tent at Winterport.

The Maine Mission Tent will be pitched at Winterport, Me., to commence meetings Thursday evening, July 28th, and continue over the following Lord's day, and as much longer as thought duty.

I. C. WELLCOME.
F. A. BAKER.

Call for Help.

Bro. B. P. Manning has no home (unless he goes to the county-house), and he looks to his brethren in this his time of need. We think his state of health is such, that whatever the church does, should be sent to some judicious brother, who will see that their offerings are appropriated for his comfort. Bro. Saulpaugh has been selected for that purpose, and a place has been procured for Bro. Manning to board. Brethren will direct their letters to Benjamin Saulpaugh, Goffstown, N. H. "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." J. G. SMITH.

Notice to Brethren West.

Do you want a basket, a grove, or tent meeting this summer? Write. 1. Because verbal invitations may be forgotten. 2. Things may shape up, and it be not best to hold one. 3. We need to know all particulars necessary to make proper arrangements, both as to time and place. I have some time for mission work. If any desire my labors, please write without delay.

PETER S. W. DEYO, Strawberry Point, Iowa.

Basket Meeting.

If no preventing providence, there will be a basket meeting held in the grove near Elizabeth, Jo Davis Co., Ill., July 25th, 1869.

Preparations: A wagon to preach out of, and each one finds his own seat, or sits in his wagon. A basket of dinner to eat on the ground, under the shade trees. PETER S. W. DEYO.

Notice.

I desire to visit the east this season, if the Lord will, and to attend the Springfield campmeeting. I would like to visit churches on the way, and preach for our mutual benefit. Any brethren wishing me to call on them, can direct to me at New Rutland, Ills. I wish to start about the first of August. F. BURR.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.20; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

A HAND TO TAKE.

You're rich, and yet you are not proud,
You are not selfish, hard, or vain;
You look upon the common crowd
With sympathy, and not disdain;
You'd travel far to share your gold
With humble sorrow unconsoled;
You'd raise the orphan from the dust,
And help the sad and widowed mother:
Give me your hand—you shall—you must—
I love you as a brother.

You're poor, and yet you do not scorn
Or hate the wealthy for their wealth;
You toil contented night and morn,
And prize the gifts of strength and health;
You'd share your little with a friend,
And what you cannot give you'd lend;
You take humanity on trust,
And see some merit in another:
Give me your hand—you shall—you must—
I love you as a brother.

And what care I how rich you be?
I love you if your thoughts are pure;
What signifies your poverty,
If you can struggle and endure?
'Tis not the birds that make the spring,
'Tis not the crown that makes the king,—
If you are wise, and good, and just,
You've riches better than all other:
Give me your hand—you shall—you must—
I love you as a brother.

For the World's Crisis.

A CHAPTER FROM MY EXPERIENCE.

Having as I trust a pure desire to be established in the things which become sound doctrine, and to believe the truth as it is in Jesus, I feel it to be duty to write a few thoughts relative to my former and present views of the word of the Lord on the final destiny of the wicked, and whether all men naturally possess immortality.

I had christian parents, and always received such admonition and counsel as only those who are christians can give. But they believed that all men naturally possessed immortality, that the wicked would wail in eternal torment, and that the righteous went home to heaven above. They believed that the immortal souls of both classes left the body at death, and were wafted away to the world of bliss or wretchedness. Knowing this, and with the belief that the Bible was full of its teachings, it became deeply engrafted into my whole being. I as firmly believed it as I did the existence of God.

Seven or eight years ago my attention was first brought fully to the great subject under consideration. Several Adventists lived near by, who began to affirm that the doctrine of the immortality of the soul and the eternal conscious suffering of the wicked was not only a violation of God's eternal truth, but that its origin was in the garden of Eden, and from the serpent, who said to Eve, "Thou shalt not surely die." I verily believed at first that they were the servants of Satan, as they come out in direct opposition to the theology of the great mass of evangelical denominations.

Fourteen years ago I united with the Free-will Baptist church in this place, of which I am still a member. I love my brethren and sisters as christians, though I feel that I love my Savior best of all, and by diligent search of the Scriptures I am truthfully convinced, yea, I believe with all my heart, that the whole man is mortal and dying, and without repentance towards God, and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, will as literally suffer the second death, as have all those who have been housed away in their graves. And from this death I believe there is no resurrection; for I believe the Scriptures teach (Rom. 6: 22, 23,) "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Death is not life in any form or sense when sin is finished, for the wages of sin is death; and sin when it is finished bringeth forth death. If the Lord had suffered Adam to have eaten of the tree of life after he had disobeyed him, it is fair to conclude that Adam and all his posterity never would have died, but would have been immortal sinners. But God in his infinite mercy, love and justice, drove Adam out from the garden, and guarded the tree of Life, lest after he had sinned he should reach forth his hand, and eat and live forever. Thus the Lord maintained his word, and proved the devil to be a liar from the beginning; for the record proves that Adam died, and went into the ground from whence he was taken.

When God saw that there could be no future life without a Savior, and he "so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever would believe on him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Christ came to take the place of the tree of life to all that would believe on him; and he can not and will not save men in their sins; for it is not consistent nor possible, any more than it was for him to have let Adam lived eternally in his sins. This being true, as I believe, all that ever get eternal life and immortality must get it through Christ and a resurrection from the dead, and only those who have part in Christ will ever possess immortality; and they will never obtain it this side of the resurrection. But through the death, resurrection and ascension of Christ, I believe he will bring both classes of the dead up from their graves, to be judged at his personal appearing; then it will be said to the righteous, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom." On the other hand, "Depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

Jesus saith, "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." How are we to obtain this favor? It is the free gift of God. The apostle Paul tells us that "by patient continuance in well doing" we are to "seek for glory, honor, immortality, eternal life." If all men naturally possess immortality, it is conclusive to my mind that they are not dependent on Christ for it, or a resurrection from the dead, but are sure of an eternal existence without it. But "the wages of sin is death," and not life in misery. If the saints enter into life when they die, and are with Christ and angels, it is evident that the apostle Paul knew not what he affirmed (1 Cor. 15: 16–18), "For if the dead rise not, then is Christ not raised; then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."

I thank the Lord for the glorious promise of a literal resurrection, as Christ had a literal resurrection, and became the first fruits of them that slept. It is clear to my mind that the harvest will be like the first fruits. I thank the Lord that I believe his word teaches that we are coming up literally and wholly, and that we shall have an identity; that we shall have tangible bodies; that we can see, and feel, and be handled, and have just as literal an existence as we have in this world. It is cheering to our hearts that our loved ones now sleeping in Jesus will shout the victor's song in that glorious morning of the resurrection. It cheers my heart to believe (1 Cor. 15: 54–57) that "when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? But thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

It is conclusive to my mind, from the teachings of all the inspired writers, that the grave holds victory and dominion over all that have fallen victims to death of all ages, and will till Christ the great Lifegiver comes to judge the quick and dead at his appearing and kingdom (Rev. 11: 15, 18); "and the seventh angel sounded, and there were great voices in heaven saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever. . . . And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great, and shouldest destroy them that destroy the earth." In searching the Scriptures, unbiassed, I see new beauties in Christ and the glorious plan of salvation. I never could harmonize the Scriptures, nor see real love, justice and mercy in the doctrine of eternal, conscious suffering; but I believed it must be right, knowing that God could not err. With my present views, God's word looks plain, though I do not pretend to understand perfectly all that is written in the Bible; yet I believe it. I cannot see any necessity of a resurrection if the righteous and wicked go to heaven and hell at death. I cannot find an intimation in the Bible where the souls of either ever come back to inhabit the body again at the resurrection, or any other time; but it is the dead that are going to be judged and rewarded, and nothing is said about an immortal soul or spirit. If such exist as conscious entities, independent of the body, I should be glad to believe it; but I cannot find the proof.

I feel willing to sacrfice my preconceived opinions and unwarranted notions, and lay all on the altar for Christ and his truth. I have not changed my views of God's word because it was popular, because I am well aware that those of like faith are reproached as being heretics, and their theology that of infidelity. But I love the Bible, and I can see harmony and blessedness in its teachings; and I love all who love the Lord, and have charity for those who do not see the truth as I do. I was slow to see, but I can say as an honest christian, that the Bible seems more beautiful to me since I have believed that the Lord would make an end of sin and finish transgression. I believe that death, when applied to the wicked's final destiny, means death, and not life in misery; and when life is applied to the righteous, it means life. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." We have the assurance that Christ will destroy death, and him that hath the power of death, which is the devil.

What I have written has been written in love and good feeling towards all, for it is my chief desire to honor God and do his will in all things, and keep myself in the love of the truth and in the patient waiting for Christ. Your Bro., looking for the blessed hope,

Milo, Me. CHAS. E. LIVERMORE.

WHAT IT COSTS.

The present age is noted for its extravagance, and might with propriety be called an age of spendthrifts. Everything is done upon a grand scale. The cost of dress and pleasure, of lust and folly, is truly astonishing.

But that which is the most astonishing to contemplate is the cost of intoxicating drinks and drugs. Advocates of temperance raise an alarm in the world, in regard to the appalling increase of drunkards and drunkenness; but, methinks, that only a few possess a correct idea of the facts in the case.

Hon. D. A. Wells says, in an official manner, that the cost of liquor sold at retail in the United States, for the year ending June 30th, 1867, amounted to over $1,483,000,000. Now taking this as a data from which to reckon; and allowing that the world uses a proportionate amount, it gives us over fifty-five billions of dollars as the sum annually spent for strong drink. But on account of its superior cheapness in other parts of the world, we will reduce this three-fourths, and, using round numbers, we have $13,750,000,000, as a true and reliable estimate.

Now allowing that each gallon of liquor costs four dollars, this sum would buy 3,437,500,000 gallons. As each gallon of liquor contains two hundred and thirty-one cubic inches, this quantity would make 459,526,909 cubic feet of liquid, a quantity sufficient to fill a lake five hundred and thirty and one-third rods square, and six feet deep; or a canal twelve feet deep, fifty feet wide, and one hundred and forty-five miles in length.

In a tract entitled, "Few Saved," by "A Watchman," we are informed that the yearly cost of tobacco is $400,000,000; of hasheesh, $500,000,000, and of opium, $3,000,000,000; making a total sum of $3,900,000,000.

This added to the cost of drink, makes a grand total of $17,650,000,000 annually wasted; yes, worse than wasted, on the lust of the flesh.

Now allowing that sixteen dollars is equal to one pound, this sum would make 551,562½ tons of silver. If one car will carry eight tons, and every thirty cars would require one engine, this sum would take a train of 71,245 cars and engines; and, allowing to each a space of two rods, would reach four hundred and forty-five miles and ninety rods. If this train was to move at the rate of twenty miles per hour, it would require twenty-two hours and fifteen minutes, with a fraction, to pass a given point. Again, this enormous amount would build a church to every five hundred persons, at a cost of two thousand dollars, and give them a pastor at a salary of one thousand. It would build an equal number of school-houses, at one thousand each; build one thousand colleges, at five hundred thousand each; ten thousand hospitals, at one hundred thousand each; fifty thousand miles of railroad, at fifty thousand per mile. It would give to every person a Bible at two dollars per copy, and then leave a sum large enough to give to each of the 35,000,000 souls in this country the sum of eighteen dollars and fifty-seven cents.

But, alas! these are only the figures as far as dollars and cents, and the like, are concerned. Who can tell the whole amount of damage done by these poisons to the human family? Who can tell the extent of its damning influence in the world? It destroys the health and happiness, the peace and prosperity of man. It cuts asunder the sweetest ties of mortal life, by robbing the wife of the choice of her youth. It enters the loving family and robs the parents of their darling son. It gives to the manly youth an early death and a tainted memory. It blasts the fondest expectations, and blights the brightest hopes. It cuts its fatal swathe through fields of mortality, and sends its hundreds of thousands of victims annually to a dishonored drunkard's grave.

It robs society of its brightest ornaments, and the world of its most useful citizens. It takes the food from starving children, and sends them naked upon the charity of a cold and chilling world. It gives employment to the police and the sheriff, and crowds the rooms of the police courts and the halls of justice. It fills our jails, and gives the convicts for our State prisons; and, finally, it gives the victims for the scaffold, and fits for death those who might live in glory.

But all of its effects never will be known until the great day of judgment; when the poor lost drunkard will rise in judgment with the maker and vender of these agencies of Satan.

Soldiers of Christ! view the foes against which you contend. Truly the world is mad. It is drunk, frenzied, and wild. Friends of temperance and purity, gird you for the conflict, for the final fray with sin and Satan.

PRAY FOR PEACE.

A few weeks ago, an elderly man visited our town, and desired the privilege of preaching the gospel of peace, national peace, individual peace, and of distributing the books and tracts of the Peace Society. When I heard him, and read the published writings, I was glad in my heart, and I could not help singing in my soul, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of Him who bringeth good tidings, who publisheth peace." Notwithstanding the fierce hearing of contention, yet to-day, as truly as when Jesus trod the rough mountains, are his own going forth, bearing "precious seed." All hail! to him whose feet are shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace.

When will the day dawn, when the sound of war shall die, and be never heard again? "Follow after peace." Seek the wisdom that will find the peace that an agonizing war-torn world is needing. How long shall the great red dragon, so fearfully portrayed in the Revelations, be allowed to stand before the woman who bringeth forth the man-child?

O man, father, brother, husband, we pray you to hate this monster, for your own lives and the lives of your little ones; for the lives and the loves and the peace of your mother, your wife, your sister, your daughter. Each man can do a little to save his darlings. Each woman can lend her soul-love, and hope, and strength to shield her loved ones.

Now is the accepted time. Seek peace, and pursue it in every relation of life. Speak it, write it, spread its pages far and wide. Work while the day lasteth.

It was my happy privilege to help care for a beautiful and darling little boy a few months since, as I was in his dear parents' home for a while in the town of North Andover, Mass. All of loveliness that could grace a little darling boy, was found in that sweet child, and I loved him, oh! how much. Our country is full of such darlings, the father's hope, the mother's joy, and shall they only be food for dragons? Will christians look on indifferent? O, let us labor with that nerve that we would were these little lambs in a burning house. Vain are the professions of church or any outward forms, prayers, sermons, or labors, which do not serve this one end to "save." All else is failure.

Life and death are too antagonistic to embrace each other. Death is the deadly foe, and to call him a friend is blasphemy, is cruel mockery to every attribute of life. O, save your children. Suffer them not to pass through the fire to Moloch. Fathers, mothers, cast out these deadly errors from your faith, which call death life, which put bitter for sweet. Why will ye die, O house of Israel? Let us live to save. Let us lay hold on eternal life. P. M. EATON.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE STAR OF HOPE MISSION.

The expenditures of the Star of Hope Mission, New York City, from Aug. 1st, 1868, to July 1st, 1869, are as follows:—

Rent of Mission, $1100. Salaries to officers and assistants, $413.63. Traveling expenses, incidentals, etc., etc., $298.33. Coal, wood and oil, $110.23. Groceries and table expenses, $398.99. Printing cards, postage stamps, stationery, etc., $61.66. Expressage and freight $23.31. Money given to the sick and poor, $46.40. Money paid to other missions and missionaries, $37.25. Total, $2489.80.

Total receipts for the same period in letters, pledges, and donations, received at the mission, $2387.82. Excess of expenditures above receipts, $101.98.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION, NEW YORK CITY.

To whom it may concern, be it remembered, That I, James R. Tout, attorney and counsellor-at-law, together with the witnesses whose names are subscribed, have carefully, minutely and cautiously examined the books, bills, accounts, and letters, belonging to the mission aforesaid, for the past eleven months, ending July the first, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine; and do hereby certify that, to the best of our knowledge and belief, the foregoing is a full and correct statement of the receipts and disbursements of said mission for the length of time before mentioned.

Signed, July 9th, 1869.
JAMES R. TOUT,
ELD. FRANKLIN DOUGLASS,
ELD. THOS. J. COX, 24th St. Church.

Dear Brothers, Sisters, and all who are interested in the Star of Hope:—Another year has almost passed away; its trials, cares, temptations, sorrows and woes, are numbered with the past. Our heavenly Father has been pleased to bless the labors of the missionaries in this portion of the great metropolis. The annual report is now before you; the books open to the inspection of all. The committee, after carefully looking over the books and accounts, deem it an act of discretion and even duty to mention the following facts:

So far as our own judgment extends, we consider that this mission has been carried on frugally and in an economical manner. We find a day-book in which are entered all expenditures for each day; for example: yeast, 3 cts.; salt, 5 cts.; wood, 7 cts., etc., etc. At the close of the week all is entered in the ledger. The following we find per week, amount ranging (for groceries and table expenses) from $4.22 to $13.00. There have been employed four missionaries and one assistant, not including the superintendent. At present there are only two missionaries and one assistant, besides Sr. Anna Smith. We cannot refrain from expressing our satisfaction, and we think the public will join us when we feel pleased at a reduction of expenditures in this direction, though it is difficult to determine at all times what is for the best. She has also let a few rooms. Not only this, but we think it is at least justice to the superintendent of the Star of Hope Mission, to let those who have been patrons of the mission know that the money received for her photographs, which she has sold to the amount of $119.05, and reports valued at $22.15, has been appropriated for the benefit of the missionary work, as well as the presents given to her by her personal friends.

Yours in christian fellowship and love,
FRANKLIN DOUGLASS,
THOS. J. COX.

THE MURDER OF THE INNOCENTS.

A few weeks ago a pastor in one of our cities entered the dwelling of a family in moderate circumstances, and was cordially welcomed by the lady of the house, who always treated her minister with kindness, and receiving his visits joyfully. It was several months since he had called upon the family at their home, though he had seen the different members of it at church, and had spoken with them elsewhere, from time to time.

As he entered, the form of a beautiful baby lying asleep in its osier cradle arrested his attention, and he gazed upon it with interest, for like all good pastors, he had tender yearning of soul towards the children of his flock. After the salutation was over he alluded to the gift of God to her as a mother, and congratulated her upon this precious accession to her household. She already had two interesting children, a son and a daughter, and this little boy, a child unusually fair and beautiful, had come to complete the domestic trio, and sweeten the cup of their happiness. The good woman looked a little confused, and the color came to her cheeks at the mention of her precious boy, and struggling to command her feelings she claimed, "My dear pastor, this is indeed a beautiful child, and I have all a mother's pride in his fair face and lovely form, but I feel bound to say to you that I owe this child to your christian faithfulness." Greatly surprised at her expression, and wholly unable to interpret it, he asked of her an explanation of her statement.

"You may think it strange that I should tell you so," she continued. "But it was something you said which prevented the destruction of this child before it was born; and I want to thank you from my inmost heart that you saved me, by your faithful warnings, from becoming the murderer of my baby." Never having spoken to her in particular upon this subject, the astonished pastor pursued his inquiries a little further, and elicited the following facts. This lady and her husband, both members of his church, being now in early middle life, and in pretty good health, had been unfortunate in business, and were poor. They moved into a smaller tenement than they previously occupied, had given up their pew in church and, though naturally of a cheerful temperament felt gloomy, dispirited, and out of sorts with the world.

Under these circumstances, with the prospect of increase in her family, she determined to do, for the prevention of it, what so many women in good society have done of late years, and respecting which there seems to be as little conscience as if the act were the drowning of a puppy or a kitten. She had procured the medicine to be used, had fixed on the day to take it, and that day was the holy Sabbath. But an impression, for which she could not account, (might it have been the suggestion of a good angel?) led her to the postponement of the murder of the innocent for that day, and go to church instead. The sermon on that occasion, strange to say, contained a passage, introduced by way of illustration, on this very sin; briefly but pungently charging the guilt of murder upon all who were base enough to practice it. It was to her a nail fastened in a sure place. She went home convicted by her conscience, threw away the medicine, and waited her appointed time. The blessed fruit both of that timely sorrow, and of her repentance, was now before her, unconscious of the peril it had passed.

With tearful eyes they thanked God together, that in the day of her temptation he did cleanse his hand-maiden from secret faults, and also kept her back from presumptuous sins, that they might not have dominion over her; she shuddered to think of the crime she had barely escaped committing.

Is it strange that the pastor should feel as if God had blessed him in the utterance of truth, which some people consider quite unfit to be introduced in public discourse?

Surely there is a way of directing attention to this great crime which shall be free from the charge of fanning the flame which it seeks to extinguish. To sit by with sealed lips while Zion is being defrauded of her natural increase, and christian parents are nipping the buds of infant life, apparently unconscious of doing any wrong, cannot surely be the way to show God's people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins. It is a burning shame that the prophetic description of the rude barbarians who were commissioned to execute the vengeance of the Lord upon his incorrigible foes, should be applicable word for word, to so many mothers, and fathers too, in the Christian church; "And they shall have no pity on the fruit of the womb; their eyes shall not spare children."—Congregationalist.

SAVED FROM TOBACCO.

"Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols will I cleanse you."—EZEK. 36: 25.

Glory to God for his power to save poor mortals from all their idols, from everything which can hinder them in their onward march to heaven. When I was fifteen years old I learned to smoke. I went to live with a family who were all addicted to the use of tobacco, father, mother, and five sons. I had always hated tobacco, but who could stand the pressure of seven smokers in one house, all smoking at once? I had to cave, for it was more than my poor outward nature could bear, and I consented to become initiated, and was proposed and accepted as a proper candidate for smoking orders, though but fifteen years old. Twenty years ago that was considered very young to commence using tobacco, but how many boys now commence the filthy habit at ten and twelve years of age. Well, my first smoke made me so sick that I thought I should die; but with great perseverance I learned to regale myself amid the fumes of tobacco smoke and the filth of its spittle.

For ten years I used the weed at about the rate of fifteen dollars a year, making the snug little sum of about one hundred and fifty dollars worse than thrown away. Then I stopped its use for four years, and then commenced again and used it five years longer—seventy-five dollars more of the Lord's money wasted! O Lord, lay not this sin to my charge.

Fifteen dollars a year from four members of a society (and it oftener goes above than below these figures) make a sum of sixty dollars. This would buy the minister four barrels of flour at fifteen dollars per barrel, five at twelve, and six barrels at ten. But you say ministers use it. Well I am glad there is power enough in Jesus to save even ministers from a habit so expensive, filthy and vile.

Some members of the church say they cannot leave off this habit, it will make them sick. So says the drunkard, "it will make me sick." Well, man, you must quit your dram-drinking or go to hell, for it is written, "no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God."

Drunkard. Well, I do not make any profession of religion.

Church Member. And you never will until you quit your drunkenness.

D. Well, I think I have just as good a right to drink as you have to smoke.

C. M. Well, may be you have; but I have been smoking so long that I cannot quit now. I could not sleep nights; my nerves would be all unstrung.

D. So would mine be if I were to quit my cups

C. M. Well, I have made up my mind that I will only take three smokes a day, and I do not think the Lord will condemn me for that.

D. How much will it cost you for three smokes a day?

C. M. Well, I think about five dollars a year.

D. How old are you?

C. M. Nineteen.

D. Well, if you live to be seventy-five years old, you will have smoked fifty-six years, at a cost of $280. What reason will you give God for this waste of his money?

C. M. Well, I don't think God will be so hard with me as to call me to an account for wasting only five dollars of his money every year.

D. Remember that the word of God says, "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." 1 Cor. 10: 31. "Whatsoever ye do in word, or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him." Eph. 3: 17. The smoker eats a good dinner, asking God to bless the food. All right, of course. After dinner he takes the pipe and fills it—what now? Now comes the tug of war! Say, professor, what will you do? Will you ask God's blessing on the pipe?

C. M. Well, really, it looks foolish to ask his blessing on the pipe.

D. Well, why do you use it then, if you cannot ask God's blessing on it? The Word says, "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God," and can you not ask his blessing on what you do to his glory? God says, "In everything give thanks," Can you not thank him for the pipe; is it not his gift to you for your good? Come, man, if the pipe is right, ask God's blessing on it; obey the command, or else give it up. Come, decide! Heaven or the pipe? Which will you have, pipe, or heaven? If you are a christian, why not throw away your idol?

C. M. Well, I see that you have the best of the argument, and I will quit the use of tobacco altogether, and no longer by my influence be a hindrance in the way of your reformation from the power of strong drink.

Well, Mr. Editor, perhaps you are tired of my scribbling, and so I will just say, in conclusion, the Lord saves me from all my sins, and I feel the witness now that God for Christ's sake washes my heart from all unrighteousness. I am saved from tobacco, and may God save all his people not only from this vile habit, but also from every other evil thing.—Free Methodist.

For the World's Crisis.

WHY DID I COME OUT HERE?

Answer. To meet Jesus.

Did you understand your heart in this thing?

I think I did.

What did you sacrifice in taking that position; and did you feel justified and free?

From every influence that opposed the Spirit of God and the plain words of Christ and the apostles.

Were you a professor of religion?

Yes; a preacher standing in connection with the Free-will Baptists.

Did their rules stand in your pathway for freedom?

Yes.

How?

They passed resolves against the time; also, that it was wrong to baptize any one unless they would join some church belonging to some quarterly meeting, or conference. That I never could feel free to do. My faith and spirit was too much like Philip's of old, when he baptized the eunuch.

Do you continue to do so?

Yes.

Are you free?

Yes, on that.

Was it a sacrifice to you to leave the Free-will Baptists?

O, yes; but for the sake of Christ I left all.

Do you feel so now?

Yes, most certainly.

Could you leave any and all such connection now for the sake of Christ?

Yes, all sect and party, but that connection that loves Jesus' plain words, and his coming with all his glory, to be admired of all them that believe; for nothing else did I come out, but to meet Jesus in peace, having done the will of God; not to be found attached to the vine of the earth (Rev. 14: 18, 19), but closely allied to the Vine found in John 15. O Lord, help me with the dear saints to be all right when he comes.

Are you still looking for Jesus?

Yes.

Why do you?

Because of the state of the professed church of Christ and the world at large. The nations all speak to me it is near; not far off; it will come as a thief in the night on all that shall not be found looking for him scripturally.

I. DAMMAN.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to wear a sanctimonious face at church, and frequently introduce the subject of religion as a topic of conversation, while, at the same time, your dealings with your clerks and others are such as to bring reproach upon the cause you hypocritically labor to promote.

It is not polite, in starting a periodical, for an editor to advocate a certain cause, and after he has published it for several weeks, and obtained patrons, to change his sentiments for the sake of office or money, He should at once refund every dollar he has received from those who justly feel indignant at his course.

It is not polite for a church committee, when the stated pastor is sick or absent, to inflict on the congregation a dull, prosaic, broken-down, or superannuated minister, simply because he works cheap, and can be obtained at half price.

It is not polite for an officer, dressed in a little brief authority, to exercise that authority to the annoyance and disgust of others; making a complete fool of himself.

It is not polite for a minister to strive to be a "lord over God's heritage." He should remember that the church and congregation have equal rights with himself.

It is not polite to speak unnecessarily loud to a person who is a little deaf,—especially before strangers.

It is not polite, after purchasing goods of a merchant, to take them to his house, out of the city, and request him to take them to his store and exchange them,—even if he is a good-natured man, and you are very pleasant in conversation.

It is not polite, when invited to an entertainment, to find fault with the dishes.

It is not polite, when you have assisted another in adversity, or pecuniary distress, to remind him of it, even if you become dissatisfied with his course and conduct. A true deed of charity is never referred to, except in gratitude, when in your closet.

It is not polite to whistle when in company, thump on the table, or make an unnecessary noise.

It is not polite to place your feet on the rounds of a chair, on the window-sills, or to sit with your feet in an elevated position.

It is not polite to be restless and unquiet in church, or in any public assembly.

It is not polite to fret and scold at the petty annoyances of life.

MY EXPERIENCE IN HEALTH REFORM.

Extracts from a letter by J. N. Andrews, in Reformer.

The subject of health reform has engaged my earnest attention for more than five years. During this entire period of time I have endeavored, as a matter of conscience, strictly to regard and live out the principles of this noble reform. As its effects upon myself have been very marked, and such that all with whom I have been associated for this period have observed them, I take pleasure in briefly stating my own experience.

Six years ago my health was very far from being satisfactory. From overwork, and from sharing in the general ignorance concerning the subject of food, and the proper manner of preserving strength and health, I was in a very enfeebled condition. I had very great difficulty in my head. My brain was much congested. Quite often for several days together I was unable to perform mental labor to any extent. Indeed, it seemed to me that my brain was undergoing the process of destruction called "softening." How great distress I suffered at such times from a sense of utter prostration cannot well be expressed. . . . I had also quite a bad form of salt rheum, which generally kept the middle finger of each hand quite raw. Perhaps as a result of this disease, I had very frequent and painful sores on my under lip. My general health was easily exhausted. I found it difficult to perform the labor which devolved upon me as a preacher. Particularly in the morning, I found myself generally very faint, and it seemed quite impossible for me to perform any labor till I had partaken of food. In fact, it almost seemed that a living creature was eating my stomach, and that I must take food to divert its attention from myself to it.

At the time that the subject of health reform first arrested my attention, one circumstance contributed to fix its importance in my mind, and to establish it permanently in my esteem. My only son, then a child of nearly six years, had a very serious difficulty in his left leg. This was located in the ankle joint, which was nearly stiff, and which was much enlarged by long-continued swelling of the ligaments of the joint. The leg was withered very much for its whole length. In walking he turned his foot nearly square to the left, and dragged it after him. The difficulty had been coming on nearly all his life long. Two things, however, were very favorable in his case. 1. The bone had not grown very much out of shape, and, 2. The same leg was not shorter, though much smaller than the other.

Feeling much distressed in his case, I sought God in earnest prayer, that I might know what should be done for him. It seemed to me that a clear answer to my prayer was given: "Send the child to Dansville." I had then very little knowledge of that institution. . . . I become well convinced that the subject of drug medication was only productive of evil. . . . With the hearty approval of his mother, I sent the child to Dansville, N. Y.

This was the last of March, 1864. We then decided that the system of living which the child must follow at D., we would strictly follow at home, so that when he should return, we need not undo by our bad living what he should gain at D. We did not have to banish tobacco, nor pork, nor tea, nor coffee, nor even the use of any very considerable amount of seasoning of any kind from our food. But we did at once leave off the third meal, never again having it in our family, and all meat, with the exception of a very few times using a very little during that summer, and all butter, and the various kinds of spices, using thenceforward none at all, and only a small amount of salt; also, we strictly desisted from eating anything between meals.

Such was our beginning in earnest to be health reformers. We did it, 1. Because it seemed to be clearly consistent and right to do so, and, in fact, after seeing the reasonableness of the thing, entirely wrong to do otherwise. 2. Because the case of our son called our attention very urgently to the importance of decided action. . . . When he returned, he found us living just as he had lived at D. He continued the same living as while there, and still he continues thus to live. The result may be stated in a word: He has a perfect restoration of the lame and withered leg, and excellent general health.

And now, to return to myself: One of the very first results of my change of living greatly surprised me. I found that immediately on leaving off my suppers, the morning faintness left me. The living creature that used to gnaw at my stomach in the morning, then and there desisted from that business, and has never resumed it. . . .

It was but a few weeks after these changes were made, that I perceived my head was clearer. My brain seemed to be relieved. I found to my surprise that I could lie down whenever I felt the need of a little rest, and instead of my former state of nervous sleeplessness, I could almost in a moment drop to sleep, a blessing, by the way, which I still retain. . . .

I spoke of frequent and painful cold sores upon the under lip. I have not had one of these for the past five years. Nor have I had a boil during the time. My general health and strength have been restored to me to a remarkable degree. In fact, it seems to me that since I have adopted the principles of health reform I have better health than I ever had, even in early life. I feel like a new man. God has given me a new lease of life. I mean that it shall be wholly spent in his service. Providential circumstances much of the time seem to compel me to labor beyond what one man's strength can reasonably perform. Here it is possible I may break down. Yet in God's infinite mercy I hope not to do this.

HOW TO COOK BEANS.

Mrs. Dr. L. A. Jenkins, of the Binghamton Anti-Drug Hygienic Institute, furnishes the following:

TO COOK STRING BEANS.

"Select varieties that have tender, fleshy pods. They should be fresh-gathered for cooking. Wash the pods thoroughly. String and break or cut them into small pieces. Boil in a closed vessel in a large quantity of soft water for three or four hours. They should be well cooked to pieces. A little flour stirred to a smooth paste, with cold water added five minutes before removing from the fire, is an improvement. Or a few thin slices of white bread, toasted slightly, and placed in the dish in which they are to be brought to table, may be substituted. Or a little good, rich milk may be added a few moments before removing from the fire, with or without the flour paste or toast.

TO COOK GREEN SHELLED BEANS.

"Lima beans are always best when they can be had, but Wait's Early, the Agricultural, and the Kidney beans, are nearly as good.

"The beans should be fresh-gathered for use. Shell them; wash and boil slowly in a closed vessel for about three hours, or until cooked to pieces, in a considerable quantity of soft water. They should form a homogeneous soup-like mass when brought to the table.

TO COOK GREEN DRIED BEANS.

"Pour boiling water on them, and let them stand over night, then proceed the same as in the last formula. They will require, however, more cooking.

TO COOK DRY BEANS.

"Procure the best varieties of white or colored beans. Some of the colored varieties are better for hygienic cooking than the best white beans. They are richer and less insipid to those accustomed to eating them cooked with meat, salt, pepper, etc.

"Look them over carefully and remove the imperfect ones; soak them over night in cold water. In the morning drain off the water, and wash in one or two more waters. Place them in a covered vessel, with a large quantity of soft water upon the stove or range, where they will come to the boiling point quickly. Keep them at that point, and let them simmer for two, three, or four hours, according to the variety, or until they are reduced nearly to a pulp. Be careful not to let them boil, as that hardens the membrane and destroys the flavor.

"Nothing should be desired better than beans cooked in this careful manner. Some would prefer a little milk or cream added, but as in all the preceding, they are less wholesome, and for those who would restore normal appetites and maintain sound health, no addition can be desired. To those accustomed to the use of seasonings, salt and greasy accompaniments are missed in beans more than in any other food. But perseverance in abstaining from salt, soon removes the desire for its use. Indeed, there is no unnatural appetite so easily overcome as that for salt, if one persists in not using it in the least. Salt readily passes out of the system through the innumerable pores and other channels, and when by abstaining from it, by bathing, sweating, and by other means, there is none remaining in the system, the battle is over and the victory won, if the person ceases thereafter from its use.

TO BAKE BEANS.

"Prepare them as for stewing, and place them with a large quantity of water, in a stone ware pot in a hot oven. Let the oven cool somewhat after they begin to cook, and bake them from four to six hours rather slowly.

TO DRY GREEN BEANS.

"The process is the same as that for drying green peas. Cooked as dry beans are, they are more palatable, but not more wholesome."—Herald of Health.

ARTIFICIAL LIGHTS AND VENTILATION.—Occupied rooms require a great deal more ventilation during the evening than in the day-time, and for this reason: artificial lights take from the air a large quantity of oxygen—its vital element—and return to it carbonic acid gas—a deadly poison—thus vitiating the air in two ways. It has been estimated that a six foot gas burner will abstract from the air as much oxygen as eight men in a state of quietude will require to sustain respiration, and that it will return as much carbonic acid gas to the air as that number of men would do. It will thus be seen that it is specially important to look closely to ventilation whenever artificial lights are burning in a room, and particularly if they are kept burning all night.—Ex.

PSALM 41: 3.

How precious, on my couch of pain,
To whisper o'er and o'er again,
Jesus is near!

This gives me ease, this gives me rest,
And tells me all to me is blest,
Jesus so near!

All things are open to his eyes,
I would not have it otherwise,
Jesus, how near!

His loving hand does smooth my bed,
His mercies are around me spread,
Jesus so near!

When toss'd with pain, he makes me still,
He bows me to his blessed will,
Jesus is near!

Quickly that brightest day will come,
When I shall fully know at home
Jesus still near!

PAULINE VIEW OF THE RESURRECTION.

The careful student of the Scriptures cannot have failed to observe that the teaching of apostle is uniformly in favor of the resurrection of all men. Learned men of every age of Christianity have adopted the Pauline view as in accordance with the plan of God as revealed in his word. In this article we draw largely from writers of acknowledged ability and piety, but for brevity's sake shall not give references.

In the epistle to the Romans (5: 18) we read: "Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation, even so by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." There is no question among scholars in regard to the character of this sentence. It is conceded to be elliptical. Says one, "He who had no particular purpose to serve would most probably understand it from the context thus—'Therefore as by one sin all men came into condemnation: so also, by one righteous act, all men came unto justification of life.'"

In the twelvth verse of this chapter his argument stands thus: Adam committed one transgression, and brought death into the world, consequently death passed upon all men.

In the thirteenth and fourteenth verses, he demonstrated that death existed while there was no law for man to violate, and consequently death was not a penalty of individual sin.

In the fifteenth verse he shows the contrast between Adam and Christ: or between the offence and the free gift.

In the eighteenth and nineteenth verses the correspondence so far as the two opposite parts answer to each other, having been previously expressed, he here brings to view the extensiveness of the grace of the gospel that it actually reached to all men: If through the offence of one (Adam) the many have died, much more the grace of God, by the one man (Jesus Christ), hath abounded unto the many. As the offence of one was upon all men to condemnation, so the righteousness of one was upon all men to justification. As by the one man's disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the obedience of the one the many shall be made righteous.

We maintain that as a consequence of Adam's disobedience, a sentence of condemnation to death, without any promise or hope of a resurrection, passed upon all men; so by the obedience of Christ unto death, this one grand righteous act, the sentence was so far reversed that death shall not finally triumph; for all shall be again restored to life. Justice must have its due, therefore all must die. The mercy of God in Christ Jesus shall have its due also, and therefore all shall be put into a salvable state here, and the whole human race shall be raised to life at the great day.

The consequences of Christ's obedience extend as far as the consequences of Adam's disobedience. The consequences of Adam's disobedience extend to all mankind; and therefore so do the consequences of Christ's obedience.

The grace of God in the gospel abounds beyond or very far exceeds the mere reversing of the sufferings brought upon mankind by Adam's one offence, as it bestows a vast surplusage of blessings which have no relation to that offence, but to the many offences which mankind have committed, and to the exuberance of the divine grace.

To show how justly the divine grace is founded on the obedience of Christ, in correspondence to the dispensation Adam was under, and to the consequence of his disobedience; if this disobedience involved all mankind in death, it is proper that the obedience of Christ should be the cause not only of reversing that death to all mankind, but also of other blessings which God should see fit to bestow upon man. The free gift stands opposed to Adam's offence (v. 15): "For if through the offence of one many (the many or all) be dead, much more the grace of God and the gift by grace . . . hath abounded unto many" (the many or all). If the many, that is, all mankind, have died through the offence of one, certainly the gift by grace which abounds unto the many by Christ Jesus must* have reference to every human being.

The fall of Adam (ver. 12) is represented as a sin, and all are counted in sin because of it. The result of this sin being death, the reconciliation effected by Christ being an antidote for this death must be of necessity a source of life. The consequence of Christ's death serves to explain and set in a clear view the difference between the law and grace. It was the law which for Adam's one transgression subjected him, and his posterity as included in him when he transgressed, to death without the hope of a revival. It is grace which restores all men to life at the resurrection; and over and above that has provided a gracious dispensation for the pardon of their sins; for reducing them to obedience; for guarding them against temptations; supplying them with strength and comfort, and for advancing them to eternal life.

There was neither sin nor death before the offense of Adam; after that there were both. Natural evil is evidently the effect of moral evil. If man had never sinned he had never suffered. "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," was never spoken till after Adam had eaten the forbidden fruit. He propagated his like. Death reigned from Adam to Moses, but there was no law during that time; consequently those who died then were not sinners after the similitude of Adam's transgression, having violated no law.

Death was in the world from Adam to Moses, for Law was not in the world for that time; for after Adam's transgression the law which he was under was abrogated, and from that time men were either under the general covenant of grace given to Adam or Noah; or under that which was specially made with Abraham. Men did not die in consequence of their own transgressions, but in consequence of Adam's transgression.

If the consequences of Christ's incarnation and death extend only to a few or a select number; and if only many and not all have fallen, only that many had need of a Redeemer; for it is most evident that the same persons are referred to in both clauses of the verse.

If the apostle had believed that the benefits of the death of Christ had extended only to a select number of mankind he never would have used the language he has done here; though in the first clause he might have said without any qualification of the term, through the offense of one many are dead; in the second clause, to be consistent with the doctrine of particular redemption, he must have said, the grace of God and the gift by grace hath abounded unto the same. As by the offense of one judgment came upon all men to condemnaiton, so by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon some to justification. As by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall some be made righteous.

If Adam became mortal and sinful, as he could not communicate properties that he did not possess, he must transmit those which constituted his natural moral likeness, therefore all his posterity must resemble him, and being counted under a violated law must die.

As Christ came as the Redeemer of men, all bound by death through the fall of Adam must be raised, or the death of Christ fails of its effect. As a supposition of a failure cannot be admitted, all men must be raised from the dead. H. H. D.

THE PURIFYING HOPE.

"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God. . . . Now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every one that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."—1 John 3: 1–3.

There are many hopes in the world; but the Christian's hope is distinguished from all others by the fruit which it bears; it is a purifying hope. This can not be said of the spiritualist's hope, or of all the other false systems of faith by which a large portion of mankind attempt to evade the express letter and spirit of the gospel. It was this evidence of its divinity that enabled the apostle to use the positive language just quoted.

In every undertaking in which man engages, there must be a motive which impels, or stimulates him to action. The motive which prompts the merchant to engage in business is to make money; and to this end he will bend every effort for success. The object which causes the young and godless to engage in the frivolities of the world, is pleasure. And thus we might enumerate the many motives which prompt men of the world to act. But they are slaves to selfishness, for they seek a worldly, personal end. Christians, however, act from very different motives. Consistent with a Christ-like character, they cannot love the world, "neither the things that are in the world," for the divine word clearly affirms that "if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." Therefore, any consideration which shall cause them to purify themselves from "the works of the flesh," "the lust of the eye, and the pride of life," cannot be of this world. This motive the apostle introduces as a "hope," which should cause every one in possession of it to cleanse themselves from all unrighteousness.

Hope may be considered as a combination of desire and expectation. A union of these, in relation to any one thing, produces hope. Expectation is based upon evidence; thus we may desire a thing and lack the evidence upon which to expect it. As an illustration: we may desire to see God, and unless we are pure in heart we can not expect to, for the testimony is, "the pure in heart . . . shall see God." The spiritualist hopes at death, as a disembodied spirit, to enter the spheres of progression; but, as this expectation is based upon false grounds,—the evidence being purely assumption,—it becomes a false hope, and consequently a deplorable evil in the land.

But the Christian's hope has a foundation, even Christ, the chief corner-stone. This hope is distinguished from all others because it brings forth fruit unto salvation. To ascertain the nature of this hope we need not go to the "discipline," or "articles of faith" of any church in Christendom, nor need we seek the wisdom of those who have duly graduated with honors in a theological College. No! Divinity has revealed it to us. We need not go astray. It is clear and emphatic. And by virtue of this, the apostle could say, confidently, "We know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." "Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin [or sin-offering] unto salvation."—Heb. 9: 28. "For our conversation [or citizenship] is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body."—Phil. 3: 20, 21.

In this plain and unmistakable testimony, the second coming of the Lord Jesus is presented as an important feature of the purifying hope. It is a hope of being made like unto his glorious body when he shall appear. This hope is well grounded. For eighteen hundred years has the earnest desire of the church been for the return of the Lord Jesus.

This desire we find welling up in glowing words from the waiting flock, scattered throughout the world. Thus we hear one, in the times that are past, telling of his love for the Lord's return: "When will these empyrean heavens divide, to let my Lord descend? When will these celestial doors fly open, that the exalted one may come in all his state; in his own and in his Father's glory, with all the holy angels? When shall the starry way of eternal communion be stretched out between the highest heaven and the 'new earth,' wherein shall dwell righteousness? When shall I begin to behold him in all his glory, whom eye hath not seen, and see thee without a cloud, who art altogether lovely?" Says Matthew Henry, "Come, Lord Jesus! thus beats the pulse of the church, thus the mystic body of Christ; and we should never be satisfied till we find such a spirit breathing in us, and causing us to look for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ."

Combining in support of this earnest desire for the Lord's return, the overwhelming testimony of the Scriptures declare that he will come, thus giving us confident grounds of expectation. When the clouds of heaven enveloped the ascending Jesus, two shining angelic messengers were dispatched to cheer the hearts of the saddened and bereft disciples. They deliver the message direct from the court of heaven—"This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."—Acts 1: 11.

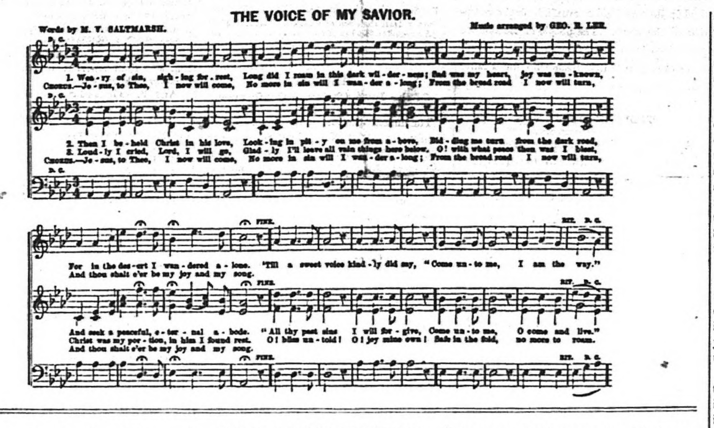
But the apostle affirms that when he shall appear we shall be made like him. "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed."—1 Cor. 15: 51, 52. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord."—1 Thess. 4: 16, 17.

This, dear reader, is the purifying hope. Is it deeply implanted in your heart, and is it bringing forth the fruit of the Spirit? God designed that this "blessed hope" should have a purifying effect upon our life, that we might be prepared for the manifestation of Jesus when he shall come "with power and great glory." This will be the blessed consummation of the christian's longing desire, when we shall be ushered into the felicitating enjoyment of Christ's kingdom. "And there shall be no more night there; and they need no candle, neither the light of the sun," for "the Lamb is the light thereof."

Rochester, N. Y. WM. H. SPENCER.

☞ The late Dr. Nesbit, celebrated for his profound erudition and ready wit, being asked how he would define modern philosophy, replied: "It consists in believing everything but truth, and exactly in proportion to the want of evidence, or, to use the words of the poet, in making windows that shut out the light, and passages that lead to nothing."

THE VOICE OF MY SAVIOR.



RESURRECTION, JUDGMENT, AND REWARD.

Jehovah is represented, in metaphorical phraseology, as keeping a "book of remembrance" for the saints, and also a book "out" of which the wicked are hereafter to be "judged," or a book of remembrance against the sinner: but these books of remembrance are not to be opened to disclose the result of divine investigation of human character and conduct till the time arrives for the entombed dead to "come forth"; then the judgment will follow, so far as the passing and the execution of sentence is concerned.

The preparatory work of investigation, which is simply the infallible recognition of good and evil, reduced to our capacity of comprehension, under the metaphor of book-keeping, is closed up with the end of each person's pilgrimage; all is known to God at that time; or in other words, all is then registered in the book of sacred remembrance—the mind of God; but not till the book of remembrance for the saint and the book of remembrance against the sinner shall be opened will the judgment decision be made in favor of the saint, or against the sinner; and the execution of that decision cannot precede the opening of the books, from which the decision is made known: "The dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books; . . . . death and hades delivered up the dead that were in them, and they were judged." (Rev. 20: 12, 13.)

No sentence is passed against any one till the books are opened, and no sentence is passed or executed against any one till death delivers up the dead. In this sense there is no judgment prior to the resurrection, or previous to the opening of the books, which books are not to be opened till "the great white throne" and its heavenly occupant shall be seen, causing earth and heaven to flee away.

The writing of these books, being a registration of facts in the mind of Deity, is not synonymous with the opening of the books, or the unfolding of the infinite mind in the final decision based on the facts recorded. The judgment is not for the purpose of revealing to God any information concerning our character or conduct, but rather to manifest his decision—already based on infallible knowledge, the execution of which decision cannot precede the decision itself.

God's word presents the resurrection of the dead as a prerequisite to judgment, when the term is used in the simple sense of coming to life again; but connected with the resurrection of the righteous, there is something more than merely coming to life brought to view. We have what might be styled two stages in the resurrection of the righteous, or a resurrection proper, and an appendage, sometimes included in the term resurrection; it being inseparably interwoven with the resurrection of the just, namely; the coming of life, and the change; and though the two are in close proximity, the waking up must precede the "change"—the reorganization and waking up being the first stage, and the change being the second stage: for "this mortal must put on immortality;" and nonentity could not put it on.

The two stages are sufficiently distinct to constitute the waking up a prerequisite to judgment, and the change the result of judgment; for God can judge every saint in a moment of time as well as in a million of centuries, just as well as to hear and answer thousands of prayers in the same instant throughout the vast world; and this Scriptural fact obviates the necessity of supposing, on one hand, that the saints are to spend another short mortal pilgrimage after their resurrection, before the judgment, and invalidates the unscriptural supposition, on the other hand, that the judgment comes before the dead are "delivered up" to be "judged."

The judgment, so far as making known and executing the decision of the judge is concerned, is after the opening of the books, and the waking up of the dead, thus clearly making the second stage of the saint's resurrection, styled a "change," a part of the reward due the saint—the result of a decision rendered in his favor by the great Judge, at the time he wakes him up—the waking up being the first step, the decision of the Judge coming then, and the execution of that decision being the "change;" so closely connected that the coming to life and the "change" are made identical with the resurrection—two stages in one great work.

Having learned that the delivering up of the dead must precede their judgment, and that their doom will not be officially disclosed till the "books are opened" at the coming of the divine Judge, it is apparent at a single glance that the final sentence against the wicked cannot precede their resurrection, and it is impossible for the execution of a sentence to precede the sentence itself; hence, the wicked are not now receiving their reward. And the resurrection of the wicked dead lacks the appendage, or "change," that accompanies and perfects the resurrection of the righteous. This "change" does not pass upon unorganized and unconscious dust, but when re-organized and awakened, "this mortal shall put on immortality," or "be clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life." . . . . (1 Cor. 15: 53; 2 Cor. 5: 2, 4.)

Thus immortality is an addition to this reorganization and waking up of the dead saints, and is the result of judgment then instantaneously rendered in their favor, coming like electricity to every saint, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," so that it can be correctly affirmed that the saints awake "to everlasting life." The waking up is not the change, but immediately precedes it; and yet the change is so connected with their resurrection, that it may be regarded as an appendage, or a second stage in this great work; so it can be said with propriety, "It is raised in glory;" "it is raised a spiritual body;" "raised incorruptible;" these statements having reference to the work in its completed stage, including both the waking up, and the change.—William Sheldon, in Voice.

A FEW THOUGHTS ON REV. 20.

It is admitted by many who are looking for Christ's coming, that they do not understand this chapter, as some portions of it seem to conflict with many plain and positive declarations of the Scriptures. Some of which are the following:

"The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth," etc. "Behold he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him," etc. "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them," etc. "But the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." "Behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of Hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from the other. . . . Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom." "Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.

"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord, and his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever. . . . And thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great, and shouldest destroy them which destroy [or corrupt] the earth." "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."

In jurisprudence, it is a universal rule of interpretation that, when there is an apparent conflict between parts of the same authority, or law, such a construction shall be made, if possible, as to give effect to both.

A similar rule has been given for the interpretation of Scripture; viz., if at any time we meet with a text which seems to contradict some other plainly revealed fact, it is manifest that we must qualify that text according to the nature of the case, taking care that we reconcile one scripture with another, and do not destroy one by another.

This rule is being beautifully exemplified in the Crisis by the articles headed, "The Bible Triumphant." This would be an excellent way to elucidate seemingly contradictory passages in relation to the various subjects and doctrines upon which the church is now divided. And it is hoped that the writer of those articles, or some other competent person, will undertake the task.

As we are no where informed of a third advent of the Son of man, or of two judgment or burning days, it seems utterly impossible to sustain the interpretation of this chapter generally adopted by Adventists, without nullifying or destroying the above and other plain passages of Scripture, which would be an infringement of the equitable rule given, and derogatory to the word of God. And as every other theory that has been presented in like manner makes void other portions of Scripture, we are constrained to believe that something has been added to or taken from the words of this prophecy.

It is possible that the enemy of all truth and righteousness has by cunning devices instigated some evil disposed person to do it, and thereby has deceived and misled many eminently pious and learned divines of former days, who, by their mystical interpretations of this chapter and other portions of Scripture to harmonize with it, have introduced those stupendous errors which a majority of their successors have embraced and are now preaching, thereby lulling to sleep the church and the world on that prominent and momentous Scripture doctrine, the second glorious appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ.

These errors are—

1. The Lord will delay his personal coming a long time yet, for there is "a good time coming," a time of peace and safety, prosperity and happiness, to continue a thousand years, during which Christ will reign spiritually with the saints.

2. In order to introduce this glorious reign, the world must be converted (which, according to the great increase of crime and infidelity, and the little increase to the churches for the last quarter of a century, will require ages on ages to accomplish).

During that long period of peace and prosperity, many plain and positive declarations of Christ and the apostles will be utterly null and void, or entirely reversed; for then wide will be the gate, and broad the way that leadeth unto life, and many will go in thereat; while strait will be the gate, and narrow the way which leadeth to destruction; and few there will be that find it. The tares or children of the wicked one shall not offend or do iniquity. All or most of the seed sown will fall on good ground and bring forth fruit. Sinners will be a little flock. All that live godly will not suffer persecution. Those shall reign with him who do not suffer with him. They shall be without chastisement, and yet sons. They will enter the kingdom of God through peace and prosperity. The friendship of the world will be love with God. The world will not hate the saints. It will not be wo unto them when all men shall speak well of them. The adversary, the devil, will not walk about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. Therefore they will not need to resist him.

3. At the end of the thousand years there will be a great apostasy. We quote from the "History of Redemption," by Pres. Edwards, one of the principal founders of this theory:—"A little before the end of the world a great part of the world shall fall away from Christ and the church, become visibly wicked, and open enemies to Christ; and their wickedness will be dreadfully aggravated by their apostasy."

So that Satan will come off conqueror, take the kingdom and reign supreme a short time; which consequently renders null and void some of the plainest and most positive declarations on record relative to the duration of the reign of Christ and the saints after they begin to reign. The expressions are varied in form, and repeated, so that it seems impossible to misunderstand or with impunity to gainsay them.

The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever and ever. It shall not be left to other people. It shall not be destroyed. It shall not pass away. It shall stand forever. And when the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, he shall reign forever and ever.

Of course there is no interregnum after they have reigned a thousand years. The kingdom is established forever. The former things are passed away. All things are made new.

The question naturally arises, Why should the Lord Jesus, in his very last words, utter that fearful warning, unless he foreknew that it was not only possible for some one to add to and take from the words of the book of this prophecy, and probable that some one would be disposed to do it, but that it would actually be accomplished? In view of all the facts and circumstances in the case, I am constrained to believe that it has been done.

By omitting the first part of the chapter down to the eleventh verse, the remainder will harmonize with the context and other portions of the Bible. A. HASKELL.

THE RESURRECTION.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—JOB 14: 14.

The language of the Bible is so explicit, so clear, full and complete on this point, that we hardly need to multiply words by way of argument, when we have more than one "thus saith the Lord;" and if any believe not this testimony, it will be too late for their benefit when they are convinced by the evidence of their senses, when they are eye-witnesses of the general resurrection.

The testimony of Job is to the effect that he is fully assured of final deliverance from the state of death, though he says "If I wait, the grave is mine house." And though in the grave his body should be destroyed, yet he says "in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for myself and mine eyes shall behold, and not another." In Isaiah 26: 19, we read, "thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."

By Hosea, also, the Lord speaks and says: "I will ransom them from the power of the grave, I will redeem them from death. O death, I will be thy plagues. O grave, I will be thy destruction." "Behold, O my people, I will open your graves and cause you to come up out of your graves. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves and shall put my Spirit in you and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land." Ezekiel 37: 12, 13. Daniel is also assured that after a season of rest (in the grave) he shall stand in his lot, at the end of the days.

At the grave of Lazarus, Jesus saith unto Martha "thy brother shall rise again, in the resurrection at the last day." Jesus said unto her "I am the Resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

When the Jews were persecuting Jesus, and seking to kill him, he declared to them this doctrine of the resurrection, and said, "marvel not at this; for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation. John 5: 28, 29.

The language of Daniel also corresponds with this when speaking of them that sleep in the dust of the earth, he says they "shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Dan. 12: 2.

When Paul was pleading his cause against his accusers, before Felix he said, I "have hope toward God (which they themselves also allow,) that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." Acts 24: 14, 15.

Let us labor that we may not fail of the grace of God, and that we may have part in the "first resurrection."

Webster, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

42. The Sabbath instituted because God rested on the seventh day.—"For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."—Ex. 20: 11.

The Sabbath instituted because God brought the Israelites out of Egypt.—"And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and a stretched out arm; therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the Sabbath day." Deut. 5: 15.

Any close observer will see at once that there is no want of harmony here. Ex. 20: 11 shows why "the Lord blessed the seventh day and hallowed it," and Deut. 5: 15 shows why he commanded Israel to keep the Sabbath day, after it was instituted. So there is not even the semblance of a contradiction here. Comment is unnecessary.

43. No work to be done on the Sabbath under penalty of death.—"Whosoever doeth any work on the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death." Ex. 31: 15. "And they found a man that gathered sticks upon the Sabbath day. . . . And all the congregation brought him without the camp and stoned him with stones, and he died; as the Lord commanded Moses." Num. 15: 32, 36.

Jesus Christ broke the Sabbath, and justified his disciples in the same.—"Therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the Sabbath day." John 5: 16. "At that time Jesus went on the Sabbath day through the corn; and his disciples were a hungered, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat. But when the Pharisees saw it they said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the Sabbath day. But he said unto them . . . Have ye not read in the law, how that on the Sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the Sabbath, and are blameless?" Matt. 12: 1, 2, 3, 5.

The Son of God is here accused of violating the Sabbath, and we answer the charge in the words of Jesus himself, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not the man for the Sabbath. Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath."

44. Baptism commanded. "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Matt. 28: 19.

Baptism not commanded. "For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel. . . I thank God that I baptized none of you but Crispus and Gaius." 1 Cor. 1: 17, 14.

The infidel here quotes the commission for baptism and then takes advantage of the words of Paul and tries thereby to nullify the commission. This logic is so weak that it does not deserve any answer. Suppose Paul did not receive an especial commission to baptize, does that prove that Jesus gave no such commission to any one? Shame upon such pitiful objections to God's word!

45. Every kind of animal allowed for food.—"Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you." Gen. 9: 3. "Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, that eat." 1 Cor. 10: 25. "There is nothing unclean of itself." Rom. 14: 4.

Certain kinds of animals prohibited for food.—"Nevertheless, these shall ye not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof; as the camel, and the hare, and the coney; for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof; therefore, they are unclean unto you. And the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you; ye shall not eat of their flesh, nor touch their dead carcass. Deut. 14: 7, 8.

This is one of those propositions that needs no reply, but the fact that they belong to the series crowds them upon our notice, so we will simply remark that Gen. 9: 3 refers to a period eight hundred and ninety-seven years (according to the best chronology we have) before that law against the use of certain meats was enacted.

Deut. 14: 7-8 is a record of the enactment of that law. And 1 Cor. 10: 25, and Rom. 14: 14 were written, the one twenty-nine, and the other thirty years after the law was abolished. We think this explanation must prove satisfactory, even to an infidel.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, July 28, 1869.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

Money Orders.

Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

JOHN LYLE—We sent you twelve copies of the Crisis containing the verses.

JOSIAH WILLOUGHBY—The books were sent.

O. Stannard—Yes.

BRO. PORTER—It was open in war and closed in peace.

TRUTH IS SPREADING.

The lovers of Jesus and his word have great reason to praise the Lord that their labors are not in vain to spread the light on the nature of man, and the future punishment of the wicked. Many strong and devoted men are now seeing and proclaiming that man has no immortal soul, or spirit in him, which will exist as a man, when the man proper is dead and awaiting the hour of the resurrection before he can again be a living, conscious being.

Bro. H. H. Dobney, England, writes to Bro. J. Blain as follows:—

"With all my heart I wish you all joy and peace in your earnest endeavors to clear the character of God in the eyes of men from the aspersions which a popular theology has cast on it. . . .

As to us in England now, men on every hand deny and indignantly repudiate the dogma of everlasting misery, and deny it with impunity. The Churchman of the Congregational Union for the present year preaches life only in Christ—no immortality only in him. The editor told me in a letter last autumn that such was the state of opinion now in the churches of the Union, that if only two or three known and trusted men were to state openly their real convictions, the dogma of unending torment would be swept away forever from the churches.

Our conviction is strong that, within two years, the great truths, for the belief of which we have been called infidels, and shut out from "evangelcal churches," will spread more than during the last twenty years. It is said there are three stages in the progress of views which are opposed: (1) they are pitied, (2) endured, (3) embraced. We have passed through the first stage, when we were thrust out, with pity or contempt, for believing man is wholly mortal. Now, most good people endure our views and admit we may be good christians and hold them; while a large number of the most devoted men and women are on the point of embracing them joyfully in the Lord.

NAPOLEON III.

Napoleon is still "the man of wonder." We are aware that some see nothing remarkable in the man, and think he is about played out. Our own convictions are quite the opposite. We believe he will yet be far more popular and powerful as a monarch, than at any period in the past. In harmony with the programme proposed by the spirits, he is combining monarchy and republicanism into a new system, such as has never been known before in the history of human governments. The spirits call it a "Theocratic Democracy." The man at the head of the government is their representative God, the Theocratic power, as controlled and directed by the spirits; while the people, who vote him into his high position, represent the democratic element. Aided by demoniacal wisdom, he is modifying his government so as to give the people more liberty, and then increase his own popularity, and make them still more anxious to have him the great representative head of human governments.

When speaking of the reforms that Napoleon is about to introduce, the editor of the Toronto (Canada) Globe, July 13th, says:—

"The present movements in France are of unusual interest and significance. To all appearance Napoleon has committed himself to one of the most important steps he has ever taken in the whole course of his eventful career, and one which, if brought to a successful and peaceful issue, will make him remembered and honored more than if he had rivalled and surpassed his uncle in military glory and handed down his name as the hero and conqueror in a hundred fights. It would seem that the days of autocracy in France are to come to an end, and that Napoleon the Third wishes to close his reign as a constitutional sovereign, with responsible Ministers having the confidence of a majority of the popular branch of the legislature. At this, we believe, he has aimed for many years. . . . Pitfalls there are on the right side and the left to avoid falling into, which will require very wary and wise conduct. We do not despair, however, of Napoleon being found wise enough and strong enough for the place. . . . His rivals of the Bourbon and Orleanist factions are "nowhere;" a republic is but another name for confusion, and the pitiable discord of dreaming impracticables;—his name is a tower of strength among the timid bourgeoisie and the ignorant peasantry. He has with care, and counting on the ordinary chances of life, fully ten years yet to work out his plans; and if with all these advantages he honestly believes what on-lookers see so clearly—that he must become a constitutional monarch, or his son will never reign in France,—we cannot but hope that he may succeed in this his last and greatest work, and complete the varied surprises of his career by making posterity wonder at the spectacle of one who was long thought a fool, becoming in turn the tyrant of his country, the arbiter of Europe, the great constitutional monarch of his age, and the first to bring volatile Frenchmen to comprehend and experience freedom united to order, and to see a race of sovereigns secure in the possession of their honor and authority, not by myriads of hired bayonets, but by the enlightened support and unpurchased loyalty of the contented millions of enfranchised subjects over whom they rule."

Napoleon says he represents "a principle, and that principle is universal suffrage." But he can not do this, without becoming universally popular. He cannot be universally popular unless he adopts popular measures that will protect the rights of the common people. This is his aim in the changes he is about to introduce. He is throwing himself more than ever into the arms of the people. His power is now so great, and his name so popular, he has nothing to fear in submitting his measures to the popular vote; and when this is submitted and carried by the mass of the people, in addition to the support of his vast army, he will gain a position far in advance of all other rulers upon the planet. It he not the "man" whose "number is six hundred three score and six?" We are watching his movements with special interest. The eyes of the whole world are turned to him. He already occupies a giddy height, and is yet in the ascending scale.

The closing events of this dispensation can not be far in the future. Let us all be ready to welcome the King of kings when he comes in glory to set up his kingdom.

A HARD CHARGE.

M. C. L. Balch delivered a sermon in Chicago, Sabbath evening, July 11th, in which he said, as reported in the Tribune, July 12th:

"Jesus himself gave his sanction to maxims, I will not say of doubtful morality, but of absolute immorality."

Such is a sample of preaching that is received greedily by thousands at the present day. Sermons containing such blasphemous expressions are reported in popular dailies without a word of dissent; while sermons containing the pure truth of the Bible would be rejected because unpopular. To what are we coming? Who will help sound the note of alarm against the rapidly rising tide of infidelity? None but bold, brave men, filled with the Spirit of the Lord are fit for the struggle. It needs men who are willing to sacrifice every thing for Jesus, even life itself.

WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?

We are desired by some dear Brn. in England to give our views of Christ. It appears that a certain one has been there and very sadly misrepresented our belief in relation to the Lord of glory; saying that we believed that Christ was only a mere "man, like any other." We wish to say that this is utterly false. We believe, without a doubt, that Jesus Christ is the only divine Son of God; "neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

SELF-DENIAL.

We are more and more satisfied that one great reason why there are so many backsliders is because of the abuse of the stomach in the use of rich, unhealthy food, stimulating drinks and narcotics. In the early history of the christian church, its members were noted for their temperance and abstemious diet. Now it is the opposite. When two men are to have a bloody fight, they will submit to live on a plain diet for weeks, so as to be in the best condition. Should we not be as willing to do it for the christian warfare? "The Harvard Crew," from Harvard College, Cambridge, are on their way to England, to have a boat race with "The Oxford Crew," of Oxford College, London. When reading of their self-denial to accomplish their object, we felt like asking, will Jesus' professed disciples do as much?

The following is from the New York World, of July 9th, concerning the Harvard Crew:"

"The Harvard crew came into town yesterday morning at about eight o'clock, by the Fall River Line, and proceeded immediately to the Astor House, where they will remain until Saturday, when they set sail for England, there to measure their strength and skill with the Oxford crew. They are in excellent condition and hopeful of success. . . .

The regular abstinence from the use of salt meats is imposed. While they consume eggs, chickens are carefully eschewed. The 'cakes and ale' are laid under a special veto, and they have all smoked 'their last cigar' for some time to come. The rigidness of the regime is somewhat relaxed during their stay here; for last night, although one of their rules is to retire at half-past nine, they trespassed so far as to remain out after that time. They had receptions at the Union and New York Club Rooms; but Mr. Blakie turned the locks of their several rooms a few minutes after ten. The meals are furnished them in their rooms, the bill of fare of the Astor House presenting a too luxurious spread for them."

THE NATIONAL CAMPMEETING.

The time is rapidly approaching for the commencement of the National Campmeeting at Springfield, Mass. We expect a great and good meeting. We are glad to learn that some are coming from the far west, whose labors have been much blest while proclaiming the gospel of the kingdom to those living on the rich western prairies. We say to all, come. Come praying, and return rejoicing in the Lord.

THE FRENCH CABLE.

The French cable was successfully landed, July 23d. at Duxbury, Plymouth Co., about thirty miles S. E. of Boston. Cannon were fired in Boston, Friday evening, on the reception of the news. The people of Boston are pleased to have the cable so near. It will serve to increase their friendship for France and its Emperor.

TEMPLE OF JANUS.

A few days since we were asked to give some information relative to the Temple of Janus, in ancient Rome. Janus and Jana were two gods worshiped by the Romans. Their names sprung from Dianas and Diana. They were used to represent the sun and moon. Janus was considered the janitor of heaven, and presided over the beginning of every thing, and consequently was consulted first, before other gods. He was the special guardian of gates and doors. In war, his temple was open, and he went out with the armies of Rome to battle; and in time of peace, he dwelt in his temple and watched over the city. The people worshiped him at the dawn of every day. The worship of Janus is said to have been introduced into Rome by Romulus, its founder. During the existence of the Roman republic, the temple of Janus was shut but once, at the end of the first Punic war, 241 B. C.

THE RAINBOW.

"The Rainbow" is an able monthly, edited by Dr. Wm. Leask, 9 Newington Green, London, Eng. For some months very interesting articles have appeared in its columns, from men of talent and piety, on the subject of future punishment, in which it has been most clearly shown that the wicked must be finally utterly destroyed—die "the second death,"—and cease to exist as conscious beings. These articles, which have been written in a very kind and christian spirit, have stirred up much opposition against Dr. Leask and his valuable paper. He needs aid and sympathy. We hope a number of our readers will feel disposed to subscribe for "The Rainbow," and thus assist our Bro. in his noble efforts to scatter the truth in Europe. Bro. Leask says:—

"For the last few years the editor has seen what traditional theology concealed from him before, and he esteems it a privilege to have given loyal disciples of his blessed Master the opportunity of conferring together on the momentous subject although he foresaw that he would have to suffer for it, as it has come to pass. Nevertheless he will gladly continue this service, and keep open this channel of communication, if the friends of truth are pleased to hold up his hands; but even in that case, the original intention of introducing the subject only occasionally will be adhered to. The editor humbly thinks that he has a claim upon the sympathy of those who do not believe the incredible, unscriptural, and inconceivably revolting dogma that our glorious Creator will keep human beings in existence, as long as he himself exists, for the purpose of tormenting them. For denying this dreadful dogma we have been fiercely attacked by men who would have made effective Inquisitors in the palmy days of Rome; but, upon the other hand, we must not close this note without adding that we have received many letters of fervent thanks for the great deliverance and joy which the truth on this subject has brought to their writers, all of whom are earnest christian men. That he who has expressly told us that 'the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord,' may speedily deliver his truth from the darkness which paganism and popery have thrown over some of its teachings, should be the earnest prayer of every child of God."

POLITICAL ECONOMY OF PROPHECY.—This is the title of a work by Bro. R. C. Shimeal, author of "Our Bible Chronology," and other interesting works. We have not had time to read the book, but the following from the title page will give the reader some idea of the character of the work:—

"Political Economy of Prophecy, with special reference to its relation to the history of the church, and the civil, military, and ecclesiastical history of the Roman empire, and of its last emperors, the three Napoleons, with an appendix on the Pope's last Encyclical, and the Firman of the Sultan of Turkey, prophetically and historically demonstrated. Illustrated by portraits of the Napoleonic family; a chart of the course of empires; maps of the holy land, etc." Price $1.75.

THE ADVENT-CHRISTIAN QUARTERLY.—The first number of "The Advent-Christian Quarterly" is at hand. It is edited by Bro. Wm. L. Himes, Buchanan, Mich., and is full of interesting matter. The following is its table of contents:—

"An Apology; Truth and Love—Letter to a Clergyman; Christianity vs. Churchianity; Paul's 'Desire to Depart'; The Kingdom of God; An Approaching Change; Life and Death; The Signs; Editorial."

Price of the Quarterly, $1.00 a year.

A NEW PAPER.—We have just received the first number of "Woman and her Work," edited by Sr. A. E. Smith, 14 Laurens St., New York. It is published monthly at one dollar a year. The paper is devoted largely to the New York mission interests.

PERSONAL.—Bro. St. John, of Wolcottville, Ct., was in the city yesterday (26th), and contracted with Martin & Son for a fifty-feet circular tent, to be finished and pitched on the Conn. Camp-ground, Aug. 14th.

CORRECTION.—In the obituary of Sr. Stebbins, who died in Rochester, the age should be twenty-one, instead of ninety-one.

THE TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held at the National Campmeeting, Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28th, 1868, the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That we raise TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year. Resolved, That our preaching brethren be, and hereby are, requested to act as Agents in this good work, to solicit contributions to the Tract Fund, as often at least as once in every quarter, and forward the same to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, BOSTON, MASS.

REPORT
Of the Iowa Christian Conference.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference met at New Hartford, in connection with the campmeeting, according to appointment, June 23d, 1869. The meetings were excellent, the attendance good, taking into consideration the wet weather. Brn. Miles Grant and Wm. Himes were with us, and preached the word, which may the Lord bless to the salvation of those that heard.

Bro. F. H. Keeny was elected President, and Job Gildersleve Clerk, for the coming conference year. Visiting brethren in good standing as ministers were invited to participate in the business of the conference. Three new members and five churches were received. The following are now active members and in good standing in our conference: Elders—P. S. W. Deyo, L. G. Hiscox, H. H. Janes, F. H. Keeny, P. S. Buck, Moses Chandler, A. H. Eggleston. Brn. F. H. Denton, Alonzo Raymond, D. A. Dickinson, Job Gildersleve, Thomas Blackburn, Richard Nutbrown, A. A. Wilbur, S. B. Ensign, J. N. Taylor, R. B. Dutton. Srs. B. L. Clark and M. J. Janes.

The churches belonging to and reporting at this conference are: Strawberry Point church, fifty members. Manchester, thirty-six. New Hartford, one hundred. Boylan's Grove, seventy-four. Cascade, thirty-five. Floyd, eighty. Clear Lake, thirty-eight. Munroe, six. Otterville, seven. Richland Creek, sixty. Brandon, Four Corners, twenty-five. Esgart, fifty. Greeley, sixteen. Bridgeport, twenty. Iron Hill, twenty-two. Beckwith School-House, sixteen, Bear Creek, fifteen.

The subject of prefixing the word Advent to the word Christian came up for consideration (that is, to make the name of our conference the Iowa Advent Christian Conference), and was submitted to a vote; but there not being a two-thirds vote, as required by the constitution, it remains the same as it has been.

Bro. F. H. Keeny was chosen Evangelist for the next year. Voted, to have the next conference in connection with the campmeeting, near Independence, Buchanan Co., Iowa. The following brethren were appointed a campmeeting committee: D. A. Dickinson, Pres. pro tem; — Ford, of Otterville, Clerk; — Smith, of Otterville, I. Cooley, — Hurlbut of New Hartford, J. T. Williams, and H. H. Janes. The first quarterly meeting to be at Makoqueta Timber, in September. Second quarterly meeting at New Hartford, December. Third quarterly meeting, at Clear Lake, at such time as the brethren may determine.

Voted, that the Evangelist visit each church at least once in the year, and the churches should pay at least ten dollars when the distance is fifty miles, especially when calling for him. Voted, to send delegates to the ministerial conference. Said delegates are D. A. Dickinson, F. H. Keeny, Job Gildersleve.

Resolved, That the conference approbates the proposed Continental Convention of those that believe in the personal and speedy coming of the Lord. Voted, that the Conference Board appoint delegates to said Convention, whenever the time is decided upon.

Resolved, That we as a Conference recommend to our brethren to patronize more fully our publications: the Christian, Crisis, Voice, and the Quarterly proposed to be published by Bro. Wm. Himes; and that we see that the worthy poor are supplied with them. Voted, a vote of thanks to the Camp-ground committee and the people in the surrounding country.

CONSTITUTION.

As our constitution, which was formed at an early date, and had additions made to it from time to time, and yet was lacking in order of business, it was thought best to revise it; but after a few remarks, it was finally determined to have an entirely new constitution.

Voted, therefore, that Brn. M. Grant and Wm. Himes be invited to draft and present to the conference a constitution, which they did, and which was accepted and adopted by the conference, and is as follows:—

(THE USUAL COVENANT.)

ART. 1. This body shall be known as the Christian Conference of Iowa.

ART. 2. Sec. 1st. The members of this conference shall consist of ministers in good standing, residing or laboring within the State of Iowa, and of delegates from churches within the same bounds.

Sec. 2nd. Each church shall be entitled to one delegate, provided that churches having more than twenty-five members shall be entitled to one delegate for every twenty-five members, or fractional part of that number.

ART. 3. Sec. 1st. The officers of this conference shall consist of a President and Secretary, and with three other brethren shall constitute a Board of Directors.

Sec. 2nd. The President and Secretary shall perform the duties usually attaching to those offices. The board of directors shall have authority to appoint the time and place of all regular meetings of the conference; call extra meetings as they may deem necessary; attend to the unfinished business as may arise between the sessions of conference.

Sec. 3d. The officers shall be elected at each annual meeting by ballot, unless otherwise ordered by the conference.

ART. 4. The regular meetings of this conference shall be an annual session, to be held in the month of June, and three quarterly sessions, to be held as near as possible once in three months.

ART. The quarterly meetings may receive new members and churches, and transact such other business as may properly come before them, provided that the acts of a quarterly meeting shall not be binding upon the body, until approved by the annual conference.

ART. 6. No member, or church, shall be received into this conference except by unanimous consent.

ART. 7. Voting by proxy shall not be allowed.

ART. 8. Brethren desiring ordination by this conference must present a recommendation from the church with which they may be connected; or, if residing out of the bounds of any of our churches, must be properly commended by responsible brethren.

Sec. 2nd. Candidates for ordination shall be examined by a committee of three brethren, who shall report their case to the conference for final action.

ART. 9. The order of business at the annual conference shall be as follows:

1. Hear the report of Board of Directors, through the Secretary.
2. Elect officers for the ensuing year.
3. Receive new members.
4. Receive new churches.
5. Hear reports of proceedings from quarterly meetings.
6. Hear reports of ministers.
7. Hear reports from churches.
8. Examination of ministers.
9. Miscellaneous business.

ART. 10. This constitution may be added to, or amended, at any annual meeting, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present and voting, providing that notice of such addition or amendment be given at least as early as the quarterly meeting next preceding the session.

After accepting the foregoing constitution, the conference elected Alonzo Raymond, B. R. Dutton, and J. J. Towsley, as Directors.

REPORT OF R. I. AND E. CT. CONF.
At North Scituate, R. I., July 7th, 8th, and 9th, 1869.

Words can but poorly report the blessedness of this meeting. It was what some had prayed,—that it might be one like "former times," in life, power, love, and tearful devotion. The tide of blessing began deep, and ran full and free through all our services. We were cheered by the following preachers, most of whom came early: Brn. E. Bellows, A. Durfee, J. J. Northrup, C. H. Sweet, J. Eldridge, D. V. Corey, J. S. Collins, — Card, J. B. Boynton, I. B. Potter, also Srs. Crumb, S. K. Paine, F. Boynton. Reports from the preachers betrayed unabated zeal, increased attachment to the labor of the gospel, fervent charity, and a fixed determination to glorify God in saving men from impending wrath, and a clear, unshaken confidence that "yet a little while and he that shall come will come" and reward every man as his work shall be. Sermons were preached during the session from Matt. 21: 28, by Sr. Paine; from 2 Pet. 1: 4, by Bro. Boynton; from Heb. 2: 3, by Bro. Durfee; from Matt. 13: 39 and Heb. 9: 22, by the Clerk. Three meetings of business were held, during which, beside reports from preachers, we received the following

REPORT OF CHURCHES.

Danielsonville, Ct., by Clerk.—Very low, yet have five or six prayer-meetings a week when without preaching. North Scituate, by Bro. Knight.—At peace; good congregations; prayer meetings too thinly attended; Sunday School doing well. On the whole, we are making up stream. Westerly, R. I., by letter.—Striving together for the faith, against opposition. Clarksville, Gloucester, R. I., by Bro. Bellows.—A good company, built of solid timber; a Sunday School of seventy members.

Wyoming, by letter.—Few struggling for victory. Lafayette, by letter.—Some leave burdens to others and forfeit blessings; others bear the burdens and are ripening for the kingdom. River Point, by Bro. Durfee.—A few good christians there that will win the kingdom. Bristol, R. I., by same.—Few, but substantial, bound slowly and steadily to rise. Rockland, R. I., by Bro. Bellows.—Disorganized, but still a church, although poor and few. Clark's Mills, R. I., by J. J. Northrup. Since being re-organized, they have nearly doubled their membership. Have a flourishing Sabbath School.

Bro. Boynton, by request, reported field in Virginia and North Carolina. Sr. Boynton reported Hackensack, N. J. Bro. C. H. Sweet and Clerk reported some fields in New Hampshire and Vermont. Bro. Potter some in Middle Connecticut.

The campmeeting committee reported the new ground near Willimantic, and its advantages for good meetings; also that the Superintendent of the P. H. and F. R. R. had granted them thirty per cent reduction in fare from all stations along their road between Providence and Waterbury; that he would carry all baggage, tents, etc., free of charge; that he would transport all lumber needed for the Camp to and from the ground free, and give passes to the committee of arrangements. The report was received with joy, and we sang heartily,

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

The committee's report was accepted, and the sympathy and aid of this conference for the furtherance of the object for which they were appointed were pledged to them by vote. A vote of thanks was tendered to the Superintendent of the R. R. for his liberal favors bestowed upon the contemplated campmeeting.

A committee of three, previously appointed by the Chair, reported the following preamble and resolutions concerning the interests of the A. C. A. and A. C. P. S., viz:

Whereas, In the opinion of this conference there are many things which demand attention in order to secure the confidence and hearty co-operation of churches and preachers generally in the management of the A. C. P. S., and to make this society more efficient in the direction of labor for which it was instituted; and

Whereas, The A. C. A. in its annual meetings have put off these considerations for other matters till no time has been left to give them due thought and investigation; therefore

Resolved, That we, the churches represented in this conference, and preachers likewise, use our united and persistent efforts to bring before the A. C. A., at an early point in its next annual meeting, those matters which we deem essential to the vital interests of the A. C. P. S.

This resolution was unanimously adopted. It was then Voted, that the members of this conference use their best efforts everywhere to rouse the churches and people to attend the Windham County Campmeeting.

Bro. Durfee, as Moderator, thanked the friends in behalf of the conference for their cordial hospitality. We parted reluctantly, resolved to meet again at Wyoming, R. I., in October, where we hope not only to meet preachers but delegates from all the churches, with good reports of divine blessings enjoyed and hoped for. H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

BANGOR TENT-MEETING.

The Maine Mission Tent was pitched on the common, in Bangor, and meetings commenced July 8th, under more unfavorable outward appearances than any I had ever seen. I had told some of the brethren that we wished a location in the city, where there was the most sin. When located, and meetings commenced I thought we had found it. The clans and hordes of wild, untutored, reckless, irreverent, impudent, indecent, vulgar and lawless boys and youths, who gathered around and into the tent (like wild hogs and angry dogs), mocking, taunting, stoning and clubbing us, cheered and encouraged frequently by clans of harlots, who joined them in vulgar speeches and epithets, clearly indicated the state of society at their homes, and the little good influence of these Sabbath schools and places of worship; for they nearly all told me they were attendants of churches and Sabbath schools. Truly, sin abounded here, and gospel labor was much needed. The Lord gave us courage to work for their good, and to direct them to Christ for salvation. There are better classes in the city, which we wished also to reach, and the Lord helped us to do so.

Bangor has many excellent citizens, with a variety of churches and institutions,; yet the gospel hope, with the evidences of Christ's immediate coming, seem but little understood among them. There are a few self-sacrificing and devoted believers, who are laboring to spread the truth there, and gather sinners to Christ. Brn. Baker, Smith, and others, preach to them. They wanted the tent-meeting, but seemed to tremble at the thought of the experiment. Some, however, had faith, and worked heartily with us. The people came out to hear. The best classes came, the rabble grew quiet or left the ground. The Lord blessed the word, and his people. Our social meetings were excellent. The Spirit of the Lord pervaded every meeting, and we enjoyed precious seasons every day. We held twenty-eight meetings during eleven days. On each Sabbath, from nine hundred to one thousand persons were in attendance, mostly attentive listeners.

The Lord made many deep impressions on their hearts. Some were revived, some greatly blessed, some saw the truth in a much clearer light than ever before; some confessed to have learned more truth in the few days than ever before. There was a very decided improvement in the face of society, and God will bring much good fruit out of this effort. Brn. T. Smith and F. A. Baker were with me most of the time, and Bro. A. Daman some. Bro. Smith, however, did not preach, as he is aged and infirm, but his heart is in the work of the Lord. I. C. WELLCOME.

CAMDEN TENT-MEETING.

BRO. GRANT:—Please continue the notice of our tent-meetings at Cooper's Point, Camden, N. J. We will notify you when we discontinue them. We have no idea of doing so yet, as there never has been before such an interest manifested to hear the truth, as there is now in this city. The whole place seems to be alive to hear these great truths of our Lord's soon coming kingdom, and reign on the earth, the sleep of the dead, the resurrection of the righteous to life eternal, and the destruction of the wicked by literal fire. These great truths have been presented in a most powerful manner by Brn. F. K. Flagg and J. G. Hook. We have not seen such a powerful witnessing of God's Holy Spirit for a long time. The church is all alive unto God, and it is truly good to be there and hear the testimonies which come from his dear saints. God's Holy Spirit. Sinners have been convicted, backsliders returned to Father's house, and a number have come forward for prayers. Several have been baptized, and others are waiting. We are all united in the great work. May the Lord send some of his laborers, full of the Holy Ghost, to help us. Brn. Flagg and Hook are compelled to leave us for a short season.

We have good audiences, and the most perfect order prevails. The colored people in the Southern part of the city have been aroused, and they, too, have commenced out-door meetings. They have been with us, and have tasted of the good things the Lord has in store for his dear children. Praise the Lord for what he has done for us. Glory to God in the highest." Your Bro. in Christ,

Philadelphia, Pa. JOHN M. STETLER.

LETTER FROM BRO. L. BOUTELL.

BRO. GRANT:—I find myself, by the goodness of God, and the help of the cars, at the Tremont Camp-ground, the first day of the meeting. A goodly company came on in the first train, bringing implements of warfare, and soon the cloth houses were seen coming into being all round the circle. The sound of the axe, hammer, and occasionally the voice of music, soon gave it a charm, showing that it was soon to become a desirable place for the lovers of Jesus to assemble and spend the week in the service of God.

Preparations were speedily matured for supplying the cravings of the outer man, which are materially sharpened by exercise in the open air and sleeping in the woods. At six P. M., twenty tents were up, and the bell rang for supper. The last-day chariots by this time had brought the people in such numbers that it had got to be a busy, social, cheerful place, giving the loving hand of fellowship, exchanging congratulations of joy, singing the praises of him who saves us from sin now, and from death eternal at his coming.

There were services at the stand Monday evening, when there was preaching by the writer from an excellent text, found in Heb. 12: 1-2. It soon became evident that the seed of Abraham had found their way to camp. Thus happily passed the first day with bright anticipations for the result of the meeting.

Tuesday morning opened beautifully upon us. The sound of prayer and praise were heard at an early hour, comforting, soothing and cheering the toilworn and weary. At the time appointed, Bro. J. W. Thomas gave us a sweet sermon on experimental, practical christianity, and its fruits and effects; and while in the delivery the dew of heaven fell, watering the speaker and hearers, so that all whose dishes were right side up were filled,

In the afternoon, Bro. Batchelor preached. Subject, "Our hope." He went on to show it is the Bible hope, the "blessed hope," and that involved Christ's coming, the resurrection of the dead, and the restitution of this earth. This is the hope, and only Bible hope. The sermon was short, truthful and timely, leaving its weight, and carrying its influence upon the candid hearer; also cheering all those of like precious faith. The strong were made stronger, and the weak were strengthened; so we could but praise the Lord. In the evening Bro. Ross gave us one of his characteristic, good sermons, from the text—"Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." The impression left was good. Thus passed the second day at Camp Tremont. Good weather, good times, blessings flowing. Amen.

Wednesday morning. Still fair. Prayer-meetings begin to be solemn and interesting. We are praying for and expecting a blessed good meeting; yea, a success. Preaching this forenoon by young Bro. Brown, of Plymouth, telling us of the profits of "Godliness," or good religion. The Lord is with us. The living stream begins to flow. We hear the joyful sound.

This morn (July 23d) I left Tremont camp. The meeting was progressing finely: harmony prevailed, and everything was going on in the best cheer. Every train of cars brought accessions to our numbers. There were indications that the meeting would be a profitable one for truth and christianity. The important truths adapted to the times were being and will be proclaimed at this meeting. Brn. J. S. White, J. Couch, Sr. Anna Smith, have preached, and our faith has been ably presented to the people that come to hear. The best order prevails. The people give good attention to the word of life. The weather could not be better. Sounds of prayer and praise greet the ear at all times in the day. It is a pleasant grove, made doubly so by being filled with praises to God. I left it with reluctance, hearing the voice of song till I was almost at the depot. L. BOUTELL.

Correspondence.

From Bro. P. A. Smith.

BRO. GRANT:—As some are very much interested to hear about the progress of truth in the South, I will inform them that the glorious proclamation of the coming of Jesus has spread from Florida over into Georgia. While I was up on the Suwannee river preaching, a person by the name of E. Waldron was converted, and after that purchased some land about six miles from Hornersville, on the Gulf R. R., one hundred and twenty-five miles south of Savannah. He carried with him tracts and books, and scattered them in Hornersville, and the people wanted to hear more about the strange things that they read about in the tracts. He informed me of their wishes, and I sent word I would stop on my way North, and preach to them from Sunday morning till Wednesday night. I did so, and the result was eleven joined the covenant, and others were convinced of the truth presented. One that joined was Dr. L. C. Mattox, who is a preacher in the Bible Christian denomination. I will give an extract of his letter, which I received from him this morning. Yours waiting, P. A. SMITH.

Rochester, N. Y.

"Hornersville, Ga., July 12th, 1869.

Bro. Smith:—Dear Sir: Your favor of the 3d is at hand. After you left, we organized by appointing Bro. Lester Secretary, and I was appointed to administer the ordinances, etc. Well, Parson Griffin, an old Methodist minister, one of their most able men, announced that he would deliver a sermon in behalf of orthodoxy, and I intended to reply, but he gave me no chance, and announced that on the next vacant Sabbath he would give us another blow. I attended both, took notes, and announced that on the next vacant Sabbath I would reply. That was yesterday. Eld. Griffin was out to hear me, and just such a time has scarcely been. I think all who heard it are perfectly satisfied, and Mr. Griffin says he will have no more to do with it; that he could not be driven into a controversy on any terms, not even private. He heard your first discourse, and part of the next.

You ask if we wish you to stop and preach to us on your way back to Florida? By all means. Many wish to hear you, and you must let it be known in time to publish it. You will be amply provided for while here. I have a comfortable home, which you can make your own while you stay with us. I think our prospects are bright. Many are waiting for you to come back before they join. One more has joined, and many more have expressed their convictions.

Our crops are fine, health good, and business generally prosperous. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain yours in hope of eternal life, L. C. MATTOX.

From Bro. L. C. Mattox.

BRO. GRANT:—By request of a Brother, parson P. A. Smith of Rochester, N. Y., sent us an appointment to preach, embracing the last Sabbath in May last. He came to the time, and filled it with ability, preaching several sermons before leaving us. We had a small Christian church here before, all of whom readily joined in with Bro. Smith, signing the covenant, and several others joined with us; and I think many others are on the verge of coming in. Since Bro. Smith left, one among the ablest orthodox ministers preached two sermons in opposition to us, and on yesterday I fully answered his arguments, and set forth the true doctrines of the Bible, on the subjects discussed, and I hope with good effect. I have communicated this short notice to you, that the friends may know how things are going on in Southern Georgia. There is a Christian church or two some forty miles from here, having some eighty or one hundred members, whom I expect to visit soon, after which you may hear from me again. Yours in christian hope, Hornersville, Ga. L. C. MATTOX.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. J. G. HOOK writes from Philadelphia, July 19th:—"God lives. Hallelujah! The work goes on with power. We had two baptisms yesterday, one at nine A. M., when six were buried with Christ, and about midnight we planted two more in the likeness of the burial of Jesus Christ, and raised them again in the likeness of his resurrection. Amen. The power of the Lord came down so that we had almost to carry one out of the water. Last Friday evening, a lady came into the tent, who proved to be an actress from North Carolina, whose father was a slaveholder. She was struck under deep conviction, and left in great distress of mind. She was at meeting Sunday evening again, and God slew her by his power, and she did not leave the tent until past midnight, and was then helped to a house, where she was cared for, and two dear sisters sat up with her all night. She smiled and wept this morning, and had strength to get on her knees, while we bowed together, and called on the name of the Lord. She is, or was, an opera singer, and was about making an engagement to go to Wisconsin with a company. She has given it up. There has not a more interesting case occurred in connection with my labors for twenty-seven years. I really think she is a chosen vessel to labor in the service of the Lord. She drank the cup of sorrow to the dregs for causing her father's slaves to be punished, merely because they loved and served the God of heaven. More anon. Love to all the children."

Bro. B. P. Manning writes from Goffstown, July 19th:—"I have been thinking how good the Lord has been to me ever since I started last winter to go through to the kingdom. I do have his presence with me ever since I made up my mind to serve him till Jesus comes, or I go down to the grave. I have a good home for the present, but I do not know how long I can stay. "My trust is in the Lord. Brethren, I am striving to do the will of the Lord. How glad I am that we have got a Bible, and God has given us an understanding of it, that we may learn our duty.

Well, dear brethren, as it regards my health, I am gaining a little; hope to be better soon, so that I may be able to do a little in the field of the Lord. I hope that I shall be able to labor with my hands to support myself, and have a little to give to them that have need. O how glad I am that Jesus is soon coming to take to himself his great power and reign King of kings and Lord of lords. Brethren, I want you all to pray for poor me."

Bro. Wm. Leask, editor of The Rainbow, 9 Newington Green, London, writes, June 30th:—"The time has fully come when christian men, as distinct from churches and denominations, must strengthen each other's hands in maintaining the cardinal truths of revelation. The storm which has burst upon me for daring to deny the natural immortality of the human race, is a great trial of faith; yet I feel certain that I am right, and I cannot but hope that brethren in America, who see the glorious truth, that there is no future life out of our blessed Savior, will do something to increase the circulation of the Rainbow."

Bro. J. Clifford, Searsport, Me., writes July 17th:—"After having been injured at the time of the railroad accident, when I was returning from the southern mission, I found a good pilgrim's home, and the good Samaritan spirit, at the Star of Hope Mission, where I was kindly cared for until I was able to journey. The meetings at the Mission were lively and interesting. May the friends of Jesus continue to remember this important mission, which is doing such a good work in saving the lost and perishing in this great city, that it may not be crippled for want of means."

Sr. Fanny Reynolds, Chicago, writes:—"What a blessed privilege it is to go with all our griefs and sorrows, and lay our aching head upon the bosom of Jesus, let him fold us in his tender arms, and listen to his sweet voice, saying, 'Lo, I am with you alway.' Your visit has done us much good. I am so glad that I see the truth of God so plain to what I did when among the Baptists. A great many here in Chicago are getting their eyes opened, from all denominations. May the Lord lead them out into the clear noonday sun, is my prayer."

Obituaries.

Elkins. Died in Fisherville, N. H., June 22nd, 1869, Bro. John Elkins, aged ninety-two years.

The deceased was quite well and active, mentally and physically, until June 19th, when he accidentally fell down a flight of stairs, resulting in the rupture of one of his lungs. He lingered three days and a half after his fatal fall. His sufferings, at times, were intense, but were very patiently borne. His strong, unwavering faith, and cheerful hope in his blessed Savior, which helped him to live a long, active, and consistent christian life, enabled him to resignedly and sweetly fall asleep in Jesus.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

London, July 21. The die is cast, and the struggle between the Lords and the country has finally come to an issue. In consequence of the abrupt termination of the debate last night, intense excitement has prevailed among political circles during the day. The Cabinet has been in session all this afternoon, and a report is afloat that great dissension exists in the Council. Messrs. Gladstone, Bright, Lowe and all the strongest members insist on an immediate withdrawal of the Irish Church bill on the ground of the obstinate resistance of the Peers to the principles of the bill, which renders a direct conflict between the two houses of Parliament inevitable. Some members of the Cabinet—Lord Clarendon among the number—advocated more moderate proceedings, such as letting the bill take its course, only abandoning it at the last moment. The insulting language used by Lord Salisbury towards Mr. Gladstone, joined to the large majority cast against the preamble, however, show that all attempts to effect a compromise are useless. There is but little doubt but that Mr. Gladstone will carry his point of withdrawing the bill immediately. This will be followed by a speedy adjournment, and calling of another session in August, and the creating of a large batch of new peers, sufficient in number to overcome the present Tory majority.

Placards have been posted on the walls to-day, calling a mass meeting at Arundel Hall for tomorrow. This will be followed by a monster open air demonstration. Rumors are afloat that the Duke of Cambridge has openly expressed his indignation at the radicalism shown by the Ministry, and he hopes that the Queen will refuse to sanction the coercion of the Peers. The present crisis promises well to open the ball to sweeping reforms in England, commencing with the virtual destruction of hereditary legislation.

DOMESTIC.

The Flood in Texas.—A correspondent of the Galveston News writing from La Grange, Fayette county, gives an account of the recent disastrous flood on the Colorado river, by which the town of La Grange and the surrounding country were completely submerged. The writer says:

"Great crowds of women and children stood at the water's edge, and saw their homes filled by the Flood, and many of them swept away or turned over where they stood, while the crash of furniture and smashing of doors and windows told of the ruin that was going on within. Men rushed back and forth on horseback or afoot seeking their families or asking for assistance to tie a house already swimming, or claiming help from the idle lookers-on to move their furniture from those not yet inundated. Wagons loaded with furniture rattled to and fro, some to the high ground with their confused mass of household wares, and others to take off the remaining stores. Before three o'clock the public square was a sheet of water. Store doors were thrown open and merchants and clerks strove to save their goods by piling them in their second stories and on the counters; while every man and everything available was put into requisition to save the women and children from the torrent which was now rushing over three-fourths of the town. A boat was made of the boards of houses and filled with strong oarsmen, who went through the streets and yards searching for those who needed help. There was no party distinction; friend and foe were allied together to meet the common enemy.

Saturday came, and found the little town deluged, for on the square and in every store stood four or five feet of water. It was wholly deserted, and all the inhabitants had fled to the high grounds and hills in the northern and northeastern suburbs. Quantities of provisions were destroyed in the stores—such as sugar, flour and coffee—the essentials that were in barrels and too heavy to be lifted on counters or the upper floors. At Chalk Bluffs, four miles above, on the river bank, the scene was terrible. For fifteen miles, as far as the eye could reach to the north, west and south, the country was one unbroken sheet of water. Here and there, in the distance, among the clumps of oaks, might be seen the roofs of houses but yesterday occupied by prosperous planters, now filled by the waters. Nearer, above and below, on to the south and eastward, the zig-zag track of the river was marked by the rush of oaks and cotton-woods that had stood for years. Side by side with these, in wild confusion, floated houses and dead cattle."

When the flood subsided houses were found turned over or swung across the streets, fences swept away, boxes, furniture and small houses scattered about the streets, and everything in confusion, while the slimy mud brought in by the flood covered the walls and doors of the dwellings and stores. The damage to the town is at least $100,000, while the injury to crops and the country is estimated at millions. The overflow has never been equalled in the Colorado within the history of Texas. It will be as much as the inhabitants can do to save food for the coming year.—Boston Journal.

The Proposed Inter-Oceanic Canal.—We learn from Panama, by the steamer arriving to-day, that the contract for the Inter-Oceanic (Isthmus) Canal, Nicaragua, recently signed with certain French capitalists (understood to be acting for the French government), now but awaits the sanction of the sister Republic of Costa Rica, which holds an interest in the river, to become an accomplished fact. To obtain this, Nicaragua has sent a special minister to Costa Rica in the person of Don Mariano Montealegre, who, no doubt, by this time would have succeeded in his mission had the present troubles not existed at the capital of the latter State. There is good reason, however, to believe that Costa Rica, instead of throwing any obstacle in the way, will enter fully into the scheme, and give her consent to the contract, in which case the honor of inaugurating and possessing one of the greatest works of the age will fall to the republic of Nicaragua.

The canal once opened, all traffic will naturally flow through it from ocean to ocean; and the Isthmus of Panama, instead of continuing to remain the highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, will probably return to the same condition, or worse than that in which the early emigrants to California found it. The Panama people, seeing this are calling on the Government at Bogota to put through the Isthmus Canal. Had the treaty made some months ago at Bogota by Mr. Cushing on behalf of the United States been ratified, they would by this time have been surveyors and engineers running their lines over the Isthmus and mapping out the course of the Canal. Next year, in all probability, they would have seen thousands of laborers at work excavating, and not only thousands, but millions of dollars would from that time until the completion of the work have been spent annually on this Isthmus, a very large amount of which would have remained in the country. As it is, with the superior enterprise of little Nicaragua at work, it looks as if it might now be too late.

A Pillar of Fire.—The most curious phenomenon which we have ever heard of occurred out in Cheatham County, on Wednesday last. The day, it will be remembered, was remarkably hot, so that most people in the county had to seek the shade at noon. At this hour, on the farm of Edward Sharp, five miles from Ashland, a sort of whirlwind came along over the neighboring woods, taking up small branches and leaves of trees and burning them in a sort of flaming cylinder that traveled at the rate of about five miles an hour, and developing size as it traveled. It passed directly over the spot where a team of horses were feeding and singed their manes and tails up to the roots; it then swept towards the house, taking a stack of hay in its course. It seemed to increase in heat as it went, and by the time it reached the house, it immediately fired the shingles from end to end of the buildings, so that in ten minutes the whole dwelling was wrapped in flames. The tall column of traveling caloric then continued its course over a wheat field that had been recently cradled, setting fire to all the stacks that happened to be in its course. Passing from the field, its path lay over a stretch of woods which reached the river. The green leaves on the trees were crisped to a cinder for a breadth of twenty yards, in a straight line to the Cumberland. When the "pillar of fire" reached the water, it suddenly changed its route down the river, raising a column of steam which went to the clouds for about half a mile, when it finally died out. Not less than two hundred people witnessed this strangest of strange phenomena, and all of them tell substantially the same story about it. The farmer, Sharp, was left houseless by the devouring element, and his two horses were so affected that no good is expected to be got out of them in future. Several withered trees in the woods through which it passed were set on fire, and continue burning still.—Nashville Tenn. Press, July 17th.

Passing Events.

☞ The trans-Atlantic part of the new French cable has been successfully laid by the Great Eastern, and the shore sections are already partially laid. The completion of the laying of the cable to Duxbury Mass., is expected to occur about the 25th inst. Though Massachusetts has given its consent to the landing of the cable on our shores, Congress has not yet formally authorized it,—the difficulty, however, will no doubt be soon adjusted satisfactorily to the two governments.

☞ Japan is in a condition of political chaos. The nobles are asking for a Parliament to debate and settle the troubles, and the people are to get a Congress, on the United States plan, to devise pacific and progressive measures of government. The country is evidently to be reconstructed, and all its social, political and religious customs and laws changed completely.

☞ The Bishops and Archbishops who are to have seats in the Œcumenical Council, to meet in Rome the approaching fall, number nine hundred and twenty-two, of whom six hundred belong to the Italian race. Will it not be an interesting family gathering?

☞ It is found necessary to renew the lead on the cupola of St. Peter's, at Rome, which is much damaged by oxidization. The Pope aids the work with a contribution of 100,000 francs from his privy purse. The cupola will be partly gilded, as in the time of Sextus V.

☞ Vicksburg still exhibits severe marks of the siege of 1863. The numerous caves in the sides of the hills where the inhabitants took refuge are still open. Recently one of these caves was opened and found to contain the bones of a family, supposed to have been suffocated by the closing of the entrance.

☞ The Russian Government are busily engaged preparing for the Universal Exposition, to take place next year at St. Petersburg. The edifice will be built upon the model of the Crystal Palace, and in the same gigantic dimensions, and is to cost 10,000,000 francs.

☞ Late accounts from Rome say that the desertions from the Pontifical army are increasing and exceed in number the recruits brought in from all sources. A Religieuse has been dispatched to Canada expressly to promote recruiting.

☞ Another remarkable cave has been discovered in Kentucky, near the Mammoth Cave. It has numerous lofty apartments, brilliant stalactites, a subterranean river, and other wonders. It is called Proctor's Cave.

☞ The latest idea for fashionable churches is a retiring room like that of the opera house, where ladies can leave their cloaks, parasols, etc., and thus, disencumbered, listen to the Word in all the glory of gorgeous raiment.

☞ The number of deaths by accident in the streets of London is about seventy-four in every nineteen weeks, and there is scarce any variation from this. The English papers propose bridges for street-crossings as a partial safeguard.

☞ This is a season for sudden deaths. Beside the eminent men whose names have attracted universal attention, there have been more sudden deaths in New York City this season than have occurred before for a quarter of a century.

☞ Chicago is now the great distributing post office for all the American mails for China, Japan, the Sandwich Islands and the States of the Pacific slope.

☞ Hindoos are admitted to the English Masonic Lodges in India, although they do not believe in Christianity.

☞ It is estimated that at least fifty thousand Americans are now traveling in Europe for enjoyment and instruction.

Conn. and R. I. Campmeeting.

Oak Grove Advent Camp, Windham, Conn.

There will be a campmeeting at the above mentioned place, commencing Saturday, Aug. 14th, and continuing eight days. This is a new field, and offers many encouragements for one of the best meetings ever enjoyed. The word of invitation is to churches, families, and individuals. One and all, far and near, come up to the feast.

You will find beauty and convenience of location. The ground is situated on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R., five miles east of Willimantic, and half way between Waldo's and South Windham stations. Cars will stop on the ground which will be known as Camp Shetucket Station. Fare will be reduced on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R. 30 per cent from all stations east or west of ground. Fare from Providence and return, $2.50, and the same or further reduction is expected from other roads. Those who come from New London or Palmer, will change cars at Willimantic. The grove is as clean as a carpet, free from dust, and has an excellent spring of water close by.

Your expenses can be light. The committee hope to bring this meeting as near to the old-fashioned campmeetings in simplicity and power as possible. The expense of the ground is nothing, and its fitting up trifling, so that no heavy burdens will be thrown upon those who come. Board not exceeding 75 cts. per day; also arrangements for individual boarding. Rooms in a neat, unoccupied house near by, to let cheap, for cooking and lodging purposes. Lodgings in private families for those who apply early, at most reasonable rates. Rich pasturing for horses, at one shilling per day, or from 50 cts. to 75 cts. per week; also feed in stables, at low prices.

The object of this meeting is to carry the light of Divine truth into this new field; to proclaim aloud the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ; to teach transgressors their ways, that sinners may be converted to God, flee the "wrath to come," and "lay hold on eternal life." We trust none will come for strife or controversy with their brethren, nor to press some side issue; such will meet no favor. But we exhort all to come in the spirit and power of Elijah's God, to be workers together with God against unbelief and sin. We assuredly expect the Lord with us.

We say again, Come. The whole region around the ground waits to welcome us and bid us come. Let distant churches unite to get fares reduced on their respective R. Roads. Bring your tents, also ample bedding for each individual. May the Spirit of God summon the host.

I. B. Potter, B. Hitchcock, E. Bellows, H. F. Carpenter, } Committee of Arrangements.

P. S. By team the Camp is eighteen miles southwest from Danielsonville; fifteen west of Plainfield; four south of Scotland, and three from Windham Centre, Ct.

☞ Fare Reduced!

Fare to the R. I. and Ct. Campmeeting, Windham, Ct., will be reduced about one third from all stations on the Hartford, Providence, and Fishkill R. R. One half reduction can be had on the Northern and New London R. R. from all and any station that will order ten tickets or more. Let the brethren along this line see to this at once, and send orders to the superintendent. N. & W. R. R. from Worcester, Webster, Putnam, and Danielsonville, will be reported next week.

Now arise! Let us go up and build. Come at the commencement, and stay through. The meeting will hold till Aug. 23d. Let us sacrifice time and money for the love and kingdom of Jesus. We propose to pray unitedly at mid-day throughout the week preceding the meeting for the Divine blessing upon the camp. How many will join us ☞ Remember and call for tickets to Camp Shetucket, Windham, Ct.

H. F. Carpenter, for Com.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

Circumstances are such, that the committee have decided that it will be best for the Alton Bay campmeetimg to commence Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over the 12th. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee, J. G. Smith.

Notice.

The New Hampshire Mission Tent is pitched in Rye, N. H., and will remain as long as the Lord's blessing seems to rest upon the efforts being made to save sinners. Brn. H. F. Carpenter, E. Bellows, and Sr. S. K. Paine, are there to labor with others. We earnestly desire all those who can make it practicable, and are living where they can know the mind of the Lord concerning them, to inquire if it may not be duty for them to come to this meeting and labor as the Lord directs.

Theo. H. Ford.

P. S.—I arranged with Brn. Smith and Shorey, the other two committee, to have the N. H. Tent for this meeting. T. H. F.

Notice.

The Union Female Missionary Association will hold its annual meeting on Springfield campground, Tuesday, August 31st, 1869, at one o'clock P. M. All the preaching Sisters and members of the Association are requested to be present, as some matters with reference to the best interest of the Association are to be considered. Come with hearts interested in the work of the Lord, and pray much that we may have the Spirit of Jesus to direct us in the transaction of business, that this meeting may be profitable to all. Reports from the different female missionaries will be given at this meeting. M. McKinstry, Secretary.

Campmeeting in Maine.

At a meeting in Holden, last Sunday, the brethren decided to have a campmeeting in the vicinity of Bangor, to commence about Sept. 13th. Particulars hereafter. For the Brethren, Geo. W. Brown.

Tent Meeting at Waterloo, N. H.

Providence permitting, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched near Waterloo Depot, about two miles north of Warner Village, on Thursday, Aug. 5th. Meetings to hold day and evenings through the week, and over the Sunday following. The Tent will be pitched in Col. N. G. Ordway's grove. Come to labor for the lost and perishing.

J. C. Shorey, Tent Master. D. M. Leavitt.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched on the Messer Place (so called,) on the road leading from Laconia to Lake Village, N. H. Meetings commenced July 24th, and will hold over two Sundays. Meeting free for all. Come, brethren and sisters, to work for the Lord. Preaching brethren are invited, such as the Lord sends.

J. C. Shorey, Tent Master. D. M. Leavitt.

Campmeeting.

The Campmeeting in Maine, to commence about the 23d of August, will be held in Pittsfield, on the Drew farm, about two miles from the village. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the poor and the preachers to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting. In behalf of the Committee, I. Damman.

Grove Meeting at Westfield, Pa.

There will be a grove meeting at Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa. (near the village), commencing Friday, Aug. 27th, to continue over the Sabbath following. C. F. Sweet, D. Cogswell, and others, are expected to preach the word. All are invited to attend. For the brethren, J. W. Taylor.

The Tent at Winterport.

The Maine Mission Tent will be pitched at Winterport, Me., to commence meetings Thursday evening, July 28th, and continue over the following Lord's day, and as much longer as thought duty.

I. C. Wellcome. F. A. Baker.

Notice to Brethren West.

Do you want a basket, a grove, or tent meeting this summer? Write. 1. Because verbal invitations may be forgotten. 2. Things may shape up, and it be not best to hold one. 3. We need to know all particulars necessary to make proper arrangements, both as to time and place. I have some time for mission work. If any desire my labors, please write without delay.

Peter S. W. Deyo, Strawberry Point, Iowa.

Tent-Meeting, Camden City, N. J.

On account of the deep and increasing interest manifested in the Tent meeting now being held in Camden City, N. J., it has been voted by the churches and congregation to continue it perhaps two weeks longer, or as long as the interest demands. Preaching three times Sundays and five evenings of each week, by Elders H. K. Flagg, J. G. Hook, and others.

R. Willard. J. M. Stetler. J. N. Welfong.

☞ Information is desired through the Crisis where Sister Zarena Jenness can be addressed by letter. M. A. Y. Hackett, Dover, N. H.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

HOPE ON, HOPE EVER.

Hope on, though darkest clouds arise,
  Though angry billows roar;
Hope on, when lowering are the skies,
  When fortune's clouded o'er.

Hope on, when plunged in deepest woe,
  When fears your joys molest;
Hope ever, and your heart shall know
  A holy, heavenly rest.

Hope on, though friends indifferent seem,
  When from loved ones you part;
Hope ever, something bright will gleam
  O'er thy lone, sorrowing heart.

Hope still; thy Savior waits to give
  A prize which fadeth never;
Hope on, and thy freed soul shall live
  Forever and forever.

"BOTH THE SANCTUARY AND THE HOST."

I see that some of my brethren are in difficulty with the idea that the Lord will come before the twenty-three hundred days or years of Dan. 8: 14 end. The difficulty mainly arises from the expression, "BOTH the sanctuary and the host," as though two separate objects or things were introduced. Now the Hebrew word sh' nah-yim, where duality is expressed, is translated "both," and "two," over six hundred times in the Old Testament Scriptures, as in Gen. 1: 16, and Gen. 2: 25; but this is not the word used in Dan. 8: 13. The expression, "both the sanctuary," is from the Hebrew word koh' desh, translated over four hundred times in the Old Testament Scriptures. The meaning is, places or things, made holy by being dedicated to the service of God. The people of God and their inheritance are inseparable in his mind. The usurpation of the territory of the earth by the devil, for these six thousand years, will not frustrate the original purpose of God. If the first Adam did lose it, the second Adam will recover it at the appointed time.

God's people have been chosen in Christ even before the foundation of the world, and are predestinated unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to receive this inheritance in the dispensation of the fulness of times, when all things are gathered together in or by Christ, as may be seen by the first chapter of Paul's letter to the Ephesians. Therefore, while the wicked nations tread down the territory of the earth, and prevent God's people from occupying it, there is a sense in which they may be said to be trodden under foot. Therefore, by taking the saints to a place of refuge, or security by Christ, while he is gathering out of the territory of his kingdom "all things that offend and . . . do iniquity," is only placing them in a condition to take the kingdom under the whole heaven, that was promised to them. That some considerable time must elapse after Christ appears in the clouds of heaven, before the antichristian governments and nations are disposed of, is evident from many portions of Scripture. In the twenty-sixth chapter of Isaiah, where God's people are called to "awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, . . . and the earth shall cast out the dead"; when they are called to their "chambers . . . until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity; the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." The sanctuary can not be cleansed till this work of destruction is over; for the heathen are to "be wakened and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphet." Then the command is, "Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great."—Joel 3: 13–14. Compare Rev. 14: 14–20; also with Rev. 19: 11–21. The same view is presented in Jer. 25: 30–38, when the "slain of the Lord shall be from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth; they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground." It must certainly take time for these awful predictions to be fulfilled. We learn also from Isa. 10: 22–27, that this work of destruction is to be according to the slaughter of Midian at the rock of Oreb, where every man's sword was against his brother. Thus we see there will be a mutual slaughter from one end of the earth to the other. Then will be fulfilled the "time of trouble" recorded in Dan. 12: 1. All of this takes place after Christ comes to judgment. The condition in which he will find the world at his coming may be learned from Matt. 24: 37–40; 25: 5; Luke 17: 26–29.

The character of the perils of the last days may be learned from the third chap. of Paul's second letter to Timothy, where he shows that there will be a condition of unprecedented worldliness and corruption everywhere, both in church and state. And if the people of God are not contaminated in this time (which is now at the present), it will be well for them. If, by watchfulness and prayer, they escape these things that have come to pass, then they will not be ashamed at the coming of the Son of man. As the great "time of trouble" comes after the resurrection and translation of the saints, and is to be upon the wicked nations of the earth, it will readily be seen that the 2300 days, or years, cannot end until this time of trouble is past; as we learn from Dan. 8: 19 these 2300 days reach to the last end of the indignation. We have not time to say more at present upon this point, but would submit the above considerations to the prayerful study of our brethren, for we think it the only consistent and harmonious view that can be made to appear.

"OUR FATHER, WHICH ART IN HEAVEN."

If there is any language in the Bible which will strike a responsive chord in the heart of the redeemed children of God, it is, "Our Father, which art in Heaven." These six words, taken as found in Matt. 6: 9, contain more than is often found in six volumes of secular reading. They contain a wide and beautiful meaning, filling the heart of him who repeats them in the spirit with everlasting joy and peace. They show as beautifully the relation that exists between God and man as the personality and everlasting dwelling-place of "our Father." Our Father! Sweet words to the heart that is quickened by divine love. While God is the Father of all, he is especially the Father of such as pray unto him from the heart. Not "my Father" only, but "your Father"; "my God and your God"; "Our Father, which art in heaven."

The whole meaning of the words of Jesus, as quoted above, contain food for the believer until his hope is consummated—their work accomplished. The words of our Savior, wherever found, are dense with meaning, wisdom, and love. He who is the beginning and end of all things, "the only living and true God," "the King of kings and Lord of lords," we can address as "our Father."

We can bear all the trials of this life with more ease, since we are permitted to say—"Our Father, which art in heaven." We are not only permitted but commanded to say so; and with what cheerfulness does the disciple of the Anointed obey; responding from the innermost chamber of the heart, "Hallowed be thy Name." The little child reads it and understands it. Yet I doubt not many a D.D. might study it profitably over and over again. "It is new every morning, and fresh every evening" to the soul that seeks God in prayer.

How often do we pray, "Thy kingdom come," when we are not prepared and have no expectation or desire for such an event. Do we ever pray, "Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven," when we desire first that our will may be gratified? We little think, many times, when we pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," that if our prayers should be answered, our sins would not only be unforgiven, but full payment with interest demanded. Do we ever pray, "Lead my feet in the way thou wouldst have me go," when we have already marked out a path of our own choosing? Be careful how you pray.

If I have succeeded in calling attention to the "Lord's Prayer," I will be satisfied. Who will take the Bible and read it?

MISSION LETTERS FROM HUNGARY.

BRO. GRANT:—My long silence of four months has probably surprised you and the kind Brn. and Srs. in the U. S. But I was so busy in my extensive missionary field of labor, as well as in the hard work with my hands, that it was almost impossible for me to write a long epistle to any one. By the providence of God, I am very happy to send you to-day more good news from Hungary, for which, I am sure, many good and noble christian brethren and sisters wait impatiently.

Here in Pest and vicinity, our holy mission has slowly progressed, for every man is engaged in the hard work to be able to sustain himself and to pay to the Austrian government thirty millions guilders every year; but still, we are not without the heavenly blessing. Many honest and noble hearts received the glad tidings with joy; and the solemn voice of warning has already crossed also the charming Carpathian mountains to the Polish Galicia; . . . . . . and the large and very very interesting city of Lemberg contains many honest souls, who are ready to hear the glorious message of the everlasting kingdom of our dear Savior, Jesus Christ. A noble Polish family already wait there for the baptism of regeneration, and several others of my beloved old friends wait also impatiently our visit there, to hear from our mouth more concerning the true church of God.

In Switzerland, as well as in Italy and Germany, our mission is daily progressing. Several families were recently joined with the church through baptism by Eld. Albert Vuilleumier, and we have the great joy of announcing to our beloved brethren and sisters, that the best and noblest class of the Hungarian citizens also are in a serious examination of the heavenly truth, and become daily our best friends. So we hope, by the grace of God, that our EUROPEAN SECOND ADVENT MISSION may be for the church the means of solemn thanksgiving to Almighty God, who gives us the great privilege of being his workmen.

Many thanks to our dear friends the brethren and sisters of the "Crisis," "Herald" and "Voice," people of the United States of America, as well as in England, who so nobly and zealously have sustained us to this day, and still are ready to help us, until our Mission shall be fully established, and possess the same strength as in America, and so go forward alone in the name of Christ.

We are happy to declare also officially and cordially, that the enemy of the truth shall never be able to erase from the divine record of God in the heavenly sanctuary, and from the history of this world, this true testimony: that this great European and only evangelical Advent mission, is established by the American Advent Christian Union, resident in the noble city of Boston.

We are also pleased to hear from our French brethren, that the Seventh-day Advent Association also are willing to help our industrious Brn. of Switzerland to establish near the Water-Cure in Mich. an agency for the sale of their best watches, which universally honor the house of Edward and Albert Vuilleumier in Tramelan, Jura Bernois, Switzerland; and which I have the pleasure of recommending cordially to all the people of the U. S. The same agency was some months ago established in Boston.

Let us all be in holy union and harmony, and cry to the Lord, "Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven"; and never forget the heavenly instruction of God, that "there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord. And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same only one God"—Jehovah; his Word the Son, and his supreme will the Holy Spirit, which worketh all in all. 1 Cor. 12: 5, 6. And let us not forget that the love of God, and charity towards our brethren and sisters in faith, must occupy a deep place in the sanctified heart, and not in the mouth; and that when the Master appears, there will be but one "denomination." Let us also not root up the tares, lest we root up also the wheat with them; but let them both grow together until the harvest. Matt. 13: 27–30. And let us work for no spiritual pride of the flesh, but for Christ, and we shall be blest.

I never shall forget the good Wilbraham campmeeting, and the kind, christian counsels of the leading brethren there, who have said to me,

"Go, Bro. C., to Europe, to preach the pure gospel of Christ, and never be a sectarian; and God Almighty will be with you and bless you."

By the grace of the Lord I have done this, and I shall never work otherwise, but only for God and the salvation of my fellow men, who are greatly beloved by the Creator. Be it our undivided aim, dear brethren and sisters, to glorify Him who has been at so much expense to glorify us. And while all inferior creatures, in silent and unlettered eloquence, declare the glory of God, so we must lend them our tongue and adore him for numberless mercies which are appropriated to ourselves. But, above all, adore him for that great gift of the revelation to us of his approaching glory and our translation from this earthly filthiness. By so doing, we shall be constituted moral masters of the globe, and gain the real enjoyment of its progress. This love discovers ten thousand beauties which otherwise had been lost, and renders them both a source of delight and a nursery of the truest devotion. By virtue of this great and holy principle, we shall be qualified to admire our Maker's works, and capable of bearing his illustrious image; not only when the ornaments of the ground have resigned their honors, but when the great source of day will be extinguished in the restoration of Paradise, and all the flaming orbs on high shall be put out in obscure darkness in the presence of the throne of Jesus.

Then to survive the mighty ruins of this filthy world, to enjoy God, to resemble God, and to be filled with all the fulness of God. O! what happiness, what an inestimable felicity will be this. Such will be surely our privilege, beloved brethren and sisters; therefore let us not barter it for trifles of foolish ambition, but let us go forward, forward, seeking this glorious prerogative. Amen.

Yours faithfully, M. B. CZECHOWSKI.

TRIALS.

Trials like storms do come and go,
  And often leave a shining day;
Clouds of disobedience, run low,
  Bring darkness while we're on the way.

Sometimes the day seems bright and clear,
  No omen of a coming storm;
We've no temptation, doubt, or fear,
  Nought to disturb the heavenly charm.

Sometimes our strength does almost fail,
  And were it not for faith and prayer,
While darkness gathers like a vail,
  Should give all o'er, in dark despair.

Through faith and prayer we struggle on,
  Trusting in God to set us right;
Keeping before us Jesus' form,
  Trusting to day he'll change the night.

Then while before his throne we kneel,
  The Savior smiles and shows his face;
The wondrous change our hearts do feel,
  And proves by faith the saving grace.

Thus in this life come doubts and fears,
  Trials and sorrows, toil and pain;
No weary hearts or sorrow's tears
  Shall dim that world we hope to gain.

Wolfborough, N. H. ISAAC H. HODGDON.

THAT OLD SKULL.

A few weeks ago, a society of scientific men met in the city of Chicago, to discuss a great variety of questions pertaining especially to the natural sciences. Pure mathematics, astronomy, chemistry, botany, geology, and some other sciences furnished themes for some truly learned papers and discussions.

It was a noticeable fact that in some of the discussions—such as astronomy and chemistry—the lecturers were very positive, as if aware their footing was sure; whilst in some others they were subdued and modest in tone, as though not so sure that all they said was true. The spirit and deportment of the association were worthy of men exploring God's secret things in nature.

One lecture was noteworthy. It was read by Prof. Whitney, in the elegant Baptist church on Wabash Avenue. The lecturer had his blackboard and crayon, to illustrate the geological character of the place in which was found the fragment of a skull which has become famous all over the scientific world. aside from the scull itself, the lecture was charming in the definiteness with which it described places and phenomena of a truly extraordinary character. No one could surmise that the lecturer had any theory or pet notion to be cared for, so carefully and candidly did he state all he had learned about the locality, the strata, the mining-shaft, who owned it, who found the skull, and when, what was done with it and said about it, how it came into his hands—and, indeed, as candid and dispassionate a statement of all he knew about the relic as he could have made concerning a proposition in geometry.

The general fact thus stated and evidently believed by the Professor was that this skull of a human being was found in a much lower and earlier geological formation than is usually assigned to man. He did not make the inference, but others did, that, inasmuch as human bones have at last been found in this early geological formation, they must have been there long prior to the date usually assigned as the origin of the race. The usual account, in harmony with the records of Moses, asserts that man was created about six thousand years ago; and the weight of scientific testimony thus far has been in favor of this account. Now, if human remains are found in the tertiary—when the usual account can be justified by finding them only in the post-tertiary—then we shall be compelled to give up that common theory, and with it the first and second chapters of the book of Genesis. It is a grave matter.

Some of the learned gentlemen at Chicago quite put the blush on the common theory of six thousand years as defining the time of man's origin; and talked of thirty, forty, and even seventy thousand years, in place of six.

Meanwhile, that old skull sat ghastly and silent on the table at the lecturer's side. Not a word did it speak; and yet I fancied I detected a smile on its unclothed cheek-bones and jaws, to hear what the credulous savans—not the lecturer—were saying about it, as having come down from such a distant age to tell them "Moses did not know what he wrote about."!

"Yes, that old skull, found down in the tertiary in that volcanic region, could not have got there by any little eccentricities of the earthquakes cracking the strata of the earth, to let it down where it did not belong. There it belonged, and nowhere else; and, therefore," etc.

Speaking of earthquakes. In 1755 occurred that which destroyed Lisbon. When it began to rock the earth, and the solidest buildings began to fall, thousands of the affrighted people rushed to "the marble quay which had just been constructed at a great expense. It suddenly sunk with them, like a ship foundering at sea. But, when the water closed over the place, no fragments of the wreck, none of the vessels and boats near by that were drawn into the whirlpool, not one of the thousands of bodies carried down, reappeared upon the surface. Over the spot the water stood six hundred feet deep, and beneath this, locked in the fissured rocks, in chasms of unknown depths, in the relics of what was the life and wealth of this portion of the earth in the middle of the 18th century. These rocks are clayey and other comparatively soft strata or the tertiary formation. When, in some future epoch, they are raised again to the surface by a convulsion of the same nature of that which engulfed them, the vestiges they contain may reappear, converted, in part or wholly, into stone, like fossils entombed when the strata were deposited."

There sat the silent old skull on the lecturer's table, and seemed to me to be trying to say: "By and by, a few hundred years hence, some diver or miner will find an old skull down in the tertiary under where the Lisbon quay sunk in 1755; and some very wise men, meeting in Chicago, will say, 'Here it is in the tertiary! It is at least seventy thousand years old! Moses wrote what he did because he did not know any better.' And yet, gentlemen savans, that skull belonged to a live man on the 1st of November, 1755, who sunk down in an instant into the tertiary from as good post-tertiary as what you now stand on! Do not be deceived, gentlemen, for Moses will yet beat you all!"

Who knows but Prof. Whitney's California skull found its resting-place in the same way, and as quickly? In that awful earthquake, last spring, at one of the Sandwich Islands, as our missionary, Pogue, declares, a huge volume of red mud was thrown out of the crater, at the rate of a mile a minute, three miles, and buried a whole village in an instant fifty feet deep. Perhaps it was tertiary mud; and by and by some miner may find under it some old skull, seventy thousand years old, to bear its testimony against Moses! Who knows?—Independent.

PENCILINGS OF A PILGRIM.

KNEELING IN PRAYER.

It is a consoling thought that set forms of speech and special attitudes of the body are not essential to the real spirit of prayer. The outward expression of the inward desire may be greatly varied. The upturned eye, the falling tear, the inward sigh, the half-suppressed groan, the abrupt ejaculation, may contain the essential elements of prayer. And such prayer may be successfully offered in all attitudes, times, and circumstances. Nevertheless, the Scriptures recognize one attitude as peculiarly befitting the exercise of prayer. Whoever will search the Record, will find that the current testimony is in favor of kneeling. "O come," says the Psalmist, "let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker." Jesus set us a blessed example: He "kneeled down and prayed." Luke 22: 42.

Amid the pelting stones of his persecutions, Stephen "kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." Acts 7: 60. When the generous-hearted Dorcas was to be restored to life in answer to an apostle's prayer, "Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down and prayed." Acts 9: 40. When Paul was about to leave a band of disciples, whose hearts were breaking at the prospect of separation, "he kneeled down and prayed with them all." Acts 20: 36. The sacred historian relates a touching interview which he and Paul enjoyed with a company of christians whom they met in their travels. He is particular to add a circumstance that ought to be more common when christians part: "And we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed." Acts 21: 5.

It is eminently appropriate that beggars should be humble. Who does not feel like falling on his knees before God, when engaged in secret devotions? And why not observe the same rule in the social meeting and the great congregation? When one is pleading with God, let all bow the knee, close the eyes to outward things, and unite in the petitions that are offered. This will conduce to unity of feeling, energy of faith, and fervor of devotion. But when one is praying, and the rest are sitting upon their seats and watching, there is distraction and defeat, where there ought to be concentration and victory.

We would plead for kneeling in time of prayer, were it only for the relief afforded by change of posture. It looks a little lazy for worshipers to sit during the preaching, sit during the singing, and sit during the praying. No wonder people become stupid and sleepy when they allow themselves to sit—sit—sit, for two mortal hours, without any change! Why not stand when you sing, kneel when you pray, and then sit and hear the word, with some life and comfort? We are inclined to think that thousands of stiff necks and stiff knees need to be lubricated with gospel oil!

DOCTRINAL TESTS.

There is, with many, an unfortunate habit of laying too much stress on doctrinal opinions. This works badly in various ways. Sometimes it leads churches to a rigid and even tyrannical administration against those whose views of Bible truth have come to diverge from the popular track of thought and belief. Many a man, whose christian character was fully endorsed, has been expelled for heresy. We have no hesitancy in saying that such a course is at war with the genius of the gospel, and a reproach to the name of christianity.

A church creed which is too narrow to encircle real Christians, however diversified their sentiments, needs enlargement. And how hard it is to receive a man into our Christian fellowship, unless he can pronounce our "shibboleth" with unerring exactness! There is altogether too much of a "you-think-as-I-do-or-be-damned" spirit. Such a spirit leads to denunciation, distraction, and every evil work.

Sometimes it generates an excessive proselytism, which leads religionists to devote their best energies to convince and convert people's heads, while their hearts remain untouched. This accounts for the morbid anxiety which many feel, to have everybody indoctrinated after certain stereotyped methods. To cram a sinner's head with difficult theories and diversified doctrines, before he has learned the lesson of repentance and faith, is like cramming his stomach full of raw potatoes, and then sending down a few coals of fire to cook them! Jesus never designed his disciples to be mere theorizers. It is important that the mind be enlightened, the conscience probed, and the heart purified. So far as possible let the whole work be carried on harmoniously. But as the heart is the most difficult citadel to take, our heaviest artillery will need to be pointed in that direction. People are never so well prepared to learn about the wondrous plan of redemption, as when they sit meekly at the Master's feet, with their hearts fully surrendered.

Sometimes it leads to exuberant and unwarranted joy when persons seem to accept some of our favorite notions. With some, there is a strong proclivity to count converts. The sequel often proves that they have "reckoned without their host." When a speaker or writer makes an incidental remark which seems to favor my peculiar theory, what right have I to to enrol his name as one of my converts, and publish him to the world as an advocate of my special doctrine?

Men are not to be judged by detached phrases, ambiguous utterances, and incidental illustrations. Fairness allows every man to define his own position in his own way, and obliges us to interpret his words according to his real intention. When we hastily snatch an unguarded expression from the lips of another, and force it into a confession of faith, and then boast that "such a man has embraced our views," we are guilty of a double wrong. First, we do injustice to him. We had no right to commit him to a platform which he does not voluntarily and fully adopt. Any effort to do it will only disgust a sensible man, and drive him further away. Second, we injure the cause which we intended to serve.

Such policy measures will have a woful rebound. Intelligent people will see that our rejoicing is unfounded, and thus we cover the cause of truth with extra reproach, and load it down with unnatural burdens. "Do not count the chickens before they are hatched."

Rochester, N. Y. A. A. PHELPS.

For the World's Crisis.

AN ADMONITION.

"And as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that we entered into the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded. . . . Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed."

To those who have ears to hear, whose eyes are touched with the holy anointing, if no other tokens were ever given us than the foregoing, even in this alone have we evidence sufficient to show the day of Christ is near. Excess in all these things is characteristic of the present time. The picture is complete, and nothing more is wanting or need be looked for to intervene between us and the closing scenes of earth's history.

Now what does our Lord enjoin upon us? "Sell that ye have, and give alms." "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord." "Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find watching." "Be ye therefore ready, for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not."

Shall we be found in this position when our Lord appears? If so, then the blessing and reward will be ours. S. L. MANLEY.

Rochester, N. Y.

KIND WORDS.

Much has been said and written upon kind words, but the half has not been told. Pen cannot describe nor tongue express their full depth. There is a magic in kind and gentle words, which those who seldom use them or feel their power little know. A few kind words have often been the means of saving those who, on account of manifold trials and severe temptations, were upon the point of desertiug their heavenly Master's service. Kind words have also been instrumental in saving the young man from a drunkard's grave, who, while in a fit of despondency, has put the wine cup to his lips, hoping thereby to drown his sorrows and troubles in intoxication. But how very often have harsh words been the means of driving them on still further in the course which they have reluctantly taken. Instead of pointing out the great evil they are doing to themselves, the cold shoulder is turned to them, and they are cast out as drunkards with the exclamation, "We will have no more to do with you." O, would that all could realize the vast importance of kind words in this respect. If they did, we would see less of that great evil, intemperance, among the young men of our day.

Let us always speak kindly. It is much easier to utter kind than harsh words. Husband, speak kindly to the weary wife, whose life is burdened with many cares; it will lighten the load and smooth the pathway through life. Wife, speak kindly to the husband when he returns from his daily toil with clouded brow; you know not the cares and vexations of the day. Make home the spot where he can forget the outward world, and bask in the hallowed influence of domestic affection. Children, speak kindly to your aged parents, whose limbs are bowed beneath the weight of many winters, and on whose brows are traced the lines of the cares and sorrows of many years. Be kind to the little ones. Chide them gently. You know not the agony of an unkind word felt by one of such tender years.

Speak words of hope and kindness to your erring sister; it will do no harm, but may, perchance, bring the wayward heart to thoughts of repentance, while unkind words only tend to harden the heart. Speak kindly to your sinful brother, even though he may have fallen low into the depths of sin and iniquity; you know not the snares and temptations which beset his pathway, and how a word fitly spoken may sink deeply into his heart and bring forth fruit meet for repentance.

Finally, speak kindly to all; the high, the low, the rich, the poor, wherever, whenever, and under whatever circumstances we meet them. It matters not how harsh their words may be to us, let us always stand ready to return a kind answer. We shall enjoy ourselves much better, others will delight to be in our society, God will bless us, and we shall stand acquitted before his judgment bar at last.

COMMON POLITENESS.

It is not polite to go on pleasure excursions on the Sabbath, to the annoyance of those who attend church, and who desire to worship their Creator unmolested by the noise of vehicles or boisterous conversation and laughter. Many a worshiping congregation has been seriously disturbed by the profane and thoughtless riding past their churches. The growing desecration of the Sabbath, of late, seems to call loudly for all interested in the preservation of the sanctity of this day, and the continuance of good morals, to exert their influence to stay the progress of this breach of morality and religion.

It is not polite, when detected in a wrong statement, to make a terrible bluster, using harsh and denunciatory language, as if thus to satisfy your friends and your conscience. The only right course to pursue, after you have erred, is at once to confess your fault; and this course alone will satisfy your real friends.

It is not polite to manifest angry feelings when a wrong package, parcel, or book has been given to you, or even when you have been unconsciously misdirected. We have seen persons very indignant and angry when a slight mistake has been made, which shows an ugly disposition, and one which needs much care and attention.

It is not polite to hector, perplex, or torment those who are not blessed with an even temper, or a sunny disposition. How many, by irritating their friends, prove complete thorns in the flesh; when, by a different course, they might be real blessing to mankind, and secure the approbation, if not the affections of thousands!

It is not polite, to pursue any course contrary to the known wishes of your friends, or derogatory to the character of upright citizens; nay, more, to take any step or commit any act which is condemned by the precepts of the Bible.

It is not polite for public functionaries to take bribes, and screen the dishonest from the punishment they deserve. A man who cannot be firm in his virtuous principles should never take a responsible office.

It is not polite to enter a gentleman's study, or place of business, and trouble him to hear unprofitable stories, or ask him a thousand unnecessary questions. Sometimes the only leisure a professional man, or a man of business has, are the few moments you find him at his desk; and it is provoking in the extreme to disturb him then.

THE DEVIL UNCHAINED.

Rev. Dr. Chapin writes as follows to the Liberal Christian:—

There has never been a time when the calls for philanthropic activity were so numerous and pressing as to-day. Our northern society is honey-combed with evils and vices. Turn which way we will, we are confronted with a pitfall or a slough. Our streets are filled with beggars; truant and vagrant children, coarse, ragged, pale, meet us everywhere, asking us to buy that they may not starve. Men and women appeal to us for labor or aid to keep them from crime. Noble charities are suffering for want of funds to carry on beneficient operations; and as we go to see what can be done, a young man falls prostrate at our feet from intemperance, and in trying to relieve him we stumble into the mouth of hell, where Satan plays his game for souls, burning up the bodies of his victims to get the stakes he has won before the time.

It seems as though the fountain springs of vice had overflowed, and oozed down through a thousand invisible channels, and made the very ground beneath our feet one vast quagmire of sensuality and corruption and crime; and out of the morass come up the pleading voices of thousands and thousands to save them from sinking, and lift them back to the solid ground of virtue; here are many streets filled with ignorance and vice, disorder and misery, opened to christian charity.

FOLLOWING THE COPY.

A little girl went to a writing school. When she saw her copy, with every line so perfect, "I can never, never write like that," she said.

She looked steadfastly at its straight lines, which were so very straight, and the round lines so slim and graceful. Then she took up her pen, and timidly put it on the paper. Her hand trembled, she drew it back; she stopped, studied the copy, and began again, "I can but try," said the little girl; "I will do as well as I can."

She wrote half a page. The letters were crooked. What more could we expect from a first effort? The next scholar stretched across her desk and said, "What scraggy things you make!" Tears filled the little girl's eyes. She dreaded to have the teacher see her book. "He will be angry with me, and scold," she said to herself. But when the teacher came and looked, he smiled.

"I see you are trying, my little girl," he said, kindly, "and that is enough for me." She took courage, Again and again she studied the beautiful copy. She wanted to know how every line went, how every letter was formed and made. Then she took up her pen, and began again to write. She wrote carefully, with the copy always before her.

But oh, what slow work it was! Her letters straddled here, they crowded there, and some of them looked "every which-way." The little girl trembled at the step of the teacher. "I am afraid you will find fault with me," she said; "my letters are not fit to be on the same page with the copy."

"I do not find fault with you," said the teacher, "because I do not look so much at what you do, as at what you aim and have the heart to do. By sincerely trying, you will make a little improvement every day; and a little improvement every day will enable you to reach excellence by and by."

"Thank you, sir," said the little girl; and, thus encouraged, she took up her pen with a greater spirit of application than before.

And so it is with the dear children who are trying to become like Jesus. God has given us his dear Son "for an example, that we should follow his steps." He did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth. How he loved people; how he forgave his enemies; how kind and tender he was; how "meek and lowly in heart;" how he went about doing good"! He is "altogether lovely," and "full of grace and truth."

And when you study his character, "I can never, never reach that," you say. "I can never be like Jesus."

God does not expect you to become like his dear Son in a minute, or a day, or a year; but what pleases him is, that you should love him, and have a disposition to try.—Little Corporal

THE TWO PITCHERS.

Two pitchers were standing one day on the parlor-table, when, listening very attentively, I heard the following conversation:—

"What do you mean, Miss Brown Coat, by standing so near me?"

"Oh," said Miss Brown Coat, "I don't mean any harm. I shall not hurt you, I hope, although I am not quite as handsome as you."

"As handsome as I am!" replied the other. "I guess you are not. Only look at my clear, beautiful lips, while yours are all cracked and scratched."

"Well, if I am not as handsome as you are, Miss Beautiful Lip, I think I am quite as useful."

"Useful, indeed; that is nothing. I am sure I should not like to be used as you are, and don't you know that you ought to be out in the kitchen or the woodshed?"

"Yes, I am used, and I can assure you I like it. As to my staying in the kitchen or woodshed, that does not trouble me, for there I am always doing something for somebody. When the mowers come in from the field, all tired and thirsty, I always offer them a drink of nice milk or water; and after, little Dickey fills me with milk, and carries me out with him to the old beech-tree."

"Dear me, I am glad I dont have to go out into the field, to be set down on the dirty grass."

"Ha, ha! how different you are from me; that is just what I like. I admire to sit on the soft, green grass, and watch the mowers as they swing their scythes to and fro, and am always so pleased when they come and take me up and drink. It is so nice to hear them say, 'Bless you, dear old Brown Coat.'"

"I like to sit on the shelf, along side of the beautiful silver, in the closet, and look out of the window," said Miss Beautiful Lip.

"That may be; but I think I have often noticed, when I have been out watching the pretty squirrels, and hearing the birds sing, that the shutters of your nice closet, where you like to sit, are closed, and sometimes I have seen them so for weeks together."

"Well, I must confess that sometimes I do feel rather gloomy and quite low-spirited, and often wish it was not so dark, or that I had rather more to do."

"Now, I think," said Miss Brown Coat, "that there is nothing like being useful to make one happy. Dickey takes me to the spring; the mowers very often take me out early for a morning walk, and Kitty the maid often says, when she washes me, 'what a useful pitcher this is, I declare. I don't know what we should do without it.'"

"Oh my, I am glad Kitty don't put her dirty hands on me. I am always washed by my mistress, she is so afraid that I shall be hurt."

"Yes, you are so nice, you are afraid to do anything."

"Indeed, I should not wish to have my beautiful lip all spoiled and cracked, like yours. Then look at your hand; it is all scratched, and as rough as hard usage can make it."

"Well, well, Miss Beautiful Lip, I am quite contented with my life, and very happy. I would rather be loved and praised for being useful, than to hear all sorts of fine things said about my pretty looks; so good morning, for I see Dickey and Trip are coming to take me to the arbor in the garden, where Willie and Ned are to have a little pic-nic to-day."

Miss Beautiful Lip did not reply; but I believe she fell into a brown study on usefulness.

Boys and girls, which life do you think is the happiest,—one of industry, or idleness?—Children's Fireside.

LUCK AND LABOR.

Two boys left, last week, their country homes to seek their fortunes in the city.

"I shall see what luck will do for me," said one.

"I shall see what labor can do for me," cried the other.

Which is the better to depend upon, luck or labor? Let us see.

Luck is always waiting for something to turn up.

Labor will turn up something.

Luck lies abed wishing.

Labor jumps up at six o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation of a competence.

Luck whines; labor whistles.

Luck relies on chances, labor on character.

Luck slides down to indolence.

Labor strides upwards to independence.

Which is likely to do most for you, boys?

EMMA GRAY.

Emma Gray, on her way to school, passed a little boy whose hand was thro' the railings of a gentleman's front garden, trying to pick up a beautiful flower.

"Oh, little boy," said Emma kindly, "are you not taking that without permission?"

"Nobody sees me," answered the little boy.

"Somebody sees you from the blue sky," said Emma, "God says we must not take what does not belong to us, without leave, and you will grieve him if you do so."

The little boy looked up into her face as she spoke.

"Shall I?" said he; "then I won't" He drew back his hand and went away.

One way of doing good is to prevent others from doing wrong. A gentle word of reproof or persuasion would save many a one from sin.—Free Methodist.

OBEDIENCE TO PARENTS.—A christian merchant, who, from being a very poor boy, had risen to wealth and renown, was once asked by an intimate friend to what under God he attributed his success in life. "To prompt and steady obedience to my parents," was his reply. "In the midst of many bad examples of youths of my own age, I was always able to yield a ready submission to the will of my father and mother, and I firmly believe that a blessing has, in consequence, rested upon me and upon all my efforts."

COMING OF CHRIST.

Tune.—Bartimeus.

Lo, he comes in clouds of glory,
With ten thousand angels round,
To fulfill the ancient story
Of redemption from the ground.

Chorus.—Glory, glory, hallelujah,
Glory be to God on high;
O, salvation—hallelujah!
Jesus now is very nigh.

Hear the mighty trumpet sounding!
Upon every ear it falls;
Now the saints are all awaking,
As the voice of Jesus calls.

See the wicked now all wailing,
As they see their Judge on high;
On the rocks and mountains calling,
Thus to hide them from his eye.

Rocks and mountains cannot hide them
From that great and awful throne;
All their cries will not avail them,
When He called, their hearts were stone.

But the saints are all rejoicing,
As they rise to meet their Lord;
With their robes all white and waiting
To receive the welcome word:—

"Come ye blessed of my Father,
All of my most holy band;
Take the kingdom—all together—
All of Canaan's promised land."

We will swell the heavenly chorus,
When redemption's day shall come;
Nothing then shall e'er disturb us
In our happy Eden home.

CHRIST AND CHRISTENDOM.

Thoughtful men are convinced that great changes are at hand throughout the world. Nor is this conviction felt by religious thinkers only, but by intelligent men of every civilized nation. Philosophers of every school, politicians of every party, christians of every church, feel that, ere long, some altogether extraordinary event will arrest and absorb the attention of mankind. The old landmarks, secular and sacred, are passing away with ominous rapidity, as if swept before an irresistible flood. No conservatism either in church or state, is strong enough to check the impetuous rush. No appeal to ancestral wisdom has power to stop the speed with which the world is hasting to some marvelous crisis. And no earnest warnings of the possibility of some irremediable disaster have the effect desired by those who utter them.

I. All this is simply matter of fact, irrespective of doctrinal peculiarity.

You may mourn over it, you may rejoice in it, or you may accept it, without either grief or gladness—if that be possible—as one of the inevitable things in the future of humanity, which God may either incorporate with his purposes, or bend to his will in the development of his infinite wisdom, but you cannot deny the fact itself. That is beyond controversy. Everywhere men are asking, substantially, if not in so many words—"Whither are we drifting? what is coming on the earth? what is to be the end of these things?" Ecclesiastical council, political manifesto, philosophical essay, religious book—it is all the same; for whether joyous anticipation or gloomy foreboding be the outline, unprecedented change, inevitable transition, is unquestionably the text. On that all men are agreed, with a unanimity of sentiment as remarkable as it is new.

But here the unanimity ends, and a perfect babel of propositions regarding the future stuns the ear. "Lo! here," or, "Lo! there," is the panacea. Let the church of Rome have her own way; cast aside your unreasoning Protestant prejudices, and fall quietly into her loving motherly arms; do the best you can to facilitate her cherished hope of universality; and she will still the commotions of the times, and bring in the millenial age of peace, and faith, and love. Or, if you demur to this invitation, lend your energies to unfettered Protestantism; help to consolidate its divided forces, and to give it unity of thought and action; let its appeals to the "instinct of liberty," and its denunciations of priestcraft be heard through the nations; and no doubt the day will come, when through its agency, "the wilderness and solitary place shall be glad, and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Or, if you think intelligence from the dead more reliable than the voices of prophets and apostles in the christian's book, unite yourself with the rapidly swelling ranks of "Spiritualism," and hasten its happy age of abolished creeds, annihilated churches, and universal "free love." Or, if prejudiced against this way of hushing the groans of creation, in consequence of the reports of its doings in the western world, there are still other candidates for your suffrage, and other prescriptions for the restoration of the patient. To mention but one—which has acceptance in many parts of Europe to an extent that is absolutely incredible to those who are unacquainted with the facts—universal democracy, on the principle of no church, no Bible, no God. To bring about the promised time of peace, prosperity, and joy to mankind, the golden age of poets and seers, this proposition offers us naked Atheism!

Let not the reader imagine that we have our eye only on the red republicans of France, or the social democrats of Germany, and their Italian and English sympathizers, the roughest of the European people, who cannot brook the restraints of law, and who have nothing to lose amidst the fury and havoc of revolution. The atheism of such men carries its antidote with it in the immortality, vulgarity, and lawlessness of its advocates. It is from their leaders in the high places of "philosphy" that the danger comes. Men of scientific attainment, more or less profound, are the actual apostles of this godless gospel. It is no longer the doctrine of inspiration, or the genuineness of this or that Biblical document, which is called in question, but the entire book is pronounced a collection of fables; and that there ever was, or is, such a person as the Christ of God, is openly denied.

"A keen, learned and relentless criticism," says Mr. Dale, "is sweeping like a destructive tempest over the whole of our sacred books. That 'higher criticism,' the ultimate aim of which is, we are told, to 'discover what actually happened,' and which refuses to be satisfied with what is 'only related to have happened,' is attempting in these last days to reconstruct out of what it regards as the confused unsifted, and untrustworthy literature of ages of credulity, passion, and fanaticism, the whole of that wonderful story which has solaced the sufferings, sustained the strength, and inspired the sanctity of so many generations of saints. The Pentateuch and the Acts of the Apostles are alike impeached. The history of the foundation of the Jewish state, and the history of the origin of the Christian Church, are both to be re-written; but the tragic miracles of the Exodus, and the awful mysteries of Sinai are to be excluded from the first; and, from the second, the diviner glories which bore witness to the supernatural commission of the Lord Jesus Christ, while he was on the earth, and which signalized his return to the throne of the Father.

"To this attempt the 'higher,' is impelled, not by its native instincts alone, but by the whole temper and spirit of our times. The supernatural is to be expelled from every province in which its presence has hitherto been recognized. Human thought and volition are but functions of man's organization. The history of nations is the necessary development of laws which may be discovered by human science, and over the action and results of which no will, human or divine, has any control. The material universe, with all majesty and beauty, bears no witness to the power, and wisdom, and beneficence of the eternal God—'The heavens no longer declare any other glory than that of Hipparchus, of Kepler, and of Newton, and of all those who have contributed to establish their laws.'

"For centuries there has been no such crisis in the religious thought and life of mankind, as that which is now impending. Hostility to the Christian faith, deeper, sterner, and more systematic than that which terrified our fathers in the most volcanic and tempestuous hours of the French Revolution; theological confusion and uncertainty, far more chaotic that that which followed the revolt of Northern Europe against the infallible Roman church;—these are the perils which we have to encounter. The time for speaking lightly of these tremendous controversies has long gone by. If only a theory of inspiration were breaking down, if men were discussing nothing more serious than the precise and minute accuracy of the four Gospels, if we were threatened with nothing more formidable than the demonstration of the historical untrustworthiness of a few chapters here and there in the Old Testament, we might look on calmly, and wait the issue of the conflict with indifference.

"But it becomes plainer every year that the real questions in debate are far different from these. The storm has moved round the whole horizon; but it is rapidly concentrating its strength and fury above one sacred Head. This, this is the real issue of the fight. Is Christendom to believe in Christ any longer, or no? It is a battle in which everything is to be lost or won. It is not a theory of ecclesiastical polity which is in danger, it is not a creed, it is not the Old Testament or the New, but the claim of Christ himself to be the Son of God and the Savior of mankind. This is surely enough to stir the church to vehement enthusiasm, and to inspire it with its old heroic energy. It is a controversy, not for theologians merely, but for every man who has seen the face of Christ, and can bear personal testimony to his power and glory.

II. Existing religious agencies have failed to realize the expectations of the church.

Whether those expectations are justified by Scripture, or whether the arguments used to create them were sound is not here in question. As before, we state a broad fact about which there cannot possibly be two opinions, as every one who understands the matter must at once admit. The result of the manifold efforts to evangelize the heathen at home and abroad falls immeasurably below anticipation. At home, with several large ecclesiastical bodies having wealth, influence, learning and eloquence at command, we cannot overtake the dark masses of ignorance, crime, and misery that crowd and poison our great cities, Scripture readers, town missionaries, Bible women, home missions, evangelists, and a whole array of voluntary laborers, such as Sunday school teachers, christian instruction visitors, and tract distributors, supplement the labors of the clergy and pastors of these large churches; and yet hamlet, village, town, city, have to this day dark souls on which the life-giving light of salvation never dawned with transforming power. Abroad, the aggregate result of the labors of all our large missionary societies is, by universal admission, far below what the predictions of platform, pulpit, and press led many to expect.

Christian labor, that is to say, labor for Christ's sake, with the view of promoting his truth, and with the love of souls in the heart of the laborer, is a sublimely beautiful thing. Such labor undertaken at his bidding, and with an intelligent perception of what the church is to do and to be during the absence of her head at the Father's right hand, cannot be in vain; but if the church forgets her witness-bearing mission, and puffs herself up with the idea that she is to be a victorious conqueror in the world that rejected and crucified her Lord, the exaggerated self-importance will be rebuked by hosts of enemies springing up to challenge her claims and her Master's too; and the terrible disproportion between her pretensions and her achievments will be followed by a reaction at once humiliating and distressing. Mistaken views of her own position in the divinely arranged system of things are sure to be accompanied or followed by mistaken views, more or less serious, of the revealed character and will of God. If she says, "I have to bring the world to Christ," she says what neither prophet nor apostle sanctions. If the mistake stopped with herself, the matter would not be so serious; but in the nature of things that could not be; and consequently it has brought serious discredit upon the entire Christian revelation, and upon the claims of our blessed Savior himself. Men who knew not the Lord for themselves, naturally accepted this declaration of the church as one of the testing claims of Christianity; but seeing that fact has failed to justify it, they now say, "How can we either believe these men or the book whose precepts they profess to obey? If God has commissioned them to convert the world, as they say he has, how is it that the end seems farther off than ever? Surely, if they had divine authority they would have divine help; but the results, according to all accounts, are not very brilliant."

Now it is very easy to call these men "scoffers" and "worldlings;" very likely many of them have an undoubted right to these titles; but what right have christians to bring discredit upon divine truth by making it responsible for doctrines which it disowns? We press this question as it contains the point at issue. What authority have we—for it really comes to this—to say that the Son of God has transferred his royal rights to our weak hands, to subdue all nations to his will? We first misread the document by which our conduct should be regulated during the Master's absence, and then, seeing that we necessarily fail to do the thing which is not expected of us, the world, believing our assurance that it is expected, casts discredit upon the entire word of God. Need we wonder? No, but we should mourn!

III. The present state of Christendom is precisely such as might be expected if it were certain that the Christian dispensation would end in an atheistic apostacy.

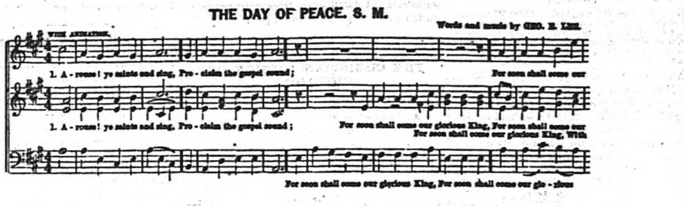
But that it will so end is certain. There can be no more doubt about it than about the gift of eternal life to him that believes in Jesus. There is no greater authority for a sinner's salvation through faith in Christ, or for any other fundamental doctrine of revelation, than there is for the statement that this age will close amidst absolute devil worship and more terrific judgments than have ever hitherto fallen upon our guilty world. The warnings of the prophets of both Testaments, and of the Lord himself, are so numerous and clear that every reader of the Bible should be intimately acquainted with them. The representations given of the close of this dispensation are so minute, startling, and awful, that it is amazing how any christian can seriously believe in the conversion of the world by the agency of the church, before the return of the Lord Jesus. Deeply stamped upon the book are the appalling features of the coming evil time; and the chief actors in the closing tragedy reach a height of such unprecedented wickedness and blasphemy that, but for the sudden manifestation of the King of kings and Lord of lords, in the great day of his wrath, the triumph of the devil and his agents over this part of creation would be complete. Why, the very language of the panic-stricken foe, when the Lord comes to judgment, proves, if we had no other testimony to abduce, that instead of a converted and loyal world, he will find a world of daring rebels. Here it is: "And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"

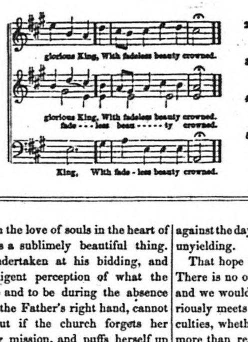
Yet the reluctance of christians generally to embrace the hope which God has provided against the day of storm and tempest is strangely unyielding.

That hope is the return of the Lord Jesus. There is no other. It is God's arrangement, and we would not have it otherwise. It gloriously meets the entire case, solves all difficulties, whether of human or Satanic origin, more than realizes the most ardent hopes of the believer, baffles the schemes of the impious usurper and his armies, and overwhelms them in the fiery flood of vengeance which will utterly destroy them. But the majority of christians cling to the traditions of a corrupt theology, and look upon those who would bring them back to the pure apostolic fountain as innovators and teachers of novel doctrines. It so happens, however, that the "novelty" rests with them, not with us; and we tell them in all christian sincerity and affection, that no preaching, however fervent, forcible and clear, that ignores the near approach of the great Judge, will either arouse the church to a recognition of her true place, or stem the torrent of evil which is to bear upon its dark bosom the personal antichrist at whose feet apostate christendom will fall down and worship. We heard Mr. Dale's discourse, from which an extract has been made, and we felt that it just wanted one thing to make it perfect—the doctrine of the second advent of the Lord, to meet the world-storm that is about to burst, and to complete the grand scheme of grace and glory in which the love and wisdom of God are so marvelously unfolded. The assembled representatives of Congregationalism never listened to a discourse more worthy of profound attention, and that is saying much; but our gifted, learned, and eloquent brother, will pardon us for imploring his attention to the fact, that the solution of the controversies of Christendom can be found only in the personal coming of Christ.—Rainbow.

THE DAY OF PEACE. S. M.

Words and music by GEO. B. LEE.





2. His waiting people then
Shall in his kingdom live,
Where none shall ever weep again,
Where nought the heart shall grieve.

3. O! soon will come the day,
When care and toil shall cease;
When sin and death shall flee away,
And saints shall dwell in peace.

4. The signs fulfilling fast,
Proclaim the end is near;
Probation's hour will soon be past,
The King of kings appear.

5. O! hasten, sinner, haste!
The gospel call obey;
If thou would'st enter into rest,
Come, seek thy Lord to-day.

6. Then on that glorious morn
When Jesus doth appear,
He will to us proclaim, "Well done,"
If we are faithful here.

7. The pure in heart are blessed,
For they their God shall see;
And all who have his name confessed,
Shall eat of life's fair tree.

8. Shout praises to our God,
All glory to his name!
O! hail the day when Christ our Lord
Shall come on earth to reign.

9. Then a new song we'll sing,
Then shall our hearts rejoice;
We then shall see our conq'ring King,
And hear his welcome voice.

THE ALARM BELL.

NAPOLEON'S REVERSES.

We referred in our previous article to the uses of adversity, and showed that misfortune and trial prepare the way for subsequent success. And this is as true in developing the future of both bad and good, that is to say, an ambitious and unholy man may take advantage of the experience of misfortune to guard against the causes of failure, and by a more studied and careful preparation, to conduct coming enterprises. Can not all see this clearly and easily? The maneuvers of this audacious Prussian Bismarck, while in a good degree furthering the convenience of Napoleon, have also in a measure seemed temporarily to obstruct his European advancement. Prussia has stretched herself out into a giant kingdom of the north. She has enlarged her stature and her standing room, and Bismarck cannot help being suspected of further policy of aggrandizement if not actual aggression.

But who does not see that it is this very menace which arms Napoleon, which stimulates his watchful and cautious look at all dangers, and urges him to measure the resources and activity requisite for every trial? The greater the peril, or the impediment, the shrewder and the vaster the counter-strife of policy to overcome it. This is a very aid and impetus to the development of antichrist, therefore. When the strategy and tactics and audacity of a new and powerful enemy are defeated, does not the victor find his renown? Does he not feel his power? Does he not resolve to use it and to keep it? And we feel sure that Napoleon, though for the time complaisant and self-restrained, will not forget the past, when he has laid prostrate at his feet the power that vexed and defied him. His resentment and pride as instrument and representative of Satan, and recipient of the kingdoms and glory of this world, will incite him to perpetuate the humiliation of a beaten antagonist, while perchance he wins with some courtesies and forbearance the homage and service which may help his scheme of empire to the last.

Suppose we glance a moment backward. The French Emperor, within our easy recollection, has been freely and derisively styled "Napoleon the little." A host of public journals held him up to ridicule, as a man of shallow understanding and feeble statesmanship, even after his accession to power. They delighted in reviving to the public recollection the failures of Strasburg and Boulogne, and the humiliating shifts and disguises by which he escaped the dungeon glooms of his imprisonment in the fortress of Ham. "Behold!" they cried, "the abortive ventures of a sentimental and silly youth, bearing the lofty and terrible name of Bonaparte. See to what a paltry end the vaults of misguided ambition are brought. To what a degradation and feebleness is the uncle's power and renown reduced, in the person and fortunes of the nephew." But the prophets betrayed their own blindness. The man of derision kept on his way, and began to show not only how to gain but keep his advantage. By war, by diplomacy, by flattery, by silence, by ambiguity, by great skill and industry in internal development, by the proof of a strong and skilful hand in holding the reins of government, he has moved forward to this day, until he is regarded with more attention than any man living. Now what purpose did his defeats evidently serve in earlier life. Most manifestly to develope great thoughtfulness, and to augment a natural caution and reserve. Misfortunes strengthen the resolute. They educate against rashness. They prepare for great exigencies. They precede success to the persevering. And the very gloom and retirement of the tedious prison life gave opportunity for study, and the formation of plans of adminstration. Believing in a "destiny" of empire, he wrote and wrought in secret, until his time came to rule, and he was ready.

We have seen the result of these earlier misadventures, and as if they never had occurred, or were never followed by success, the clamor of a prophesied decay and impending downfall is still heard, in consequence of the Mexican "fiasco," as it is termed. This enterprise was an apparent and temporary failure. But what is the consequence?

1. To limit more thoroughly the "arbiter of Europe" to a European development. Europe is specially prophetic ground. It is mainly on this field that the compact of kingdoms is to be formed with the beast for one hour. It is here that the papal-imperial fabric of earthly glory and dominion is at the end to arise. When this is realized, when this headship of church and government is reached, when power on so grand a scale is attained at home, then the way for foreign domination is clear. Then the eclipse of glory in the Mexican retreat will be avenged. At least, this is by no means impossible, or even improbable.

2. Since the withdrawal of the French troops, the world has viewed in Mexico a wretched picture of misgovernment, bordering on anarchy. Brigandage and insurrection and revolution have been rife. Property and life have been insecure; and it cannot be denied that, as a matter of fact, imperialism was best for Mexico; for in contrast with the present agitation and revolutionary restlessness, it is obvious.

3. That the experiment of an empire was, from the slender opportunity given for its development, a success. The turbulent and ignorant masses, as well as the horde of treacherous and conspiring guerrilla and brigand chiefs, needed surely a strong hand to restrain them. What a history of "republicanism" do we read in Mexico. What a travesty is the truth on the name. The "empire," as far as it went, was better than any thing since. We are not lauding imperialism nor Bonaparte, but applying facts to foreshadow coming events in harmony with prophecy.

4. The enterprise, the accomplishments, and the miserable and melancholy death of Maximilian, in a moment of reaction in the public mind, are appealing to popular pity and sympathy. The cruel and barbarous vengeance of Juarez on this defeated prince, as well as his capture through treachery, have wrought with secret but marked effect on many minds. That Louis Napoleon intends in good time to repair and restore this shattered enterprise, is not at all unlikely. It may be through the spontaneous act of many Mexicans, and favoring circumstances concurring, and also by the impulse of an "imperialism" established in these United States. Thus the Mexican reverse may be the preface to a great success. Power firmly secured in Europe first, is the Emperor's aim.

Much as we detest imperialism in the service of self and Satan, a government enlightened and powerful is better for Mexico, than republican lawlessness. And dismal as is the picture of a world dominated by an imperial and Satanic confederation, yet there is in the heart of all an abhorrence of barbarity towards a character as amiable as Maximilian's, even though he were, in the esteem of many, a usurper, or an appointee of the ambitious Bonaparte. C. Colegrove.

— Every cloud that covers our way is the shadow of an angel's wing, full of blessing. Every burning desert of trial we journey over, gives fountains of life-giving water. When overwhelmed, and about to sink in the waves, we see the Master walking on the sea. On the cross of each daily life we bear, is written, "All things work together for good."

FORSAKING ALL FOR CHRIST.

"Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple."—Luke 14: 33.

Is this a hard saying? On one occasion the disciples replied to the words of Jesus in this language: "This is a hard saying; who can hear it?" Does it seem to be a hard thing to give up all for him? He has done as much as this, and more for you. Though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich. Have you given up all for him? This is the work of consecration. That which is consecrated is given up. As the offering was laid on the altar to be consumed by fire, so must all that we have be consecrated to our Lord and Master. And after this is done, we must believe that the offering is accepted. Why should we doubt? Suppose the gift is small, or very unworthy, it is all we have. If we have house, and land, brethren, sisters, father, mother, wife and children; any or all of these, they must all be consecrated, all given up, or forsaken for Christ.

No one will mistake the peculiar sense of the word forsake in this connection. It is not to run away from our home and family, without cause; but to be willing and obedient to go or stay as duty requires. It is as much the duty of the christian to provide for his own, "especially them of his own house," as for other men to provide for theirs. And whosoever will not do this, he "hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." But all must be laid on the altar; all must be given up, and the exchange made of all things for Christ. And is not this exchange greatly in our favor? Is not Christ of greater value than all that we possess? Then do not hesitate (after counting the cost) to give up all for him. There is a clear and unanswerable logic which applies here. If we do not give up all, then we must certainly lose all. If we do give up all, then we gain all things. For Jesus says, "Verily I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundred fold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come, ETERNAL LIFE. Consider all these things, count the cost, reason candidly, and you must confess that whoever obeys the command to forsake all, gains all things and loses nothing. For says the apostle, "all things are yours; whether . . . the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's. 1 Cor. 3: 22.

Again, Jesus says, "he that loseth his life for my sake, shall find it." O, reader, let these sayings find a place in your heart. It is the language of Him who cannot lie, and who will not deceive. "My son, give me thine heart." Give up all these frail, mortal, perishing things, and receive in return things which will endure forever. "Now is the accepted time." Choose life to-day. Beware, keep not back a "part of the price," but consecrate all for time and eternity.

Webster, Mass. F. H. Chamberlain.

PRAY ON.

Be not weary, praying christian,
Open is thy Father's ear
To the fervent supplication,
And the agonizing prayer.

Prayer which the Holy Ghost begetteth,
Be it words, or groans, or tears,
Is the prayer that's always answered:
Banish, then, thy doubts and fears.

CONTINUE STEADFAST.

Truly, we are living in the perils of the last days. Every thing around us shows that we are near the end of all things; and if this be so, "what manner of persons ought" we "to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" Surely we should be a peculiar people, zealous of good works. We should be unlike it in all things, standing aloof from its fashions and follies, renouncing all for Christ. Certainly, we expect them to cast our names out as evil, and separate us from their company; but we can lift up our heads and be glad, feeling the sweet assurance that our names are written in the Lamb's book of life.

Are you persecuted for righteousness' sake? Do men say all manner of evil against you falsely? "Then rejoice, and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven." The prophets before you were persecuted. Saints of all ages walked the same road. Yes, and Christ himself once trod sorrow's pathway. "He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." His way was surrounded with trials. It was much darker and rougher than ours. Often is my mind carried back to the gloomy garden, and the scenes of Calvary—"The pangs on the bloody tree." O did Jesus thus suffer, and shall I repine? But he died that we might live, and he rose again, and ascended into heaven, and is there interceding for dying men. He pleads now for us. He is not willing that any should perish. Once he "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin;" and now "he is able to succor them that are tempted." He "will not suffer" us "to be tempted above that" we "are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape." Under all circumstances he is our friend. In all places he is with us to guide and direct. Then let us put our trust in him, knowing he is able and mighty to save. If we are not willing to suffer with him here, we cannot expect to reign with him when he comes. We read in the word of God, it is the "willing and obedient" that will "eat the good of the land." May we be willing to obey the Lord. Never be weary in well doing; for in a little while, "we shall reap if we faint not."

Truly, the world is growing "worse and worse," and we expect it will continue to increase in wickedness until Jesus shall appear, and put an end to it all. What a joyful day that will be to those who have believed on his name, and have confessed the Lord Jesus before men. Yes, they will receive the great reward. Life and eternal happiness will be their portion; while those who have rejected Christ, and trifled with atoning blood, will be forever shut out from the presence of God, and the glories of his kingdom.

Then, amid all opposing influences that surround, let us stand fast and be valiant soldiers of the cross. Let us mind not the scoffs and frowns of this ungodly world. We know that those who "live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution;" and we must not expect to be approved by them. They will not love us nor desire our society. But Jesus has promised to be with us to the end of our pilgrim journey. And may we endure hardness as good soldiers; be steadfast, unmovable, and be prepared for that great day that awaits us. M. T. Saltmarsh.

TRUTH, HOPE AND LOVE.

I have seen christian faith represented by a union of Truth, Hope and Love. The christian's hope is represented by the apostle Paul as an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast; by which we may ride secure amid the coming storms, and when the waves are most tumultuous and troubled, lift up our heads, knowing that our redemption draweth nigh. In the engraving, Hope is depicted leaning upon an anchor. She holds Truth by the hand, showing that they must be in close alliance. Truth holds in her hand the holy Bible, as a mirror by which we can see the deformity of our hearts. Simple and unadorned, she casts aside all concealment. Love occupies the middle place, and seems to strengthen the union between Hope and Truth. Love is represented with wings, to denote her heavenly origin. It is a beautiful picture, and I love to gaze upon it, and study the beautiful lesson which it teaches. It teaches me that "Faith is created, and kept by Hope, Truth and Love. Hope assists in the creation of Faith. Truth is the mother of it, and Love nourishes it; and these three lay the foundation for Faith, and Faith is an instrument of salvation, for "by grace are ye saved through faith."

If we have no faith, we have no enlargement of christianity. Faith believes the word of truth; Hope accepts that which is bright and joyous, which is given in the word of God, and with confidence leans upon the promises; while love enters on the path of duty. We love and obey Christ, not because we are his subjects, and he our King, but because he loved us. This love, planted in our hearts, prompts the hand to do what Christ bids us; and the foot to walk in the way he he has assigned us. How precious to believe that "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life." My faith rests upon this, and I have peace with God. Hope spreads her wings and soars onward to a city that hath foundations, and to the "rest that remaineth for the people of God."

Love twines her arms around me, and whispers, "I bind all hearts with a celestial chain." O happy day when all hearts will be bound with this heavenly chain. How sweet and joyous will then be our intercourse with each other. Words would fail to describe the beauty revealed in such a state. As I sit here at my open window, I look out upon the hill-side, and see the waving grass and tall bending trees, with their thick green foliage; I hear the joyous birds singing as they flit from bough to bough, and a fountain is stirred in my heart at the beautiful sight, and I bow my head in praise and adoration to the great Creator of all. Again I shut my eyes to all things earthly, and try to imagine the beauties of the heavenly clime, where will come no blighting shades, or thought of ill; where the twilight shadows will never darken the sunny sky; where all will be light, love, and joy eternal. Sometimes for a moment the veil is lifted, and I can seem to see a city, bathed in soft, unclouded sunlight, with its pearly gates swung wide open, revealing in the centre a brightness brighter than the sun, which is the Lamb of God; and I see the beautiful river flowing by the throne of God, so clear, and sparkling, and bright, that it dazzles the eye to look upon it. I see crowns of surpassing glory, and robes as white as snow; the victor's palms, and harps of shining gold. I leave this beautiful city and wander away to the highest summit, to see if there is aught of decay or blight in all this fair new creation; but no, it is a world of surpassing beauty, and the whole earth is filled with the glory of God.

Hark! I hear the sound of heavenly music. O it charms my ear with its rapturous strains, as it echoes far over the hills and through the leafy boughs; now it is soft and low; now it soars higher and higher, echoing back her swelling strains like the noise of mighty thunderings; which sends a chill to my heart, and makes me clasp my hands in wonder and admiration. In silentness and fear I drop my eyes, and lift my heart to God in silent prayer. O how glorious is the christian's hope! What glory, beauty and blessedness await the followers of Jesus. Though blackest clouds gather over our heads, and fearful storms of affliction desolate our pathway; though our dearest hopes are blighted, and disappointment meets us at every step, let us meekly bear the chastening, and exclaim, Not my will, but thine be done.

"Even the hour which darkest seemeth,
Will God's changeless goodness prove;
From the mist his brightness streameth,—
God is wisdom, God is love."

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Wednesday, Aug. 4, 1869.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ M. G. S.—It was sent July 30th.

☞ C. GILL—Money received.

☞ A. W. SIBLEY'S P. O. address is now West Thornton, N. H.

☞ B. P. MANNING'S P. O. address is Goffstown, N. H.

☞ LEWIS F. COLE'S P. O. address is Yarmouth, Me.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

2300 DAYS.

A few evenings since, we listened to a sermon, in which it was said the 2300 days of Dan. 8: 14, ended in 1844, and at that time Christ went "within the veil," and commenced cleansing the sanctuary. We thought this was strange teaching, and think so still. We asked the speaker to read Heb. 6: 19, 20, as follows;—"Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the vail; whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made a high priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." This Scripture declares that in Paul's time, Christ, "the forerunner, IS for us entered" "within the veil," not that he should not enter till 1844.

It was stated that the "veil" in Heb. 6: 19, 20, meant "door." The word rendered "veil" is katapetasmatos, from katapetasma. It occurs six times in the New Testament, is rendered veil in every passage, and has no reference to a door.

It was claimed also that Christ did not go "within the veil," or into the holy place, till 1844, because John, in vision, saw Christ "in the midst of the seven candlesticks" (Rev. 1: 13), which were the antetype of the seven candlesticks in the first part of the tabernacle. We find nothing about seven candlesticks in the first part of the tabernacle, but we do find one with six branches. We asked the preacher to read Rev. 1: 20, as follows: "The mystery of the . . . seven golden candlesticks. . . . The seven candlesticks which thou sawest, are the seven churches." We inquired if the seven churches were in the first part of the tabernacle in heaven? or were they upon earth? John's letter reads as follows: "John to the seven churches in ASIA." Was Asia the first part of the heavenly tabernacle?

When speaking on this point, Paul says of Christ:—"He ENTERED ('not will enter after the 2300 days run out) in once into the holy place." Heb. 9: 12. Again he says:—Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself now to appear in the presence of God for us." Heb. 9: 24. Is not God in the holy of holies? Jesus was in his presence in "the holy place" "within the veil" in Paul's day. When Stephen was being stoned, the Scriptures say: "But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God. And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God." Acts 7: 55–56.

CLEANSING THE SANCTUARY.

In the same sermon it was stated that the cleansing of the sanctuary, mentioned in Dan. 8: 14, began to be accomplished in 1844, at which time it was assumed that Christ went "within the veil," or holy of holies, to do the cleansing. The passage in Daniel is as follows:—

"Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed."

It was remarked on this passage, that the word "sanctuary occurred first in Ex. 25: 8. and never applied to any portion of the earth;" whereas the word first occurs in Ex. 15: 17, and applies to the earth: "Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in, in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established." When referring to this, David says:—'And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased.' Ps. 78: 54. Here we learn that when they came out of Egypt they were brought to a portion of the earth called the "sanctuary," which should be "trodden under foot" for a given time. Jerusalem was in this sanctuary. It is the place where the first and second Adam lived. It was once the most "beautiful" portion of the earth; but now it is trodden under foot, and occupied by the Turks, and other enemies of the Lord. Jesus said: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21: 24.

In Daniel, the question is asked, "How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host [church] to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed." We have found a portion of the earth called the "sanctuary," which is now "trodden down of the Gentiles," and will be till Christ comes; when he will send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom [the sanctuary] all things that offend, and them which do iniquity."

If the position of the speaker was true, that the word sanctuary never applies to a portion of the earth, but means the place "within the veil" in heaven—the holy of holies, we inquire how he knows that it was "trodden under foot until 1844, when Jesus went in to commence cleansing it? and yet there had been no one there, not even Jesus; so that it must have been God himself who had been treading it under foot, and defiling it. When the speaker got through with his assertions, we thought the next best thing would be proof that they were true.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

We received an excellent article for the Crisis accurately and very plainly written, which appears in this week's paper. It is the first from the writer, but hope not the last. Accompanying the article, was the following:

"BRO. GRANT:—Enclosed you will find an article for the Crisis, which, if you do not think worthy of publication, I shall not feel hurt, but but will try and do better next time.

We were specially delighted with the expression—"Will try and do better next time." It sometimes happens when the first article is not published, that the writer is offended, and will never write again. Why not try again? Yet, it is very often the case that the reason why the article did not appear was not for want of merit, but for want of room. We have a pile of such articles on hand. We can only fill the paper. These articles which remain unpublished, though equally good, are from two classes of writers; one class have that amiable spirit, which says: "I shall not feel hurt, but will try and do better next time;" while the other writes as follows:—

"MILES GRANT:—Dear sir. Though my faith in the second coming of the dear Savior is unshaken to this day, my confidence in the integrity of many of its leading advocates I find giving away; or yielding under the pressure of insincerity, and a manifest determination to lord it over God's heritage after the manner of mystic Babylon and her daughters."

In relation to the latter, we would say, his article was in the paper when he wrote the foregoing, but had been delayed for want of room. When we find out that persons are liable to have such feelings, we try to take a course to prevent them, by publishing their articles as soon as possible; and on this account the amiable ones may be put off too long.

Well, it is difficult to keep out of all the fires, or to avoid some hard knocks; for besides these good articles from these two classes of disposition, there is yet another class of articles, that are not calculated to benefit any one; and some of them would do positive injury if published, because of the sentiments they contain, or on account of some bitter words about some other writer's articles. Such writers may hold a prominent position in society and the church, and will make a great stir because their communications are not published; and soon become busy to have a change in the management of affairs, so that their articles shall not be shut out any longer. Would that a few numbers of a paper might be published filled with the rejected articles; we think most complaints would cease, and each writer of rejected articles would say, I think you should have left out all but mine. Of course he would still think his own was first rate. Such is human nature.

Perhaps it would be well to say here, we have occasion to reject but few articles, but there are many not published for want of room. Do "not feel hurt," but be patient; and keep on writing; we will do the best we can. Pray that we may be able to do all to the glory of God.

THE SOUL'S WINDOWS.

In the Children's Banner may be found the following description of the soul:—

"There are five windows to the soul, called hearing, seeing, feeling, tasting, and smelling; and through these golden windows the soul looks out upon the world and gets knowledge of its surroundings. If any one of these senses which we have called windows be wanting, all that class of facts which it is designed to impart to man's mental nature are forever shut out."

The question very properly arises, How can the soul look out when the windows are all destroyed? "If," as stated by the Banner, "any one of these senses, which we have called windows, be wanting, all that class of facts which it is designed to impart to man's mental nature are forever shut out;" then it follows that, when the five senses of "hearing, seeing, feeling, tasting, and smelling" are "wanting," as is the case after death, the soul can never hear, see, feel, taste, nor smell, till the organism is restored to life that was endowed with these senses. This we believe to be strictly true, and in harmony with all facts connected with man's nature. The five senses are a part of man's physical organism; hence when the organism is dead, the man is not alive as a soul separate and distinct from the body. The Bible does not teach any such doctrine. What sort of a being must that be which can neither see, hear, taste, smell, nor feel anything? But according to the Banner this is the case with the soul after it leaves the body.

TRUTH THE BEST.

The following was sent to the "Religio-Philosophical Journal," a Spiritualist paper published in Chicago;—

To the Editor of the Religio-Philosophical Journal:—Dear Sir: I write to ask a favor, which I feel confident you will be pleased to grant, as I am sure you do not wish to put me in a false light before your readers. In the Journal of Feb. 27th, "Frontier Department," I find the following:—

"Keep it before the people that Elder Miles Grant said at Dansville, N. Y., on Wednesday evening, Jan. 27th, 1869: 'If I am compelled to follow the Bible, confine myself to it, then I may as well close the discussion at once; for I cannot maintain my defense from the Bible.'"

Allow me to say, with all due respect to Mr. Wilson, that I did not make the foregoing statement. The facts are as follows:—I attempted to give the different uses and renderings of some of the original words in the Hebrew Scriptures, for the purpose of throwing light upon the subject under discussion, when Mr. Wilson objected, and insisted that I should confine myself to King James' version of the Bible. I then remarked, If he would not allow me to do any thing but simply read the Bible, we might as well close the discussion; meaning by my remark, that merely reading from the Bible, or any other book, could not be considered a discussion. I made the remark to show, as I thought, the unreasonableness of his objection against the explanation I attempted to give; for, in debating any subject involving the Bible, I understand it to be proper for either disputant to show by argument the connection between the Scripture and the subject under consideration; which could not be done, if we were only to read from the Bible without remarks. But I never said, "If I am compelled to follow the Bible, . . . I cannot maintain my defense" from it; for I believe without a doubt that I can; and am ready at any proper time, with suitable preliminaries, to meet Mr. Wilson, or any other able defendant of Spiritualism, and undertake to show that the entire Bible is opposed to Spiritualism in all its teachings. CHRISTIAN.

When speaking of krematisai, the word rendered "were called" in Acts 11: 26—"and the disciples were called christians first in Antioch"—Dr. Clarke sa-s, in his comments on this passage:—"The word krematisai, in our common text, which we translate were called, signifies, in the New Testament, to appoint, warn, or nominate by divine direction. In this sense the word is used in Matt. 2: 12, Luke 2: 26, and in the preceding chapter of this book, ver. 22. If therefore the name was given by divine appointment, it is most likely that Saul and Barnabas were directed to give it; and that, therefore, the name christian is from God. . . . A christian, therefore, is the highest character which any human being can bear upon earth; and to receive it from God, as those appear to have done, how glorious the title."

We fully adopt the foregoing from Dr. Clarke.

THE BEE KEEPER'S TEXT-BOOK.—Those who keep bees will do well to send to Bro. H. A. King, Nevada, O., for a copy of his "Bee-keeper's Text-book." Bro. King is a very skillful manager of bees, and has given valuable information on the subject, in his text-book. Price 75 cts.

MURDOCK.—Has any one a copy of Murdock's translation of the Syriac New Testament that they wish to sell? If so, please correspond with me, stating the price.

MISSIONARY THEOLOGY.

In the July number of the Rainbow, is an interesting article on "Missionary Theology," by Edward White. When comparing the opinions and teachings of the early missionaries with the true theology of the Bible, he says:—

"In some of the most important particulars of christian faith, indeed, there is no change. The faith in a divine Christ, in an atonement for sin, in the person and work of the Holy Spirit, in a gratuitous justification, is the same now as it was of old. But these doctrines were considered by the founders of missions as but a superstructure built on a deeper foundation. That foundation was an antecedent belief in the natural immortality of mankind, and their consequent destiny either to endless misery or endless joy. In the opinion of Dr. Carey and those who first went with him to India, as well as of the churches in Britian, every human being was an immortal, was possessed of a soul as eternal in the future as the nature of God. Every inhabitant of India was thus regarded as an immortal. Every unregenerate soul, descended from Adam, was born under the curse of endless woe, and was, by its own sins, confirmed in that direful destiny. Salvation could be effected only by the distinguishing grace of God in regeneration. All the unregenerate of all ages were unsaved, and the unsaved of India, as of all lands, were destined to be delivered over, as Dr. Carey says in one of his letters, to 'endless misery.' To endless misery had gone all the numberless unregenerate inhabitants of Asia during the ages of darkness preceding the advent of Dr. Carey to India. To 'endless misery' were going all the millions who rejected his message, or refused to abandon their ancestral creeds. This is still the foundation of missionary theology. This is still what may be called the state creed of all the missionary societies. No one is considered at liberty to deny it in a missionary speech or sermon. It is the platform creed of Exeter-hall. The missionary students at the colleges are supposed to believe it. The directors are supposed to believe it. The missionaries abroad are supposed to believe it. No one who openly assailed it would be asked to assist at a missionary assembly, or to plead the cause of missions before the people.

And yet—it is disbelieved in the churches throughout the length and breadth of the country. It is doubted and denied with varying degrees of confidence. But it is doubted and denied almost universally, and most of all by persons of accurate knowledge and spiritual intelligence. The doubt and denial is not confined to skeptics, to mockers, to adversaries; but it is professed with more or less of openness by men whose knowledge gives the utmost weight to their judgment, and whose hardworking piety challenges comparison with that of any of the advocates of the older creed. One meets with a few earnest, and able, and unquestionably sincere, controversial supporters of that elder belief. The names of Dr. Pusey, of Dr. Salmon, of Dublin, and of the Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel, will occur to all readers. But no one who intimately knows English religious society will venture to deny that there has been an immense revolution in opinion as to the probable destiny of the ignorant idolatrous nations of the earth, and that it is the rarest thing to find even a secretary of a missionary society, or the tutor of a missionary college, who will, when firmly pressed, declare his unfeigned assent and consent to the opinions on this question of the founders of our missionary societies. Men, nowadays, have their doubts, their special theories of relief, their hopes, or their positive doctrines. Either they hold, as I am informed that some heads of colleges hold, that Scripture gives room for several opposite theories; or they lean to Universalism, with Mr. Jukes, and teach men to trust in future purgatories; or they wholly repudiate and openly denounce and assail the old missionary doctrine, and believe with us that they who have 'sinned without law,' and led impenitent lives under heathen darkness, shall 'perish without law.'

THE CHRISTIAN MISSION OF CHICAGO.

ITS CHARACTER AND OBJECT.

A Report of its Constitution, Organization, By-Laws, etc., etc.

For a long time there has been a deep conviction in the minds of many of the brethren and sisters here of the necessity of being engaged in the service of the blessed Master, and that his cause could be best subserved by an earnest and united effort on their part. To devise the best means of bringing about the desired object, a meeting of the brethren and sisters was called and numerously attended, on the evening of June 28th, 1869. Bro. Ramsey addressed the meeting, and stated the objects in view, as follows:—to organize into a mission for the purpose of developing a systematic and thorough effort to carry the gospel of the coming kingdom in every direction over the city, by means of tracts and otherwise; to visit the sick, alleviate the sorrows of the poor and distressed, establish meetings, gather the children into Sabbath Schools, etc., etc., and presented propositions as a basis upon which to work.

Subsequent meetings were held on July 5th, 12th, and 21st; officers were elected, and the result of the deliberations of committees and others arrived at by the help of God, we believe, is the following Preamble, Constitution, and By Laws:

PREAMBLE.

Whereas, "The grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared unto all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present evil world, looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ; we, therefore, lovers of his appearing, and believing that time is short, see the necessity of working while the day lasts. And in order to accomplish as much as possible, we deem it necessary to organize into a body for the purpose of co-operating with each other, and that we may, with one heart and one mind, seek to build up the cause of the Master; therefore,

Resolved, That the association be known as the "Christian Mission of Chicago."

ITS OBJECT. Its object is to seek out the poor and distressed of all nations, kindred, tongues and people; to clothe the naked, feed the hungry, and gather them into the fold of Christ.

BY LAWS. Sec. 1. Art. I. The officers of this mission shall consist of a President, two Vice Presidents, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and a Steward, and shall hold their office until their successors have been duly elected and qualified.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS. Art. II. It shall be the duty of the President to take the general supervision of the work of the mission, assisted by the officers of the mission and the supervisors of the districts.

Art. III. It shall be the duty of the Vice Presidents to assist the President in his duties.

Art. IV. It shall be the duty of the Secretary to keep a strict and impartial account of the proceedings of the mission, receive all monies and other properties, paying the monies into the hands of the Treasurer, taking his receipt for the same, and delivering all other property into the hands of the Steward, taking his receipt for the same; also to audit all bills presented for payment.

Art. V. It shall be the duty of the Treasurer to receive all monies from the hands of the Secretary, giving his receipt therefor, and paying out the same on presentation of bills and orders, when audited by the Secretary and approved by the President.

Art. VI. It shall be the duty of the Steward to keep a strict account of all goods received and delivered, and to deliver by order of the President, said order to be his voucher for goods delivered.

Art. VII. The officers of the mission shall constitute an examining committee, to whom the names of all who have been duly proposed for membership shall be submitted.

MEMBERSHIP.

Sec. 2. Art. I. Any person wishing to become a member of the mission must have their name presented by a member of the mission, at least one week previous to their admission.

Art. II. All members shall be elected by a vote of two-thirds of the members present at any regular meeting.

Art. III. Christian character shall be the only test of fellowship.

Sec. 3. Art. 1. This city shall be divided into districts as the President may direct.

Art. II. Each district shall be under the supervision of one or more male members of the mission, whose duty it shall be to look after the poor, establish meetings, distribute tracts, and report the condition of affairs in his district to the President.

Art. III. Each supervisor may appoint one or more females to assist him in his duties.

Sec. 4. Art. I. The regular meeting of this mission shall be held on Wednesday evening of each week, and the annual meeting shall be held on the first Wednesday in July.

Art. II. This Constitution and By Laws shall be subject to amendment by a vote of two-thirds of the members present at any regular meeting, notice of a proposed amendment having been given at least one week previous.

The work is great, the laborers are few; the demands will be large, the means are small. In fact, there is but little else at present, but the love of God and the constraining influences of his Spirit, with which to work. These are powerful and efficacious, but more is needed. There is little but what could be converted into means of doing good. Contributions or donations of any kind to the funds, or stores of the mission, are solicited from the lovers of the Lord, east or west, in the name of the Master; and may be sent either to the President, Eld. C. C. Ramsey, 72 Michigan St., or to the Secretary, A. T. Rice, 152 Dearborn St. Correspondence also to either, as above.

THE 144,000.

A correspondent wishes to know my views relative to the hundred and forty-four thousand, mentioned in Revelation 7th and 14th chapters. Differences of opinion exist as to this favored class. Some suppose them to be infants, while others maintain they are the class named by the apostle in 1st Thess. 4: 17, who shall not sleep, but be changed from mortal to immortality at the appearing of Christ. The arguments for these views, to me, are too superficial. I understand them to be those raised in connection with Christ's resurrection, denominated the "first fruits."

First, Inspiration makes it clear, that this number are all sealed from the twelve tribes of Israel. "And I heard the number of them which were sealed; and there were sealed a hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel."—Rev. 7: 4. It is also plain that this number does not include the general harvest; here after this, he names the final gathering: "After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds and people, and tongues, stood before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands."—Rev. 7: 9.

Second, it is positively stated they are "the FIRST FRUITS." Now the "first fruits" are not that innumerable company, but only that part first ripe, and first gathered. Kitto, in his Biblical Literature, speaking of the first fruits, says, "The Talmudists distinguish them by the name Bikkurim, which signifies the choicest part, or what was first ripe." Now as Christ was included in the first fruits, it makes them the first ripe, and also the most precious. Again, Inspiration declares they "were redeemed from the earth." And again, "These were (past tense) redeemed from among men." When Christ ascended, "He led captivity captive;" or, as the margin reads, "a multitude of captives." Eph. 4: 8. Mark, this was when Christ ascended. Whom did Christ then lead, unless it was those raised after his resurrection? "And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many."—Matt. 27: 52–53. The apostle Paul declares that Christ had his birth "among many brethren;" and that they were conformed to his image, and that he justified and glorified them; "for whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified." —Rom. 8: 29–30.

Now the testimony is incontrovertible, that a certain number have been called, justified, and glorified; and the revelator calls them "the first fruits unto God and the Lamb." And also declares, "These were redeemed from among men." Inspiration mentions another characteristic of this class in Rev. 14: 4,—"These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins." We suppose the apostle here refers to the law forbidding the Israelites to intermarry among the heathen nations, to which command this class had faithfully adhered. Again, "These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth." When Christ comes, he is attended by a retinue of his saints. "And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints.—Jude 14. "He shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with ten thousands of saints."—Deut. 33: 2. I understand that Enoch and Elijah stand as a pledge of the change of the living saints from mortal to immortality, at the appearing of Christ; so the hundred and forty-four thousand stand as a pledge of the literal resurrection of the dead saints to an immortal life, to join in celebrating earth's grand jubilee in a sinless, unfading, undying world.

O then, let us be faithful, dear children, a little longer, and the last battle will be fought, and the victory won, when we may join with that innumerable company, and the hundred and forty-four thousand, in singing the song of eternal redemption, where the sound will be as the sound of many waters, and mighty thundering.

MY REPORT.

BRO. GRANT, and all the brethren and sisters greeting:—As the church of God are one, and their interests are one, and as one child very naturally likes to know how and what the rest of the family are doing, I thought I would tell you in short of my three last Sundays' labors.

July 4th, I was at Bristol, R. I. Had a good time preaching the word, and endeavoring to have the people see that the Bible was true, and the necessity of believing in little things, as well as great.

July 11th, I was at Providence. Here is a good company, of all kinds of faith and order; and as every one's ways and ideas are right in his own eyes, they have started a free meeting. If the freedom is not abused, it may answer. We have a free gospel, thank God; and I love to preach it freely, just as I receive it. I endeavored to show them the importance of loving one another, and if this is carried out in everything, and in all places, there need be no trouble. O, praise God for love that so freely flows from God into his dear children, Brn., let us cherish it, and keep it in sight. It is the first fruit to be seen. O God, help me to love thee more and more.

July 18th, I was at Charlton, Mass. It will be remembered that here I commenced a series of meetings in Jan., 1868, and held three weeks; then two weeks more; then a grove meeting. Seed was sown that has taken root. Some brought forth fruit then, and some since by the watering of others. This day I baptized five. It was a good day to me. This makes thirteen that I have baptized; and some twelve or more have been gathered. The Lord shall have all the glory, now and forever. Amen.

While in their new chapel, which has been erected with the aid of Brn. in Worcester and other places, I looked back to the first of the meetings, and my heart said, Praise the Lord for all his wondrous works. One was baptized to-day who has been fighting her convictions ever since the first series of meetings. I thought how long-suffering is our God.

Sunday, the 18th, was the best day I ever saw. Perfect victory was gained. The favor of God was there to save and to bless. The old saints rejoiced, and the young convert joined, and sinners were moved. One rose for prayers. Glory to God, how good he is. Children, cheer up, there are rich promises in store for the good of earth. O let us be real good, laboring hard for the salvation of poor, dying souls around us. We have all a work to do. Let us do it in the fear of God; do it with all our might, do it well; and then when the Master comes, he will say, "Well done." O how my poor heart was watered that day. Glory to Jesus' dear name. I love the work of God. I will go where he says, whether it is away back in the woods, or elsewhere. Any where, dear Lord, only let me be sure that it is thee that is calling. My poor heart yearns for poor sinners. Savior, use such means as will be for thy glory, and hasten thy return to this world again. Thy dear, waiting bride longs to see thee.

July 19th. I am at home once more; but not to stay but a few days. O how long shall meetings and partings last? until Jesus comes. May God bless you all. Receive love from me and mine. Your Bro. in Christ,

No. Dana. Mass. GEO. A. STREETER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BLESSED TENT AGAIN.

I had well nigh despaired of what seemed to me to be a whole-soul sermon to perishing sinners, in which the speaker seemed to travail in spirit for their deliverance from sin; a sermon such as Jude speaks of, which had power in it to save with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garments spotted by the flesh." But let me tell you that, on Friday night, July 16th, this desire of my heart was given me. On this evening the whole of the responsibility of the meeting rested, under God, upon Eld. J. G. H., as his companion in labor had felt it his duty to leave in the morning for the East. But with this responsibility came the power of God upon him, and he preached to poor lost sinners with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. He spoke from the words: "Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you," including the following verses as consolation to those "who are troubled;" but the Spirit's burden was upon the righteous retribution to the troublers of God's children. The subject rose as he advanced, until it reached a climax that was overwhelming to both saint and sinner; until every sound seemed hushed, but the trumpet-tones of the speaker's voice, which must have been heard an incredible distance in the stillness of that night. We felt that the speaker was clear from the blood of all under the sound of his voice; and if any perish it will not be for the want of one faithful warning and entreaty. How my soul magnified the Lord for that sermon. The Lord endue his servants from on high to give this last warning message to poor lost men and women, I pray.

My beloved brethren, be Holy Ghost men. Forget every thing but your great commission. "Preach the gospel to every creature;" "warning every man night and day with tears." O let poor sinners see that you feel for them; that the love of Christ constrains you to entreat them to be saved; that it is not your trade by which you make a living. A poor burdened sinner was once led to seek and find mercy by a minister of the gospel, throwing his arms about his neck and telling him in tender tones, "You can be saved. More anon. E. S. W.

CONDENSED REPORT
Of the N. S. Advent Chris. Conference,

Held at Bear River, Digby Co., June 26–29, 1869.

This conference met according to appointment. The following ordained preachers were present: John Woodworth, Wm. Halliday, Alex. Swanesburg, J. M. Tozier, and J. R. Hall. This is the second time this body of christians has ever met in conference in this Province. For some time past, it has been deemed necessary to convene in conference capacity, but have never met with that success desired until the present one. The result of these meetings was truly gratifying, also the privilege of meeting with those from abroad of like precious faith.

A good degree of interest was manifested on the part of those present for the forwarding of the blessed truths of the coming kingdom. A strong invitation was given to Brn. Tozier and Hall, that they come to this Province with their New Brunswick tent, and spend two or three months this season. $80 were subscribed to help defray expenses, in traveling with said tent, and more was vouched for if required. The articles and by-laws of this conference were framed so as not to interfere with either church composing this conference, i. e., of governing itself.

In connection with the doings of this conference, a resolution was passed relating to our peace principles, which is as follows:

RESOLVED, That we, the members of the Advent Christian Conference of Nova Scotia, taking the Bible for our only rule of faith and practice, would, in obedience to its sacred teachings, cheerfully render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's; so as loyal subjects, we would "obey the powers that be" in all things that the laws may require of us, unless such laws conflict with the laws of God. In all things, we hold God's law to be "the higher law," and as Jesus Christ, the great Law-giver of the New Testament, commands all his followers to "love their enemies," etc. (Matt. 5: 44); therefore we cannot conscientiously, in view of his teachings (Col. 3: 17), bear arms; neither in offensive or defensive warfare; nor drill in the militia, which we consider to be the first step in preparation for war. And whereas, we have heretofore suffered on account of such non-resistant principles, therefore, be it known that we still stand on the same principles; and in obedience to God, we cannot depart therefrom, even should such a course cost our properties, or our lives. N. H. REED, Sec.

[We commend the foregoing resolution to the candid consideration of all christians. We think every true disciple of Jesus should say Amen.—ED.

THANKS.

We very gratefully acknowledge the kindness of our friends who have sent us material aid within a few weeks past. The Lord will surely reward them, one and all. We have replied by letter to all who have given their names, and have received several letters without name, and all may rest satisfied that their letters and contents have reached us; but if any are in doubt in regard to this, please write again, and give us your name and address, and we will try to respond promptly and gratefully. Pray for us. Your Bro. and Sister, F. H. & S. S. CHAMBERLAIN.

Correspondence.

From Sr. Z. Libbey.

Will my brethren and sisters bear with me, while I ask a place in the Crisis for a few thoughts, as my mind may be led. I have not occupied a place in "our paper" for a long time. I have covenanted with the Lord anew, telling him I would use my pen in his cause, when he speaks. Be assured, my dear friends, it is not without deeply feeling my inability.

In the first place, I sincerely ask all that know God hears their prayers, to pray that he would let his healing power rest upon me; as I have not been able to go but a few steps from home for four months. I have heard but one sermon in the time. It was like cold water to a thirsty soul. The Lord sent Bro. Pinkham, from Dover, to Waterville, where I live. In this place, the speedy coming of Christ is neither looked for nor loved.

In the next place, I wish to say through our much esteemed paper, I have felt extremely thankful that a few of our last numbers have not been burdened with long columns of resolutions and conference reports, as they do not particularly add to our spirituality. I have felt lately, when reading, had I the means, how gladly I would help bear this paper, the Christian, and tracts that are laden with last-day truths, to the end of the earth, that my fellow men may be rescued before the wailing day comes. And I will try and deny myself of all that I can for this object. Those truths are better than gold, and sweeter than honey. O that the children of men would be exhorted by one that expects soon to meet you at the bar of God, to search the precious word, and see if these things are not so.

While reading in the number for June 9th an article properly headed "Horrid," my eyes flooded with tears to think my Savior should be so abused. Come, my dear sisters, let us deny ourselves of more—a great deal more; and nerve up to the work, and send those little messengers on lightning speed over the world, that some, at least, may be recovered out of the snare of the Devil. When you sit down to put on a little extra fixing upon your husband's clothes, your own, or your children's, if it is only one, two, or three cents' worth, it would send so many tracts; and you can not tell how many, by those few cents, might be brought into the kingdom. If the littles are likely to do good, think what the dollars would do towards sending the paper, and the ministers with their Bibles, to those people where these truths need to be dispensed. My beloved friends, it looks to me that every moment we spend so near the end of the road should tell for God.

Once more, let me say a little, as the Lord may lead, in regard to our speech. Paul says: "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man."—Col. 4: 6. There will be no answering by jesting, nor joking, nor by filthy conversation, nor by railing, nor backbiting, nor speaking evil of any body. Grace has seasoned our speech and is saving us. It is divine and saving in its nature. Glory to his dear name, for such an unmerited favor.

The tongue, Paul says, is an unruly evil, and full of deadly poison. Grace will hold it. Let us believe what God says; then we can give a reason of our hope with meekness and fear, endeavoring to come up to gospel living.

Dear brethren and sisters, we are in the perils of the last days. Let our speech be with grace seasoned with salt; then methinks we shall say, Of all the foes we meet, none are so apt to turn our feet like the foes we have within. Yours, looking for Christ and immortality through him alone. Z. LIBBEY.

BRO. GRANT:—I am in Rye, as you see, and expect to commence a tent-meeting here to-morrow. Bro. H. F. Carpenter will be with me until Saturday evening. As many reports, both false and true, have been circulated through the papers about the reformation in Upper Gilmanton, N. H., I will write a correct statement, and you may publish it in the Crisis, if you think best.

I went to Upper Gilmanton the last day of March, and commenced a protracted meeting in the Christian church. The Lord blessed, and during the meeting, which lasted several weeks, more than one hundred and fifty commenced serving the Lord. Sixty-four have been baptized, thirteen of whom joined the Free-will Baptist church, and forty the Christian denomination. Some of the seed sown fell on stony ground, and immediately sprang up, but because it had no depth of root, it has withered away. Some fell among thorns, and the cares of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lust of other things, is choking the word, and it is becoming unfruitful. But some fell on good ground, and is bringing forth fruit; some thirty, some sixty, and some an hundred-fold; and in the reaping day, some sheaves in that place will be gathered into the garner of God. That the lambs may stay with the Good Shepherd, who will lead them in the green pastures, and beside the still waters, is my prayer. S. K. PAINE.

Rye, N. H., July 22nd, 1869.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. W. W. Wickens, Barrington, writes: "The Lord is ever with the right. I have been strengthened and comforted in reading the Crisis, and many other valuable works, which come from your office; and may the Lord bless and guide all the brethren and sisters who contribute to its pages. I read in the Crisis with pleasure, and sing those beautiful pieces of music which I often see in it. I have lately embraced religion. I feel thank- to the Lord for sending his truth to us in this place. Bro. Reed and Bro. Holiday came here last winter. They were ill-treated, and were not allowed the privilege of preaching in any of the meeting-houses; and thinking that it was wrong to treat them so, I opened my house for them to preach in, and the Lord gave them souls for their labor. Five were baptized by Bro. Holiday.

O that the walls of sectarianism might be broken down, and all the churches may be of one mind and one heart in offering up praises to God. I am willing that all the world should know where I stand. Thank the Lord, I know it is not popular, and I feel that my reputation is sacrificed in some degree, by receiving such truths; but Jesus says, 'Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.'"

Bro. G. W. Stetson, Olena, O., July 23d, writes:—"Eight weeks have passed since the discussion closed in Norwalk, O. Since then I have been quietly observing the effect on the community. So far as the debate went, the impression made was decidedly favorable; but the public, by a very large majority, felt very much incensed at what was subsequently denominated, and very appropriately too, "that little trick," by which the discussion was so abruptly terminated, just at the point when the interest in it, and the desire to hear more, was the greatest.

The church has had its faith strengthened in the word of the Lord, and a renewed desire to grow in the knowledge of the truth, as well as in grace, is the result to believers.

Bro. John McQueen, of Hillsdale, Mich., has been written to, and he informs me that he will come and give an expose of this monster delusion. He will probably be here about the middle of September."

Bro. E. G. Hatch, Haverhill, N. H., writes:—"The Crisis comes filled with living bread into my family. It gives us new life and spirit, as refreshment does a soldier after a long march. May the blessing of God rest upon you, in this great work. Your paper has strengthened many a weak heart. A brother said to me the other day, 'Why, I could not get along without the Crisis.'"

Fourteen Years Asleep.

Death of the Remarkable Sleeping Woman in Ky.

Miss Caroline Godsey, the sleeping wonder, died at her mother's home, some eight miles from Hickman, on Wednesday, the 14th inst.

The history of Miss Godsey is well known to the public, a statement of her wonderful condition having been published extensively by the press of the United States. At the time of her death, Miss Godsey was about twenty-six years of age and had been asleep, as described, about fourteen years. The existence of this wonderful case of coma, or preternatural disposition to sleep, has been doubted by many, but the fact is indisputable. Indeed, some twelve months ago, Miss Godsey was taken to Nashville and other places for exhibition; but we understand many even of the physicians of Nashville looked upon the case with suspicion.

The history of the case is, briefly: When about twelve years of age, she was taken with a severe chill, and treated accordingly, by her physician. As the fever which followed her chill subsided, she fell into a deep sleep, in which condition she has remained ever since, except at intervals. It was her custom at first to awake regularly twice in every twenty-four hours, and singularly, within a few minutes of the same hours each day; but of later years she awoke oftener, so much so, that many considered it an indication of her final recovery. She would remain awake five, ten, or, perhaps, fifteen minutes, and gradually drop off to sleep again. When asleep, it was utterly impossible to arouse her. She never complained of any bodily pain, though when asleep she was very nervous at times, and appeared to suffer considerably by the violent twitching and jerking of her muscles and limbs, and her hands clinched tightly as if enduring severe pain; but when awake she did not appear to suffer, except from a drowsy, gaping inclination, and persistent effort to cleanse her throat of phlegm. She generally passed into sleep through violent paroxysm, which would last, perhaps, five minutes, and she would then sleep awhile as calmly and quietly as an infant. Miss Godsey was of medium size, and her limbs and muscles were well proportioned and developed, and grew considerably after her affliction.

Miss Godsey, on the day she died, indulged in a little prophesying, which we give as related for what it is worth. She said "the sun would be a total eclipse on the 7th of August" (this is remarkable, because parties assert that she could have had no knowledge that this was according to calculation,) "and that the sun would never shine as bright after that day. That this would indicate the end of the world, which was speedily approaching."—Hickman (Ky) Courier.

Married.

At Wilbraham, July 25th, by Eld. P. S. Butler, Mr. Edward French and Miss Abbie F. Brock, both of Northampton.

At Bryant's Pond, Me., July 4th, by Elder Jared Whitman, Mr. Adna D. Rowe and Miss Roxanna Gerry, both of Norway.

Obituaries.

Mayers. Died in Princetown, Mass., Dec. 16th, 1868, Francis R. Mayers, aged fifty-one years and six months.

Bro. Mayers commenced preaching the coming of Christ in the fall of 1842. He embraced the life and death views in 1845, and preached with power and acceptance. When informed by his wife that he could not live, he said he was perfectly ready, and willing to sleep in Jesus. His faith changed not. The sleep of the dead, the resurrection of all through Christ the Life-giver, the personal coming of Christ, the new heavens and earth, and eternal life, were themes that filled his soul when speaking upon them. He loved God, and was a man of faith. He will live again, to die never. Praise the Lord. He leaves a widow and seven children to mourn the loss of a christian father and counsellor. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." Amen. Praise God. Bible comfort was administered at his funeral by his fellow pilgrim, Bro. M. Batchelor. J. C. S.

Muchmore. Died in Castleton, Vt., April 28th, 1869, Elmus L., only son of Albert and Nancey Muchmore, aged twelve years and ten months.

From early childhood he seemed to possess a remarkable sense of right, and thus manifested this equitable principle in his playful associations with his little comrades, which rendered him a general favorite with them. His sufferings were very great, which he endured with manly fortitude, using reason far above his years; and when apprised that death was near, calmly remarked, "I am not afraid to die, for Jesus loves me, and I love him." Funeral sermon by the writer, from Rev. 1: 17-18. S. G. Mathewson.

Morris. Died of consumption, at her parental and widowed mother's home, in Springwater, N. Y., our dear Sr. Mary Morris, in the twenty-second year of her age.

She died as she lived—a christian. She was blind, but had the Bible in raised letters, and took great delight in reading it by the sense of touch. She was quite intelligent, and very ingenious and industrious. She could perform works of art that many with good sight would fail to do. But she sleeps in Jesus. Her funeral was attended by the writer, July 18th, 1869. A very large congregation was present, at the Christian chapel, in Springwater. Two Elders of the Christian denomination were present, and assisted in the exercises. The text was in 1 Cor. 15: 22. The subject was death, its cause, effects, and cure. C. F. Sweet.

Converse. Died in Brunswick, Wis., June 12th, 1869, of diphtheria, Chloe A. Converse, daughter of George F. and Eleanor Converse, aged ten years.

We have good evidence that our loved one sleeps in Jesus. E. Converse.

Cable News.

Dispatch from Louis Napoleon to the President.

Gen. Grant's Reply.

Duxbury, July 28, 1869. The following interesting dispatches have passed over the new cable:

To the Hon. Secretary of State, Washington.

Paris, 8.45 a. m.

L'Empereur des Français au President des Etats Unis d'Amerique, a Washington:

Je suis bien aise inaugurer la nouvelle ligne Telegraphique qui relie la France a l'Amerique en vous envoyant l'expression de mes voeux pour vous et pour la prosperite des Etats Unis.

(Signed) Napoleon.

Department of State, Washington, D. C., July 28, 1869.

The President of the United States to the Emperor of the French:

I cordially reciprocate your good wishes, and trust that the liberal policy of the United States, pursuant to which this cable has been landed, may result in many such means of communication, especially between this country and its earliest ally and friend. U. S. Grant.

The Emperor's Dispatch. The following is a translation of Napoleon's dispatch to President Grant upon the completion of the French cable:

The Emperor of the French to the President of the United States of America at Washington:

I am very happy to inaugurate the new telegraphic line which unites France and America, by sending to you the expression of my good wishes for yourself and for the prosperity of the United States. (Signed) Napoleon.

Turkey and Egypt.—The latest news received from Constantinople and Alexandria was quite suggestive of open hostilities between the Sultan of Turkey and the Viceroy of Egypt. The Sultan had declined to receive the Viceroy at Constantinople, the Viceroy had cut short his European trip and sailed for Alexandria, and active preparations were being made for war in Egypt. These things certainly mean war, and must result in war unless one or the other of the parties makes overtures for a peaceful solution of the matters of difference. The Viceroy undertook his European tour for the purpose of inviting the rulers of the European countries to be present in person or by deputy at the opening of the Suez Canal, and he had proceeded as far as France when the Sultan seems to have suddenly aroused himself to the idea that the Viceroy was getting too much notice from the European Sovereigns, and he peremptorily ordered him back to Egypt. The Viceroy is nominally subject to the Sultan, but his dependence has recently been very much lessened, and the allegiance which he at present renders is more nominal than real. He is required to pay a certain amount of tribute each year, and to furnish assistance to Turkey in case of war, but for two or three years past, the Viceroy has done as he pleased in regard to complying with these provisions of subjection, and Egypt has come to be, in effect quite independent of Turkey.—Boston Journal.

Important from Cuba.—Washington, July 28. Letters from Cuba, received here, contain intelligence to the 20th instant. General Quesada had destroyed two important bridges on the railroad from Nuevitas to Puerto Principe, cutting off all communication between those two cities. All the intervening country is held by the Cuban force. The Spanish troops are now confined in those cities and are suffering severely from disease and want of supplies. Several sorties have been made from Nuevitas, and in each instance the troops were driven back with a severe loss. General Quesada has a large number of Spanish prisoners, which he is holding as hostage for the proper treatment of Cubans who may fall into the hands of the Spanish commanders. Among them are a number of prominent government officials. The letter also states that the Cuban forces have possession of the country from Nuevitas to Puerto Principe, with several points on the coast, which gives them direct communication with the United States.

It is reported that there have been two important engagements—one near Remedios and the other at Sagua La Grande, in both of which the Spaniards attacked the Cubans in force. At Remedios the Spaniards were driven off with a loss of 150 in killed and wounded and prisoners. At Sagua La Grande the fight lasted several hours, the Spanish forces numbering over 1500, while that of the Cubans was less than 1000 effective men. The Spaniards were finally compelled to retreat with a loss of over three hundred, while that of the Cubans was less than 120.

The result of these battles has inspired the Cubans with renewed courage, and they have no doubt of their ability to maintain themselves against those now in the field.

A large supply of arms and ammunition, including a battery of artillery with 360 men from the United States, successfully landed at Nuevitas, and are now a part of General Quesada's forces. Sickness is reported to be abating, and Generals Quesada and Jordan expect soon to take the field offensively with a force more than equal to that of their opponents.

Passing Events.

☞ Twenty years ago there were six post offices in Minnesota. Now there are six hundred.

☞ Eight counties in Iowa have one armed soldiers for Recorders.

☞ According to the Chicago Times there are forty gambling houses in that city, in which $3,000,000 are squandered annually.

☞ M. de Lesseps has sent out official circulars stating that the Suez Canal will be opened November 17.

☞ The Czar of Russia, by a recent ukase, has abolished at one sweep the hereditary character of the Russian priesthood, a body numbering, with their families, not less than seven hundred thousand.

☞ Sunday schools are being established in Russia upon the American plan. In the usefulness of these institutions America has silently taught a lesson to entire Christendom.

☞ A new and singular phenomenon has recently been witnessed in the South, being no less than the striking and blighting of cotton fields by lightning. On descending, the fluid seems to spread over a wide area.

☞ Timothy Ryan, of Black Hawk county, Iowa, went suddenly insane a few days ago, and remained so up to the time of his death. The doctors attribute his insanity and death to the intemperate use of tobacco, the man being an inveterate smoker.

☞ A Scotch merchant at Oporto was lately sentenced to six years' banishment by the Portuguese Government for teaching Protestant doctrines in his own house. In no other country in Europe, the Papal States excepted, could such a thing occur now, and it looks as though a revolution was needed in Portugal.

☞ Intelligence was brought on July 14 to the Pope of the death of his brother, Count Gabriel Mastai Ferretti, who has succumbed at Sinigaglia from the effects of a fall. The Count, who was in his 90th year, was the head of the family. The Pope was much affected.

☞ The Viceroy of Egypt has issued orders for the building of three new palaces—one at Sakarah, the ancient Necropolis, another at the base of the Pyramids, and the third at the Virgin's Tree. They must all be finished by October for the reception of the expected royal guests.

☞ Clothing made from a new kind of paper has been patented in England. The components of the material are said to be some animal and vegetable substances never before used. When reduced to a pulp, and bleached, the completed fabric is a sort of felt, of extraordinary pliancy, flexibility and strength. It can be sewed with the needle as tightly as woven fabrics, and already table cloths, quilts, shoes and petticoats are in market, all made from the new material.

Many Causes for Delirum Tremens.—Delirium tremens is generally supposed to be confined almost exclusively to excessive consumers of spirits. Cases are not wanting, however, to show, that light wines, tobacco, and, perhaps, tea and coffee, when used immoderately, will occasion the disease. In St. Louis, Michael Wigand, aged thirty-three, died of apoplexy, after suffering from the usual symptoms of delirium tremens, and ale is supposed to have been the direct cause of his death.—Boston Journal.

SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

Providence permitting, a General Campmeeting will be held at Springfield, Mass., on the new camp-ground, beautifully located, about one and a quarter miles from the R. R. Depot, on land of C. W. Chapin, Esq., known as "Chapin's Grove," commencing Saturday, August 28th, and continuing till Sept. 6th.

Ample accommodations will be provided for board at the new and commodious boarding house on the ground. Board 85 cents per day. Breakfast, or supper, 35 cents each. Dinner at 50 cents, excepting Sunday, Sept. 5th, when it will be 75 cents. The boarding department is under the charge of the Committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Fare on the Boston and Albany Railroad is reduced one third, which will be $4.00 from Boston to Springfield and return. Tickets to be obtained at the ticket offices, between Boston and Worcester at Grantville, Holliston, Natic, Westboro, Milford, and Southville; beyond Worcester, at the usual stations. On the New Haven and Hartford R. R., fare is reduced one third; tickets to be obtained at New Haven, Meriden, Berlin, Hartford, and Windsor Locks. On the Conn. R. R., fare is reduced one third from So. Vernon and intermediate stations to Springfield. On all the above roads campmeeting tickets, good from Aug. 25th to Sept. 7th, must be called for at the ticket offices; and they must also be signed by the Secretary at the campmeeting. Remember this.

On the Mass. and Vt. R. Road, persons will purchase regular tickets at the offices for Greenfield, and then get their tickets on the Conn. R. R. for Springfield. All that come on this road from Brattleboro, Vernon, Fitchburg, Athol, etc., having purchased the usual ticket, will have a free return pass, on application to the Secretary.

On the Worcester and Nashua R. R. Road, friends from Nashua, N. H., Groton Junction, and Clinton, will purchase regular tickets at the stations for Worcester, at which place they will purchase tickets for Springfield; and free return passes from Worcester will be furnished them by the Secretary on the ground.

Arrangements have been made with the Eastern R. R. Co., by which those taking the cars from Portsmouth and intermediate places for Boston, paying full fares at the ticket offices, can have free return passes by application to the Secretary, on the camp-ground.

Friends coming from New York can come and return for $4.50 by taking the boat at New Haven, and thence by cars to Springfield. The boat which leaves New York at 3.15 P. M., connects with the train at the steamboat wharf at New Haven. The other boat, which leaves New York at 11 o'clock P. M., reaches New Haven in time for the early morning train; but passengers will have to go across the city by horse cars to the depot of the Hartford and New Haven R. R. Tickets for the Rail Road to the campmeeting will be sold on the steamboats. Passengers buying through tickets, will be furnished with a return ticket, which will be good only when endorsed by the Secretary of the camp-ground.

Cars leave the Boston and Albany depot, Boston, at 5, 7, and 8½ A. M.; and at 3, 4½, and 9 P. M.

Arrangements with any other roads that may be made, will be noticed hereafter.

S. G. Mathewson, Geo. T. Adams, H. Munger, J. Hemenway, R. E. Ladd, D. Mathewson, W. B. Dodge, } Committee of Arrangements.

Geo. T. Adams, Secretary.

Advent Christian Association.

The next Annual Meeting of this Society will be held at Springfield, Mass., commencing Tuesday, Aug. 31st, at nine o'clock A. M. As business of unusual importance is to come before this meeting, it is hoped that every church will be represented by delegates, and that preachers make an effort to be present at the opening meeting.

Every church co-operating with the A. C. A. is entitled to one delegate, and one additional delegate for every fifty members above the number of twenty-five members. Each delegate must bring credentials from the church to which he belongs.

H. F. Carpenter, Clerk.

Notice.

The New Hampshire Mission Tent will be pitched in North Conway, N. H., Thursday evening, Aug. 12th, and remain as long as it may seem duty. There has never, to our knowledge, been a single sermon on the signs of the times, the state of the dead, and kindred Bible truths, preached in all that region; and the place, at this season, is full of boarders, who have ample opportunity to hear. Preaching brethren and others are invited to take hold and help in the meetings.

By order of the Committee,
L. C. McKinstry.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting under the Mass. Mission Tent, near the depot, in Holliston, Mass., commencing Monday evening, August 2nd, and continue two or three weeks, or as the interest may demand. Brethren and sisters, pray for the meeting, that the Lord may bless, and send laborers to build up his cause in Holliston and vicinity. Bro. Grant will be with us a portion of the time. Others are expected.

Enoch Morrill.

Campmeeting at Pittsfield, Me.

The campmeeting at Pittsfield, Maine, to commence Aug. 23d, will be held on the same ground of last year, about two miles southwest from the village. Those coming by cars will stop at Pittsfield depot. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding, and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the preachers and the poor to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting. Old-fashioned, we say, like as we used to have when "What think ye of Christ?" was the test, with a united love for his appearing, and an entire preparation for the event; when our Father's house was not a place of merchandise, but a place of prayer, prevailing prayer with God. Is his ear heavy that he cannot hear, or his arm shortened that he cannot save? Nay, verily; but bickering and strife and evil work have too far separated us from the love of God in Christ.

And now to every member of the living Vine, in all the region round about, who can, we extend a hearty invitation to come up to camp once more in the name and power of God, leaving far behind side issues, and questions that gender strife; take Christ with the cross upon the heart, with the golden rule in the hand, and let us prove the Lord with tithes and offerings, and see if he will not once more pour us out a blessing. Servants of the household, come with the word of faith, the bread and water of life.

To avoid confusion, we wish it distinctly understood, that the appointment for a campmeeting in Maine, in the vicinity of Bangor, is another meeting, to be held by those believing in the non-reliving of the wicked dead. The Great Shepherd will care for all the sheep and lambs and bring them at last into the one precious fold. Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly.

By order of the committee chosen at the Pittsfield meeting last fall,
F. A. Baker.
I. K. Lombard.
I. Damman.

Tent Meeting.

The New York State Mission Tent will be pitched at Baptist Hill, Bristol, Ontario Co., N. Y., on Friday, Aug. 13th, on the same ground as last year, and continue over the two following Sabbaths. All are invited to attend. Preaching by Bro. Jonas Wendell and Bro. Wm. Fenn.

By order of Committee,
Oliver B. Brown, Clerk.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, a tent meeting will be held in New Milford, Ct., on the old ground, owned by Dr. Taylor, commencing Aug. 12th, to continue as the Lord may direct. Come, brethren, let us once more rally around our standard, and raise the banner of truth and righteousness.

A. D. Flagg.

P. S. Will Bro. C. H. Sweet come and help us? A. D. F.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched on the Messer Place (so called,) on the road leading from Laconia to Lake Village, N. H. Meetings commenced July 24th, and will hold over two Sundays. Meeting free for all. Come, brethren and sisters, to work for the Lord. Preaching brethren are invited, such as the Lord sends.

J. C. Shorey, Tent Master. D. M. Leavitt.

Tent Meeting at Waterloo, N. H.

Providence permitting, the New Hampshire Tent will be pitched near Waterloo Depot, about two miles north of Warner Village, on Thursday, Aug. 5th. Meetings to hold day and evenings through the week, and over the Sunday following. The Tent will be pitched in Col. N. G. Ordway's grove. Come to labor for the lost and perishing.

J. C. Shorey, Tent Master. D. M. Leavitt.

Conn. and R. I. Campmeeting.

Oak Grove Advent Camp, Windham, Conn.

There will be a campmeeting at the above mentioned place, commencing Saturday, Aug. 14th, and continuing eight days. This is a new field, and offers many encouragements for one of the best meetings ever enjoyed. The word of invitation is to churches, families, and individuals. One and all, far and near, come up to the feast.

You will find beauty and convenience of location. The ground is situated on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R., five miles east of Willimantic, and half way between Waldo's and South Windham stations. Cars will stop on the ground which will be known as Camp Shetucket Station. Fare will be reduced on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R. 30 per cent from all stations east or west of ground. Fare from Providence and return, $2.50, and the same or further reduction is expected from other roads. Those who come from New London, or Palmer, will change cars at Willimantic. The grove is as clean as a carpet, free from dust, and has an excellent spring of water close by.

Your expenses can be light. The committee hope to bring this meeting as near to the old-fashioned campmeetings in simplicity and power as possible. The expense of the ground is nothing, and its fitting up trifling, so that no heavy burdens will be thrown upon those who come. Board not exceeding 75 cts. per day; also arrangements for individual boarding. Rooms in a neat, unoccupied house near by, to let cheap, for cooking and lodging purposes. Lodgings in private families for those who apply early, at most reasonable rates. Rich pasturing for horses, at one shilling per day, or from 50 cts. to 75 cts. per week; also feed in stables, at low prices.

The object of this meeting is to carry the light of Divine truth into this new field; to proclaim aloud the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ; to teach transgressors their ways, that sinners may be converted to God, flee the "wrath to come," and "lay hold on eternal life." We trust none will come for strife or controversy with their brethren, nor to press some side issue; such will meet no favor. But we exhort all to come in the spirit and power of Elijah's God, to be workers together with God against unbelief and sin. We assuredly expect the Lord with us.

We say again, Come. The whole region around the ground waits to welcome us and bid us come. Let distant churches unite to get fares reduced on their respective R. Roads. Bring your tents, also ample bedding for each individual. May the Spirit of God summon the host.

I. B. Potter, B. Hitchcock, E. Bellows, H. F. Carpenter, } Committee of Arrangements.

P. S. By team the Camp is eighteen miles southwest from Danielsonville; fifteen west of Plainfield; four south of Scotland, and three from Windham Centre, Ct.

☞ Fare Reduced!

Fare to the R. I. and Ct. Campmeeting, Windham, Ct., will be reduced about one third from all stations on the Hartford, Providence, and Fishkill R. R. One half reduction can be had on the Northern and New London R. R. from all and any station that will order ten tickets or more. Let the brethren along this line see to this at once, and send orders to the superintendent. The N. and W. R. R. will sell tickets from all stations through to the camp and return at 30 per cent reduction. Camp baggage and tents free of charge.

Now arise! Let us go up and build. Come at the commencement, and stay through. The meeting will hold till Aug. 23d. Let us sacrifice time and money for the love and kingdom of Jesus. We propose to pray unitedly at mid-day throughout the week preceding the meeting for the Divine blessing upon the camp. How many will join us?

☞ Remember and call for tickets to Camp Shetucket, Windham, Ct.

H. F. Carpenter, for Com.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

Circumstances are such, that the committee have decided that it will be best for the Alton Bay campmeeting to commence Sunday, Sept. 5th, and hold over the 12th. Particulars hereafter. For the Committee, J. G. Smith.

Notice.

The New Hampshire Mission Tent is pitched in Rye, N. H., and will remain as long as the Lord's blessing seems to rest upon the efforts being made to save sinners. Brn. H. F. Carpenter, E. Bellows, and Sr. S. K. Paine, are there to labor with others. We earnestly desire all those who can make it practicable, and are living where they can know the mind of the Lord concerning them, to inquire if it may not be duty for them to come to this meeting and labor as the Lord directs.

Theo. H. Ford.

P. S.—I arranged with Brn. Smith and Shorey, the other two committee, to have the N. H. Tent for this meeting. T. H. F.

Notice.

The Union Female Missionary Association will hold its annual meeting on Springfield campground, Tuesday, August 31st, 1869, at one o'clock P. M. All the preaching Sisters and members of the Association are requested to be present, as some matters with reference to the best interest of the Association are to be considered. Come with hearts interested in the work of the Lord, and pray much that we may have the Spirit of Jesus to direct us in the transaction of business, that this meeting may be profitable to all. Reports from the different female missionaries will be given at this meeting. M. McKinstry, Secretary.

Campmeeting in Maine.

At a meeting in Holden, last Sunday, the brethren decided to have a campmeeting in the vicinity of Bangor, to commence about Sept. 13th. Particulars hereafter. For the Brethren,

Geo. W. Brown.

Grove Meeting at Westfield, Pa.

There will be a grove meeting at Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa. (near the village), commencing Friday, Aug. 27th, to continue over the Sabbath following. C. F. Sweet, D. Cogswell, and others, are expected to preach the word. All are invited to attend. For the brethren, J. W. Taylor.

Notice to Brethren West.

Do you want a basket, a grove, or tent meeting this summer? Write. 1. Because verbal invitations may be forgotten. 2. Things may shape up, and it be not best to hold one. 3. We need to know all particulars necessary to make proper arrangements, both as to time and place. I have some time for mission work. If any desire my labors, please write without delay.

Peter S. W. Deyo, Strawberry Point, Iowa.

Tent-Meeting, Camden City, N. J.

On account of the deep and increasing interest manifested in the Tent meeting now being held in Camden City, N. J., it has been voted by the churches and congregation to continue it perhaps two weeks longer, or as long as the interest demands. Preaching three times Sundays and five evenings of each week, by Elders H. K. Flagg, J. G. Hook, and others.

R. Willard.
J. M. Stetler.
J. N. Welfond.

Notice.

The Lord permitting, I expect early in Sept. to commence laboring with the churches in Sandy Hill, N. Y., and Rutland, Vt. Should any others desire me to call and preach the glad tidings on the line of the Rutland and Burlington R. R., they will please inform me as soon as convenient, by letter. S. S. Brewer.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

ALL, AND IN ALL.

My God it is who gives me peace,
Who bids my pain and sorrow cease,
And to my soul gives sweet increase
Of confidence;
He leads me in a path unknown,
He claims me ever as his own,
And bids me seek in him alone
My soul's defense.

He freely pardons all my sin,
He shows me what I once have been,
And bids me rest securely in
His righteousness;
He turns my darkness into day,
He chases all my fears away,
And shall my fainting spirit stay,
And always bless.

He saves me from sin's fatal taint,
He listeth to my soul's complaint,
And raiseth me when weak and faint,
In him to trust;
The storm-cloud o'er my head may sweep,
Perdition's waves around me leap,
No darkling thought my soul shall keep
In sore distrust.

From all the pain of death and hell,
From Satan's malice, dark and fell,
From justice, wrath, deserved so well,
He saved my soul;
Though dark this world may ever be,
Nor peace nor joy it give to me,
No more its dire iniquity
Life's knell shall toll.

God led me from sin's night of gloom,
God saves me in the day of doom,
And in his heart of love makes room
For me, for all;
For ever in his presence blest,
For ever in that home of rest,
For ever let me serve him best,
My "All in All."

WATCH AND PRAY.

There can not be too much said about prayer. It is a subject which engaged the thoughts of the sacred writers as much, if not more than any other. How often, as we turn over the pages of the Bible, are we reminded of this. Scarcely can we glance at the writings of the apostles, but our attention is called to consider the necessity of watchfulness and prayer; and especially is this subject emphasized and made prominent in connection with those scriptures which speak of the closing scenes of the present dispensation. It was always the duty of God's children to pray; and the reception of all the great blessings of the gospel have been suspended upon the right performance of that act; but to the church living down in the concluding days of earth's history, just prior to the coming of Christ, the duty seems to be enforced with greater earnestness, and enjoined with greater and more solemn authority, than at any preceding time.

The Savior, in the twenty-first of Luke, after giving instructions concerning the signs which were to be sure premonitors of his approach, closes his discourse with a most solemn caution and charge to his followers. As he looked with a prophetic eye down to the period in which we live, and saw the condition of the world politically, religiously, and morally, he realized the danger to which his disciples would be exposed; the liability of their being drawn under the influence of pride and unbelief, which would be so rampant and stalk abroad with such unblushing audacity, not only in the world, but among his professed people; hence, he timed his warning and caution to their danger and necessity, and pointed out a quiet and safe path for his meek and lowly ones to follow. While the clouds of coming wrath begin to mantle earth's sky, and the looming thunder of eternal vengeance begins to sound; while on every side perils thicken and infidelity abounds, and every wave of sin as it rolls up to view looks blacker and dirtier, as if the fountain of iniquity was being stirred to its very depths; while the foundations of the earth are out of course, and all the elements of strife and confusion seem to be let loose, men's hearts failing them for fear, iniquity abounding, and love waxing cold; and when the multitudes are rejecting the word of God, and are being carried away with the delusions of Spiritualism; when men's passions seem to be unrestrained, and crimes of the darkest hue are of every day occurrence; when the cry of "peace and safety" from false teachers is wafted on every breeze, and scoffers are multiplying in high circles and low circles, all tauntingly joining in the cry, "Where is the promise of his coming?"—in such a time as this, and amid such circumstances, how blessed, how wise, how appropriate the words of Jesus to his humble followers, who are patiently waiting for the day of their coronation: "Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

This is the quiet, the happy, and the only safe path. How blessed are those who heed the Savior's words, and amid the hurry, the bustle, and the tumults of earth, move steadily and unwaveringly forward to their appointed work, as if impelled by an unseen power, ever keeping their eyes fixed upon the crown, their loins girded for the race, earnestly and vigorously pressing toward the mark to gain the incorruptible prize. It requires the whole heart and all the energies of our being combined, and in lively exercise in the service of Christ, in order to constitute us christians. Lagging, wavering, half-hearted, vascillating service will not do. There is no condition so repulsive to God as that of a lukewarm state. "I would thou wert cold or hot." There are thousands in the land whose religion is nothing but a shell. There is no meat nor substance to it. How often in meeting are prayers offered and exhortations delivered which have neither ring nor sound like the right metal. There is a shallowness and hollowness in the sound which indicates to the experienced christian that there is a lack of that vitality and zeal which characterizes those who walk closely with God. On the other hand, there are those whose exhortations and prayers have a warmth, a glow, a fervency and fulness to them which kindles up a flame in the meeting, and makes every one feel that they have been holding audience with the great God. Why is this, and where does the secret of all this lie? Why are some so barren, cold and comfortless to themselves and all around them? Why are they always dwarfs in the cause of Christ? Why do they not manifest more love, spirituality, and fulness of joy in their devotions? The secret of all this is, in my humble opinion, just here; they do not obey the Savior's words, "Watch ye therefore and pray always."

There are some who do obey his words, and it is visible to all who see them. They are living epistles known and read of all men. They grow in grace and make religion appear lovely and attractive. They do not remain always in a state of wishing and waiting, and never get any further; but they make advancement every day. They are ever adding grace to grace, and faith to faith, and strength to strength. Every time you meet with them, their hearts seem larger and their spiritual stature taller and stronger. Every year of their experience is sweeter and more precious. They do not have to be urged and persuaded to perform their duties, but their hearts are so full they cannot keep still. It is the delight of their souls to stand up and bear testimony for Jesus. It is truly refreshing to be in their company. Their songs of praise have life and energy in them. They are not like the cisterns of earth, which dry up during the warm seasons; but they have a spring in their hearts, and their influence is felt all around. The Holy Spirit is in their hearts like a well of water springing up into everlasting life. They have a rich, a new, and a living experience from day to day. They know the love of Christ, and the sound of his soon coming back to earth again is the most joyful tidings in the world to them. They are ever on the lookout for them, and their hearts are beating high with anticipations of coming glory. Their affections, desires and hopes all centre in that morning. Then they expect to meet the loved and cherished ones who have long been slumbering in dust. Then the temptations, trials and sorrows of earth will all be ended. O what glories and joys cluster around that event! This is the day for which the righteous long, and their greatest desire and aim is to live every day and every hour in such a holy and Christ-like manner, that they may be found worthy to escape all the things that are coming on the earth, and to stand before the Son of man. And they feel too a deep and intense desire that sinners may come and taste the joys of present grace, and share the pleasures of coming glory and deliverance.

Here is the difference between the two classes; those who live near the Lord, and those who are half-hearted. It is very evident that the great majority are ranked with the prayerless, unwatchful and sleepy class, and I am fearful that a great many, even of those who have professed to be looking for Jesus, will be found off their guard when that day, which cometh as "a thief in the night," shall burst with all its suddenness and terror upon a careless and unthinking world. Without holiness no man shall see the Lord. It requires something more than a few faint desires, or feeble efforts, to work successfully for God here, or to lay hold of eternal life hereafter. It requires vigilance and activity. We must be awake and alive, and show to all that we are in earnest. The Lord says, "Be ye holy for I am holy." I believe that spiritual as well as natural greatness depends in a high degree on the faithful use of means within every body's reach. What are the best and only means within our reach by the diligent use of which we may become eminently holy? Jesus has told us in these words: "Watch ye therefore, and pray always." Whoever writes these words upon his memory, and carries them out in every principle and action of life, need not fear the perils of the present, nor the woes and calamities of the future.

What is it to watch? It is to be vigilant, to be on our guard, to have our eyes open, to be sensible of our danger. We are in a world where it requires unceasing watchfulness. We have many foes that would seek our ruin, and we need like Nehemiah to make "our prayer unto our God, and set a watch . . . day and night." Our hearts are treacherous. There are temptations in every situation in life. We are to watch our thoughts. See to it that we do not indulge in sinful meditations. Our imaginations should be holy. "Keep thy heart with all diligence," is the wise man's caution. Here is where the stream rises. If the fountain is pure, the stream will be like it. We are to watch our tempers. What manner of spirit are we of? Some are naturally inclined to sloth, others to impatience and anger, some to pride and vanity, others to wantonness and the pleasures of sense. All have their weak points. It is our duty to find out our weakest points, and guard against them. We should remember our past mistakes; what it was that led us away and caused us to fall. By what secret avenue did sin enter? He who would encounter an enemy successfully should be informed of his mode of fighting; and how can this be done, but by observation and reflection? How was such a place taken? How did I lose such a battle? Let me look back and learn wisdom from old follies, and derive strength from past failures. The Devil is artful. He has many wiles and strategems, and we must keep on the whole armor, if we would stand in the evil day. Guard against the beginnings of sin. Shun the very "appearance of evil." The tempter never begins where he intends to leave off. Would he induce a man to impurity? He does not propose the crime at once, but prepares for it by degrees, by the indulging of loose thoughts; by courting favorable opportunites, etc. It is by yielding to little sins that leads on to greater; hence we should guard against the first deviations from the path of righteousness. Cut off the shoots of iniquity; yea, nip the very buds, or else it will "bring forth fruit unto death." Avoid the occasion of sin. Nothing is more dangerous than idleness, or having nothing to do. Our idle days are the Devil's busy ones. When the mind is full, temptation cannot enter; but when the mind is empty, the Devil can thrust in what he pleases. Stagnant waters breed thousands of noxious insects; but living, running water, is pure and clear. Let us then watch and be sober. The time is short, and we have much to do.

Praying and watching must go together. It is of no use to pray against sin and temptation, unless we watch. Let us watch over our prayers and see that they are not set and formal. We should endeavor to build each other up in the most holy faith, and pray in the Holy Ghost. If we expect to stand before the Son of man, we must remember his own precious words, and keep in mind that this is the best and only means of preparation for that day. "Watch ye therefore, and pray always."

Watch your faith. See to it that you cast not away your confidence. He that is to come will come, and will not tarry. A little while, and we shall see him as he is. The dark and stormy night of earth's history is about over. We are in the morning watch. Soon the everlasting sun will arise in all its splendor and beauty dispersing the shade and gloom. The weeping time has been long, but the morning of joy will make amends for all. The struggle will be at an end, the conflict accomplished, the armor laid by, and the palms of victory received. Hold on, then, dear pilgrim a little longer. Watch your faith, for that it works by love, and overcomes the world. Keep your eye on the prize, until standing in full view of the holy city, with its golden light pouring a flood of glory upon your soul, as a victorious believer you exclaim with Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth, there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but to all them also that love his appearing."

WHO SPEAKS?

God is speaking through your conscience; hear what he says. Do you feel prepared to stand in the greatest multitude, in the greatest court, in the presence of the greatest Judge the world ever knew, and bear a retrospection and exposure of your inner as well as outward life? Do you hope, God knowing and judging from the heart, to hear the Master say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, . . . enter thou into the joy of thy Lord?" Have you no fears that he will say, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire?" Are you prepared to part with friends and say farewell forever? Are you prepared to extend your hand to those you love for the last time, and lie down to sleep in the grave? Are you prepared to walk with the heavenly congregation in the city of light and immortality—the New Jerusalem? Are you prepared to enjoy the society of holy angels and praise God eternally? Perhaps you say, "these questions do not concern me; I expect to live many years yet." Well, are you prepared for life with its ten thousand responsibilities, disappointments and perplexities? Are you prepared for the success or failure that may be in store for you? Are you prepared to meet the cares and bear the afflictions of this life without a Savior? Are you prepared to do your duty to those with whom you associate, knowing that you must meet them at the bar of God? Think on these things, and remember that now is the accepted time and the day of salvation.

You are passing rapidly away from the privilege you now have of making your peace with God. You cannot save yourself, but Jesus can and will save you if you come to him with a contrite heart. "But one thing is needful; and Mary has chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her." May God help you to do likewise.

REMEMBER ME.

"And Nehemiah said, Remember me, O my God, for these things."

My God, my Redeemer, my Savior,
Remember my voice and my prayer
Directing my daily behavior,
Remember me every where.
Remember me when my devotion
The long nightly vigils shall keep,
And when on the lake or the ocean
It mirrors thy face in the deep.

When far away over the mountains
I glide with the speed of the dove,
Where cities unlock their deep fountains,
Which tell of their treacherous love,—
Remember me then, I entreat thee,
The songs of Jerusalem bring;
Wherever I go I would greet thee,
And stand up for Jesus my King.

When I shall "pass over the river,"
Remember my voyage to control;
Remember, my God, and deliver,
Though none else should care for my soul;
And when in the crown of thy glory,
Each pledge of thy favor shall shine,
Remember me still, and the story
Is through all eternity thine.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIANS, YOUR SONS.

"Strange heading for a paper," some will doubtless think. "What does he mean?" questions another. "What about my sons?" interrogates a third. But still, christians, your sons. Not another's, but your's; and I am sure God speaks to you in this article. I do not here speak of a fresh revelation; that were presumption, and unworthy a christian, improper for an humble-minded one; that were to exalt one's self; and God forbid that the crucified man should live after this manner. It has been reckoned dead; and dead let it be, in every sin of flesh and spirit. I speak here of things according to godliness, which have been much forgotten, but for which I earnestly crave your consideration.

Christians—what are christians? Not men of the world; oh no. Not of Adamic connection; it cannot be. Not godless, Christless, hopeless wretches; it is impossible. Not men alive to every sinful passion of a fallen nature, ruled by every fleshly lust; all these things are unchristian. They were all this once, and much more. Men under condemnation. Servitors of the Devil. Having their portion in this present evil world, over which he rules. Paying punctilious attention and giving unreserved allegiance to every sinful principle reigning therein. But when they were all this, the word of the Lord reached them; and what was the consequence? The power of God overcame them, and they cried out, "Oh I am wretched; I am sinful; I am lost. Where shall I flee from myself, from the sentence of death that hangs over me, from the corruptions of this notable degenerate nature of mine?" Conscience had with power spoken into it, and the man was perfectly miserable. But, bless God! 'twas but the night before the morning; and as short-lived as the night. The same word of Christ that had power to stir out of the stupor of security in danger, was also good news to point to another kingdom, another King, another administration, another nature, and another state. The soul cried out, "I would live for ever; how can I? I would not be houseless; where can I be housed? I would escape the flesh, for 'they that are in the flesh cannot please God'; but if I renounce this I must have another nature provided. I would be reconciled to God; how is it possible?" The Word spoke out and said, All these things are possible by belief in the good news of salvation in and by Jesus; a complete abnegation of self; and baptism into the death of Christ for the remission of sins. It said in effect, "The old man is condemned, corrupt, alien; but God has prepared a new man, Jesus; and he who trusts in him is 'accepted in the beloved.'" "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." He shall set up a new kingdom, and there shall be no end to it. He has a new nature for the lapsed and penitent, and they who put him on here in life, shall put him on hereafter in person. This was the salvation that an all-sufficient God had provided; and they were to enter into the Ark, and so be in Christ Jesus, safe and happy. The word of the Lord was strong and very powerful; and it led them down into the symbol of death, where they denounced themselves as unholy, their deeds as unprofitable, the Devil as an arrant and usurpant lord, the world as a mirage, a sham, a passing-away thing; and they came up out of that water with the name of Christ on. So they entered into Christ by heart-faith before God, and by confession through the waters of judgment before man. There they buried the flesh as a profitless thing, and declared openly they were not of the world.

So, then, what is a christian? A risen one, a living one, an uncondemned one, an accepted one, a begotten one to a lively hope of eternal life, possessed already of it in promise and in earnest; a believing one, a loving one. He is a member of Christ in his body, and the life and strength of Jesus is in him. He has Christ's mind; he acts on the dictation of that mind; he does his deeds in the strength and name of Christ. He has the seed of the Anointed—the word of God—in him, and he does valiantly by being endued with this unction. He lives in Christ; he speaks in demonstration of the Spirit. Christ is in him, in holy thought; through him, in holy deed; by him, in holy companionship. See him, and you see Christ; for as "he is, so are we in this world." He blesses you, but not as a man; he blesses in the name of the Lord. He is a second priest, meeting God's Abrahams in this world, and pronouncing a divine benediction; and he does all in Christ. This is a Christian. To the world he is a stranger. In the world he is a pilgrim. Of the world he is not. He shines in the beauty of holiness; he is ornamented by a lowly spirit. He is weak and strong; humble and boastful; low and high; fearing and confident. He thinks of himself as a burdened, yet a free man. This is a Christian; and I have not space here to go further into his paradoxical character, for I find I have not hit the mark I have aimed at yet. This, then, by way of introduction.

Two such souls are joined together; but it is in the Lord. Matrimony is lawful, just, divine. What are they like? Two larks rising upward in ardent desire and holy anticipation, longing for a parting of the sheet of blue, and a splendor far higher than the sun, and a form—ah! this is the chief attraction—a form of exquisite beauty; and other things incidentally. 'Tis Jesus they want; precious, living, loving, saving, advocating Jesus. They want to drop this old flesh which they have buried, as to its lusts, and be changed into his own matchless likeness. I am going astray again from my subject; nevertheless, let me breathe one prayer, and I will leave these enamoring objects: "Return thou, O Christ of God." "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly!"—AMEN.

I say two such souls are joined; and, as a consequence, children are from the Lord an heritage to them; and now, christians, your children. I will not enter into the considerations that should fill your mind as to whose they are, and how they should be trained; my object is not this at present. I only want to lay before you a matter that is much on my heart. Their early years I will skip over, with but few suggestions. Let God and Jesus be the first names they shall know. Teach them the word of God; and be sure to set it before them in all its beauty, force, and requirements. Tell them of its greatness; show them the word as the fruit of God speaking. Tell how strong it has been in curing the sick, raising the dead, parting rivers, and blessing with reconciliation millions of souls. Tell, on the other hand, how, if despised, it will burn as a fire, break as a hammer, slay as a sword. Reiterate the instances of its prowess over sin and sinners. Tell how it must be received into the heart as incorruptible seed, in Jesus its embodiment; that man lives on it; and can only live forever by receiving the Christ, the Word of God. Set before them the way of life; and exhort them not to resist the Holy Ghost, who can alone lead into all truth, and, sanctifying, preserve blameless to the day of Jesus Christ. This and much more must be taught them as soon as their understandings burst the bud; but all is left to your knowledge of God's word.

I come to the time when they must learn honest trades. This is my topic. What trades are you about to give your children? It appears trivial and unimportant, whereas it is a most momentous inquiry. I will tell you why. They have been brought up in sight of godly example and sanctifying teaching; and going out into the world they are most sensitive to vice. Now will you destroy the labor of years by putting them into a hotbed of sin? You know how insidious the world is; how it tries to worm itself into even your affections; and can you put your small boat, that lies so near your heart, on a sea that any barque would perish in, praying God that he may not suffer shipwreck? How can you believe that God will answer you who are so presumptive? Christians, you are a sanctified people to God; keep so in all your branches. Put your children out to those who have sanctified the Lord God in their hearts, that they may learn to fear the Lord; so shall your children be holy after you, well pleasing unto God. Consider who in your town is most like Christ in life, and apprentice your children to such, asking them to counsel them in the right way, and to watch over their eternal, as well as their temporal prosperity. In every Egypt have your Goshen; that your children may be as yourselves—holy unto the Lord. So shall they honor, and be an honor to the great Name in which we stand, and a joy to you in your declining years. So shall they bless the name of the Lord, and be a standing monument of the grace and power of God. Let their greater, even their eternal interests, influence their lesser; and let not any carnal provision or remuneration tempt you to cast them away to the wolves. As you love Christ, and desire their welfare, so be engaged in this mighty consideration; or, alas! too late, the wail of a broken heart may be heard deploring its course of action. Remember, what you are seeking for yourself is also good for them; not the world, even if you could gain it; not a name in fame unparalleled; not abundance of gold and silver; but, oh! remember, "the kingdom of God, and his righteousness," the latter of which is "by faith of Jesus Christ, unto all and upon all them that believe"; and the former only reached through him; for he is "the way."

And let me suggest a few trades that are not congenial to a christian, in which he cannot glorify God, or engage but to his certain damage. Then, plainly and pointedly, you must not make them Reporters for the secular press, and for two reasons; (1.) If reporters, they must be found in the paths of the ungodly, standing in the way of sinners, and sitting in the seat of the scornful. This is expressly forbidden. Such an avocation would compel them to attend the ball-room, the club-house, church levees, fairs, races, regattas, etc., etc., to give reports of the same. (2.) If reporters, they would have to be hypocrites or liars. They must eulogize the above, to suit the tastes of ungodly men. They must be practical liars; whereas, a chrisitan should be witnessing against sin; having "no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness; but rather reprove them."

They must not be governmental servants. In becoming a clerk under the Crown, they are bound by laws to countenance all that comes within their compartment, whether good or bad; and a christian should not be so bound. He is the Lord's free man; and should he be enslaved by the governments that now exist? By no means. Even Mathew must come from the receipt of custom; and the early church, when it shone in primitive splendor, would not, as good soldiers, entangle themselves with the affairs of earthly kingdoms. Allegiance was all they gave; legislation, or enforcement of laws they abstained from. They followed Christ in this. We also should follow him and them. Besides this, in some compartments men have to act as detectors, and assume a false character, on purpose to bring suspected parties into trouble. Can a christian conscientiously play double, or seek the injury of another? One government is certainly enough to be engaged with, and the other, which is altogether opposite, must be shunned.

They must not be brewers or publicans. Men are senseless enough of the claim which God has on them; but to make them more senseless by preparing a trap for them, and setting it for their feet, is outrageously abominable. This is the work of the brewer and publican. They are the ruiners of men's souls; the cloud over their day of forbearance; the blight to their every hope; the devil's good servants; and can a christian make or present poison or death to a poor fellow-mortal? No, no. His theme is water for the parched and perishing, and life to those under sentence of death. In one sentence, "water of life"—not prison, or at least, mixture and death. How many millions of souls are destroyed by these. Could any reader delight in seeing their children drunk with the blood of his neighbors? I trow not.

Theg must not be soldiers. The gospel of Christ is present peace. A subject of the gospel is at peace with God in Christ; at peace with himself in his conscience; and at peace with all men. Fancy a man having no quarrel with any, at the bidding of an ambitious country, cutting a poor, unoffending, but necessitously-engaged sinner asunder! Who, if a true christian, would not rather be himself killed, than usher one unprepared, it may be, out of life, and beyond repentance. A peace man at war! 't is an impossibility.

There are many other trades and professions incompatible with christianity; and if you place your children in them you must expect great injury to them, if not eternal ruin. Fathers, mothers, guardians, lay these things to heart. I have not aimed at elegance, but usefulness. It were easy to indulge in rhetoric, but the simplicity that is in Christ forbids. Let but these words enter the hearts and be lodged in the memories of God's people, and He is glorified; Christ is honored; angels awake fresh melody; I am used, and souls are saved. May this end be attained, as it is aimed at. Amen.

MASSACHUSETTS LIQUOR LAW.

Massachusetts has made a stringent prohibitory liquor law, which is now being quite rigorously enforced, and has already caused a deep sensation in the city of Boston. We give below a synopsis of the law:—ED.

"The first eleven sections relate to the qualifications, duties, liabilities, etc., of a Liquor Commissioner, to be appointed annually by the Governor and Council, who shall purchase and furnish to regularly appointed agents pure liquors. The profit on liquors sold by the Commissioner to agents shall not exceed five per cent in the original packages, or seven and one-half per cent when the packages are broken. The County Commissioners are given authority to authorize parties to manufacture spirituous liquors, and to sell the same in quantities of not less than 50 gallons, to be exported or to be used in the arts or for mechanical or chemical purposes, said manufacturer giving bonds not to violate the law.

Liquor agencies similar to those under the old law are to be established by all cities, and in every town of more than 5,000 inhabitants, and in other towns at the option of the Selectmen. One or more agents may be appointed, who shall receive fixed salaries. These agents are to be appointed by the city authorities or Selectmen of towns, excepting in Boston, where at least five agents are to be appointed by the Liquor Commissioner, are to purchase their liquors only of the Commissioner, and sell only for medicinal, chemical, and mechanical purposes, keeping a record of sales, and giving bonds for the legal discharge of their duties. Cities and towns of more than 5,000 inhabitants that neglect to appoint agents are liable to a forfeit of $100, to be recovered to his own use in an action of tort by any person who may sue for the same; and whoever buys lipuors of an agent under false pretences, will be liable of a fine of from $5 to $20. The law provides for the appointment by the Gov. and Council of an Assayer and Inspector of Liquors at a salary of $3,000, who shall inspect and analyze all liquors sent to him by the State Constables. The latter are to take samples of all liquors in the hands of city and town agents, at least once in three months, and send the same to the Assayer for examination, and if they are found adulterated the constable will at once prosecute the agent from whom they are taken. Importers of liquors may possess, keep, or sell foreign liquor in original packages. Druggists may sell for medicinal uses, pure alcohol to other druggists, apothecaries, or physicians; if sold illegally, the fine is 1,000. A chemist, artist or manufacturer may keep spirituous liquors for use in such art or trade, but not for sale. Any person may manufacture or sell unadulterated wine for sacramental purposes. Any person may manufacture cider, or may sell or keep for sale cider, where the same is not sold, or kept with intent to be sold, at a public bar, or be drunk on the premises. The penalties for violation are severe. For the first sale the penalty is a fine of $10 and imprisonment in the House of Correction of from twenty to thirty days; for the second offence, $20 fine and imprisonment from thirty to sixty days; for any subsequent violation, $50 and the imprisonment from three to six months. Clerks and principals are alike liable to these penalties. Manufacturers and common sellers (three sales constituting a common seller) are dealt more hardly with. First offense, $50 fine and three to six months' imprisonment; second offense, $200 fine and six months' imprisonment; subsequent offense, $200 fine and one year in the House of Correction. Clerks and principals alike liable. Delivery of liquors from other than a dwelling-house, or from a dwelling-house with payment, or promise of payment, is prima facie evidence of and punishable as a sale. The possession of liquor with intent to sell, incurs a penalty of $10 fine and twenty days' imprisonment, and prosecution may be made whether liquor has been seized or not. The penalty for transporting liquor for illegal sale is a fine of $20 dollars, and railroads over which it is transported illegally are liable to a fine of $50.

The husband, wife, parent, child, guardian or employer of a person addicted to the use of liquor, may, in writing, forbid any person from delivering liquor to the person so addicted; and if, within a year after such notice, liquor is delivered to the party by such forbidden person, the person giving the notice may recover not less than $21 dollars nor more than $500. If any intoxicated person commits an assault or injures any property, whoever furnished him with liquor shall be liable to the same action by the party injured as the person intoxicated would be liable to. Persons arrested for drunkenness, and giving information of the person from whom they obtained liquor, shall be discharged on the complaint of drunkenness, and held as witnesses.

Liquors proved to have been kept for illegal sale shall be forfeited to the Commonwealth, and placed in the hands of liquor agents if good, and destroyed if bad. Any Mayor, Alderman, Selectman, deputy Sheriff, police officer, constable or watchman may arrest without a warrant any person in his jurisdiction whom he finds in the act of selling, transporting, or distributing liquors, and seize said liquors, vessels and implements, and detain them until warrants can be procured; they may also do the same at any shanty, booth, or tent, at musters, cattle shows, &c. Whoever is convicted of a violation of this law, in addition to the punishment for said violation shall recognize in a sum not less than $100, nor more than $200 not to violate the law again for one year, and shall stand committed until he enters into such recognizance. Cases under this act shall take precedence in the courts of all other business except criminal cases in which parties are actually imprisoned awaiting trial. No action shall be had or maintained against any officer for executing any warrant issued under this act by any justice or court competent to try the same; nor shall any action be had or maintained against any officer for seizing, detaining or destroying any intoxicating liquor, or the vessels containing it, unless such liquor and vessels were legally kept by the owner thereof. If any officer neglects or refuses to execute a warrant under this act, he shall be fined not less than $300 and not exceeding $1,000. For any loss or damage arising to him, without fault or neglect on his part, in consequence of any precept, process, or warrant aforesaid, duly served, indemnity if claimed, shall be claimed of the Commonwealth."

We presume the liquor power will yet prevail, and repeal the law; so that in the end Satan and his forces will gain the victory.

PRAYERS REQUESTED.

Will those who have an interest at the throne of grace, remember me in their prayers. I am a poor, miserable, lonely backslider, and a wicked sinner. I have committed heinous and degrading sins. I have strove to return to Father's house, but have not succeeded. Therefore, I beg and crave an interest in the prayers of God's faithful ones. O, cry mightily unto God in my behalf, that I may be able to yield and return, that I may no longer be a poor miserable backslider.

Occasionally I see a stray number of the "World's Crisis." I think from the tone of its pages that its supporters are members of God's faithful little family; therefore I send the above request to its readers, hoping it may be read by some of God's faithful few, and that he may be constrained to hear their pleadings in my behalf. I know you do not publish any thing without a name signed to it, but I am too unworthy to tell my name this time; but should it please the good Lord to answer prayer in my behalf, then I will give you my name and post office address. Don't forget the poor BACKSLIDER.

☞ A plain old woman, writing to the "Christian Index," says: "There are three plans by which the house of God may be supported. First, the Old Testament plan, viz.: by tithes; secondly, the New Testament plan, viz.: laying by on the first day of the week as the Lord has prospered us; thirdly, the modern plan, viz.: after having ministered to the lusts of the flesh, the lusts of the eye and the pride of life—after paying off baker's, butcher's and lawyer's bills, we dole out at the door of the new church a pittance as our feelings prompt as an 'alms' to the house of God."

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

CARE OF CHILDREN'S TEETH.

The first tooth appears in six months; in the third year all are cut; between the seventh and twenty-first year all the permanent teeth have made their appearance. The value of the latter depends greatly on the care taken of the first set; and as the looks, health, and happiness are all materially modified by good teeth, intelligent and affectionate parents will look to the teeth of their children as early as the third year, when instead of being allowed to eat meat, they should mainly be fed on fruits, vegetables, and bread made of wheat, corn, or rye ground coarsely, using the entire product, bran and all, because in the bran is found almost exclusively the solid material which is to make the bone or the body of the tooth and its covering called the enamel.

The child should be taught at five to dampen the brush in the water every morning, rub it over a cake of castile soap, and brush the teeth well, inside and out, front and rear, until, with the aid only of the saliva., the mouth is full of soap-suds; then rinse with tepid water twirling the brush sideways over the back part of the tongue, so as to clean it fully of the soap and leave a good taste. After each meal the mouth should be well rinsed with tepid water as also the last thing on retiring. The mouth maintains a temperature of ninety-eight degrees; hence, if any food lodges about or between the teeth, it begins to rot very soon, giving out an acid which immediately begins to eat into the tooth, preparatory to an early decay. If solid particles are observed to lodge between the teeth, the child should be taught to use a very thin quill to dislodge it, but not without; for the more a quill is used the greater space between the teeth, which is a misfortune, as it necessitates the use of a tooth pick for all after life, consuming a great deal of valuable time.

A clean tooth does not decay. Acids and sour fruits always injure the teeth instantly; sweets never do. . . . If a tooth powder was never used, the teeth would not be so white; but kept perfectly clean would last for life.—Dr. Hall.

ADVICE TO BATHERS.

The Royal humane Society publish the following recommendations: Avoid bathing within two hours after a meal. Avoid bathing when exhausted by fatigue or from any other cause. Avoid bathing when the body is cooling after perspiration, but bathe when the body is warm, provided no time is lost in getting into the water. Avoid chilling the body by sitting or standing naked on the banks or in boats after having been in the water. Avoid remaining too long in the water; leave the water immediately there is the slightest feeling of chilliness. Avoid bathing altogether in the open air, if, after having been a short time in the water, there is a sense of chilliness, with numbness of the hands and feet. The vigorous and strong may bathe early in the morning on an empty stomach. The young, and those that are weak, had better bathe three hours after a meal—the best time for such is from two to three hours after breakfast. Those who are subject to attacks of giddiness and faintness, and those who suffer from palpitation and other sense of discomfort at the heart, should not bathe without first consulting their medical adviser.

COUGH IS CURATIVE.

It is nature's cure, and to smother cough without removing what causes it, is to hinder nature, and take away all chance of cure. When a man clearly has consumption, coughs a great deal, has been bringing up yellow matter for a long time, if his cough should subside, he will inevitably die in three or four days; because the cough helps to bring that matter out of the lungs, and keeps them clear; but when the cough becomes so weak or so unfrequent as not to remove the matter as fast as it is formed, the lungs begin to fill up with it, air cannot get in, and life ends.

The only hope of curing consumption is to promote cough on the one hand, so as to get the lungs clear of the matter in them, and prevent the formation of more. But the popular sentiment is, that in proportion as there is less cough, the chances of life are increasing, and willingly and hopefully the patient takes what "cures his cough," and is thus led a willing victim to the grave of his own digging. So much are men, with all their boasted intelligence, like the silly creature which feels itself safe when it can hide its head in a hole, to be crushed the next instant in the jaws of its relentless pursuer.—Hall's Journal of Health.

THE WAY TO HEALTH.

The only true way to health is that which common sense dictates to man. Live within the bounds of reason. Eat moderately, drink temperately, sleep regularly, avoid excess in any thing, and preserve a conscience "void of offence." Some men eat themselves to death, some drink themselves to death, some wear out their lives by indolence, and some by over-exertion; others are killed by the doctors, while not a few sink into the grave under the effects of vicious and beastly practices. All the medicines in creation are not worth a farthing to a man who is constantly and habitually violating the laws of his own nature. All the medical science in the world cannot save him from a premature grave. With a suicidal course of conduct, he is planting the seeds of decay in his own constitution, and accelerating the destruction of his own life.

THE BRIDE'S LAMENT.

Air.—"The Cottage by the Sea."

Jesus, thy lone bride awaits thee,
Longs her absent Lord to see;
Longs to change her earthly cottage
For those mansions, costly, free.
Oh, I'd be so blest and happy
Singing all the livelong day,
But to-night I'm sad and lonely,
For thy coming oft I pray.

Chorus.—Alone, all alone in the world he has left me;
But no other's bride I'll be,
With a crown he said he'd deck me
In those mansions, costly, free.

I have borne the world's cold hatred,
I have wept most bitter tears;
Sadly still, my soul awaits,
Waits midst gloomy days and years.
Would that he could hear me sighing,
Crying, groaning, day by day;
He would come and save from dying—
No! he would not "stay away."

He has bought my bridal garments,
Bought me pearls and precious gems;
And they are to me a treasure,
More than monarch's diadems.
Words he 's spoken, too, of comfort—
I will come again to you;
I will have a glorious bridal,
All I've promised I will do.

Mid my tears and sighs, I'm waiting,
Watching for the angel throng,
Which to his dear arms will bear me,
Meanwhile cheering me with song.
Light now through my tears is shining,
Rainbow tints now fill my eyes;
Lo! my Bridegroom-King is coming,
I will deck me and arise.

Chorus.—Though all, all alone in the world he has left me;
Though no other's bride I'd be,
He's not left me and bereft me,
Soon my coming one I'll see.

I will cease my bitter crying,
I will meet him with a smile;
Tell him I have waited for him,
He will all my fears beguile.
None shall ever separate us,
Though his absence has been long;
For he loves his waiting bride-church,
And his love is deathless, strong.

Like the budding of the fig-tree,
When the summer days come on,
He will come, and I shall meet him—
Ere those summer days are gone.
Oh, the signs that mark his coming
Greet my longing, longing eyes;
Soon I'll see him, I shall know him,
Coming through the pathless skies.

MORTAL QUICKENING.

In a previous article, we have shown that sophisms concerning the resurrection of the dead, drawn from corn planted with and without the chit, prove with equal force and clearness no resurrection of the same body that dies, the production of many bodies in the resurrection from the body that died, the continuance of life in the grave during the intermediate state, and also the utter hopelessness of any resurrection of man at all from the dead. It must be apparent to all that a mode of thought capable of sustaining so many absurdities is worse than worthless in favor of the notion of the non-revival of the wicked dead. The truth is, that the Scriptures never use "corn" at all in illustrating the resurrection of the dead. It uses "wheat," and that only twice; once in 1 Cor. 15, to illustrate its possibility, and also that in the resurrection there may be more than one kind of body, even though neither kind resemble in every particular the body sown, even as we sow not that body that shall be, but we sow the bare, naked grain, and "God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body"; and once it is used to illustrate the necessity of Christ's death in order to secure the resurrection of the dead (John 12: 24), but never to convey the idea of a partial resurrection, but rather "to every seed its own body." We shall do wisely if we use it only as Inspiration has used it for us.

But some one will say, "Does not Rom. 8: 11 make our resurrection to life in the future depend upon our possession of the Holy Spirit here?" I have yet to learn that Rom. 8: 11 refers at all to a future resurrection of the dead, or that we have any right so to apply it. Was Paul discussing the resurrection, or any question connected therewith? Was he attempting in any way to tell us who might, or who might not hope for a future life? By no means. The theme which he is treating, and treating with admirable skill and clearness, is the way of rescue from the power of sin, which is in our members. In chap. 7: 14, he presents himself as a slave to sin "sold under sin." His moral sense has been already quickened to discern and approve the law of God, and to delight in thoughts of doing that which is good. But he finds a principle of evil in his physical nature which wars against the law of his mind, and brings him continually into sin. In other words, his mortal body feels no life-giving power upon it, quickening it to act in harmony with his convictions of right. He is unhappy, wretched. He compares himself in his misery to ancient captives, to whom cruel tyrants bound dead bodies, until they were suffocated by their stench. To this ancient custom the poet refers when he says—

"What words can paint those execrable times;
The subjects' sufferings, and the tyrants' crimes!
The living and the dead, at his command,
Were coupled, face to face, and hand to hand,
Till chok'd with stench in loathed embraces tied,
The lingering wretches pined away and died."
—Dryden.

The apostle clearly views the antagonism between his moral and physical natures, as painful as the relation of captive to the loathsome dead, and in the bitterness of his soul cries out, "O wretched man that I am; who shall deliver me from this body of death?" (Margin.) His eye quickly beholds a Deliverer from this bondage to sin,—God, through Jesus Christ our Lord. How? By bringing to his assistance another power sufficient to control or quicken his body to act in harmony with his mind. "The law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death; . . . that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." Thus the captive is delivered, not by being disembodied, or by being untied from the body, but by having the body quickened by the Spirit of God. Paul knew that then, as now, men would cavil at the idea that the Holy Spirit could sanctify us, that we might fulfill even here the righteousness of the law; hence he seeks to strengthen conviction as to the Spirit's power, by reference to what it had already done. Therefore he reminds them that this same Spirit had power to make a lifeless Jesus live from the dead, and seems to reason that since it could give life to Jesus when dead, it certainly could and would quicken us to holiness if it dwelt in us. If this was the first and only time that Paul illustrates our duty and power to live for God through the Spirit, by the resurrection of Jesus, we might be less confident; but it is neither the first nor the only time that he has done so. He does so in Rom. 6: 26—"How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein? Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory (Spirit) of the Father, EVEN SO WE ALSO SHOULD WALK IN NEWNESS OF LIFE." Also verses 10, 11,—"For in that he died, he died unto sin once; but in that he liveth he liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." Here we have a death and a "quickening," and who will attempt to say that it does not refer to our present life, while we walk after the Spirit? What can be plainer also than that Paul in the sixth, as in the eighth chapter, refers to the resurrection of Christ, by the Spirit of God, simply to emphasize and confirm the fact of our ability and duty to "walk in newness of life," by the help of the same Spirit that raised Jesus from the dead? The conclusion which the apostle draws from his premise confirms this opinion.

If the only proper and legitimate conclusion to be drawn from verse 11, chap. 8, is "future life only to the righteous," would not Paul have said, "Therefore, except ye have the Spirit of God dwelling in you, you never can or will be raised from the dead?" But was this his conclusion? Nay, verily. Paul's "therefore" is widely different:—"Therefore, brethren, we are debtors not to the flesh, to live after the flesh." Why? Because "he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." In harmony with these thoughts we hear Paul again saying (Eph. 2: 4–5), "But God who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, . . . and hath raised us up together and made us to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus." So David prays, "Quicken us and we will call upon thy name." Ps. 80: 18. "Quicken thou me according to thy word." "Quicken thou me in thy way." "Quicken thou me in thy righteousness." See Ps. 119: 25, 37, 40, 88, 107, 149, 154, 156, 159; 143: 11; also Eph. 2: 5. In all these instances the quickening belongs to this present life. The subject therefore that Paul is treating in Rom. 8 is not at all who shall be raised from the dead, but, how and by whom we may be rescued now from the dominion of sin. Why, then, snatch a sentence from an author intended to enforce one thought, to which he had called attention, and bear it away and weave it into a fine argument to sustain another thought, to which that author had no reference, and to which he never gave countenance in one single epistle? Is it just to do this? Are we so straitened for texts in favor of some favorite theory of ours, as to be betrayed into such a course?

Why, to apply the words of Paul in Rom. 8: 11 in such a way, not only wrests them from their original purpose, but actually makes the apostle contradict plain truths. Many were the dead that Jesus raised while upon the earth. Did these all enjoy the indwelling of the Holy Spirit before they died? Who will say this? "The Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified."—John 7: 39. Some, then, have been raised, and raised to life, that could not have enjoyed the Holy Spirit. Why make Paul say none can be raised to life without its indwelling presence, when such a statement is plainly contrary to fact?

Again, infants under two years of age do not enjoy the indwelling presence of God. How, then, can any such be raised to life? Yet such shall live again. Rachel's voice shall be hushed from weeping for her children, for "they shall come again from the land of the enemy." Why make Paul deny it? Yet he does, if he makes the possession of the Holy Ghost a prerequisite to a future life. How, then, shall or can they be raised to life? "O," says one, "we have a special promise that covers their case." Very well; on the same principle we say, we have many special promises that cover the case of the wicked dead, and among them is this: "The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." With a firm reliance upon the word of God, and a heart that endorsed all the Divine purposes, the apostle asserts still his hope, "that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." THE ALARM BELL.

THE TEN HORNED AND TWO-HORNED BEASTS.

In Revelation, thirteenth chapter, is pictured the prophetic rise and career of the beasts, commonly supposed to denote the Papacy and the Roman empire. The apocalyptic picture is impressive, and the allied operations of these characters or powers are on a scale of vastness calculated to strike awe into the mind of the God-fearing reader of God's word. Now on what principle of interpretation are we to understand these stupendous evolutions? Simply this, so we think; that the general development extends through ages of bad and bloody dominion, now nearly past; but the particular development applies to the period expressly of the end, which is very brief indeed, and now nearly begun. Thus the Roman empire has continued from the Revelator John until now, and the Roman empire in league with the Papacy from Justinian until now; but the empire and the Papacy have a special and intensified development at the critical time just anterior to the revelation of Jesus in glory to dash the Satanic kingdoms and systems of men to pieces.

The latter day development, then, is the photographic and exact correspondence of events to the record. It is about and after the period of the beast in his wounded and healed headship. That wounded headship we believe to be Napoleon I. vanquished at Waterloo, and the healed headship, Napoleon III., finally slain at Armageddon. And the two-horned beast is not only the Pope of 1260 years' career of pride and power, but specially the Pope of the last period of Romish prophetic elevation, and the last period of this age of tempest and trouble. The ten-horned beast is specially in that phase and period of the Roman empire when imperial Bonapartism is dominant, and the two-horned beast also; when ecclesiastical Bonapartism is revealed. Thus and then we have the mightiest and closest union and co-operation of offices and forces of all the ages; to wit, when a Bonaparte is Emperor, and when a Bonaparte is Pope. But the relation is peculiar. For the imperial Bonaparte is an aspirant for august and divine honors, and the Papal Bonaparte is an official agent for procuring and converging with miraculous and astonishing prodigies the homage of the world apostatized upon the apostate Cæsar, messiah-pontiff. Is it unaccountable, or irrational, that this series of startling phenomena, or allied operations are to find fulfillment at the end? We think not. It is at the coming of Christ, as we all know, that all the glorious hope of christians, dead or alive, is to be realized. There and then are located the entire aggregate of blissful wonders, and immortal satisfactions and triumphs promised in the gospel. It is the world's crisis, and the world's climax; the climax of all jubilee and peace ever longed for in any age, or looked for by any believer. What a period of crisis and climax indeed. Is it any wonder, then, that this stupendous eventuality should be eyed with exasperated dread by the enemy, reading in the clouds of that coming kingdom his own forlorn destiny of damnation and ruin? Is it any wonder that he should seek out an elect recipient of the usurped and false glories which the blessed Savior rejected in the wilderness? Ah! it is the hand writing of doom flames against Beelzebub in the sky, that he riots and rages with inflamed apprehension and wrath, and stirs up every resource in all the cavernous depth of his craft, to rear barriers against the Son of God, and fortresses of stubborn stuff to foil or resist the thunderbolts of justice.

It is true the functions of the Pope are modified. The two-horned beast wields enormous power, and how does he wield it? Expressly, to "cause the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worship the first beast whose deadly wound was healed." Here is the official and amazing function of this last day apostate ecclesiastic stirring up of the world to greet its foul man-god with acclamations, and confirming his infernal mission with demoniac pyrotechnics. If we are brought to understand that the therionic head, wounded and healed, is Napoleonic, and that the very last phase of imperial pride in the apocalyptic panorama, is at the concluding decade or semi-decade of this very Napoleon third, as a man and a prince, then we may know that the awful spectacle of blasphemy, and compact, and a Satanic hierarchy, and a supernaturally assisted and apostate ministration, described in this chapter, is in our day—nay, is at the very door, and will soon come like a monsoon, burning, poisonous, and overwhelming. How untenable then is the interpretation that fondly retires all this villainy of demonism into the past. How mistaken an idea that illustrates and exhausts this imagery, by citations of papal arrogance in other ages, when the Pope's studies were to elevate himself, and concentrate homage of mankind upon himself. When every art, and craft, and thunderous fulmination, and affrighting menace, was used so as to glorify St. Peter's chair, and the incumbent who sat in it. The very mightiest princes of the Roman empire were strengthened and confirmed by the Pope, in order that they might subject with the secular arm all grades and ages and populations of men to the dominion of the harlot, the homage of the Papal See.

How different is this from the prophecy that makes the Pope, or the two-horned beast, an ordained instrument to glorify the beast that had the wounded head! A secular power is worshiped after all. A secular power, aspiring to deification, consecrates his chosen agent with invested mastery of the elements, even through the connivance of the prince of the power of the air. No Pope was ever worshiped with such a sentiment or such a behavior of obeisance as this secular beast exacts, at least receives; and the dissident or heretic is killed by some electric stream of infernal lightning issuing from "an image that can speak." We care not to continue now. Let us be candid, and may the Lord enlighten.

ELIJAH.

Is Elijah yet to come? if so, for what purpose? To turn the hearts of the children to the fathers, and the hearts of the fathers to the children. But we thought the gospel was for this purpose. Jesus told his disciples to go to all nations, teaching and baptizing in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and whosoever believed and was baptized should be saved. But where did the Scribes first get the idea that Elijah must first come? From the prophet Malachi. Now, did Malachi mean Elijah that was translated, or John the Baptist?

There seem to be three reasons why he meant Elijah. First, because he called him Elijah; second, he was to come before that great and notable day of the Lord; third, he was to restore all things. First question: Why did the prophet call John Elijah? He (Malachi) had described the great day of the Lord, and, looking through time, he saw one of the greatest prophets ever born of a woman, and his looks, his dress, his manner of living, were so much like Elijah's, that the prophet called him Elijah; and when the Scribes saw him, they supposed a very Elijah had come again, knowing he had never died; and Christ, when telling the multitude about John, called him "more than a prophet"; still they thought this must be Elijah; so Christ tells them, if they would receive it this was Elijah "which was for to come," if it would suit them any better; as he would say, Here is eternal life, if they would receive it.

When they came from the mount of transfiguration, the disciples asked Christ why the Scribes said that Elijah must first come? and he told them Elijah had already come, and they had "done unto him whatsoever they listed"; and, "likewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them. Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist," and if they understood wrong, he did not correct them, as he always did when they misunderstood him.

Second question. Paul says "God hath in these last days spoken to us by his Son." So John, or Elijah, came before that great and notable day of the Lord. Third, he is to "restore all things." What did Christ mean by that? Not that Elijah is to restore the world to its Eden beauty, and all that are to be saved in the resurrection. No, but simply to prepare the way for Christ to restore all things in that day. It was necessary for some one to introduce Christ to the world. But suppose Elijah is yet to come, and he turns the hearts of the fathers to the children, etc., will this prevent Christ's coming and smiting the earth with a curse? We would advise none to wait for Elijah to come and tell them to get ready for that day; it may then be too late, for there is no name given under heaven whereby man can be saved, only through Jesus Christ; and he is to come suddenly and like a thief in the night.

"FORBID IT NOT."

Bro. Grant:—When the disciples found one working miracles in the name of Jesus, who followed not with them, they commanded him to desist, because he did not follow them (or with them.) But the Master said, "Forbid him not," for "he that is not against us is on our part." These words should be inscribed upon every christian banner, and engraven in characters of light, deeply, indelibly, upon every christian heart. "He that is not against us, is on our part." Mark 9: 40.

Here is a field for the exercise of the broadest christian charity, a spirit that thinketh no evil, beareth all things, believeth all things. While each has all the liberty allowed by the gospel, he should cheerfully accord to others the same. Unless we do this, we become harsh, bitter, denunciatory, condemning those whom the Lord does not condemn. And how true it is that "He shall have judgment without mercy that hath showed no mercy. We examine ourselves closely, and with all our defects, with all our short-comings, with all our weakness, we declare plainly, earnestly, emphatically, that we are on the Lord's side. And while we thus declare, we acknowledge that we are not infallible; we may be in error on some points, we are not yet perfect, yet we are received, forgiven, owned and blest, and so are others who do not in all things follow with us. "He that is not against us, is on our part" There are enemies of the cross, open and avowed. There are also secret foes, "deceitful workers," who profess to be wise and good, while they are but whited sepulchres. While we are at liberty to use "great plainness of speech" against every error, and use our offensive armor against spiritual wickedness in all places; yet we must be careful not to pour our most terrible broadsides into the heart of our friends, who are soldiers in the army of our King, and as near and dear to him as "the "apple of his eye." It is the aim of our great adversary to divide and distract us, and if he fails to make true christians "bite and devour each other, he will raise up a counterfeit band, and label them as near as possible like the genuine; and when by their "sheep's clothing" they have succeeded in passing for real christians, they begin to carry out the design of their Master, the Devil, and bring a reproach upon the christian name, by casting out as evil all who follow not with them, and all who will not submit to wear a galling yoke, and a burden which neither we nor our father's were able to bear.

The point is clear in my mind, and I wish I could present it clearly to every reader of "our paper." It is claimed by some, that a high degree of intelligence is requisite to salvation. This is as evident and as grievous an error as to declare that the gift of God may be purchased with money. If superior natural ability, learning, talent, genius, either one or all of these is essential to salvation, or can be shown to be so from the Bible; then we can show that great wealth is also essential to the same end. I believe, with Pollock, that a man may live happy, die happy, and be saved, "who never had a dozen thoughts in all his life." The gospel of free grace is proclaimed to the poor—the poor in spirit, poor purse, poor in intellect. The same grace that is "sufficient" for the highest, is sufficient also for the lowest. And we read that the weak things are chosen, and things that are despised, while the great and lofty are rejected.

The exaltation of human intellect and human will against God and the Bible must ever lead to most disastrous results. Meekness, humility, poverty, are usually found existing together in the heart and life of the christian. For one, I am free to acknowledge in the language of my Master, that "the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light." Brethren, do ye not "see your calling?" If not, just turn to the first chapter of first Corinthians, and read the language of inspiration on this point. We want to live good soldiers, and fight the good fight of faith, and lay hold on eternal life. Let one and all earnestly pray, "Lord help us." Amen.

Webster, Mass. F. H. Chamberlain.

— Christ's strength is the strength of the christian. If we would stand, Christ must be our foundation; if we would be safe, Christ must be our sanctuary.

FORESHADOWINGS OF COMING EVENTS.

By Robert Smith, Edinburgh, late Missionary to the Jews, at Pesth.

Great convulsions in the natural world are usually preceded by signs which indicate their approach. A solemn portentous stillness settles down on the face of nature. The winds are hushed. Vegetation droops. A dusky lurid light overspreads the sky. The atmosphere becomes oppressive and stifling. The busy life of the insect world ceases. The sheep betake themselves to their folds, or are collected in trembling groups. The birds retreat to the groves, and flutter restlessly among the branches. No noise is heard save some solitary cry, which, as it breaks the general silence, increases the general alarm. Expectancy and eager anticipation prevail.

Moral and political convulsions are, in a like manner, preceded by indications which announce their coming. In purely political convulsions, the expectation, which is the invariable consequent of the indications going before, and the immediate forerunner of the catastrophe itself, need be traced to no higher source than the minds of which it has taken possession. Without the lamp of divine truth, a man may be able to explain the natural movements which are transpiring in his own bosom, or are about to emerge in the society of which he is a component part, and to which he is inwardly linked by countless mysterious ties.

It is altogether different when the deep-seated causes which awaken the slumbering volcano are of a moral or religious nature. Here the secret of the Lord is with them that fear him. The light of the word of God is the only safe guide, whether of our hopes or our fears. Only those whose minds are daily bathed in the living fountain of truth, who are imbued with its spirit, who have drunk in its prophetic teachings, whose aspirations, by constant contact with its moral lessons, have been brought into harmony with the principles on which the divine government is conducted,—such only can duly understand either the sources or the ultimate issues of those events which we expect to be accomplished when the "Lord maketh bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations, and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God." There exists at the present moment a prevalent impression among God's people, that important events are at hand,—that a crisis greater than any which has appeared since the beginning of time, is fast approaching, and that however long or short its continuance, it will result in the discomfiture of the enemies of God, and the deliverance and enlargement of his people. We hear of this expectation from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south. It is a conviction which has forced itself upon their consideration—which has sprung up spontaneously in their minds. We find a definite expectation of events, great and terrible, coupled with most undefined conceptions respecting the particular forms they may assume,—a clear apprehension of their general character, bearing, and results, united with obscurity of vision in regard to their special attributes and accompaniments; a remarkable unity of sentiment as to characteristic features, with some diversity as to subordinate details. This state of mind which pervades the Christian world is precisely that which we ought to expect on the eve of an era so momentous. It is sufficient to stimulate prayer and intelligent observation, whilst it neither interferes with freedom of action, nor with the due performance of public duty.

Whence comes a unanimity so marvellous—a consent almost universal? Doubtless the same reasons essentially have, at one time or other, entered the hearts of all, and determined their judgment. But few comparatively may have given themselves the trouble to trace their conviction to its sources, to distinguish its several grounds, and to sum them up in order.—Signs of the Times.

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

BY F. W. HOUGH.

"And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen; for the Lord God shall slay thee, and call his servants by another name."—Isa. 65: 15.

I invite criticism on what I may present as the doctrine of the text. Much has been said with regard to the propriety of "Advent" being added to our name, in order to distinguish us, etc.; but the safest way to decide that question is suggested by our Savior, when once interrogated concerning a point in the law. He said, "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" So in this case, what saith the Scriptures? not one text, but, what do they say as a whole?

My text is one that refers to the blotting out of the Jews as God's servants, and taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name, so, as the text states, that he will call the Gentile believer by another name. All we have to do in the matter, to get at the truth, is to take a good Concordance, and trace the names by which the people of God have been called, which are found in common in both Testaments; and when you have done so, you will be satisfied that Christian is the only name not found in the Old Testament, and the only additional name to designate God's servants in the New; although that name does not occur but three times, and did it occur but once, it ought to silence this controversy now and for ever.

"Christian," like all other names, is given by our heavenly Father, and is expressive of character, as well as relation to Christ. It is a name we, as a people, ought to honor; a name that needs no other appendage whatever; and just so long as my text is admitted to be the inspired word of God, and "Christian" is the only different name in the New Testament, the friends of the name have nothing to fear; that any argument can be brought against them from the word of inspiration. They have only to say, "What saith the Scriptures? how readest thou?" and let all the saints say, Amen.

We will give a passing notice of some reasons offered by some, why we should use the term "Advent Christians."

First Argument. Because the world and churches give us that name, and therefore know us by that name. I reply that this is a false premise, and therefore the conclusion is false. I believe that those who bring this forward take a wrong view of it. We think we have rather pressed this name ("Advent") upon the churches and world. They always called us "no-soulites," "annihilationists," "world-burners," etc. I am an old pioneer in this cause, and the first I ever heard us called "Adventists" was through our own publications; so that if we want the world or church to name us, we ought to take one of the names above.

Second Argument. There are a number of churches called christian, and they do not agree among themselves. Let me reply by saying that we agree with them in what is called our platform, the Scriptures as our creed, and christian character as the basis of our fellowship. In this, we stand on the same ground, as well as the name. Now, whatever reason you offer for the addition of "Advent" to distinguish us from them, can be urged as a reason why we should change our platform. Some perhaps would consent even to that, but we think the great heart of the waiting ones would say No with a will. The best way to distinguish us from others who are called Christians, is to show its character in every-day life. If we do this, the world will soon know us without the hand' "Advent." [Amen. Ed.]

We might notice some other reasons that are affirmed for adding "Advent," but we forbear. Let me say, brethren and sisters, east and west, let us "hold fast the form of sound words."

I will now close by giving a short extract of Doctor Adam Clarke on Acts. 11: 26:—"It is evident they had the name Christians from Christ their Master; as the Platonists . . . had their name from . . . Plato. . . Some think . . . that the inhabitants of Antioch gave it to them; and others that it was given by Saul and Barnabas. This latter opinion is favored by the Codex Bezæ, which reads the 25th and 26th verses thus: 'And hearing that Saul was at Tarsus, he departed seeking for him; and having found him, he besought him to come to Antioch; who, when they were come, assembled with the church a whole year, and instructed a great number; and there they first called the disciples at Antioch Christians.'"

There is much good common sense in what follows, in the Dr.'s comments, but I leave the subject without introducing them. May the "Lord direct" our "hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ." 2 Thess. 3: 5. Christian salutation to all.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

Division and disunion seem to be the order of the day in which we live. The world is full of it in all circles, and the most wide-spread are political and religious. These seem to be growing wider and deep-rooted every day. In union there is strength; while in division and discord there is loss of strength and power. The strongest and most powerful government in the world is where the people composing it are the most united, and work together for the general good and welfare of the whole people; while weakness is the result of an opposite course. We see the result of these things in religious as well as other matters. Division and discord should never be allowed to enter the Christian church. Nothing is more pleasing to Satan than to see christians divided. But little can be done in any community for the salvation of men, or for building up the church of Christ, where division and contention are the order of the day. We see a striking manifestation of this in visiting different localities. In one, we find all that are called christians united in their efforts, and laboring together for the general good of the cause of Christ, and he owns and blesses these labors. In another, there is a great lack of union; no interest only in a certain direction; one for one thing, another for another; thus crippling the efforts for good of the few that have the cause of God at heart, in preference to every thing else. In these divisions, party names and doctrinal views have much to do. Those are made paramount to the salvation of the perishing around them. Doctrine is good, in its place; but instead of dividing up on these points, we should manifest christian sympathy, and give a united hand for the good of our Master's cause, and thus shed a good and healthy influence abroad over community.

Christ was a pattern of pure christian sympathy, doing good to all in his power; and can we be his true followers while we are going contrary to his precepts? Certainly not. Then it is certain we cannot be his true followers, while we are sowing discord and division among those that profess to follow him.

The prosperity of Christ's cause, and the salvation of men, should be above all secular objects in the christian's mind and life. Then, and not till then, shall we see sinners coming to Christ, and inquiring what they must do to be saved. May christians everywhere put on the bond of love and union, and thus be ready when Jesus comes to go into the marriage supper. N. B. McMurphy.

Gilmanton, N. H.

— Is there not time for all things? Answer. There is no time for sin and folly. "Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." All who walk with God are serious, taking their Lord for their example.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, Aug. 11, 1869.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

Money Orders.

Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

BRO. L. E. CRAW—The regular price of the Englishman's Greek Concordance is $6. We can furnish them for that price postpaid.

BRO. THOS. SMITH—There is not much difference in them.

J. C. WILLIAMS—Your paper goes regularly in the bundle to Waupun.

J. B. WADSWORTH—As yet none have subscribed.

S. H. SPILLMAN—Will continue.

SR. A. M. TRIPP'S P. O. address is Searsport, Me.

BRO. J. A. CLEAVELAND'S P. O. address is now at Marshfield, Vt.

A. W. SIBLEY'S P. O. address is now West Thornton, N. H.

B. P. MANNING'S P. O. address is Goffstown, N. H.

LEWIS F. COLE'S P. O. address is Yarmouth, Me.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

FAST AND PRAY.

It is certain that the Lord approves of fasting and prayer. No one who has read the Bible can come to any other conclusion. If there was ever a time when there was reason for it, we think it is now. We are amid the perils of the last days, and need the special guidance of our dear Savior; and we most firmly believe that the Lord will give in answer to earnest prayer, what he would withhold from the prayerless. All things indicate that we are near the close of this dispensation; and yet how few seem to be ready. It is a sad sight to see so many who were once active in the cause of Christ, now comparatively asleep, and floating quietly into the broad stream of the world, and making no efforts to save the perishing.

In view of these startling facts, and the important results that must follow our great National campmeeting, to commence at Springfield, Aug. 28th, we would suggest to all who are interested in the prosperity of that meeting, and the one to commence at Alton Bay, Sept. 5th, as well as other meetings, and the cause of Christ far and near; that Friday, Aug. 27th, be observed as a day of fasting and special prayer that these meetings may be the best we ever enjoyed, and be the means of leading many to be ready for the coming of Christ.

CERTIFICATES FOR DELEGATES.

It is necessary that the delegates from the churches* to the Annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association, to be held at the National Campmeeting, in Springfield, should bring certificates showing that they were duly appointed. The following form will answer:

This is to certify that —— was duly appointed by the church in —— as a delegate to the annual meeting of the A. C. A., to be held on the National Campground, in Springfield, Mass., Aug. 31st, 1869.

[To be signed by the Elders, Clerk, or deacons of the church, or Chairman of the meeting called to appoint the delegates.]

This matter of choosing delegates should be attended to at once, in order that those appointed may have time to make suitable arrangements to be present. Every church can send one delegate, and an additional one for every fifty members over the first twenty-five. Let every church be fully represented.

* A church is understood to be any number of christians who meet together for the worship of the Lord.

HOLLISTON TENT-MEETING.

A tent-meeting was commenced in Holliston, Mass., six miles from South Framingham, Tuesday evening, Aug. 3d, which promises much good. The tent is pitched in Bro. Sherman's door-yard, and is very pleasantly located. Bro. S. is making noble sacrifices for the good of the people in H. He is a true man. We hope to have some cheering reports from this meeting.

BRO. LESLIE.—We learn that Bro. I. I. Leslie has "determined on leaving Memphis this year." He has labored nobly in the mission. He feels that his work is now done in that place.

NEWS ITEMS.—We thank our friends for valuable news items frequently sent us from different parts of the country; and we hope they will be pleased to continue these favors.

THANKS to Sr. Rose Campbell for the package of tracts sent us from Port Elizabeth, Africa.

"WHOM CAN WE TRUST?"

It is evident that there is an increasing lack of confidence in each other, among business men. The passion of covetousness has become so strong, that many, who have hitherto been able to resist the tempter's power, are now yielding, and being led captive in the way to destruction. The regular New York correspondent of the Boston Journal, Aug. 4th, says:—

"Defalcations, frauds, embezzlements and forgeries are not uncommon in New York. But there has been no season when so many tried, trusted and eminent men have been found guilty of great crimes as at the present. Much comes to the surface and much is hushed up. The heavy defalcations in the accounts of an eminent banker who for thirty years had stood among the highest in church and in society, whose sudden death revealed the use he had made of funds entrusted to his care—the embezzlements brought to light in the account of Frank W. Ballard, with startling revelations—in connection with the accounts of other trusted men, have shaken the public confidence in almost everybody and everything; and the question is, 'Whom can we trust?'"

It is certain that political and financial matters are in a sad condition, and growing worse.

"THE ADVANCE."—The publisher of this sterling national religious journal, the subscription price of which is $2,50 per year, offers to send it to any address, during the remainder of the present year—from May to January—for one dollar. The "Advance" is a standing proof that it is not necessary for a religious journal to be either dry, prosy and sectarian, or worldly, sensational and flashy. It occupies a golden mean and is a most readable and instructive paper.

The above offer will enable all to make the acquaintance of the Advance at small cost. Subscriptions should be sent to the Advance Co., Chicago, Ill.

THE LAWS OF LIFE for August, like each number of this excellent Health Journal, contains much valuable matter, and we think it well worth while for any person who desires to learn how to live, to avail himself of the offer of the publishers, to send this number gratuitously to any who will apply and send a postage stamp to prepay postage. Publishers Austin, Jackson & Co., Our Home, Dansville, N. Y.

LECTURES ON THE APOCALYPSE.—Dr. J. A. Seiss, of Philadelphia, Editor of the "Prophetic Times," has issued the fourth number of his series of lectures on the Apocalypse. The four numbers contain 454 octavo pp. His lectures are specially interesting. His views on the Revelation are quite different from most writers on that portion of the Scripture. The work may be obtained at the Lutheran bookstore 807 Vine St., Philadelphia.

GOOD HEALTH.—"Good health" is the title of a valuable monthly, of 48 pp., devoted to physical and mental culture, published at 21 Franklin St., Boston, and for sale by the New England News Company, Boston. Price, single copy, 20cts. Per year, $2.00.

☞ Those going to the Conn. Campmeeting will please observe a "Special Notice" in another column.

OUR ORIGIN.

In the Banner of Light, Oct, 3d, 1868, is a record of a spirit manifestation, opened by a mock prayer by the controlling spirit. Then comes the following question and answer:—

"QUES.—Whence sprang the first types of humanity?

ANS.—From the lower orders of animal, mineral and vegetable life."

According to the teaching of the spirits, man was not created as such, in harmony with the Mosaic account of creation, but came up from the lowest order of animals by a law of progression. And there are a multitude of men and women who are so silly as to believe such nonsense, and reject the word of the Lord.

THE STONE.

Allow me to ask a few questions. What does the stone represent that smote Nebuchadnezzar's image? Has it yet smote the image?

Corrington, Ky. H. HATHAWAY.

If we compare Dan. 2: 34 and 44 together, we see clearly what the stone represents. The verses are as follows:—"Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces." "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." In verse 34, we learn that the "stone" is the object employed to "break" "the image" "to pieces." The image is shown to represent "the kingdoms of this world, which are to be destroyed, and the kingdom of God is to take their place. When we come to the time for this to be done, we have it expressed in the language of the 44th verse, where "the kingdom" of God is represented as doing just what the "stone" does; "it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms; and it shall stand for ever." This takes place after the seventh angel sounds. See Rev. 11: 15—"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.

As the seventh angel has not yet sounded, it follows that the stone has not yet smitten the image, consequently, the kingdom of God is not yet set up; neither can it be so long as "the kingdoms of this world" are in the hands of the present earthly kings. They are all opposed to Christ and his personal coming and reign. He will not reign jointly with the wicked kings; but they are to be destroyed, and their kingdoms dashed in pieces, and after that, "no place was found for them (Dan. 2: 25:) but "the stone [kingdom of God] that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth."

In harmony with this, Daniel says in chap. 7: 27,—"And the kingdom [of God] and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom."

When will it be given? Read Matt. 25: 31–34, as follows:—

"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats; and he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

GENERAL WESTERN CAMP-MEETING.

"The General Western Campmeeting" is to be held at De Kalb, Ill., commencing Wednesday, Sept. 8th, and to continue one week. We add the following from the Voice:

"There will be a reduction of fare from Chicago, Aurora Junction, Dixon, and Clinton, or Fulton, of which further notice will be given.

Lumber for tent frames will be provided as usual; also straw. We shall have the privilege of the fair ground, with its fine stalls for horse-keeping; with grain and hay furnished at cost.

We would suggest that those bringing tents make them so as to use twelve and sixteen feet lumber without cutting, as this will save the committee a heavy bill of expense. Boards once cut lose their marketable value.

The committee will provide good board for all who desire it, at the lowest possible figures—probably seventy-five cents to eighty cents a day."

THE BOSTON DIRECTORY.

In looking over the new Boston Directory of Sampson, Davenport & Co., issued but a few weeks ago, we are struck with the great number of changes which take place in the names and locations in the course of a single year, the names erased from the Directory of 1868, in preparing the Directory of 1869, being over 20,000, and the names added more than 25,000,—a fact which shows the importance of having a new Directory every year. AG'T.

WHY GUARD THE TREE OF LIFE?

BRO. GRANT:—Would it be too onerous a task for you to give a humble servant, and one who is seeking for light, an explanation on the third chapter of Genesis, and the last three verses? They read as follows:—"And the Lord God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil; and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat and live forever; therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life."

QUERY.—Why was there danger of Adam's putting forth his hand, and taking also of the tree of life, and eating and living for ever, after he was placed under sentence of physical death? Was eternal life in his power, even if the tree of life was not guarded?

Rockbridge, O. O. R. HULS.

In Gen. 2: 15, 16, 17, we read:—"And the Lord God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it."

"The tree of life" was one of the trees in the garden; and as Adam was allowed to eat "of every tree of the garden" but one, which was "the tree of the knowledge of good and evil," it follows that he was allowed to eat of the tree of life till after he sinned. We believe "the tree of life" was specially designed to perpetuate life; and as long as Adam had access to that tree, he could not die; not that once eating of that tree would render him immortal. But after he sinned, the Lord would not let him have any further access to the tree, lest he "eat and live for ever;" and thus perpetuate sin eternally. We look upon this as a merciful act on the part of the Lord, when he caused man to become mortal, so that sin may yet be ended by the destruction of all the wicked.

PAPAL MOURNING.

At the late "anniversary of the creation of the present Pope," he gave an address, in which he is reported to have said:—

"Ah! how heavy are the ills now oppressing this church; everywhere what ruin, what weeping and lamentations. Perhaps, even at the very moment I am speaking, a kingdom is deprived of its last bishop, he thrown into prison, or sent into exile." (At this allusion to Poland the voice of the Pope trembled and broke down, and his eyes were suffused with tears. Emotion filled the hearts of all present, remembering the most agonizing position of the church in that kingdom.) "Certes," continued the Holy Father, "God might permit us to share ourselves the fate of these bishops. This plant, which has its roots in the soil whereon we still find safety, might be struck down even as the mystical plant of the prophet David. But the perils which menace us will be removed by the Divine goodness, and this plant has the promise of the Lord."

Pius IX has now completed the 23d year of his pontificate, and feels alarmed at the state of things connected with the seat of power. For this reason, he has called an Ecumenical council, which is to assemble at Rome on the 8th of next December, to determine what course to pursue, in order to escape the impending storm.

At the close of his address, he says:—"May the Lord, by the intercession of Mary, bless you, as I pray with all the strength of my heart."

THIS is what heaven will be—the eternal presence of God. Do nothing you will not like God to see. Say nothing you would not like him to hear. Write nothing you would not like him to read. Go to no place where you would not like God to find you. Read no books of which you would not like God to say, "Show it me." Never spend your time in such a way you would not like God to say, "What art thou doing?"

THE BETHEL TENT MEETING.

BRO. GRANT:—I feel it duty to write a few lines for your good and valuable paper, that the children of the Lord may rejoice to hear what he is doing for us at the "Bethel Mission Tent Meetings," now being held at Camden, N. J., opposite this city, and conducted by our dear brother, J. G. Hook. The Lord is doing a great work here, beyond all expectations. The power of the Spirit is being most wonderfully manifested, as it was in the days of the apostles. Sinners have been converted, and are rejoicing in the Lord; backsliders are reclaimed, cold professors waked up, and the whole church blest and united together in the work of the Lord. We are all of one mind. We have buried the past, and laid all differences aside, and gone to work as one man for the cause of our blessed Master and the salvation of our fellow mortals, and the Lord has greatly blessed our united efforts. Glory to God for ever.

Strangers and friends say they never heard such sermons and appeals to the ungodly before. The meetings have been held for five weeks, and have been blessed from the beginning, because we started them in the name of the Lord, and were united in our efforts. Bro. Flagg was with us until Thursday, July 15th, when he left for the East. Since that time Bro. Hook has been alone. Last Sunday (July 25th) we had the largest meeting yet held. The large tent was full, and many were standing outside. All seemed deeply interested, and listened with great attention. Between twenty and thirty have been buried with Christ in baptism, and more are going forward next Sabbath. A large number of Methodist brethren have become much interested in the meetings, and take part. Some of them have been baptized, and others will go soon.

One was converted on Wednesday night, and threw away his tobacco last evening in the middle of the Delaware river, while crossing in the boat. Another brother rose in the meeting and resolved from that time, by the help of the Lord, to stop the filthy habit of using tobacco and cigars. Praise God. This is what we need, something to cleanse a man inside and out. Many are glad and rejoicing in the Lord, that they ever heard Bro. Hook. Your humble servant, the writer, also rejoices that dear Bro. Hook ever came this way.

Two years ago, I was on my way to destruction as fast as I could go, my whole system being saturated with tobacco for over thirty-one years, by the excessive use of the foul weed; also with lager beer, and other kinds of stimulating drinks. I felt as though no man cared for my soul; but the mercy and goodness of God sent dear Bro. Hook this way. I went to hear him. He became interested for me, and treated me so kindly, and spoke such words of good cheer to me, that he touched my wicked heart, and encouraged me to try again and seek the Lord. I did so, and found Jesus precious to my soul. He blessed me in a wonderful manner, and gave me a bright evidence that I never can doubt. Glory to his name for ever and ever. I was not worthy of such a blessing, but it is just like Jesus. Well, he has cleansed me from my filthy habits. Sixteen months have rolled away since I threw the tobacco away forever, by the grace and Spirit of Christ helping me. Praise God. I feel to-day like a new man. The Lord has taken all the appetite away. Bless his name. I have had a hard fight, and many trials, but through Christ I have come off more than conqueror. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me. O praise him all ye saints, for he doeth mighty works.

I do rejoice in the blessed hope of the coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, and immortality through that dear Savior, who died that poor sinners, like me, might be saved. Your unworthy Bro. in Christ,

I. N. WILFONG.

LIGHT WANTED.

Will "M. G. S.," of Crisis June 23d, please tell us how he gets three births out of John third chapter, or make it clear that Jesus introduces more than two, i. e., of the flesh and of the Spirit? If "born of water," in v. 5, and "born of flesh," in v. 6, are not synonyms, we would very much like to have it shown from the Bible. Is not the word "water," in John 3: 5, used in the same way and sense that "water" and "waters" are used in Numbers 24: 7, and similar passages elsewhere? S. W. G.

A CHALLENGE!

AND ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD!!!

In the name of the Lord, and his people, I solemnly challenge any person living upon the face of the earth to prove the assertion, that human departed spirits are hovering around us, or that they communicate with immortal souls, or spirits, now on earth; or that they ever did in the past.

I have concluded finally to offer the above liberal reward for positive evidence that departed spirits do communicate with immortal or deathless spirits on earth. I will accept as evidence the Bible, or a tangible demonstration of science, reason, or sound common sense. In a word, give me the evidence if you can, from any source under the canopy of the heavens, if it be true, as Spiritists proclaim, with their abetters, that man is immortal, and cannot die.

Finally, if you are successful in finding that man has an immortal soul, immortal spirit, deathless spirit, or never-dying soul to save—in the Bible—inform me at once, and come get your money; or address JOHN MCQUEEN, Box 293, Hillsdale, Mich.

THE PROMISED "MORE ANON"

OF THE BETHEL TENT, CAMDEN, N. J.

It was on that memorable Friday night under those searching words, "Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you," that the young actress, before mentioned by Eld. Hook, received "the arrow of the Lord's deliverance." Blessed be his name forever. She saw that night what a righteous thing it was in God to recompense tribulation to her who had been such a persistent troubler of his dear children for so many years, and been the cause of the loss of so many souls. She could not think there was mercy for her. O no, not for such a sinner as she.

Two of these melancholy instances I mention, that young christians may hear and take warning, and not be ignorant of the devices of Satan, let him take what garb he may. A young man preparing for the holy office of the ministry, and his sister, were led away from Jesus by this young woman's artful devices. She set her heart upon having them as her companions, well knowing ere this they must give up their religion. To this end she bent every purpose of her heart, and finally succeeded in turning their feet from the house of God to the halls of mirth. O christian young man, beware of any influence that would lead you from the communion of saints. Be assured the enemy of all righteousness is at the bottom of it to secure your destruction if you heed it. Christian young woman, beware! Cry out, "Get thee hence Satan. Life, life, eternal life I must and will have."

Time rolled on. Her purpose was gained. They were fast friends in the broad road that leads to destruction. But the cup of pleasure had its poison, as it always has. The young man was laid upon his sick and dying bed with no Jesus to comfort him, and a poor solace, in such an hour, in the one for whom he had bartered his Lord. Upon her he turned his dying eyes, and calling her by name said, "Through your instrumentality I am lost! lost! lost!" She instantly fell senseless to the floor, and knew nothing more until it was all over with him. May God save you, young man, from such a fate. Are your steps beginning to depart from the Lord? Retrace then instantly, and hide in the bosom of Jesus. Here is the only safe place for you. In one year and a half his sister was carried to the same hopeless grave, avowing it to be from the same cause. O young woman, God save you from such a fate. Beware of your companions; let them be the lovers of Jesus, and you are safe.

Christian friends, will you pray for this stricken one. Hers is no ordinary case, and she is no ordinary individual. May God be pleased to honor himself in her as in Saul of Tarsus. We could but think of him on his way to Damascus, as she lay for hours prostrate in the tent. God give her sight and power to do his will, as to that servant of old, even if it is to show her how great things she must suffer for his name's sake. Amen.

Aug. 1st, the seventh Lord's day under the tent, was one never to be forgotten by the dear saints of God present. Blessed be his name forever. How my heart burns within me as I recall their shining faces and comforting words. From New York and Philadelphia, from Italy and from Iowa, from England and from Europe, they were assembled under that lovely canopy, to mingle hearts and voices in that our blessed theme,—Jesus has saved us poor sinners from death. O glory be to his most excellent name. Yea, and his soon coming again to give all his children life and glory in the kingdom of God upon the earth, was the solace of our hearts. O it was good to be there. The whole forenoon, by vote, was thus spent, and it was much too short to tell all the story. The work is widening and deepening, we humbly believe. To God be all the glory. Pray for us. In much christian love, your sister in Christ.

REPORT OF CONN. A. C. CONF.

Met at Cheshire Street, Ct., according to notice. Preaching Wednesday evening, July 21st, 1869, by H. H. Dickinson. Thursday A. M., social meeting, remarkable for the good feeling manifested. P. M., called to order by the President, at three o'clock, for business. Opened in form. Usual committees appointed. Preachers present: Ordained—B. Hitchcock, B. St. John, A. D. Flagg, I. B. Potter, W. S. Campbell, L. F. Moore, G. L. Teeple, H. Rockwell, W. J. Ripley, A. H. Steele, L. S. Luddington. Unordained—R. K. Stark, H. H. Dickinson, W. A. Durand, G. L. White, J. H. Hall, J. L. Wood, and M. L. Durand. Delegates—G. W. Denney and W. F. Carpenter, New Haven. L. Tiffany and S. Hall, Hartford. S. Cooper, Windsor. H. F. Bradley, Bristol. L. F. Arnold, East Haddam. W. W. Hosford and A Powell, New Britain.

On motion, a committee was appointed to consider the validity of the appointment of certain delegates to this conference, and reported as follows: The committee appointed to examine the qualifications of certain delegates would respectfully report; That we recommend that the conference accept as delegates, from their respective towns, brethren Arnold, Cooper, and Gilbert; but that in accepting these delegates, we establish no precedent to govern this conference hereafter. Report accepted.

The following reports were given: Eld. H. Rockwell.—Had labored all he could, in many places. Three sermons a week, besides Sunday. Has been himself blessed in his labors. Eld. W. J. Ripley reports an interest at Cold Spring, Wrightville, Pleasant Valley, and East Hartland. Eld. A. H. Steele had preached some last quarter. Church in New Haven making some advancement, and are in harmony. Elder L. S. Luddington.—Had been limited in consequence of ill health. Heart still in the work. Is writing a book to advance the truth of God. Bro. J. L. Wood has preached but three or four times last quarter. Has labored at home. W. A. Durand has been in the field during the past quarter. Wallingford at rather low ebb. Cheshire St. doing pretty well. West Haven in a bad way. M. L. Durand confirms above report. Work in Cheshire St, reviving. Has collected $9.00 for tent fund. H. H. Dickinson.—Been very sick all the quarter. Preached but three Sundays. J. H. Hall.—Has labored part of time at different places. The church at Scitico are wide awake; great interest; some conversions. G. L. White.—Has been out a large portion of the time at Square Pond, Scitico, Wolcottville, etc.

W. F. Carpenter, delegate from New Haven.—Church stands first rate. Excellent feeling; gaining in members; have a good Sabbath School, which is also gaining. The prayer and conference meetings are glorious. Difference of opinion does not hurt them, but all work in harmony. Have a good chapel to worship in. G. W. Denny, New Haven. The church love themselves, and all christians and sinners, and stand well, with no test of fellowship but the Spirit of Christ. L. Tiffany, Hartford.—As a church, rather low; but some individuals who are alive. Evening meetings not so well attended as could wish, but enough to claim the promise. Expecting better days. Sidney Hall confirms the above. S. Cooper, Windsor. No meetings at present. Three brethren holding on. H. F. Bradley, Bristol.—Small, but no bad report to bring. Steadfast. Not many outsiders interested. Prayer-meetings very interesting; preaching calculated to unite. H. Gilbert and L. F. Arnold, E. Haddam church.—When formed, in a flourishing condition. Bro. Moore labors at present, and his labors of late have been blessed.

Friday, 9 A. M. Prayer offered by Elder A. H. Steele. Ordination committee reported Bro. H. H. Dickinson as a candidate for ordination. Report unanimously approved, and the following resolution offered by Eld. W. S. Campbell; viz.:—The committee upon ordination having presented the name of our Bro. H. H. Dickinson for ordination, as a minister of the gospel, and the conference having voted to set apart Bro. Dickinson to the work of the gospel ministry; therefore, Resolved, That the recommendation of our brethren in Hartford, that Bro. H. H. Dickinson be ordained by this conference, be signed by the President and Secretary of the conference, and that he be ordained at Hartford, or at the approaching campmeeting at Windham, or as he shall himself elect.

Tent committee reported $182.41 on hand. Tent matters were discussed at some length, when the conference voted to raise $350 to purchase one. $111.00 were pledged on the spot, by churches and individuals; and the following motion offered by Bro. R. K. Stark; viz.:—That the tent committee be instructed to purchase a fifty foot circular tent; and that we appoint ourselves as a committee of the whole, to make efforts to raise money for deficiencies, which money with our pledges shall be paid into the hands of the committee, at the Conn. S. A. Campmeeting. Carried.

Campmeeting committee reported: Ground obtained at Windham, Conn., free. Preachers boarded free. Board, 75 cents per day. Horses, 75 cents per week. Ground easy of access, on the H. P. & F. R. Road, and the fare on R. R. reduced. See notice in Crisis.

1.30 P. M. Prayer offered by Eld. A. D. Flagg. Report of preachers and delegates continued. Elder B. Hitchcock.—Has been laboring at New Haven, Bristol, Square Pond, and other places, with good success, and loves the work. Eld. B. St. John.—Has preached but little last quarter. Expects in future to be more engaged. Eld. A. D. Flagg, laboring all he can. Also interesting reports from Elds. W. S. Campbell, L. F. Moore, and G. L. Teeple. W. W. Hosford, delegate, reported New Britain as doing well, and much engaged. Bro. A. D. Flagg reported Wrightville church in earnest. Bro. R. K. Stark said the brethren thought he was strong; so they kept him at work, and God had blessed his labors. Has labored all the time, except two Sabbaths. Is not tired of the work; has never filled an appointment of his own seeking.

On motion, a committee was appointed to nominate delegates from this conference to the National Advent Conference, to be held in the West. Committee reported the names of Elds. W. S. Campbell, B. Hitchcock, and A. H. Steele, which report was received as a whole.

Invitation from the New Haven church to hold our next session, which will be the Annual session, at their place. Accepted.

Vote of thanks to the church at Cheshire Street, for their kindness to us. The church received us very cordially. Ample provision was made for all, and all who came enjoyed it very much. Our meetings, both preaching and social, were excellent, and I think will result in good to the church. Adjourned to meet at New Haven, Oct. 13th, 1869, of which due notice will be given.

VERMONT CAMPMEETING.

Brethren in the Lord:—According to my best judgment, the best place for our campmeeting is in West Bethel, on Camp Brook. It is the most central part of the State, and the people are anxious to have it there, and will do every thing necessary to be done. Teams will be provided to carry baggage and people to and from the cars on reasonable terms. Cheap board also can be had on the ground. Plenty of horse-keeping at hay, grain, or grass.

I was with the church last Sabbath, and we talked the matter over, and appointed a committee to make arrangements, if it was decided to have it there. We thought we would have the meeting commence about the 20th of Sept. I have received letters from several brethren, and all are anxious to have such a meeting. Come, brethren, let us take hold of this thing, and have a good time. Tent-poles will be furnished on the ground for all that write to the committee. We made choice of Jona. Washburne, Clarke Davis, Geo. W. Lewis, Newman Lilley, and Wm. Magiveney, for committee. More next week.

GIFTS TO BRO. MANNING.

BRO. GRANT:—I dare say that it will be expected, and also desired, that an acknowledgment of the money that is received for the support of Bro. P. B. Manning should be put in the Crisis, so that all may know if we get what is sent. He has been quite sick, but is smart now. I have every reason to think that he is trying to live in readiness for the coming of the Lord. L. E. SAULPAUGH.

THE DORCAS MISSION.

Have been laboring in this mission for five weeks, and have been made an instrument of good to the perishing. Receipts for the five weeks: by mail, $100; donations, $6. Maria and little Mary are provided with excellent homes in Titusville, some four hundred and fifty miles distant from this city. They were in our Home, and many of our friends will rejoice in the Lord with us that they are so well provided for at this time. Little Mary has been there seven months, and Maria about three weeks.

Accompanying this article will be found an extract from one of our Philadelphia papers, whereby our friends may learn that our field is Satan's seat yet. Pray for me.

Your Affec. Bro. in Christ,

F. H. BURBANK.

LOW LIFE IN THE CITY.—It is said that one half of the world knows not how the other half lives. That this is true so far as the Philadelphia portion of the universe is concerned, every one whose business brings him in contact with all classes of society will admit. Every few months our papers are filled with descriptions of the misery and degradation of Baker, Bedford and Spafford streets. The visits to these places are generally made by the reporters in daylight, or early evening, few having the courage to undertake the inspection at midnight, or afterwards, when the night debauch of the poor outcast is ended, and they seek the shelter which their scant means afford. In the summer months the question of shelter is one that gives little anxiety to these people—a side-walk provides a sufficiently soft bed, and a door step or curb stone, a luxurious pillow. Any one who will take the trouble to visit Seventh street and note the exhibition to be witnessed from Lombard street south for a few squares, at three o'clock in the morning, may gain some conception of the means resorted to by these people to secure a night's lodging. The gin-shops and disreputable resorts give up their contents at this hour, and from thence until shortly after daylight, the time is devoted to rest or recuperation for the night's revelry. Door steps, cellar doors, sidewalks, and often times gutters, are packed with sleeping humanity, who lie so close together that even the policemen, familiar with the locality, find difficulty in pacing the portion of the beat occupied by these miserable beings. Blacks and whites—the former in the majority—males and females, are indiscriminately huddled together, losing, in the few hours of a sodden sleep, the consciousness of their degradation and the utter hopelessness of the future which lies before them. Children, too, are frequently seen the occupants of these out-door resting places, and the whole picture presented night after night or morning after morning is one to cause sadness in the heart of the most callous spectator.

The byways and alleys leading off from Seventh street in the same neighborhood, also have their compliment of out-door lodgers, and judging from appearances hundreds of the residents in the vicinity thus secure their night's repose during the summer months. Occasionally in the midst of all this mass of misery and degradation that has almost driven from the victims the consciousness of humanity, there comes a touch of human nature that shows that all are not so utterly depraved as to lose their sense of manhood or womanhood. One morning last week we noticed in the crowd of sleepers, a man and woman closely nestled together in each other's arms. Both bore the appearance of abject poverty, their clothing being in tatters, and scarcely sufficient to cover their nakedness; both were bloated with rum, and both were evidently sleeping off the effects of a night's debauch. The woman, however, with the instinct of her sex, had drawn her head upon the breast of her sleeping companion, and there had unconsciously sought protection from one who could not even protect himself. The picture was a suggestive one, devoid as it was of anything in the slightest degree bordering upon vulgarity, and being nothing but a scene of woman's reliance upon the care of her seemingly stronger associate.

Correspondence.

From Bro. J. B. Wadsworth.

BRO. GRANT:—Since I wrote my last letter, in regard to obtaining a horse and wagon for my work, I have ascertained that such an one as I should need would cost here much more money than I should probably obtain, unless I waited here a long time—longer than I can wait. I am anxious to be at work now, as my health is much restored; and so I have concluded to go to Louisville, where I have acquaintances, and labor in and around the city, in distributing tracts and holding meetings among the poor, and at the same time prepare my little work for the press. I have received towards the horse $61.75, which I shall hold subject to the direction of those who sent the money. If they wish me to use it towards publishing my book, or scattering tracts, I will do so. I have now concluded to operate in the large cities and villages, and not travel through the country on foot as I have done. My plan is to go to a city and work there as long as I can find good ground to work upon. After I have done all that I think the Lord wants me to do, then I will go to another city, and so go to every city in the South, if the Lord does not come, and my health will permit. I have come to this conclusion after talking over the matter with Brn. Himes and Leslie; and I now feel that this mode of working would be better than to travel through the country, either on foot or by horse and carriage. I have also found that I could not pay my expenses in going with a horse and carriage, unless I took secular books with me to sell, which I do not want to do.

The friends may rely upon my getting out my book, and as soon as possible I will report the names and money that I have received for the horse in my next letter. I go to Louisville, Ky., in a few days, where all who wish to write can direct. Yours in love,

J. B. WADSWORTH.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. J. G. HOOK, Philadelphia, Aug. 2nd, writes:—"The battle goes well. The interest is increasing every week. We had another baptism yesterday, and are to have another next Wednesday evening. We had a precious season at our love-feast yesterday morning. It occupied the forenoon. I preached in the Delaware river, and twice in the Bethel Tent, to large congregations, who listened with interest, with few exceptions. Some are being converted, others reclaimed, and many of God's children, of the various sects, are being blest and refreshed while listening to the word of the Lord; and many are willing to admit that we preach the gospel as it was preached by the apostles and primitive church."

BRO. JOSIAH KELLOGG, Vergennes, Vt., July 18th, writes:—"My poor heart cries out Amen. Why? you may ask. Because the good Lord has heard our prayer in regard to a campmeeting in Vermont. Brethren and sisters, let us hasten to the tented grove once more.

Bro. Cleaveland, I wish to say, I think such a meeting should be located as close to a R. R. as possible. Stockbridge, Cabot, or Bethel, would be quite convenient; but you must use your own judgment in the matter. Brethren and sisters in Vermont, let every one of us make an extra effort to get to the meeting. Come with hearts filled with the love of God, heads and hands clear from every thing that will divide. Come with a desire to honor God and to save souls, and to get ready for the Master when he shall come in his kingdom."

Bro. A. F. Dugger, Empire Prairie, Mo., writes:—"By request I visited this place last spring, and gave a course of lectures, which resulted in the organization of a church of seven members. Three have since been added to our number, and they are in a live condition. Through their zealous labors truth is gaining ground; many are becoming interested, and are inquiring, Are these things so? Bro. C. W. Smith, of Tamarac, Ill., called on us a few days ago, and has helped greatly to increase the interest. I met with them today, and spoke words of comfort, and after consultation with the church, Bro. Harrison Billmire was ordained to the work of the gospel ministry. He is a good, reliable, intelligent man, filled with the Spirit of the Lord, and well calculated to present the truth. May the Lord crown his labors with success, and send others into this new field to labor for the salvation of the people."

Bro. B. P. Manning, Goffstown, N. H., writes, Aug. 4th:—"Dearly beloved brethren and sisters, I am looking and earnestly desiring to see Jesus, and be made like him; and on this account I know that I have got to live a holy life, and be humble and submissive to the will of God. I know that we must be separate from this world, and follow the Lord fully, or we shall never see the King in his beauty. Brn., do be faithful to the end, and God will save you in his everlasting kingdom. Let us love one another; 'for God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life.' May God save us all in his kingdom. Amen. Thy brother in tribulation."

Bro. Simeon Roby writes;—"Bless the Lord forevermore, that sinners are coming to Jesus. Five went forward in baptism to-day. One was a little girl nine years of age. Jesus says, 'Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.'

A word to you, dear brethren and sisters in Christ. May the good Lord help you to be faithful a little longer, for Jesus is very soon coming to take us home. O how glad I am. Then we can reign with him forevermore. Then we shall meet loved ones, to part no more forever. No more sorrow then. Glory be to God. Home at last. O, let us all be good."

VERMONT CAMPMEETING.

I am glad Bro. Cleaveland has broached the subject of a campmeeting in Vermont. I am in favor of such a meeting, and I suggest that Bro. Cleaveland name four brethren, residing in different towns in the State, to act with him as a committee to select a location for such a meeting. I think there could be a grove secured in this vicinity, on the Rutland and Burlington railroad; say Rutland, North Clarendon, or East Wallingford. Come, brethren, let us take hold of this subject, and have a meeting in Vermont.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

Madrid, August 2. The Captain General of Madrid has addressed a letter to Regent Serrano and General Prim in which he says: "I took part in the revolution hoping to see morality, law and justice succeed to former abuses. It is now ten months since the revolution was accomplished. My hopes have been deceived. Greater abuses, wide-spread immorality and deplorable anarchy prevail—disorders to which it is absolutely necessary to put an end. The Constitution having proclaimed a monarchy the immediate choice of a king is indispensable. If the Government does not shortly consider the question I shall abandon all hopes as to consolidation of the revolution and retire to private life."

This letter was read in the council of Ministers and created a profound impression.

Dresden, Aug. 3. A dreadful accident occurred yesterday in the coal mines in the mountain districts, near this city. The loss of life was appalling, over 300 persons being killed outright. No particulars are at hand, but the accident is said to have been attributable to the stormy weather.

Berlin, Aug. 3. The preliminary surveys for a ship canal through Schleswig-Holstein, to connect the Baltic and the North Seas, have been completed. It is thought that the Prussian Government will undertake the work.

London, Aug. 3. A letter from Madrid says that the state of affairs in that country is disquieting. There is no prospect ahead but gloom and confusion. The Government has no fears of the success of the Carlists, but does not think that all is lost for the Prince of Asturias.

London, Aug. 3. The Daily Telegraph says: "France has now entered on a career of national development unexampled at any stage of her national existence. The Emperor now assumes the character of a constitutional sovereign, under circumstances which encourage us to hope for the success of an enterprise fraught with immense consequences, not for France only, but for the world."

DOMESTIC.

Great Fire in Philadelphia.—Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 4. Since seven o'clock this evening an immense fire has been raging in the United States bonded warehouse on Lombard street wharf building, containing 30,000 barrels of whisky, which was totally destroyed. The loss will probably reach $2,500,000.

The fire was caused by an explosion of a boiler. It is thought that the engineer and watchman have perished in the flames. Further particulars will be forwarded as soon as they can be obtained. The fire is now spreading frightfully.

SECOND DISPATCH.

Midnight. The fire is still raging with little prospect of being subdued until morning. The whole Fire Department are on the ground, but from the combustible nature of the contents, is unable to more than prevent the further spreading of the flames.

THIRD DISPATCH.

1 A. M. The United States warehouse on Lombard street wharf, better known as Patterson's storehouse, a six story brick building 250 feet by 150 feet, and containing 40,000 barrels of whiskey and other goods, valued at 10 or 11 millions of dollars, took fire at 7 o'clock this evening, and up to this hour has defied the efforts of the firemen to subdue the flames.

The burning liquor, running through the streets like rivers, destroys the hose, thus interfering with the work of the firemen. It is impossible to state how far the fire will extend. A large number of minor casualties have occurred, but no lives are known to have been lost, except four children, who were killed by the falling of bricks.

The Minnesota Tornado.—About twelve miles southwest from here, in the town of Raymond, in Stearns County, was the dwelling house of a well-to-do and respectable farmer, Mr. Richard Richardson, formerly of Rice County, in this State. At the time of the commencement of the storm on Friday night, he and his family were quietly enjoying their home, with others of the neighborhood, who were stopping over night with them. About twelve o'clock Mr. Richardson remarked to his wife that he feared they would have a hard storm. Before he could arouse the family, or even make any preparation himself, the tornado burst upon them with such force as to tear to pieces and scatter about for a distance of a quarter of a mile the entire house and its contents, together with the inmates. There were at the time twelve persons in the building, the most of them up stairs asleep.

It was a block or log house, 16x24, one and a half stories high, well dovetailed at the corners and pinned with two-inch oak-pins. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson and the small child alone remained in the ruins of the house. John, the eldest son, twenty-two years old, was carried thirty-four rods and dropped on the ground, so badly bruised and mangled that there is but little hope of his recovery. George, the second son, thirteen years old, was also carried thirty rods, and had his right ankle broken, the bone protuding through the flesh. He is also badly bruised in many places. While the third son, three years of age, was borne some thirty rods, and hurled to the ground so badly injured that he lived only a few moments. Two other children, little girls, were taken from their beds, twisted up in their bed clothes, and dropped on the opposite side of the building from the rest, unharmed. Mrs. R. received some injuries on and about the head and face, but nothing more serious. This is about the extent of the injuries received by the family of Mr. R. Miss Anna Wilson, a school teacher, stopping at the house of Mr. R., having some fears at the time, had risen, dressed and was sitting up when the wind struck the building. She was carried with the rest, mixed in with broken pieces of timber, boxes, barrels, cup-boards, trunks, bedding and furniture, and the entire contents of the upper part of the house, thirty-seven rods, and deposited in the wheat field. She was so badly bruised that there is little hope of her recovery. Liberty Raymond, twenty-two years old, eldest son of L. B. Raymond, from whom the town of Raymond takes its name, was among the unfortunate. He was carried about the same distance as Mr. R's. oldest son, and so badly mangled that he only survived a short time. The scene at the house when the daylight came is much easier imagined than described, Mr. R. being the only one left after the disaster to collect in the dead and dying, and to care for the injured ones. After looking for and finding most of them in the midnight gloom, it being very dark and stormy, he proceeded to the neighbors to give the alarm and procure assistance. All of the medical aid was soon on the road to the scene of distress.—St. Cloud Jour.

Proposition to unite the Greek and Catholic Churches.—It is currently reported in Catholic circles that a proposition is to be made before the coming Ecumenical council to unite the Greek and Catholic Churches on the ground that they are one in doctrine, and that their disciplinary differences can be reconciled by means of mutual concessions. It is well known among theologians that the principal obstacles to the union of these churches were in relation to the filioque in the creed or the procession of the Holy Spirit from the first and second Persons of the Blessed Trinity and to the supremacy of the Pope; but in all else, the two churches are one in doctrine and usages. A cardinal will publish the distinctive peculiarities of the Greek Church before the Council. Should this union be effected catholicity will suddenly receive an accession of sixty millions of converts.—Boston Herald.

☞ The Watchman and Reflector does not think much of Henry Ward Beecher's "Talks Called Sermons." It says they are singularly devoid of everything distinctively evangelical, that he proves nothing and disproves nothing, and "were it to characterize Mr. Beecher by the drift of his teachings, by their tendencies, and by their actual influence upon the popular mind," it should call him grand caterer for the spirit of unbelief and irreverence. We fear the Watchman doesn't appreciate the "Beechers," and that it has not read the charge given to one of Henry Ward's nephews recently, at his ordination, in which he was charged "never to forget that he was the son of his father, the grandson of his grandfather, and the nephew of his uncle."—Boston Journal.

Old World Walkers.—The runners of the nomadic tribes of Central Africa surpass anything done by the celebrated runners and walkers of other races. When they carry government dispatches they run for days without sleep. In order to keep the chest free they seize with both hands the ends of a stick, which they place horizontally behind their neck. Their stock of provisions consists of a few dozen dates, and their whole costume of a pair of trousers; perhaps they also carry a pair of sandals, which they put on when the sand of the desert becomes too hot to bear. On the way they lose little time as possible. When they are out of breath they stop, count up to sixty inspirations and continue the journey. They sleep only two or three hours out of the twenty-four; and, in order not to oversleep themselves, they tie a rope of date-bark to one foot and set it on fire. They know exactly how long it will burn, and when it reaches the foot the pain makes them jump up, and off they go once more upon their errand.

Passing Events.

☞ Every nation has its peculiar habits in this as in other things, and the effect of diet on national character is too well known to be discussed. It is said of Americans that they eat too much, too fast and too irregularly. Wisdom says: "Live frugally, that you may live happily; shut not your heart against those who have a claim on your hospitality; but remember that if they really esteem and love you, they will come, not to look at your table and furniture, but to enjoy your society."

☞ Computed by average, one province of China contains 19,000 temples; and the empire, reckoning only fifteen out of the eighteen provinces, would contain, in round numbers, 300,000. The whole number of idols in these temples for hero worship, reckoning ten to each, would be about 3,000,000. These temples cost from $500 to $100,000 each. Regarding the average as only $1,000, we have $1,000,000,000 as the approximate value of idol temples in China, which is, perhaps, altogether too low an estimate.

☞ The Jewish Record says that the Synod of Jewish Rabbis, which has just been held, has recognized three new principles. 1. Individual authority in religious matters. 2. The primary importance of free scientific investigation. 3. The rejection of the belief in Israel's restoration.

☞ In China man and wife never walk together arm in arm in public, nor even side by side, but the wife always follows her lord at a respectable distance, as the women do among American Indians. At social parties the sexes sit at different tables, occupy separate rooms, and visit only among themselves.

☞ The instruments of the observatory of Vesuvius indicate that a fresh internal disturbance is commencing in the interior of the mountain.

☞ The work of closing the under-ground tenements in New York is being energetically pushed by the Board of Health, and some two thousand of the wretched people who huddled in the damp and noxious cellars have already been compelled to seek more healthful homes.

☞ The third International Congress of the League of Peace and Liberty is to assemble at Lausanne on the 14th of September next, and the sittings will last until the 18th, inclusive. The principal object of this association is the establishment of a Republican Federation of the nations of Europe.

☞ One peculiarity of the present summer is the coolness, almost coldness of the nights. Watchmen and others whose business keeps them out o'nights say they have not known such a summer in that respect for many years.

☞ Father Gavazzi, in a letter to a friend in the North, says "that a crisis in Italy is approaching," and "that he is preparing for the great crusade."

☞ A young man in Jefferson county, Indiana, was taken sick about two years ago, and fell into a deep sleep, from which he only awoke a few weeks since, demanding his breakfast.

☞ The longest trail at the Seventh Regiment Ball at Saratoga was worn by a New York lady, and measured twelve feet.

☞ The drouth in the Southside counties, Va., is so severe, that in some places even the trees are dying.

SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

Providence permitting, a General Campmeeting will be held at Springfield, Mass., on the new camp-ground, beautifully located, about one and a quarter miles from the R. R. Depot, on land of C. W. Chapin, Esq., known as "Chapin's Grove," commencing Saturday, August 28th, and continuing till Sept. 6th.

Ample accommodations will be provided for board at the new and commodious boarding house on the ground. Board 85 cents per day. Breakfast, or supper, 35 cents each. Dinner at 50 cents, excepting Sunday, Sept. 5th, when it will be 75 cents. The boarding department is under the charge of the Committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Fare on the Boston and Albany Railroad is reduced one third, which will be $4.00 from Boston to Springfield and return. Tickets to be obtained at the ticket offices, between Boston and Worcester at Grantville, Holliston, Natic, Westboro, Milford, and Southville; beyond Worcester, at the usual stations. On the New Haven and Hartford R. R., fare is reduced one third; tickets to be obtained at New Haven, Meriden, Berlin, Hartford, and Windsor Locks. On the Conn. R. R., fare is reduced one third from So. Vernon and intermediate stations to Springfield. On all the above roads campmeeting tickets, good from Aug. 25th to Sept. 7th, must be called for at the ticket offices; and they must also be signed by the Secretary at the campmeeting. Remember this.

On the Mass. and Vt. R. Road, persons will purchase regular tickets at the offices for Greenfield, and then get their tickets on the Conn. R. R. for Springfield. All that come on this road from Brattleboro, Vernon, Fitchburg, Athol, etc., having purchased the usual ticket, will have a free return pass, on application to the Secretary.

On the Worcester and Nashua R. R. Road, friends from Nashua, N. H., Groton Junction, and Clinton, will purchase regular tickets at the stations for Worcester, at which place they will purchase tickets for Springfield; and free return passes from Worcester will be furnished them by the Secretary on the ground.

On the Providence and Worcester R. R. Campmeeting Tickets at one third discount can be obtained at the Depot in Providence, good from August 26th to Sept. 7th. Call for Campmeeting Tickets.

Arrangements have been made with the Eastern R. R. Co., by which those taking the cars from Portsmouth and intermediate places for Boston, paying full fares at the ticket offices, can have FREE RETURN PASSES by application to the Secretary, on the camp-ground.

Friends coming from New York can come and return for $4.50 by taking the boat at New Haven, and thence by cars to Springfield. The boat which leaves New-York at 3.15 P. M., connects with the train at the steamboat wharf at New Haven. The other boat, which leaves New York at 11 o'clock P. M., reaches New Haven in time for the early morning train; but passengers will have to go across the city by horse cars to the depot of the Hartford and New Haven R. R. Tickets for the Rail Road to the campmeeting will be sold on the steamboats. Passengers buying through tickets, will be furnished with a return ticket, which will be good only when endorsed by the Secretary of the camp-ground.

Cars leave the Boston and Albany depot, Boston, at 5, 7, and 8½ A. M.; and at 3, 4½, and 9 P. M.

Arrangements with any other roads that may be made, will be noticed hereafter.

Advent Christian Association.

The next Annual Meeting of this Society will be held at Springfield, Mass., commencing Tuesday, Aug. 31st, at nine o'clock A. M. As business of unusual importance is to come before this meeting, it is hoped that every church will be represented by delegates, and that preachers make an effort to be present at the opening meeting.

Every church co-operating with the A. C. A. is entitled to one delegate, and one additional delegate for every fifty members above the number of twenty-five members. Each delegate must bring credentials from the church to which he belongs.

H. F. Carpenter, Clerk.

Alton Bay Campmeeting.

Providence permitting, a general campmeeting will be held at Alton Bay, N. H., commencing Sunday, Sept. 5th, to hold through the week and over the following Lord's day. Ample provision will be made for board and horse-keeping. Board at 80 cents per day; breakfast and supper, 30 cents each; dinner, 50 cents; horse-keeping (hay and grain) 75 cents per day. The boarding department is under the charge of the committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Arrangements have been made with the railroad and steamboat companies, as follows: Boston and Maine R. R., trains leave Boston for the meeting 7.30 A. M., 12 M., and 3 P. M.,—half fare. Purchase regular tickets at Boston and all intermediate stations for Alton Bay, and friends coming expressly to attend the meeting will be entitled to a free return pass, to be furnished them at Alton Bay.

Boston, Concord, and Montreal R. R.; trains leave Concord at 10.30 A. M. and 3.25 P. M. for the Wiers. Trains leave Littleton for the Wiers at 9 A. M.,—half fare. Those coming from Concord, Littleton, and Plymouth, can go through to the camp-ground the same day, by waiting at the Wiers. The fare on the steamboats one way.

Connecticut and Passumpsic River R. R.; trains leave Derby at 7 A. M. for Wells River, Plymouth, Wiers, and Alton Bay,—half fare. Passengers will purchase regular tickets, and receive free return checks on the camp-ground, signed by the Secretary of the meeting. If any of our friends wish, they can come for the same a week before the meeting.

Eastern R. R., half fare. Purchase regular tickets at the several stations, and receive free return passes on the camp ground, signed by T. H. Ford, Portland, Saco, and Portsmouth R. R.; trains leave Portland at 6.45 A. M., 8.40 A. M., and 2.55 P. M., for Dover and Alton. Fare about two thirds.

Fare reduced on the Concord and Portsmouth, and Nashua railroads, one half.

If our friends in Mass. or Maine, interested in the meeting, can get the fare reduced on any other railroads, we hope they will; and as we have been so successful in getting the fare reduced to the meeting, we hope our friends will avail themselves of it, and also of a good meeting. In the meantime let prayer go up to God for his blessing.

Campmeeting at Pittsfield, Me.

The campmeeting at Pittsfield, Maine, to commence Aug. 23d, will be held on the same ground of last year, about two miles southwest from the village. Those coming by cars will stop at Pittsfield depot. We want the brethren to bring their own tents, bedding, and provisions, as far as practicable, and be prepared to help the preachers and the poor to a good home, and have an old-fashioned campmeeting. Old-fashioned, we say, like as we used to have when "What think ye of Christ?" was the test, with a united love for his appearing, and an entire preparation for the event; when our Father's house was not a place of merchandise, but a place of prayer, prevailing prayer with God. Is his ear heavy that he cannot hear, or his arm shortened that he cannot save? Nay, verily; but bickering and strife and evil work have too far separated us from the love of God in Christ.

And now to every member of the living Vine, in all the region round about, who can, we extend a hearty invitation to come up to camp once more in the name and power of God, leaving far behind side issues, and questions that gender strife; take Christ with the cross upon the heart, with the golden rule in the hand, and let us prove the Lord with tithes and offerings, and see if he will not once more pour us out a blessing. Servants of the household, come with the word of faith, the bread and water of life.

To avoid confusion, we wish it distinctly understood, that the appointment for a campmeeting in Maine, in the vicinity of Bangor, is another meeting, to be held by those believing in the non-reliving of the wicked dead. The Great Shepherd will care for all the sheep and lambs and bring them at last into the one precious fold. Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly.

By order of the committee chosen at the Pittsfield meeting last fall,

F. A. Baker.
I. K. Lombard.
I. Damman.

Campmeeting in Maine.

At a meeting in Holden, last Sunday, the brethren decided to have a campmeeting in the vicinity of Bangor, to commence about Sept. 13th. Particulars hereafter. For the Brethren,

Geo. W. Brown.

Conn. and R. I. Campmeeting.

Oak Grove Advent Camp, Windham, Conn.

There will be a campmeeting at the above mentioned place, commencing Saturday, Aug. 14th, and continuing eight days. This is a new field, and offers many encouragements for one of the best meetings ever enjoyed. The word of invitation is to churches, families, and individuals. One and all, far and near, come up to the feast.

You will find beauty and convenience of location. The ground is situated on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R., five miles east of Willimantic, and half way between Waldo's and South Windham stations. Cars will stop on the ground which will be known as Camp Shetucket Station. Fare will be reduced on the Providence, Hartford, and Fishkill R. R. 30 per cent from all stations east or west of ground. Fare from Providence and return, $2.50, and the same or further reduction is expected from other roads. The grove is as clean as a carpet, free from dust, and has an excellent spring of water close by.

Your expenses can be light. The committee hope to bring this meeting as near to the old-fashioned campmeetings in simplicity and power as possible. The expense of the ground is nothing, and its fitting up trifling, so that no heavy burdens will be thrown upon those who come. Board not exceeding 75 cts. per day; also arrangements for individual boarding. Rooms in a neat, unoccupied house near by, to let cheap, for cooking and lodging purposes. Lodgings in private families for those who apply early, at most reasonable rates. Rich pasturing for horses, at one shilling per day, or from 50 cts. to 75 cts. per week; also feed in stables, at low prices.

The object of this meeting is to carry the light of Divine truth into this new field; to proclaim aloud the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ; to teach transgressors their ways, that sinners may be converted to God, flee the "wrath to come," and "lay hold on eternal life." We trust none will come for strife or controversy with their brethren, nor to press some side issue; such will meet no favor. But we exhort all to come in the spirit and power of Elijah's God, to be workers together with God against unbelief and sin. We assuredly expect the Lord with us.

We say again, Come. The whole region around the ground waits to welcome us and bid us come. Let distant churches unite to get fares reduced on their respective R. Roads. Bring your tents, also ample bedding for each individual. May the Spirit of God summon the host.

I. B. Potter,
B. Hitchcock,
E. Bellows,
H. F. Carpenter,
} Committee of Arrangements.

P. S. By team the Camp is eighteen miles southwest from Danielsonville; fifteen west of Plainfield; four south of Scotland, and three from Windham Centre, Ct.

☞ Special Notice.

CHANGE IN CONVEYANCE.

On account of the trains on the New London and Northern R. R. not connecting at Willimantic with the trains on the Hartford, Providence, and Fishkill R. R., all those passing over the New London and Northern R. R., to Oak Grove, Camp Shetucket, are requested to leave the cars at South Windham Depot, instead of changing cars at Willimantic. Teams will be there to take passengers to the camp-ground, on the arrival of both morning and afternoon trains, for the same price as paid on the cars from Willimantic. Inquire for Zenas Fairfield's team.

Campmeeting tickets can be had at Palmer, Stafford Springs, Norwich and New London, as follows:—

From Palmer to South Windham and return			$1.55
Stafford Springs	"	"	.90
New London	"	"	1.20
Norwich	"	"	.80

I. B. Potter, for Committee.

☞ Fare Reduced!

Fare to the R. I. and Ct. Campmeeting, Windham, Ct., will be reduced about one third from all stations on the Hartford, Providence, and Fishkill R. R. One half reduction can be had on the Northern and New London R. R. from all and any station that will order ten tickets or more. Let the brethren along this line see to this at once, and send orders to the superintendent. The N. and W. R. R. will sell tickets from all stations through to the camp and return at 30 per cent reduction. Camp baggage and tents free of charge.

Passengers for the Oak Grove Camp Shetucket meeting, coming from either north or south on the New London and Northern R. R., will stop at South Windham, and not at Willimantic. Teams will run from there to the ground.

Now arise! Let us go up and build. Come at the commencement, and stay through. The meeting will hold till Aug. 23d. Let us sacrifice time and money for the love and kingdom of Jesus. We propose to pray unitedly at mid-day throughout the week preceding the meeting for the Divine blessing upon the camp. How many will join us?

☞ Remember and call for tickets to Camp Shetucket, Windham, Ct.

H. F. Carpenter, for Com.

Notice.

The New Hampshire Mission Tent is pitched in Rye, N. H., and will remain as long as the Lord's blessing seems to rest upon the efforts being made to save sinners. Brn. H. F. Carpenter, E. Bellows, and Sr. S. K. Paine, are there to labor with others. We earnestly desire all those who can make it practicable, and are living where they can know the mind of the Lord concerning them, to inquire if it may not be duty for them to come to this meeting and labor as the Lord directs.

Theo. H. Ford.

P. S.—I arranged with Brn. Smith and Shorey, the other two committee, to have the N. H. Tent for this meeting. T. H. F.

Notice.

The Union Female Missionary Association will hold its annual meeting on Springfield campground, Tuesday, August 31st, 1869, at one o'clock P. M. All the preaching Sisters and members of the Association are requested to be present, as some matters with reference to the best interest of the Association are to be considered. Come with hearts interested in the work of the Lord, and pray much that we may have the Spirit of Jesus to direct us in the transaction of business, that this meeting may be profitable to all. Reports from the different female missionaries will be given at this meeting. M. McKinstry, Secretary.

Tent Meeting.

The New York State Mission Tent will be pitched at Baptist Hill, Bristol, Ontario Co., N. Y., on Friday, Aug. 13th, on the same ground as last year, and continue over the two following Sabbaths. All are invited to attend. Preaching by Bro. Jonas Wendell and Bro. Wm. Fenn.

By order of Committee,
Oliver B. Brown, Clerk.

Tent Meeting.

The Lord willing, a tent meeting will be held in New Milford, Ct., on the old ground, owned by Dr. Taylor, commencing Aug. 12th, to continue as the Lord may direct. Come, brethren, let us once more rally around our standard, and raise the banner of truth and righteousness.

A. D. Flagg.

Grove Meeting at Westfield, Pa.

There will be a grove meeting at Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa. (near the village), commencing Friday, Aug. 27th, to continue over the Sabbath following. C. F. Sweet, D. Cogswell, and others, are expected to preach the word. All are invited to attend. For the brethren, J. W. Taylor.

The Maine Mission Tent.

The Maine Mission Tent will be pitched in Rockland City, on the corner of Gay and Broadway streets, Thursday, Aug. 12th. Meetings to commence in the evening, at half-past seven o'clock, and continue each day, afternoon and evening, over Lord's day, and as much longer as thought best. Brethren, pray for us, and such as can, come and work with us. I. C. Wellcome.

Tent-Meeting, Camden City, N. J.

On account of the deep and increasing interest manifested in the Tent meeting now being held in Camden City, N. J., it has been voted by the churches and congregation to continue it perhaps two weeks longer, or as long as the interest demands. Preaching three times Sundays and five evenings of each week, by Elders H. K. Flagg, J. G. Hook, and others.

R. Willard.
J. M. Steyler.
J. N. Welfong.

Notice.

The New Hampshire Mission Tent will be pitched in North Conway, N. H., Thursday evening, Aug. 12th, and remain as long as it may seem duty. There has never, to our knowledge, been a single sermon on the signs of the times, the state of the dead, and kindred Bible truths, preached in all that region; and the place, at this season, is full of boarders, who have ample opportunity to hear. Preaching brethren and others are invited to take hold and help in the meetings.

By order of the Committee,
L. C. McKinstry.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.20; single, by mail, 23 cts.
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.
9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.
10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

For the World's Crisis.

AFTER REST.

As some adventurer, long inert,
Or martial veteran, long in peace,
Longs for the wild and billowy deep,
Or the loud clangor of the strife,
So longs my soul to engage with all
Its strength, once more, in battling for
The truth, where deepest darkness dwells.
I long to plunge into the depths
Of conflict, and in Jesus' name
Strike hard and telling blows, "until
He comes, whose right it is to reign,"
And gives the victor's crown.

How can I longer rest, when loud
The Macedonian cry is heard
On every hand, "Come in the name
Of Jesus, come and bring us light!"
How can I joys of home consult,
When Master says, "Go forth and teach,
And I'll be with you to the end!"

And when I see the tempest cloud
Of judgment rising o'er the heads
And threatening to engulf in night,
How can I fail to lift my voice,
And, pointing to the Lamb of God,
Cry, "Flee for refuge unto him
Who hath salvation in his hand,
And that right soon bestowed!"

O, place me in the foremost ranks,
Where death itself is hurtling near,
And hail of persecution falls
In blinding, withering sheets, until
The flesh is weary, and I turn
Once and again to Christ for help.
Let me but know I'm serving him,
And I can count it all as joy;
And, even though I fall, can say,
"Praise God for light amid the gloom."

For the World's Crisis.

HOW LONG THE VISION?

"How long . . . the vision, . . . the daily, . . . and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot."—Dan. 8: 13.

The question is sometimes asked, If the sanctuary is not cleansed till the end of the twenty-three hundred days, how can the host, the church, be delivered, raised from the dead, previous to the ending of the days? The daily and the transgression of desolation, the two wicked world powers, Paganism and Popery, were to tread down the church, for a definite period of time. But no one will contend that the Papacy has trodden down the church, since the Pope was dethroned in 1798, where the "time and times and the dividing of time" ended. Dan. 7: 25. There the judgment sit, and took away the dominion of the Pope to consume and to destroy the saints. v. 26. We find in Rev. 13th chap. a beast which is identical with Daniel's "little horn." And the Catholic church was mouth for that beast, to speak blasphemies against God, and to lead the church of Christ into captivity, and to kill with the sword for forty-two months; at the end of which, that power which had led into captivity also went into captivity (verses 5, 10), which was fulfilled in 1798, when Berthier, a French General, entered Rome, and took the Pope from the Vatican, and carried him to Valence, in France, where he died a captive. Since that time, the abomination of desolation has not trodden down the host.

But the sanctuary (koh desh), holy land, was to be trodden down two thousand and three hundred days, in answer to the question, How long the vision? but it does not say that the host should be trodden down that length of time. "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21: 24. Then Jerusalem will be justified, vindicated, pardoned, freed from guilt, built up, by the punishment of her destroyer, her desolator, Rome. Then God's indignation will cease on that land; "for at the time appointed the end shall be." Dan. 8: 19.

Paganism had trodden down the host for many years before the twenty-three hundred days commenced. For they did not begin till the Persian Ram pushed against Daniel's people, the Jews, in the twelfth year of Artaxerxes, the fifth king of Persia, B. C. 426. It was the daily abomination that put the worthies in the fiery furnace, Daniel in the lion's den, sawed Isaiah asunder; also that put the apostles to death, and was the desolator of Jerusalem. While it was the Papal abomination that desolated the church, from the time the Pope got possession of Rome, in A. D. 538, the year that the Ostrogoths, the third horn, was plucked up, and held the seat, till 1798, Daniel uses the word "abominations" in the plural number. Dan. 9: 27. Some people tell us that the daily, in Dan. 8: 13, is the true worship. But no such thing as sacrifice is found in the original. If the daily is the true worship, then the church trod down itself. For the daily trod down the host. This is not very sound logic.

I will now introduce an article on the daily, written some years since, by Eld. George Storrs, which I think is very good.

Constantine declared in favor of Christianity in the fourth century, but Paganism had its temple and altar at Rome still; and was not utterly thrown down, or taken away, till A. D. 508, when Vitalian, with an army of Huns and Bulgarians, mostly idolaters, decided themselves the champions of the Catholic faith. That mighty revolution caused the taking away of the Pagan rites at Rome, as we have seen, and thus the end come to the Pagan power. From these facts, it is clear that Clovis, king of France (converted in 496), was the first Catholic power that ever possessed supreme Roman authority, and that he received it from the emperor in 508.

The 1290 years passed on, and their termination witnessed the abolition of the Papal government in Rome in 1798. Catholicism gained supremacy in 508, and Popery in 538, when the Ostrogothic empire ceased, and the Pope was set up in its place.

Clovis, from the time of his conversion, devoted his time and energies to the extension of the Catholic faith, and carried forward his wars to that end. His last great battle was fought in the conquest of the Visigoths, and their subjection to the faith in 508; and on his return home, he was met at the city of Tours by the embassadors of Anastasius, emperor of Constantinople, conferring on Clovis the insignia and titles of consul of Rome and patrician. In the same year Arthur, king of the Britons, was crowned by a Catholic bishop so that a Catholic king of the west, for the first time, became the supreme Roman power in 508. This was the supremacy of Catholics, not of Popery. The supremacy of the Pope was in 538.

And from the time the daily shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days. Dan. 12: 11. The abomination of desolation began to be set up when the daily was taken away, in 508; but was not fully set up till 538, when three horns had been plucked up. And the Pope got the former seat of the western empire at Rome. Rev. 13: 2. So all can see that the 1290 days began thirty years before the 1260, and both end at the same period of time; viz., 1798.

Three of the first horns, or kingdoms, were to be plucked up by the roots before him. (1) In 493, ten years from the time of the establishment of the last of the ten kings, the Heruli in Rome and Italy were subverted by the Ostrogoths. (2.) In 533–4, the Vandals, another of the ten kingdoms, were conquered by the Greeks. (3.) In 538, the Greeks conquered the Ostrogoths, for the purpose of establishing the supremacy of the Catholics. These three were constituted into the states of the church, in commemoration of which the Popes of Rome to this day wear a triple crown.

I believe the views held by Bro. Miller, and others, on the 1290 and 1260 days were correct; but they began the 1335 days in 508, where the abomination of desolation began to be set up, instead of 538, where it was fully set up. For it was to be set up 1290 years, and the saints to be worn out 1260.

Says Gibbon, in 538, the whole nation of the Ostrogoths had been assembled for the atttack, and was almost consumed in the siege of Rome. If any credit be due to an intelligent spectator, one third at least of their enormous host was destroyed.

The question may be asked, did they not return to Rome, and trouble the Pope? They did, out of revenge, fourteen years after they were conquered. Says Gibbon, Pope Vigilius appeared before the throne of Justinian, and adjured him, in the name of God and the people, to resume the conquest and deliverance of Italy. And they were (retaken) by Narses, the successor of Belisarius, by a request made by Pope Vigilius in person to Justinian. This request of the Pope shows that he had held the throne at Rome since 538, for he was elected Pope in 537; for they were retaken by his request. This shows that he was head at Rome; and looked upon himself as the master of the city. Commentators tell us that the grant of Phocas in 606 (or 7), of the title of universal bishop, was the beginning of his supremacy.

Dr. Croly, page 117, says the highest authorities among the civilians and analists of Rome spurn the idea that Phocas was the founder of the supremacy of Rome; they ascend to Justinian as the only legitimate source, and rightly date the title from the memorable year 533. That was the year that John 2d was made head of the church by Justinian, the Catholic emperor. But he could not get the seat till five years after, for Rome was then held by the Ostrogoths, and they were bitter enemies to the Catholic faith. The dragon, the imperial power at Constantinople, gave him his power in 533, and his seat in 538, and that gave him great authority. See Rev. 13: 2. He shall subdue three kings. Dan. 7: 24. The abomination that maketh desolate could not be placed while Rome was held by the third horn; he must be subdued. Dan. 11: 31.

But we are told that the Pope did not receive his supremacy as a civil power until Pepin, king of France, conquered the Exarch of Ravenna from the Greeks in 755; and made the Pope a civil prince. But what had that to do with the dragon giving his seat to the beast? France was not the dragon, neither was Pepin the little horn; and Ravenna was not the seat of the Pope.

"And they that understand among the people shall instruct many; yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days. . . . And some of them of understanding shall fall, to try them, and to purge, and to make them white, even to the time of the end, because it is yet for a time appointed. . . . And at the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him, and the king of the north shall come against him like a whirlwind, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with many ships, and he shall enter into the countries, and shall overflow and pass over." Dan. 11: 33, 35, 40.

At the division of Alexander's kingdom, Egypt was the king of the south, and Syria the king of the north; and I believe this will hold good through the chapter.

The time of the end is a period of time commencing at the close of the Papal persecution. Now if the pushing, spoken of in the 40th verse, took place in 1798, then I have proved from the Bible that the 1260 years ended that year; for where the wearing out of the saints for 1260 years ended, at the time appointed, which brings us to the time of the end, verse 35, is where the pushing began, and recorded in verse 40. Now what power did the king of the south and the king of the north push at when we strike the time of the end? That power is spoken of in verses 36 to the 39th, which was France. Did France deny God? The fact is too notorious to spend time in giving the history. Did France take property from the Catholic church? Did they divide the land for gain? Allison says the confiscation of the land placed funds worth above £700,000,000 at the disposal of the government.

Allison says, In 1798 was the confiscation of the whole church property in the Papal territories. Not only the churches and the convents, but the palaces of the cardinals and of the nobility were laid waste. The whole sacerdotal habits of the Pope and cardinals were burned, in order to collect from the flames the gold with which they were adorned. The Vatican was stripped to its naked walls. At the same time, the ample territorial possessions of the church and the monasteries were confiscated, and declared national property; and the whole Papal states were revolutionized; and a new constitution and alliance were formed with Italy and France in 1798. And the same year the Pope was carried a prisoner to Valence, in France, where he died Aug. 29th, 1799, aged eighty-two years.

Messengers were sent to the Pope to demand the abdication of his temporal sovereignty. He replied with dignity, that he could not divest himself of a property which was not his, but which had devolved on him from the apostles, and was only a deposit in his hands. This logic had little effect upon our republican generals. The army which had just dethroned the Pope was called the army of Rome. Here the Papacy was overthrown in 1798.—Thiers French Revolution.

An extract from a work written in London, in 1798, by the Rev. Edward King, and published by him that year, we believe gives the true idea of the prophecy: Is not the papal power at Rome, which was once so terrible and so domineering, at an end? But let us pause a little. Was not the end, in another part of the holy prophecies, foretold to be at the end of 1260 years, and is it not foretold by Daniel to be at the end of 1260 years, and is it not foretold by Daniel to be at the end of a time, times, and half a time, which computation amounts to the same period? And now let us see,—hear, and understand. This is the year 1798. And just 1260 years ago, in the very beginning of the year 538, Belisarius put an end to the empire and dominion of the Ostrogoths at Rome. He entered the city on the tenth of the preceding December, in triumph, in the name of Justinian, Emperor of the east, and had soon after made it tributary to him, leaving thence forward, from A. D. 538, no power in Rome that could be said to rule over the earth, excepting the ecclesiastical power. We have reason to apprehend, then, that the 1260 years are now completed, and that we may venture to date the commencement of that period from the end of the Ostrogothic power at Rome, in which the papal power had been left at Rome by Belisarius, on his driving out the Ostrogoths and ruining their kingdom.

Now for the pushing, at the time of the end. Dan. 11: 40. Did Egypt, the king of the south, and Syria, the king of the north, push at France in 1798, the very year that the 1260 years ended? (At that time Syria was held by the Turkish government, at Constantinople; and has been held by them ever since A. D. 1187, when it was taken by Saladin, the Turkish Sultan; and whatever nation held the Syrian territory, at the time of the end, was the king of the north.) Napoleon commanded an expedition to Egypt. His object was to conquer Egypt and Syria. He sailed from Toulon on the 19th of May, 1798, with a fleet of five hundred sail, forty thousand soldiers, and ten thousand seamen. See Lockheart's History of Napoleon and Thiers' French Revolution.

In Brownell's History of the Word, he says, Bonaparte left Toulon on the 19th of May, 1798, and made war on Egypt in July. His fleet was destroyed at Aboukir Bay, in August, by Nelson, an English officer; but Bonaparte was recalled to military action by the hostility of the Turks. He took Jaffa by storm, then laid siege to Acre, which was defended by the ferocious Pasha Dejezzar, who was assisted by the English fleet under Sir Sidney Smith. After many desperate assaults, in which the flower of his army was destroyed, he relinquished the hopeless undertaking, and returned to Egypt, thence to France. In 1798, France had increased the enmity and jealousy of foreign powers, by dethroning the Pope, and revolutionizing and overawing the neighboring countries. Allison says, Kleber, with all his forces, attempted to make an attack on the Turkish camp, but he was anticipated by the enemy, who advanced to meet him with fifteen thousand cavalry, and as many infantry, when the immense mass came thundering down, threatening to trample their handful of enemies under their horses' hoofs; and on the 20th of May, 1799, Napoleon, for the first time in his life, ordered a retreat. No event so deeply affected Napoleon as the repulse at Acre. It cost him three thousand of his bravest troops killed, and more than that number died of the plague at Jaffa. St. Jean d' Acre once taken, said Napoleon, I would have reached Constantinople and the Indies. I would have changed the face of the world. He never ceased to regret the throne which he relinquished when he retired from Acre; and repeatedly said of Sir Sidney Smith, That man made me miss my destiny.

Now, as the sanctuary (which is the holy land) will not be cleansed till after the righteous dead are raised, I see no difficulty in that the 1335 days may terminate a little before the 2300. All readers of the Crisis must see that our reckoning is almost up. "The night is far spent, the day is at hand."

SHALL WE RETURN BACK?

Dear brethren and sisters, who are scattered abroad, greeting: You are somewhat disappointed in not seeing your dear Redeemer coming in the clouds of heaven, before this time; and perhaps there are some that will be inclined to return back; but, dear brethren and sisters, supposing you or I have been mistaken in the precise time of our lovely Redeemer's return, what then? Have we done wrong in looking for that dear and lovely Friend? We think not. Supposing one of your near and dearest friends was absent on a long journey; and the time of that absent friend's return, as you understood it, drew near, and you should watch every road that led to your house from day to day, and should often feel disappointed in not seeing that dear friend; would you be doing wrong? I think not. I think the Inspiration of God requires all of us to be watching unto prayer, and looking daily for the coming of the Just One. We certainly know that we live in the last stages of this world's present existence, and that Christ is near, even at the door.

Suppose I look for his personal return tomorrow, or next day, and the third day, and the fourth day, and so on for a hundred days, or five hundred days, or longer; and should feel disappointed every day; what then? Should I be doing wrong because I happened to look for him too soon? I think not. Would it not be a good proof of my attachment to that loved friend? I think it would.

But can we not find proof in the inspired book of God that we are required to be constantly looking for the coming of our dear Redeemer, every day of our lives, whether we know the time or not? We will look into the holy Book and see what we can find: "Unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time, without sin, unto salvation." Heb. 9: 28. Look also at Titus 2: 11–13, where we are informed that "the grace of God" teaches us that we should deny ungodliness, and be "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." In Phil. 3: 20–21, we read: "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, . . . who shall change our vile body." We see the coming here referred to is at the resurrection, when he will change our vile bodies. The angels who were present at the ascension of our Lord said: "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." This is not at death, but at the resurrection and judgment. We are certainly justified in looking for the personal coming of our Savior.

But, supposing some are inclined to return back from whence they came; would it not be going back into ten times worse error than to be looking for Christ too soon? If we turn back to sin and the world, we are certainly lost.

Dear brethren and sisters, would it not be the safest way for us to remain firm in the noble cause of Christ, and still be looking for him to come and set up his everlasting kingdom, and give us immortality and eternal life therein?

SECRET ALMS.

"Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them; otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven. Therefore when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward. But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth; that thine alms may be in secret; and thy Father, which seeth in secret, himself shall reward thee openly."—Matt. 6: 1-4.

I is evident from this positive command of our Savior that he desired his followers to study to give of their substance, in a way to avoid being lauded or praised by men or their gifts to be made public in one way, "otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven." The class who sound a trumpet and who also love the praise of men more than the praise of God, have their reward all in the life that now is; but one who gives secretly, in obedience to the above command, not onty gets his reward in the enjoyment of that peace, which the world know not of, but more perfectly in a future day, when Jesus will say to him, "Inasmuch as ye have done it," etc., "enter . . . into the joy of thy Lord."

Many persons who give largely to charitable or religious purposes, and perhaps conscientiously, and then allow their names and the amount given to be blazed abroad, and reiterated every few weeks, and held up as an incentive for others to emulate, err in not taking sufficient heed to the manner of giving as required by our Savior. He who said, "Give and it shall ge given to you," etc., said also "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." Is not one command as imperative as the other? But this way is not in keeping with the inclinations of the natural heart. And are any of these the practical teachings of Christ, or his apostles? Nay, verily. The secret of true christianity is nearly embodied in two words: "Deny thyself." He would have his people peculiar, and we who expect him soon to come again, would be much more so, did we adhere more closely to the strict letter and spirit of the New Testament.

"I LOVE YOU ALL THE TIME."

I had corrected my little boy, and the effect upon his mind seemed salutary. A few hours after, on going out, I stooped over to leave a kiss upon his brow, remarking as I did so, "I love my little boy when he does right." He looked me fully in the face, and said quick as thought, "I love you all the time."

I passed on, but he little realized the impression those words made upon my mind. I felt rebuked. I learned a lesson. My child loved his parent even when inflicting chastisement. How had I felt when under the discipline of my heavenly Father? I feared I had loved him too much on the principle manifested toward my child, while he had loved me all the time, praise his dear name.

I had taken pains when correcting my dear little ones to pray with them, and endeavored to impress upon their minds the fact that I was consulting their best interests in thus disciplining them; that I did it not in anger, but calmly and deliberately, and for their good; and this expression seemed to be an inevitable result—"I love you all the time." But how often had I forgotten, when the chastening of the Lord was upon me, to love him all the time, even when I knew "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." How idly had I borne in mind, when trials and afflictions had been my portion, they were not administered save in the tenderest love, and were designed to work in me the peaceable fruits of righteousness. "God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." Do I dwell there? Can I ever see in clouds, disappointments, and evils incident to my surroundings, the guiding hand of a dear Father? Do I ever realize he loves me infinitely better than I love myself; and is doing far better for me than I can ask or think, if I simply obey him? that the fire is simply to consume the dross, not the gold? that the trial is for purification, not consumption? that he would simply remove a less and apparent, to bestow a greater and real blessing? that the Spirit of God requires a clean habitation, and the trials through which I pass are but the soap, sand and water necessary for the scouring of the vessel in which that Spirit is to dwell? O, thank God, I will try and love him all the time.

Dear reader, are you in the furnace? Is it heated seven times more than it is wont? Do you feel you cannot hold out a day longer? Is darkness so dense that it may almost be felt? Have the waters well nigh gone over you? Do not forget he loves you all the time, and the "form of the fourth is with you," if obedient. "Beyond the dark cloud the sun shines bright." "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee." Look up, look up.

THE BINDING OF SATAN.

We learn from Rev. 20: 1–3, that an angel from heaven is to be delegated to bind Satan; but judging from the teachings of the church at the present time, other agencies are to be employed in its consummation. The various religious denominations have been trying to forge a chain strong enough for this purpose. The theological schools and seminaries calculate that they are making a hook sufficiently strong to hold fast; the foreign and domestic missionary societies are making links to connect with this hook; the temperance and other various benevolent organizations are also hard at work, making links for this chain; and the Sabbath School associations think they have got the kind of metal from which they can forge a chain that cannot be broken.

Let us now suppose that this chain is completed, and the hook is made fast to the earth, and they are about to lay hold of him. The first thing in order will be to catch him, for he is nimble as a deer, and as fleet as lightning. We think after a fruitless chase, they will be obliged to give up in despair. But should they succeed in getting the chain around him, it would be like Samson's withs and cords with which he was bound. No, the church will never be able to bind Satan. It has never yet been able to keep him out of its own borders; much less from walking to and fro through the earth; and until the angel descends from heaven with the chain, not made by human instrumentality, he will continue with all his power and force, doing his work of death; for its power is in his hands. Instead of the church binding him, he is fast coiling his chain around many of its members, and we know the Scripture says the whole world lieth in wickedness, or in the wicked one.

The chain he uses appears at times very harmless. We may mention, for instance, the Planchette. This little instrument, considered by some as only a parlor toy, is creating considerable excitement among the uninitiated, as to its performances. It is in reality a trick of the Devil; no more nor less than a writing medium. The demons must have some means of communicating their diabolism to mankind; and a shingle upon wheels will answer as well as any thing else. We often hear of various kinds of mediums, such as healing, talking, writing mediums, etc. We learn from the experience of those using this instrument, that they feel a peculiar sensation running through the arms and fingers. They have become mediums; and we venture to say that no one can use this instrument successfully without first giving himself up to the control of the Devil; and yet multitudes, who profess to be enlightened by the Spirit of God, appear to be as much interested in it as any others. They deal in it as an article of merchandize; they have it in their families, and use it, considering it as harmless as they would any other piece of household furniture. They are being bound with a chain they will never be able to break, unaided by Almighty power. The binding has been of the church, and will continue so to be until He comes whose right it is to reign.

D. N. Smith.

A PROP WITHDRAWN.

The dogma of eternal suffering for the lost can illy spare even one of its slender supports. Its advocates have, some of them at least, been in the habit of quoting Rev. 22: 11 in support of their terrible doctrine. This passage is thus disposed of by the Advance:

There is reason to doubt the use often made of Rev. 22: 11. "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still, and he that is filthy, let him be filthy still; and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still; and he that is holy, let him be holy still." Preachers quote these words as though they were a part of the judicial sentence at the last day, or were, at least, a declaration of what would remain true after that event. Mr. Barnes so interprets them. But they do not occur in such a connection. They are a part of the concluding appeal of the book of Revelation, in the form of an impressive final appeal of the angel to John. They come after the words: "Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book; for the time is at hand," and immediately before the words, "And behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man as his work shall be." It would thus appear that the idea is, to tell John, and, through him, all the readers of the book, that after the message should be delivered, men would be allowed to act out their character, and choice, whether evil or good, without divine interference, till the predicted second coming of Christ, when each should be dealt with according to his works. So good old Matthew Henry understands it.

Prof. Stuart, in his commentary, translates, "Let him who acts unjustly, act unjustly still; and let him who is defiled, defile himself still; yet let the righteous still do righteously, and he that is holy, still be holy," adding: "the sentiment seems to be plainly this: Be it that persecutors and vile men shall continue without remission, for a while longer, their oppressive and debasing practices; yet let not the righteous be shaken in his constancy, nor the holy man cease in any measure from the pursuit of sanctification."

It is not proper, then, to quote this passage as teaching that there will be no change of character in eternity. The reference is to the free persistence of men in evil and in good, allowed in this world under the gospel, and to the judgment that will follow, awarding destiny according to character.—Ex.

John Wesley always preferred the middling and lower classes to the wealthy. He said: 'If I might choose, I should still, as I have done hitherto, preach the gospel to the poor.' Preaching in Monktown church, a large, old, ruinous building, he says: 'I suppose it has scarce had such a congregation during this century. Many of them were gay, genteel people, so I spoke on the first elements of the Gospel; but I was still out of their depth.' Oh, how hard it is to be shallow enough for a polite audience!

INHABITANTS OF HELL AND HEAVEN.

The following is pretty good for the source from whence it comes. Pity all sects should not learn something from such a dream, even if dreamed awake:

John Wesley was once troubled in regard to the disposition of the various sects, and the chances of each in reference to future happiness or punishment. A dream one night transported him in its uncertain wanderings to the gates of hell.

"Are there any Roman Catholics here?" asked thoughtful Wesley.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Any Presbyterians?"

"Yes," again was the answer.

"Any Congregationalists?"

"Yes."

"Any Methodists?" by way of a clincher, asked the pious Wesley.

"Yes?" to his great indignation, was answered.

In the mystic way of dreams, a sudden transition—and he stood before the gates of heaven. Improving his opportunity, he again inquired:

"Are there any Roman Catholics here!"

"No," was replied.

"Any Presbyterians?"

"No."

"Any Congregationalists"?

"No."

"Any Methodists?"

"No."

"Well, then," he asked, lost in wonder, who are they inside?"

"Christians!" was the jubilant answer.

PURE IN HEART.

Who are the pure in heart? Are they those who lie, swear, cheat, steal, and do many other wicked things? No, it is plainly to be seen they are not pure in heart but very impure. Are they the professed followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, in whom all the workings of the flesh are manifest, with unchanged hearts just as impure as ever? not here do we find the pure in heart. Can the pure be found among those who are looking for God's Son from heaven, who in solemn covenant have taken the Bible for their rule, to be governed by it in every department of life, but are making no effort for the spread of this "gospel of the kingdom." Be not deceived. If we are poor we are not to be excused. The widow's mite was accepted.

Covetousness, with many other things, show the impurity of the heart. We may have said much about the glories of the coming kingdom, but with impurity of heart, it will be of no avail to us in the day of Christ's appearing. Some have given all for Christ, and are "denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, living "soberly, righteously and godly in this present world; looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." Such are the pure in heart.

GAMBLING.

"Give me a cent and you may pitch one of these rings, and if it catches over a nail, I'll give you six cents."

That seemed fair enough, so the boy handed him a cent, and took a ring. He stepped back to a stake, tossed his ring and it caught on one of the nails.

"Will you take rings to pitch again or six cents."

"Six cents," was the answer, and two three-cent pieces were put in his hand. He stepped off well satisfied with what he had done, and probably not having any idea that he had done wrong. A gentleman standing near had watched him, and now, before he had time to look about and rejoin his companions, laid his hand on his shoulder.

"My lad, this is your first lesson in gambling!"

"Gambling, sir?"

"You staked your penny and won six, did you not?"

"Yes, I did."

"You did not earn them, and they were not given you; you won them just as gamblers win money. You have taken the first step in the path; that man has gone through it, and you can see the end. Now, I advise you to go and give the six cents back, and ask him for your penny, and then stand square with the world, an honest boy."

He had hung his head down, but raised it quickly, and his bright open look, as he said, "I'll do it," will not soon be forgotten. He ran back and soon emerged from the ring, looking happier than ever. He touched his cap and bowed pleasantly as he ran away to join his comrades. That was an honest boy. —Young Pilgrim.

EARLY RISING.

Up, up, little folks, and great folks too—Up with the lark! inhale the pure sweets of early dawn. Breakfast on the morning air fresh with the odor of budding flowers, and all the fragrance of the maiden spring. Up! wake up ere the glorious king of day streak the east.

"Up! rise up and see
The dew-spangled herb and tree,
Ye who would couple labor and health,
Must begin at an early hour."

Get up early, be on your knees—ere sun streaks the east. The morning is the prime, the golden season. The morning air—how sweet, how delicious—how charming! Hail, lovely morning, precursor of a brighter day!

"Sweet is the breath of morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest birds; pleasant the sun
When first on this delightful land he spreads
His orient beams on herb, tree, fruit, and flower,
Glistening with dew."

The morning air adds brightness to the blood, freshness to life, and vigor to the whole frame. "The freshness of the lip is one of the surest signs of health." Would you be well, enjoy health, life, vigor of soul and body? have your heart dance joyfully like the April breeze, and your blood flowing like an April brook?

Come, rise up, tune your heart to grateful praise!

"Wake while yet the sparkling dew-drops
Gem each flowerest's tiny bell,
While the joyous woodland warblers
Loud their grateful chorus swell;
Kneel with calm and thankful spirit,
Kneel and breathe thy morning prayer."

"JIMMY'S DEAD."

Some three years ago I had a class of eight or ten small boys in a Sabbath School in the city. Well do I remember one Sabbath afternoon, when, as they gathered around me, we talked to each other, about death, and heaven, and of Jesus, who died for us. The boys were attentive and seemed interested.

The school was closed; a week passed away, another Sabbath had come, and as the class assembled the teacher noticed one little boy who had come without his brother.

"Where's Jimmy?" asked the teacher.

The poor little fellow, in a low voice, said, "Jimmy's dead!"

Jimmy dead! yes, the little boy in health the Sabbath before, was dead! What solemn thoughts rushed into the teacher's mind!

"My little scholar dead! here last Sabbath, to-day in his coffin? have I been faithful to my trust? Oh, had I but known he was to die so soon, how much more earnestly would I have talked with him!"

Instead of Jimmy coming to the teacher that day, the teacher went to Jimmy; and looked upon his scholar's pale face as he lay in his little coffin!

There he lay hushed and still;—no voice was heard, and yet the teacher was taught by the scholar, that day. "Teacher," he seemed to say, "Teacher, whatsoever thy hand findeth to do in the Sabbath-School, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither teachers and scholars are going; the time is short; what thou doest do quickly."

Christian teacher, be faithful; talk plainly to your scholars. Let them see that you are anxious about their eternal welfare; tell them so, and endeavor to talk so kindly and earnestly with them, that there can be no mistake; urge them to come to Jesus now; warn them of the danger of delay, for you know not how soon teacher and scholars may be separated and these precious opportunities be gone forever.—The Christian.

THE GOLDEN KEY.

It was one stormy December day, and Lucy's aunt was seated by the table at work. Lucy was perched in her favorite seat by the window, watching the white snow-flakes as they fluttered gracefully to the ground, covering with their fleecy mantle every rough, unsightly thing, and making the broad earth a scene of purity and beauty. She was so very quiet that her aunt at length looking up anxiously, and said:

"What are you thinking of, my darling?"

The thoughtful look passed from her bright face, and the sunny smile came back again as she threw herself in her aunt's arms and exclaimed:

"I was thinking, aunty, that I have found a golden key that unlocks everybody's heart to me. Can you guess what it is, aunty?"

Her aunt smiled and shook her head.

"It is only one little word—'Please,' If I say, 'Please give me a piece of bread and butter, Nora,' she says, 'Yes miss;' and takes her hands out of the suds and goes and gets it at once. John says she is cross. But she is never cross to me. I think one reason is because I try not to vex her. Sometimes John tells her to get his slippers that very minute, no matter what she is doing, and she answers back in loud and angry words, and John says she is the crossest person he ever saw. Don't you think aunty, if John used the golden key, she would be kind and pleasant to him, too?"

"Yes, my love; and if they would both remember that 'a soft answer turneth away wrath,' and act accordingly, I think there would very soon cease to be harsh words between them. There are few persons so thoroughly bad that they cannot be won by kindness. Even dumb animals are not insensible to its influence. If you should beat Eido, or speak sharply to him, do you think that he would show the same affection for you that he now does? If my little girl will always keep in her possession the precious golden key which she has been so fortunate as to find thus early, she will never want friends, and in trying to make those around her happy, will ensure a never failing source of happiness herself."—Children's Friend.

A WORD FOR BOYS.

Truth is one of the rarest gems. Many a youth has been lost in society by allowing it to tarnish his character, and foolishly throwing it away. If this gem still shines in your bosom, suffer nothing to displace or diminish its lustre.

Profanity is a mark of low breeding. Show us that man that commands much respect; an oath never trembles on his tongue. Read the catalogue of crime. Inquire the character of those who depart from virtue. Without a single exception you will find them to be profane. Think of this, and don't let a vile word disgrace you.

Honesty, frankness, generosity, virtue—blessed traits! Be those yours, my boys, and I shall fear not. You are watched by your elders. Men, who are looking for clerks and apprentices have their eyes on you. If you are upright, steady and industrious, before long you will find good places, kind masters, and the prospects of a useful life before you.—Peninsular Herald.

UNWHOLESOME READING.

Mr. Haynes, in his "Pictures of Prison Life," tells of a young man, blessed with kind and indulgent parents, and possessed of a superior education, who was sentenced for fourteen years for breaking and entering stores. He had given no previous evidence of depravity before he was caught, and the wonder was that a young man with his intelligence and surroundings should thus blast his prospects in life. An examination of his room at home explained the mystery. He was a great reader of "yellow covered literature." He had accumulated vast quantities of vile trash; and had read it until he had been crazed by the exciting scenes and daring exploits of which he read. He reveled in the wild romance until his imagination was taken captive. The end was crime. What harvests of ruin have grown from unwholesome reading.

THE GREAT SECRET.

"Why have you prospered while so many around you have failed?" inquired a man of a rich merchant one day.

The merchant turned to the Bible and read the words.

"Acknowledge him in all thy ways and he shall direct thy steps." Then closing the Bible, he added solemnly, "This is the grand secret of my prosperity in the world."

Let every youth take possession of this secret, and begin to acknowledge God in all his ways.

THE LION OF JUDAH.

'Twas Jesus, my Savior, who died on the tree,
To open a fountain for sinners like me;
His blood is that fountain which pardon bestows,
And cleanses the foulest wherever it flows.

Chorus.
For the Lion of Judah shall break every chain,
And give us the victory again and again.

And when I was willing with all things to part,
He gave me my bounty, his love in my heart;
So now I am joined with the conquering band,
Who are marching to glory at Jesus' command.

Though round me the storms of adversity roll,
And the waves of destruction encompass my soul;
In vain this frail vessel the tempest shall toss,
My hopes rest secure on the blood of the cross.

And when the last trumpet of judgment shall sound,
And wake all the nations that sleep in the ground;
Then, when heaven and earth shall be melting away,
I'll sing of the blood of the cross in that day.

And when with the ransomed, by Jesus my head,
From fountain to fountain I then shall be led;
I'll fall at his feet and his mercy adore,
And sing of the blood of the cross evermore.

For the World's Crisis.

WHERE ARE WE?

Previous to the destruction of Jerusalem, there were three classes of people who inhabited the city. First, there were those who believed Christ and his teachings, and understood the signs of the times. They gave heed to the sure word of prophecy, and by that word they knew that Jesus was the Christ. They remembered also his teachings, and watched closely for the signs which he declared should appear before the destruction thereof was nigh, and they fled to the mountains and escaped the terrible slaughter. There was another class, quite a respectable sort of people, who clung tenaciously to the old Mosaic law; were strict in observing all its forms and ceremonies; professed to have great respect for the prophets, and read the Scriptures in their synagogues on the Sabbath. But still there was a great lack. In the first place they had mixed with the word of the Lord a great deal of tradition, "making the word of God of none effect through your tradition." Mark 7: 13.

Secondly, though they professed so much respect for the prophets, they heeded not their teachings; therefore they rejected Christ, and knew not the time of their visitation. "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." Hosea 4: 6. This class included the priests and the learned Sanhedrim, who knew most everything but that portion of God's word, "the present dispensational truth," which belonged to them right there, and was essential to their own salvation, and the salvation of the whole nation, who looked up to them as their spiritual teachers and counselors. By neglecting to enlighten themselves from the sure word of prophecy, they failed to discern the signs of the times, and became blind leaders of the blind; and, behold! their house was left unto them desolate.

The third class were those whom Josephus called the "seditious." They had no regard for law or gospel. They despised both altar and sacrifice, and slew the priests who ministered in the sanctuary. They neither feared God nor regarded man. They gloried in their wickedness, and openly advocated adultery, fornication, and every kind of evil. They had no respect for religion or goodness, and the word of the Lord was to them an idle tale. It was this class who brought famine, desolation and woe upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem. It was not really the Romans who destroyed the Jews and laid waste their city; they destroyed each other. The terrible slaughter which filled Jerusalem with dead carcasses, and caused the blood of the slain to run down the streets and out at the gates, was among themselves. The "seditious" took the government into their own hands, and surely it was a reign of terror. After the christians had left the city, the godless, lawless knaves, who had no regard for virtue, honesty, religion or morality, turned upon the more respectable class, who still tried to observe the forms of the law, and murdered them in the streets, in the lanes and by-ways, any where they could find them; and the different parties of the seditious, urged on by envy, jealousy, animosity and revenge, fought with each other until the ground from one end of the city to the other was covered with dead bodies, unburied and unlamented; for there was so much misery, suffering and terror, the living had no time or inclination to mourn for the dead.

Josephus says, "Wherever a man turned him, there was nothing but desolation, pollution, uproars without all rest and refuge; no help, no succor, but every corner of Jerusalem was full of howling, wailing and weeping, sobbing and sighing of women and children. Here should you hear the roaring and groaning of wounded men not yet thoroughly dead. . . . To be short, most sorrowful oppression of them who lived, done by the seditious. Such lamentations were made everywhere, that happy and fortunate was he who before this day had died, and unhappy and in a woful case were all such as remained alive to see this day." Again he says in his lamentations; "Their bodies cover the face of the whole earth, and there is not any body who will vouchsafe to bury them; yea, they who would cannot be suffered, but straightway come others to them who kill them before they can do it, so that they die also and lie unburied."

What a picture of wickedness and suffering, of misery and death! It grew worse and worse. All forms of worship ceased. "And when any man would offer any sacrifice, straightway one or other of the seditious would step to him and kill him." The pavement of the temple was made slippery with blood, and the bodies of priests and people were piled together in heaps. Terror, despair and anguish filled the hearts of the better portion of the people, while rage and malice, and all the evil passions of fiends incarnate, urged on the other class. Pestilence and famine swept off thousands of those who escaped the sword. Fire followed sword, famine and pestilence, and the destruction of Jerusalem was complete, "and few men left."

But where were the followers of Christ during this terrible carnage—those who believed his word, and "knew what Israel ought to do?" Ah! they were "hid in the time of trouble." They saw the evil, but it came not nigh them; they were spared, a little handful of wheat, to live and grow in the land after the cloud of wrath and judgment had passed by. But the miserable remnant of the seditious were driven into hopeless captivity.

The Jews were a typical people. Their history was shadows in advance of what should take place under the gospel dispensation; and the destruction of Jerusalem was a representation of the closing up of Gentile times, and end of the world, or age. If so, may we not expect the closing scenes of her history to be acted over just before the end of time? Most certainly. Let us look into the future. Just before the end of time there will be at least three classes of people in the world. First, there will be a people who will search the Scriptures diligently, and will give heed to the sure word of prophecy. They will understand the signs of the times, and "know what Israel ought to do." They will know by omens in the sun, moon, and stars, and on the earth, that the end is nigh; and they will be looking for the Son of God from heaven, and rejoicing that their "redemption draweth nigh." And seeing the sword coming they will warn the people to seek a hiding-place in "the time of trouble."

There will be another class, a very respectable people, who will adhere strictly to all the forms of religion, will be earnest advocates of the Bible, and will read it in their churches. But, alas! they will mix with it so much tradition, it will make the "word of God of no effect." Though they will profess much respect for the prophets, they will reject their teachings, and will therefore fail to understand the signs of the times. They will be on the wrong side of the cloud; what is light to the other class will be darkness to them. Their teachers will be learned men, educated in all worldly wisdom, and well read in the theology of the day; but they will not receive the present dispensational truths, which would be salvation to themselves and the people. They will close their eyes to all the evidences of Christ's immediate coming, and will be blind leaders of the blind, crying peace and safety when "sudden destruction" is very near. Not knowing the time of their visitation, "that day will come upon them as a thief, and they shall not escape."

There will be yet another class who will have no respect for law or gospel; no regard for religion, morality, or virtue. They will ridicule the Bible, and openly advocate licentiousness and evil of every description. They will deny the divinity of Christ, and reject his teachings, but will receive those who come in their own name, claiming to be equal with Jehovah, yea, setting themselves "above all that is called God or worshiped." They will give heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils. They will usurp authority, and strive hard to take all government into their own hands. And being filled with rage and hate toward all who believe the word of God, and who will not fall in with them in their evil course, they will seek to destroy them. But while they are laying their plans and getting ready their forces to carry out their evil intentions, those who believe God, who spoke through the mouth of his prophets, will know what these things mean, and will see the deluge of trouble that is coming on the world, and will cry mightily, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." The servants of God will be sealed so that the angels who are sent forth to gather the elect may know who are the wheat.

Just as Satan's forces have completed their arrangements, and are standing all ready, with hands uplifted to destroy all who will not receive the mark of the beast, nor worship his image, then, right at the moment when the faithful ones are beginning to cry, "My God, hast thou forsaken us?" the heavens will open and reveal the Son of God, attended by a retinue of mighty angels coming to the rescue. Hark! hear a voice of celestial sweetness cry in tones that reach to earth's remotest bounds, "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chamber, and shut thy doors about thee, and hide thyself as it were, for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast; for behold the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity." Then comes an answering shout from the gathering throng, "Lo! this is our God, we have waited for him, and he will save us." The hunters and fishers go forth to gather from the dens, and caves of earth, and depth of ocean those who sleep in Jesus. Lo! they come, a countless multitude, and with the living are changed; and what a change! Every vein, nerve and sinew thrill with immortality. The hollow cheek is round and full, the sunken eye regains more than its youthful lustre, and lights up with heavenly fire. The lame man leaps like an hart, the blind receive sight, the dumb shout glad hosannas, the aged get eternal youth. All earthly attractions are severed, and the cords of faith and love which united them to Christ, draw them gently upward "to meet him in the air, and so shall they ever be with the Lord." Oh! see them as they rise. Their eyes are fixed on the King Immanuel in a steadfast gaze of bliss. Earth is forgotten. All its trials and sufferings, anguish and tears, are forever past. The warfare is ended, victory is won. No more tempation, no more sin, no more doubts and fears; they are saved at last, a glorified company, gathered from every age and clime, redeemed from death by the blood of the Lamb. They meet the Savior. He greets them with a smile of welcome; the bride has found the Bridegroom. All heaven resounds with the glad cry, "Let us be glad and rejoice, for the marriage of the Lamb has come, and his wife hath made herself ready."

But while there is rejoicing in heaven, how will it be upon the earth? "There shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." Two classes will be left, as there was in Jerusalem. The ungodly, unprincipled set, who have no respect for God or goodness, will have the power in their own hands. They have worshiped Satan, and will get for a little while as their reward the governments of earth. But how will they rule? As the seditious ruled in Jerusalem. No law, no order, but anarchy, confusion, and shedding of blood. But those for whom they forged their weapons will have escaped. Their place of defense is the munition of rocks, beyond the reach of men or demons. Then the rage of the lawless mob will turn upon the respectable class of church-goers who profess to believe the Bible, though they deny its teachings. This class, having some respect for religion, will object to coming under the misrule of the seditious. Then will come the shedding of blood. Everywhere, in houses of worship, in private dwellings, in the fields, in the highways and by-ways, blood will flow, until the dead shall lie "from one end of the earth even to the other end of the earth; they shall not be lamented, neither gathered nor buried." Then the shepherds shall howl, for they shall have no way to flee, nor the principal of the flock to escape. This awful slaughter will not only rage between the two classes, but the different factions of the unprincipled and seditious throng, in their envy and rage, will prey upon each other. Oh! look out and see the terrible condition of the inhabitants of earth. My soul sickens at the prospect. The Spirit of God has left the children of men; all good influences are withdrawn; the people are under the control of demons. Revenge, cruelty, despair, anguish and terror, are written on the countenances of the God-forsaken mortals who rush in frenzy to and fro on the doomed earth. Every evil passion is awake. Old grudges are revived, envy and jealousy create a thirst which blood alone can quench. All natural ties are severed; father rises against son, and son against father. Famine and pestilence come in to help on the work of destruction, until "few men are left."

After this horrid scene comes the resurrection, judgment, cleansing of the sanctuary, the destruction of the wicked, and the restoration of paradise. Earth once more smiles in its Eden beauty, and Christ receives it from the Father as his lawful possession, and he gives it to Abraham and his seed "through the righteousness of faith." The desolation has passed by, and God's children dwell in the land forever; while the rebels, who would not have "this man" to reign over them, have gone into hopeless captivity—the silence and darkness of eternal night.

Children of the living God, does your faith waver? Are you weary with watching, and do you begin to say in your hearts, "My Lord delayeth his coming"? Why do ye doubt? Can ye not discern the signs of the times? Look out into the world. Can you not already see the three classes? A little company have been out watching for the Bridegroom; but even of these, full one half are asleep, and their lamps have gone out. A few are still awake, with lamps trimmed and burning. A much larger class are still dwelling in the tents of ease; having the form of godliness; keeping up a great show of rites and ceremonies; building a wall of fancied security with untempered mortar, and crying peace and safety right in the face of coming destruction. And can you not see the gathering together of the seditious? Men with unprincipled minds and an insatiable thirst for power, lead on the gathering forces. Ambitious and artful politicians fill up the front ranks. As the train advances, see them coming from the vallies, the plains, and mountains. In every den of infamy, in every haunt of vice, in dark corners and secret chambers, companies are forming to join the great army. O, look at the clusters of this vine of the earth. Catholics, demon worshipers, adulterers, thieves, and robbers, are all recognized as good men and true in this grand army of Satan. See them spreading themselves over the land. Already they are sounding their notes of war, and uttering horrid threats against all who will not fall into line with them in their ungodly course.

O, children, the time of trouble is just upon us. Gird up your loins, and get on the whole armor while you may, for soon the sword may be unsheathed. The time is at hand when we shall need all the grace, and strength, and armor we can get, to enable us to withstand the fiery darts of Satan's marshalled host. Bereaved ones, mourn not for those who sleep in Jesus, for "blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth." Watchmen on the walls, sound the alarm while there is time; "preach the word" while you have opportunity, for the time may come when men will not be permitted to preach the Bible any more than the priests were suffered to offer sacrifices in the temple at Jerusalem. "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief." Let the tide rise and the trouble come; we know it is only the breakers which line the shore. When the clouds gather in the moral sky, when the sun forbears to shine, and the moon is shrouded, and the stars disappear; we know the morn is about to break, and redemption is very near. We need just such a time as that which is coming to straighten us and prove us, and let us know whose we are. Can we not endure for a little while, when deliverance is so near? God help us to stand in the evil day, and be ready for the coming of the Son of man.

THE ALARM BELL.

PERDITION OF THE LAST ENEMY.

In 1 Cor. 15, 26, it is said, The "last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." From this Scripture we derive the following perfectly obvious items:

1. Death is an enemy.
2. It shall be destroyed.
3. It is the last enemy that shall be destroyed.
4. Consequently, every other enemy under heaven will then have been destroyed.

Let us look yet a little more attentively at these positions.

1. Death is an enemy. It is here so affirmed. Is it controvertible? It was premonished to be the certain penalty of sin in the beginning, and "death came by sin. The devil is declared to have the power of death, and surely the devil being an enemy, the work of the devil, bringing extinction of life and hope, is inimical, and this whether we consider death an agency or an effect. In Jeremiah 31: 16, the woe-stricken mothers of Ramah are visited with words of gentle consolation and glorious promise, for God there with prophetic love assures their future rapturous reunion with the lost little innocents that fell by bloody Herod's hand. "They [the murdered children] shall come again from the land of the enemy."
